GEO. W. WESTBROOK, Sole Proprietor, 343 Broadway, New York, and St. Louis, Mo.
PRICES—25 CENTS, 50 CENTS, AND $1 A BOTTLE.
The One Dollar Bottles contain eight times as much as the 25 cent Bottles.
The MUSTANG LINIMENT is sold by all Druggists in Chicago, and by one or more agents in every town and village in the State of Illinois.
d22

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
Please call and examine for yourselves, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 2 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
☞ Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je9–

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS. fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. I.—NO. 51. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Look at Home.

Should you feel inclined to censure
Faults you may in others view,
Ask your own heart, ere you venture,
If that has not failings too.

Let not friendly vows be broken,
Rather strive a friend to gain;
Many a word in anger spoken
Finds its passage home again.

Do not, then, in idle pleasure,
Trifle with a brother's fame;
Guard it as a valued treasure—
Sacred as your own good name.

Do not form opinions blindly—
Hastiness to trouble tends;
Those of whom we've thought unkindly
Oft become our warmest friends.

Operations in the Baltic.

The Next Campaign—Sir Charles Napier's Views—Admiral Dundas' Opinion—Curious Letter from Another British Admiral.

SIR CHARLES NAPIER ON THE ENGLISH NAVY IN THE WAR.

To the Editor of the London Times:

In your leading article of the 2d of January you attack statesmen, admirals and generals; you say you will set before them what the country expects at their hands.

I will leave the statesmen and generals to speak for themselves, but I will not remain silent, and see the whole navy condemned as cowards and imbeciles.

I know the risk I run in making observations on your articles, but I will run that risk, and tell you plainly that you know nothing of the subject on which you write.

I venture to affirm that there is as much talent, courage and dash in the British navy now as there was in the days of Nelson. You say, Mr. Editor, in the last war the ships of England went everywhere and did everything, with incredible daring and success. With only the uncertain winds and treacherous waves to rely on, they entered every creek; and, provided they could get in, never troubled themselves with the superfluous consideration of how they could get out again.

Now, Mr. Editor, I served fifteen years last war, and it never was the custom for ships to approach batteries at all. No admiral ever ventured to take his fleet into an enemy's port, except Lord Nelson; he went into Copenhagen gained a victory, and was well pleased to get out; and he never tried it again; he did not take his lumbering fleet, as you call it, to Carlscrona or to the Swedish waters; he never went higher in the Gulf of Finland than Nargen.

Sir James Saumarez, who was a most enterprising officer, little short of Nelson, lost a line-of-battle-ship in attacking Alzasmus; never even went up to Cronstadt; nor did he attack either Riga, Revel or Port Baltic.

Lord Nelson remained several years off Toulon, and never thought of attacking it; he never thought of running his fleet into Cadiz; nor did Lord St. Vincent nor Lord Collingwood, though it was by no means strong.

Lord Hotham never tried Toulon; neither did Lord St. Vincent, Sir Charles Cotton or Lord Exmouth try the Tagus.

Lord Howe, Lord Bridport, Lord Gardner, Sir Charles Cotton, Lord St. Vincent, Lord Gambier and Admiral Cornwallis, treated Brest, Rochford and L'Orient with the greatest respect. The dashing Cochrane burnt and drove on shore the French ships in Basque Roads; and many other dashing things were done by frigates, and daring enterprises by boats, but by fleets never, except at Algiers and Acre, and they defended by Turks and Egyptians.

Admiral Young and Sir Sydney Smith, when they were captains, got their ships cut up severely by two round towers, one in Corsica, and the other on the coast of Naples, mounting one or two guns.

Lord Nelson did not dare to attack with his ships the batteries of Boulogne, but tried with his boats, and was defeated; he did not dare to attack Teneriffe with his ships, but tried his boats, and was defeated, and lost his arm. After this statement you must not mislead the country again, and throw odium on her officers.

If enough has not been done in the Baltic by the navy to satisfy you, Mr. Editor, why don't you put the saddle on the right horse—the Admiralty! In 1854, a fleet was sent to the Baltic, very badly manned, hastily got together, and inexperienced. Without pilots (for those we had knew nothing) and with very indifferent charts, yet we managed to get that fleet in among rocks and shoals up to Cronstadt, and found that there was not sufficient water to float them; and had there been water, we were ignorant of the passage up, and the batteries much too strong for our ships. At Sweaborg, we knew nothing of the passage, and there again the batteries were tremendously strong.

What would you have done, Mr. Editor?

What we did do was to point out to the Admiralty the proper way of attack—this was in June, 1854. The fleet threaded their way through the labyrinth of rocks up to Bomarsund, landed the troops in an incredibly short time, and took it. Sweaborg was again well reconnoitred, and the plan of attack reposted.

You, Mr. Editor, seem to have known better than the English and French admirals, or the Marshal, and thought it could be attacked, and the Lords of the Admiralty agreed with you. You both had heard of the fall of Sebastopol, and lost your heads, and had not the honesty to apologise to the Admiral you had insulted, when you heard the fall of Sebastopol was a hoax. There was some excuse for the Admiralty not providing the proper material for attack the first campaign, but none the second. They were warned of what was wanted; and though they knew that Sebastopol had held out for eleven months against an unparalielled bombardment, and in the last twenty-four hours received 70,000 shots and 16,000 shells, 20 mortar vessels and 15 or 16 gun vessels attacked a place as strong as Sebastopol.

They did not even support the mortar vessels with the fleet; they were dispersed over the Baltic, the Gulfs of Finland and Bothnia; and when the few mortar vessels had set the place in flames, there was no fleet to take advantage of the confusion that must have attended the conflagration and the explosion. Now, as the Admirals have hauled down their flags, and been complimented by the Admiralty for their conduct, it is clear that the plan of the campaign must have been settled at the Board, and on it must rest the failure—first, for not sending gun and mortar vessels sufficient; and secondly, for not having them at hand to take advantage of the conflagration and explosions. I was told, in 1854, a few mortar vessels or even Lancaster guns, more or less, could not make the difference between the possibility and the impossibility of attacking Sweaborg; and in 1855 they appear to have thought a few screw line-of-battle ships, more or less, could not make the difference between the possible and the impossible. Now, Mr. Editor, the long and the short of it is this—in 1854 the Admiralty sent a fleet to the Baltic, without gun or mortar vessels to assist them and clear the way, and in 1855 they sent a few gun and mortar vessels to the Baltic, and had not the fleet at hand to support them. In fact, they were so ignorant of the art of war, that they did not expect the 13 inch mortars could do so much damage; all they hoped to do was to fire away their shells, and not be laughed at for bringing them back; and when they found out the mortars had almost all burst, they sent out a ship with a fresh supply at the very time Admiral Dundas was very wisely sending his mortar vessels home; and so deplorably ignorant were they, that they did not know how the mortar vessels could go through the Kiel Canal, but positively sent them round the Scaw.

Now, sir, I ask were the government sincere in their wish to cripple Russia in 1854, and were they serious in 1855? for certainly no one judging by these actions can think so. You tell us, Mr. Editor, a mortar vessel has been built and armed in three weeks; surely then 100 could have been built in a year, and in 1855 the same force that is preparing for 1856 might have been ready, and Sweaborg totally destroyed. Now, I don't blame Sir Charles Wood or Lord Palmerston, for they were not in their present offices when the Baltic fleet was fitted out—they appear, however, now in downright earnest, if I may judge by the powerful flotilla they are now preparing. We must expect the Russians will do the same, and must hope we are not too late. As you, Mr. Editor, have passed a pretty severe censure on the navy, the best thing the government can do is to follow the example of the French at the beginning of the Revolution, and send the Commissioner to see the Admirals do their duty.

You, Mr. Editor, have your own correspondents, and I see no reason you should not have your own Commissioner; and as I have reason to think my former friend of the Times is the writer of these articles abusing the Admirals, he would be the most fitting person to fill the office of Commissioner; and I will venture to say whoever commands the fleet will strictly obey his orders, and take care at the same time that he shall occupy a warm berth to his heart's content.

If the fleet was not lost the first campaign, it was not the fault of the Admiralty or my friend of the Times; they did their best to lose it. The second campaign the Admiralty took good care Admiral Dundas should not destroy Sweaborg. The third campaign had better be under my friend of the Times, and we shall see if he is as powerful with his sword as he is with his pen. I remain, your obedient servant,

CHARLES NAPIER.

18, Albemarle street, Jan. 8, 1856.

The Monster Steamship.

Our readers are aware that there is now growing into form and shapeliness, upon the shore of the Isle of Dogs, opposite to the town of Deptford, a fabric of enormous dimensions, which has latterly begun to assume the proportions of a ship. Unlike all other ships, however, it has not been cradled in docks or suspended on frame-work, but built on the solid earth; and from this cause, as well as from the uncouth appearance it presented for many months, that portion of the public who passed up and down the river between London and Greenwich were slow to believe that it was intended for a ship at all. Gradually the huge mass began to speak for itself; the lofty walls that threatened to enclose an extensive factory, or unite, in a range of warehouses, or a formidable fortification, vanished by degrees behind an outer covering, which, assuming the unmistakable contour of the swelling hull of a vessel, dispelled all doubt upon the subject, leaving in its place only amazement at the grandeur of the design and the vastness of the undertaking.

The Isle of Dogs is a curiosity in itself, and stubbornly defies any attempt to pass over it without notice. It is the region of a remarkable kind of industry, and has a voice which rises into the sky unceasingly with the clang of ten thousand hammers, the grinding and groaning of heavy machinery, the crash of wheels and the echoes of the forge. Then it has its odors, comparable to nothing in any other island that we know of—odors of fire and smoke, of molten metal and fluxes, of old rotting wood, of oil and glue and white-lead and "turpe;" and, worse than all, of open sewers stagnating in filth and hopeless of a drain or current to carry it off. Strange to say, the inhabitants of the district, with all these physical disadvantages, show no signs of unhealthiness.

Passing down Millwall, we caught a first view of the monster ship, at the distance of about two-thirds of a mile. From this point, whence its details are not distinguishable, it resembles a row of lofty buildings, and we noticed that a row of brick-built eight-roomed houses, standing midway between us and it, did not obscure half its length, while it towered far above their roofs.

On approaching the theatre of operations, and presenting our credentials, we were soon in front of the object of our search. It is not easy to impart a correct idea of magnitude by descriptions, especially as it is not easy for a spectator to realize it himself until after some interval for observation and comparison. The reader must judge for himself, by the actual measurements which we shall give him from authorized data for his satisfaction. The length of this new steamer will be 680 feet; its breadth 83 feet, and its depth 60 feet. According to measurement, it will be capable of floating a weight, including engines, machinery, coals, cargo and everything, of 25,000 tons. Recollecting that this is more than double the length of the largest vessel now afloat, that the tonnage is six times that of the largest man-of-war, the reader will be in possession of some materials to assist his imagination. It is calculated that the whole of the 56 houses in Tavistock-square, if compressed into one block, would not occupy a larger area than will be inclosed within the hull of the monster steamer.

First walking round this astounding fabric, glimmering with a hundred portable forges, by means of which the bolts, at a white heat are driven through the iron plates, and swarming with workmen plying their ponderous hammers, we follow our guide up the outer ladders, from scaffolding to scaffolding, to what will constitute the upper deck. It is now that we are first profoundly impressed with the real magnitude of the structure. We perceive that it is built in compartments, of which there will be room for ten, each being over 60 feet in length. Standing above these, and looking down into them, reminds us of looking into the central court of an old-fashioned Paris hotel from one of the upper windows. Each compartment is separated from its neighboring one by a wall of iron, water-tight; so that, in case of leakage from accident of collision into one, the others would have sufficient buoyancy to sustain the vessel afloat. We observed, as we mounted the side, that, with a further view to safety, the outer coating of the vessel is built double below the water-mark; so that if one covering is fractured, the other and inner one presents a second safeguard. In case of necessity, moreover, the water can be let in be tween these coverings, to the weight of two thousand tons, to serve as ballast.

The conception of this extraordinary vessel is due to the genius of Brunel, whose success in every department of engineering on a grand scale is a guarantee for the eventual prosperity of the undertaking. She is intended for commercial and emigrant purposes, and for the performance of long voyages, and is calculated for becoming to India, China, Australia, or Japan, what the Cunard liners are to America. The great drawback in the case of long voyages by steam has been hitherto the expense of carrying coals out to the different coaling stations, and the loss of time involved in reaching these stations, which lie out of the steaming track, and the delay occasioned by taking coals on board. The new steamer will be exposed to no such retarding causes. She will carry 12,000 tons of coal in her hold, which, it is expected, will be more than sufficient to circumnavigate the globe, and will thus effect a vast saving in the cost of fuel as well as in time.

An indispensable condition to remunerativeness in a voyage, long or short, is a tolerably quick passage—and the elements of speed have therefore not been lost sight of in the construction of this leviathan. The old round bow and broad waist, devices to secure an amount of tonnage far exceeding the registered measurement, rendered speed impossible. The repeal of the navigation laws has left shipbuilders at liberty to study and to execute the principles of their art; and we now have sharp concave bows and long hulls cleaving the water with more than double the velocity of the old tubs. In this vessel the new principles will be fully carried out, and, in addition to such advantages of construction, she will carry within her a propelling power such as the world has never yet witnessed. Her engines will have cylinders 18 feet long, six feet in diameter, and weighing 28 tons each. She will be propelled both by paddles and by screw. Her paddle engines will be fed by 40 furnaces, generating steam equivalent to 1,000-horse power, and her screw engines to 60 furnaces, supplying steam to the amount of 1,500 horse power.

A gentleman connected with the works expressed himself in high terms of the safety of the ship. Addressing him, the writer asked:—"Have you any idea as to what the cost of her will be to the company?" "Not much less than half a million, perhaps. There will be ten thousand tons of iron plates in her, and above three millions of bolts or rivets, which must cost something in the driving. Then her fittings will be expensive. She is to carry a thousand first-class passengers, each with a separate berth, and as many second-class. Her saloons will be roomy and lofty apartments from 10 to 15 feet high, and her culinary and commissariat apparatus had need be something extraordinary, considering the multitudes she will have to provide for. But cost is a secondary object in such an undertaking as this. If she answer the end proposed, she will pay her proprietors handsomely. She is expected to save 20 or 30 days in the voyage to Australia, and if she does that she will command both freight and passengers at her own terms. It is a pity, by the way, that she is not available at the present moment. Why, you might put 20,000 troops on board of her, and whip them over to the Crimea in 10 days." "Do you know," I asked, "how she is to be got into the water—one can hardly say launched?" "Oh, that will be managed well enough. The ground she is standing on now is new ground. That will be dug away again as close as possible to where she stands, the river let in and she forced into the water, broadside on, by means of hydraulic engines." "What sail will she carry?" "None—so it is said. There will be a pair of paddles 60 feet in diameter, and a screw of still greater power; and sails will not be wanted. Her screw will be nearly all employed below, you see."—[From the Leisure Hour.

A Present for Cronstadt.

Through the favor of Messrs. Finch & Kelly, we have had the satisfaction of viewing one of those considerable presents which we intend next year to shower into Cronstadt and Helsingfors in such numbers as will prove the sincerity of our interest in those strongholds, if, indeed, it shall not overwhelm them. The present we refer to is an immense bombshell of the hugest and most extraordinary proportions—one of a number which the Lowmoor Iron Company is under contract with the government to supply, and which the company is now rapidly casting and completing. This shell is 9 feet 5 inches in circumference, and 36 inches in diameter. The aperture by which it is charged and the fuse inserted are 2 3-8 inches in diameter, and the shell itself 2 1-2 inches thick throughout, and at the aperture 3 1-4 inches. The weight of the shell is 1 ton 6 cwt, 1 qr. 7 lb. With such dimensions and such weight it is easy to understand that when propelled by adequate projectile force, no granite can withstand those monster shells; and Cronstadt must crumble before the repeated and sustained operation of such a bombardment. This immense shell has been sent to the company's Liverpool agents for transmission to the Duke of Devonshire's castle, in Lismore, Ireland—the company having, at the Duke's request, presented him with one uncharged. Of course such a weight of metal will require considerable leverage to place it within the chamber of a mortar, and this cannot be done without a resort to machinery, to facilitate which we should state that the mouth of the shell is surrounded at a convenient distance by four lugs, made of wrought iron and cast into the shell, which, by these means, is placed within the mortar. The cost of each shell unfilled will be £20 to £25, and, however expensive, we could not send his Czarship an uglier present, or one more unwelcome. The mortars for the discharge of these monster shells are in course of manufacture at the works of Mr. C. Mare, Blackwell. They are of wrought iron, and will weigh about 35 tons each.—[Liverpool Post.

Keep your Mouth Shut.

"Baronx you leave the room bundle up well—gloves, cloak, comforter—shut your mouth before you open the street door, and keep it resolutely closed until you have walked briskly for some ten minutes; then if you keep on walking, or have reached your home, you may talk as much as you please. Not so doing, many a heart once happy and young now lies in the church-yard, that might have been young and happy still. But how? If you keep your mouth closed and walk rapidly, the air can only reach the lungs by a circuit of the nose and head, and becomes warmed before reaching the lungs, thus causing no derangement; but if you converse, large drafts of cold air dash direct in upon the lungs, chilling the whole frame almost instantly. The brisk walking throws the blood to the surface of the body thus keeping up a vigorous circulation, making a cold impossible if you don't get into a cold bed too quick after you get home. Neglect of these brings sickness and premature death to multitudes every year."—[Journal of Health.

"I will sing for the benefit of the poor here," said Mad. Jenny Lind Goldschmidt when in Vevay, a small town in Switzerland. But before the day appointed for the concert arrived, the nightingale became hoarse and could not sing. "The poor cannot wait a day," said the singer, and sent them 2,000 francs.

An Original Horse Trade.

Mr. Samuel Havens resided in Brooklyn, and is a great admirer of horse flesh. On Monday last, he went up the river to Albany, for the purpose of buying a grey mare belonging to his friend McCall. The grey is a very fine looking animal, and also very fast. She can do a mile in 2,25, with two in a wagon. Havens heard of her merits last week, and resolved on a purchase. On his arrival at Albany he took breakfast at Stanwix Hall. Shortly after which he buttoned up his coat and started to find McCall. He met him in Broadway, near the City Hotel. With "Mac" he had the following conversation:

"I understand, Mr. McCall, that you wish to sell that grey mare of yours."

"I did want to sell her, but I imagine she is now disposed of."

"Disposed of!—to whom?"

"To your friend Skerrett, of Brooklyn."

"What did he agree to give you?"

"Five hundred and thirty dollars."

"If you will let me have her, I will give you five hundred and fifty dollars cash down."

"But I've promised her to Skerrett."

"When?"

"Last week."

"Never mind that. If he should call, say she's dead—that I broke her leg on the Troy Road, in consequence of which we had to blow her brains out."

"Will you back me in the story?"

"Of course I will."

"It's a bargain, then. Give me the five hundred and fifty, and I'll send the mare down to-morrow night. But hadn't we better crop the mane and tail, so that Skerrett cannot sue me for lying to him?"

"Just as you please—there's your money. Be sure to send her down on Tuesday night, on the Knickerbocker."

Mr. McCall promised to do so. Soon after which he folded up his five hundred and fifty dollars and walked round to Capt. Knight's for the purpose of putting the party through.

This was Monday morning. On Monday afternoon Mr. Skerrett made his appearance in town. He met McCall in State-street.

"Well Mac, I've called to pay you for that mare."

"What mare?"

"The gray mare, the one that you wrote to me about."

"Havn't you heard about that?"

"About what?"

"About that gray mare—she is dead and buried."

"Dead—nonsense. You are fooling me."

"Not at all. If you doubt it ask your neighbor Havens, who broke her leg on the Troy Road."

"Is Havens here?"

"Yes—you will find him at Stanwix Hall."

It is not necessary for us to say that Mr. Skerrett went to Stanwix Hall and saw Havens. Havens swore that the gray mare was dead, and that he killed her. He could not do otherwise, without losing "one of the best bargains that he ever made."

Mr. Skerrett regretted the catastrophe, but concluded that there was no use crying over spilt milk. He shook hands with Havens and left, saying he would try and find a piece of speed in the other part of the city. Havens having quitted Skerrett took the 4 45 train for New York, and arrived at Brooklyn a little after 10 o'clock on Monday evening.

McCall promised to send the mare down on Tuesday evening.

He did not do anything of the kind. In consequence of this, Havens went up again on Wednesday to see "what the d—l it all meant." He found McCall at the new steamboat landing.

"Why didn't you send that mare down last night?"

"What mare?"

"Why, that gray mare I bought of you on Monday."

"On Monday?"

"Yes, on Monday."

"You're mistaken. I sold you no mare on Monday and for the best reason in the world, she was dead a week before."

"Dead! What do you mean?"

"What do I mean? and have you forgot that you broke her leg on the Troy Road, and that so badly that we had to blow her brains out?"

"But you don't mean to swindle me by any such game, do you?"

"Swindle! d—l a bit of it. You killed the mare, and I can prove it.

"Who by?"

"Your own neighbor, Skerrett, of Brooklyn."

"And what does he know about it?"

"Just what you told him, and that is, that you killed the mare while trying her speed on the Troy Road."

Havens could hear no more, but rushed for the Police Office, where he swore out a warrant against McCall for swindling. It was issued by Justice Parsons. But as "Mac" proved by Skerrett that the complainant admitted that he killed the mare on the 5th of December, of course he could not have purchased her on the 10th. Verdict for the defendant. Mr. Havens left for New York on Wednesday night, in the Manhattan. He was accompanied by Skerrett. On going forward after tea, he saw a gray mare that led to the following dialogue:

"Who's bob-tailed mare is that Skerrett?"

"Mine."

"Possible—where did you get her?"

"Bought her from McCall. She is not quite as good looking as the one I wanted, but I think she is full as speedy."

"What did you give?"

"Four hundred dollars."

"Say no more—let's drink."

Skerrett obeyed orders, and went in and took "a little something warm." Havens paid for it. As he did so, a bystander thought he uttered an imprecation about a certain d——d scoundrel in Albany.

Moral—Never hire a man to tell a lie, unless you wish to get cheated yourself.—[Kingston Journal.

Punch and Fanny Fern.

"What is the height of woman's ambition? Diamonds."—Punch.

"Sagacious Punch. Do you know the reason? It is because the more 'diamonds' a woman owns, the more precious she becomes to your discriminating sex. What pair of male eyes ever saw a 'crow's foot,' gray hair, or wrinkle, in company with a genuine diamond? Don't you go down on your marrow bones and swear that the owner is a Venus, a Hebe, a Juno, a Sylph, a Fairy, an Angel? Would you stop to look connubially at the most bewitching woman on earth, whose only diamonds were in her eyes? Well, it is no marvel, Mr. Punch. The race of men is about extinct. Now and then you will meet with a specimen, but I am sorry to inform you that the most of them are nothing but coat-tails walking behind a moustache, destitute of sufficient energy to earn their cigars and 'Macassar,' preferring to dangle at the heels of a diamond wife, and meekly recieve their allowance, as her mamma's prudence and her own inclinations may suggest.

It is out of my power to express to you the veneration I feel for such a dignified donkey, Mr. Punch. If I owned him, I imagine I should slip my bridal (bridle.")—Fanny Fern.

Marrying your Deceased Wife's Sister.

The validity of such a marriage has been affirmed and denied again and again. In a case which came before a court in Scotland recently it was questioned whether such a marriage was prohibited by the Levitical law. Lord Ardmillan remarked that he was surprised that none of the counsel referred to the scriptural fact, that Jacob had married two sisters, and that our Saviour descended from one of them. —[Sunday Leader.

The Toledo Blade says, that a woman who had lain in jail for several weeks on a charge of larceny, obtained her liberty the other day by prevailing on the man from whom she stole the property to marry her. The husband declined to prosecute his wife, and, of course, could not be made to testify against her, and she was set at liberty.

It is calculated that there are thirty thousand planing machines in the United States, performing the labor of one million, eight hundred thousand men.

The Cincinnati Sun says that such is the stagnation of business in that city that there are over ten thousand applications for relief from the public charities.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
2 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

All letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEB. 9, 1856.

Is Mormonism a Philosophical Paradox?

Or, Is Mormonism Philosophically True?

ARTICLE III.

CONTINUED.

IF further argument is necessary to prove the existence of mind or intelligence, it will will be found in man himself. That man has a mind, and possesses reasoning, thinking, reflecting powers, and principles of intelligence, none will deny; it is a self-evident fact, and requires no proof; in fact, the qualities of mind can be discovered with almost as much precision as the properties of matter; it is also as evident that the existence of this mind is not the result of chance, or why does it not drop upon metal, wood, stones, or brick? It demonstrates that there is a source, a fountain of intelligence somewhere, that supplies all these smaller intelligences.

Intelligence is an eternal principle, and is coeval and co-existent with matter; or, if not, how did inert matter assume its present shape?

Man did not originate intelligence; he cannot understand, much less originate, the intelligence that does exist. Man, with all his boasted intelligence, cannot originate a new thought, or idea, and never did. The operations of mind, in the organization of matter, or in the discovery of any new science, is merely the discovery of the operations of another mind, already in existence, and is simply the development of a principle, in being or operation. Newton discovered the laws of gravitation, but those laws existed thousands of years before he came into the world; he did not originate this law. There was a superior law or system—the footprints of a superior mind that existed, and which had always governed matter. This law his mind discovered; he developed an inherent fixed principle—the operations of some superior mind or principle. He was, consequently, the discoverer, not the originator. He saw an apple fall; apples, however, had always fallen—but being a casuist, this circumstance led him to reflection. Now, it is well understood that "circumstances do not create principles, they call them into action." He reasoned from cause to effect. An apple fell to the ground; he argued if an apple falls, there must be a cause for it; in his researches, he made the discovery that there was an unerring, invariable, eternal law, that governed all matter, and to which all bodies, as well as apples, were subject. It certainly was a great discovery, but only a discovery; the original thought he had nothing to do with.

Franklin discovered that electricity could be drawn from the clouds by a given process: but if this principle had not existed, in electrical fluid, he could not have called it forth.

Columbus discovered the continent of America; he did not originate it, nor the idea, or thought that such a place existed; the idea was only relatively new, new to the people among whom he lived and to whom he communicated it. The Indians knew it before, and so did its maker. Steam was not discovered—its properties and forces were; but it contained the same properties and forces before as after its discovery. The same will apply to hydraulic, atmospheric air, or any other power. Daguerre, seeing that powerful lenses possessed certain influences, and that the retina of the eye also received figures or impressions, reasoned, that if he could combine delicate mineral compounds, capable of receiving impressions through the agency of light, thought he might take likenesses; he found that iodide of silver, with other combinations, possessed these properties; applied them, and produced the Daguerreotype. It was a great discovery, but only a discovery. Light, lens, and iodide of silver, always possessed these properties: he applied them, nor could he have produced these results without them. It is the same with the electrical telegraph, and with every science. The operations of a superior mind suggest all our ideas. Our ideas of mechanics are gathered from the motions of the solar system. Hydraulics are suggested from the operations of the heart and blood; optics, from the organization of the eye; accoustics, from the organization of the ear; and pneumatics, from the clouds. In fact, natural philosophy professes no more than a knowledge of the properties of matter, and the laws by which it is governed; it does not even profess to originality—and mental philosophy is no more original. Man is merely a copyist, a discoverer and imitator of something that already exists; and even in physiology or the science of mind, its professors can only impart, through mesmeric influence, something which the operator possesses; he imparts, does not originate—gives what he has, not what he has not. The stream cannot rise higher than the fountain; and as the operator cannot originate new ideas, it necessarily follows that he cannot impart them.

It follows then from the above that mind is not created by man, that it is an eternal principle, and that the utmost stretch of man's intelligence, or mind, is merely to discover the operations of another superior intelligence, mind, or God; it is further evident that intelligence cannot be destroyed; it is therefore eternal. We have then eternal matter, and eternal mind, or intelligence. We suppose that Solomon understood this philosophy, when he stated that "There is nothing new under the sun." Joseph Smith, in a revelation, holds the same doctrine. "Intelligence, or the light of truth, was not created, or made, neither can it be. All truth is independent in that sphere in which God has placed it, to act for itself, as all intelligence also, otherwise there is no existence. . . . The elements are eternal, and spirit and element, inseparably connected, receive a fulness of joy." Doc. and Cov., sec. lxxxiii. We find, therefore, as far as this principle is concerned, that Solomon and Joseph Smith were both right in their philosophy, and that matter and mind, or intelligence, are both eternal.

We now come to another proposition, which is, however, blended and intimately associated with the last, which is, that, not only was there an organizing mind and power, which organized the world and all created beings; but that this power still exists.

If mind, or intelligence, cannot be created, it follows that it cannot be destroyed. Furthermore, according to all the laws of nature with which we are acquainted, it not only requires intelligence and power to put things in motion, but it also requires power and intelligence to keep them in motion. You require a constant supply of water for a water-wheel, to keep it in motion; fuel and water are required to propel a steam engine; a spring for a watch, a weight for a clock, grass for a horse, and food for man. All nature tends to decay and run down. Men have strove in vain to find out perpetual motions. What keeps the universe in order? The answer is, simply the same power that organized it, and set it going. Some would answer, Nature; but what nature? The answer is, the laws of nature, or a superior intelligence, or mind. Then are we agreed; and that this intelligence still lives and controls all things in the material world, organizing and regulating them, according to immutable and eternal laws.

Being satisfied then that there is an Almighty eternal esse, who, according to infinite wisdom and intelligence, has created and sustains all things, we are led to another very important inquiry, which is:

Is it unreasonable that an Allwise Eternal Being, or intelligence, should communicate with a lesser intelligence? It is the nature of man to teach his fellow man; hence our schoolmasters, philanthropists, philosophers and statesmen are teachers; all anxious to impart information, and to communicate intelligence: even instinct teaches the birds, beasts and fishes to instruct their young. Is it then unreasonable to think that this being, the Great Father of the Universe, the highest of all intelligence that we can conceive of, the fountain of all our intelligence, should communicate with us? Or can we imagine that this great Almighty world-maker, the perfection of whose works display forethought, ingenuity, intelligence and skill beyond the utmost stretch of human intellect, should have organized this world, and filled it with vegetable and animal life, teeming with intelligence and vitality, and leave it as a simple toy to wander through space without any object or aim; without any regard to its inhabitants, or any mode of communication with them? Such an idea is absurd. It is contrary to all analogy, to the action of all other intelligence, and to every principle of reason and common sense. And further, if he did communicate, with whom would it be? Reason would say, with the most intellectual; for "Intelligence cleaves unto intelligence; light cleaves to light; and truth to truth." And whilst it is consonant to the principle of greater intelligence to communicate with and instruct the lesser, there is also a principle in the lesser to seek the higher or greater intelligence. I find myself here an atom, as it were, in the midst of space, yet possessing intelligence, surrounded too with millions of other intelligent beings, all possessed of bodies and minds. I want to know who I am, whence I came, what I am doing here, what relationship I sustain to those around me, whence I originated; both in regard to body and mind; what is that being, mind or spirit that created all things; what relationship I bear to him, as well as to the intelligences around me; am I an eternal being; if so, what is my destiny. Would it be unreasonable that I should be satisfied, or that God should communicate this information? Here then we come to the great culminating point. Men of old tell us that God has spoken to them, as well as men of more modern times, that messengers or angels have come to them; that they have had visions, and been instructed in regard to the past, the present, and the future. Such is the testimony of Enoch, Lot, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, the Prophets, Jesus and his Apostles, Joseph Smith, and thousands of the present day. Can any one say that they have not had these visions and revelations? They may believe what they please; but they cannot possibly know anything about it. For them to know anything of this kind they must have a revelation themselves, which revelation would contradict their own system and sustain the other. They do not pretend to say that the Supreme Being is incapable of conveying, or that the mind of man is incapable of receiving such communications. A sense of discerning spiritual substances has been contended for by many, and a late philosopher, in writing on this subject, says, "Were a sense of discerning spiritual existences imparted to us, in what a new creation should we seem to exist." What if some have found out this medium of communication, have learned this spiritual science, have found a way to God, and to possess themselves of celestial information. They say we have; we cannot contradict it. But to us many things are absurd. This we must expect, because the intelligence is superior; it would be absurd to tell a man unacquainted with optics that there were seven brilliant colors in light; it would be absurd to others to tell them that there was on every inch of their bodies a pressure of fifteen pounds to the square inch, and so absurd was the proposition of Copernicus, that the earth revolved round the sun, to the wise men of that day, that they killed him for it. Columbus's, Watts's, and Fulton's hypothesis have all been considered absurd; but the above are, nevertheless, all true. Small minds have always rejected things they could not understand. It is an evidence of a wise man to investigate. But we cannot understand. What do we understand? Can we tell the connexion of body and spirit; prescribe their limits, and tell where one ends and the other begins? yet we know we have both. Can we tell how light and heat are united in a ray of light? yet we know they exist there, for an inch glass has sufficient powers to gather into its focus enough of heat to set wood on fire. Can we tell how a blade of grass, or even a grain of sand, is formed? If we cannot understand small things, how can we understand larger ones? It won't do for us pigmies to prate so much about absurdities. It would be absurd to some to talk about the earth's being round; they would tell you that water would drop out of the ponds and men drop down from the other side. If there is this disparity among men, what difference must there be between God and man. But men who have professed religion have frequently been bad men. What has that to do with it? Newton discovered the attraction of gravity; if he was a bad man that would not make the principle false; it was a true principle that he discovered, and that principle would be equally true if uttered either by an angel or devil. Two and two always did make four and always will, whether I am a good man or a bad one. It is reasonable that God should communicate with man whether he ever did it or not, and the conduct of men has nothing to do with it.

Let us then meet the matter fairly. Men of God professed to have revelations formerly. Was that profession contrary to the acknowledged principles of philosophy? No. Joseph Smith professed to have a revelation from God. Is that profession contrary to philosophy? We again answer no. If such a principle was correct in any age it is correct in this age, and he has just as much right to make pretensions to prophesy as any man in any age of the world had, so far as the principle is concerned. The merits of his pretensions, as well as that of others, must be judged by other principles. We have been thus elaborate in the investigation of this principle in order that we might satisfy the most fastidious.

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Jersey Shore Wreckers.

THE late storms and disasters on the Jersey coast exhibit the daring character of the wreckers and their generous sympathy for the unfortunate. These men fearlessly peril their own lives to succor the distressed, with scarcely any reward except the consciousness of having performed a generous and humane act. Eight wrecks have recently been thrown upon the shore between Squan and Long Beach; but though the storm was one of the most fearful ever experienced on the coast, the gallant shoremen were actively engaged in endeavoring to save life and property, and with a success which shows the value of their labors. It is rare that these men ever receive any return, even in thanks for their generous and manly conduct, too often forgotten by those who have most cause to be thankful, whilst it is a very common slander to hear them designated as pirates. Their services are, however, invaluable, and it is but justice to acknowledge the fact.—[N. Y. Sun.

The above we know to be a fact, and that whilst many of those humane, daring men are busily engaged in saving both life and property, there are all sorts of inuendos thrown out about false lights, bricks in stockings, &c. We know not what may have been the case a century ago, but we do know that the present inhabitants of that region are entirely of another character.

Joseph Brown, who owns a claim at Barnegat Inlet, is one of those indefatigable and intrepid salts, who has never been backward in such enterprises. Nor have his sons, Benjamin and Samuel P., been behind in acts of humanity. The two sons, both being masters of vessels and acquainted with the dangers of the deep, know but too well how to sympathize with the unfortunate in distress. Captain Samuel informs us that he has assisted on the brig Korythrim, schooner Autumn, schooner Despatch, schooner Excelsior, schooner Henrico, and another vessel, name unknown. One large vessel came lately bottom side up. They assisted in saving the schooner Hannah Havens. The captain and mate from the schooner Excelsior were saved, and when the vessel was visited, there were four bodies found drowned; the captain and mate were nearly perished with cold, and wet, and the cabin boy found next morning frose to death. From the schooner Despatch they saved the whole of the crew. They succeeded in saving the Henrico, a Richmond packet, which had been stranded, and about half her cargo, besides the lives of her captain and crew. The captain and crew of the brig Korythrim were saved by Captain Merrit. In these famous storms, amid hail, snow, sleet, and the wild clashing of the furious spray, when landsmen are huddling around stoves, and the frost is chilling the very life-blood of the sufferers, it is, we opine, no great sinecure to brave the pitiless storm and the raging fury of the remorseless deep, to endanger the freezing of fingers, toes, or limbs, and to risk life on the raging watery element, to relieve suffering humanity. Its price cannot be counted in dollars and cents; it requires hardihood, humanity, enterprise and daring that few are equal to; and nothing but the most magnanimous impulses of the human bosom and philanthropic desire to save perishing fellow creatures, would cause a man to embark in it. We have heard Grace Darling extolled as a heroine, and richly she deserved it. If we have not our Graces, we have scores of Joshuas, James's, Thomas's, Edwards, &c., who are constantly engaged in like exploits, and whose services are comparatively forgotten.

The above is only a brief outline of the labors of three or four men, on a very limited extent of coast, and in about two months. These men are Mormons—their services, however, are none the worse for that; there are hundreds of others engaged in the same benevolent labors.

The New York Sunday Leader.

THIS would-be Leader of the minds of Sunday readers has got off another squib "with the same old flint." In the 27th of January number an article appeared, headed "The Great Mormon Leader—Brigham Young—Religion a Curious Thing;" and then goes on to say, among other things, that "Mahomet was merely a mule driver at one period of his life, and Joe Smith, the founder of Mormonism, an obscure person, noted only for sitting on the head of a whiskey barrel, in a country store in his neighborhood, and for the quantity of whiskey he could drink, and stagger home under it." We know not where our Leader got this important information, but we are confident that his readers, notwithstanding their disbelief in the divine authenticity of Joseph Smith's mission, will award to him a character something more than a common pot-house drunkard, and instead of seeing in this assertion that smartness that the author aimed at for himself, they will probably see something analogous in cognomen to the liquor that exudes from a leach of ashes and water. But, then, "Brutus is an honorable man," and of course it would not do to question the veracity of the Sunday Leader.

He quotes Gibbon, to show that some kind of religion is necessary to keep the mass of the people out of mischief, and then says:

"But, supposing that Gibbon was correct in his unfavorable impression of human character generally, what is the necessity of having a new religion every few generations, or of modern reformers springing up with new forms of worship, new revelations, new ideas, and new everything, which tends to unsettle our faith in the religion of our fathers? Is not the religion of our Saviour, which is near two hundred centuries old, good enough for those whose organization is so bad that they require to be constantly admonished of the wrath and vengeance of a just Creative Power, in order to prevent them from doing wrong? Have any of our modern Joe Smiths improved upon the morality and beauty of the doctrine in the New Testament? If they have not then we see no use in these new doctrines of faith, whether called Mormonism or by any other name."

We answer, Joseph Smith improved very much upon the religion of our modern fathers, insomuch that his doctrine corresponds with those beautiful doctrines of the New Testament, to improve upon which he never aspired. When our sapient Leader can demonstrate to us that the prevalent dogmas called Christianity are in accordance with the New Testament, and that the doctrines of Joseph Smith, in differing from those dogmas, differed with the doctrines of the New Testament, we will give him the ground, and take the Leader for our family newspaper. Until that is done, we respectfully invite the readers of the Leader to occupy their leisure hours in reading THE MORMON, that they may be led into truth, and no longer be "led about by every wind of doctrine and cunning craftiness of men, whereby they lie in wait to deceive."

Of Brigham Young, he says:

"But Brigham Young, the great Mormon leader, is certainly a very remarkable man. The Mantle of Joe Smith could not have fallen on any other man in the world better fitted to wear it—that is if we consider the spread and progress of the Mormon faith the main object in view."

He then leads on his readers, and quotes a portion of one of Mr. Young's lectures, where he admits the necessity of sinners in Zion, as a necessary evil for the present; and then quotes that portion which refers to a time when "Judgment shall be laid to the line and righteousness to the plummet," endeavoring to convey to his readers that there was a discrepancy in the two positions. To make this discrepancy appear, he places the two positions in the present tense; that is, that sinners are necessary, and that the axe shall be laid at the root of the tree for their destruction. To this it is only necessary to say that the former was used by Mr. Young in the present tense, and the latter referred to as something yet to transpire in the future, in accordance with the words of the Prophets, that "sinners in Zion shall tremble, and fearfulness take hold of the hypocrite," when everything that "can be shaken will be shaken."

Try it again, Mr. Leader; we believe you can do better next time, if you try hard.

Conference in Texas.

A CONFERENCE was held in Ellis County, Texas, under the presidency of Elder Benjamin L. Clapp.

William W. Allen officiated as clerk.

Present: Six Seventies and one High Priest.

The votes to sustain the Authorities of the Church were unanimous.

There were represented by Elder B. L. Clapp:

Members in good standing	25
Do. by Elder Jonar	8
Do. by Preston Thomas	21

After addresses from Elders Clapp, Thomas, and others, and assigning fields of labor for the several Elders recently from the Valley, viz., Bros. Allen, Ostelar, Duncan and Bigler, the Conference adjourned to the 10th of March, 1856.

THE Kansas "Herald of Freedom" thinks the population of that territory will be 100,000 by Spring.

To Emigrants.

We have not received any information yet, that we can rely upon, in relation to the prices of cattle. It would be well, however, for those desiring to emigrate, in the spring, to be making preliminary arrangements. Cattle, cows and horses always fluctuate in their price; wagons, however, do not. And in order to secure a large amount of good-seasoned wagons, it is necessary that the order should be given in time, so as to allow for shrinkage, &c.

The price of good substantial wagons, in St. Louis, will vary from $65 to $75, according to strength and finish, including beds, projections and bows. There will then be the freight from St. Louis to the starting point. The wagons we know to be good, and well adapted to the purposes of emigration, having been tried from the same maker before.

We have ordered one hundred hand-carts; the price of them will be, in St. Louis, $18.75; it is thought the freight will make them about $20.

It would be well for the Elders, in their different districts, to ascertain who are going, and to forward their names as quick as practicable. Those who are wanting, and wish them engaged, will send on their means to this office in season, and we will attend to it.

As soon as we learn the prices of cattle we will publish it. For those who may be desirous of making calculations about the prices of freight across the plains, we cannot state definitely; but should say from $12.50 to $16 per cwt., in advance.

The Elders.

WE have received letters from Elder Samuel A. Wooley, now in Ohio preaching and visiting his friends. He states that he is expecting a visit from his nephew, Franklin D. Wooley, who is in that vicinity, and purposes soon to return to Delaware.

Dr. Jeter Clinton is now at Tom's River, soon to return to Philadelphia.

Judge Thomas is in Texas, expecting soon to be in St. Louis; he goes to the Valley this season.

Elder Benjamin Clapp is also in Texas, and is expected to go to the Valley this season.

Elders Ostler, Allen, Duncan and Bigler are laboring in Texas.

Elder E. B. Tripp is in Iowa, intending to cross the plains in the spring.

Bishop Cunningham and Elder McGaw are at Council Bluffs at present.

Elder John Banks we have not heard from direct, but from what we have learned by others we expect he is in Cincinnati.

Elders George Taylor and Angus M. Cannon are laboring in Pennsylvania, under the jurisdiction of Dr. Clinton.

Elders Ott and Kleinman are laboring in New York and vicinity among their German friends; as are also Brs. Snedaker and Bowley in Philadelphia.

The following Elders, we believe, are—Elders Miller and Case in the Cherokee country; Whiting and Edwards in Illinois; Snedaker in Texas; Watt and Stephen Taylor in New York State; Christian Christiansen and associates in Iowa.

Elders Felt and Robbins are engaged in this office.

Speaker Elected.

AFTER nine consecutive weeks of wisdom and nonsense, threats and pleasantries, realities and hyperboles, lobby intrigues and bona fide efforts, playing and fighting, billing and cooing, coming and going, resolving and voting, the House of Representatives has at last chosen a Speaker to preside over the deliberations (or quarrels, as the case may be,) of that incongruous body. Nathaniel P. Banks, Jr., of Massachusetts, (Black Republican,) is the man, who, by a preponderance of three votes over Mr. Akin, of South Carolina, under the plurality rule, now fills the Chair, it is said, with much dignity.

If Mr. Banks can maintain that dignity he is said to possess, with the black and white, anti and pro, national and sectional elements under his jurisdiction, during the deliberative campaign before him, he will be, to say the least, entitled to much credit for his presiding abilities. If conflicting elements engender storms, we can but expect a stormy session. Already clouds roll thick and fast in Kansas and vicinity, gathering thickness and blackness to the extent that Capt. Pierce, at the helm of State, has vociferated in unmistakable language, to his men, to prepare for the worst. The wind whistles through the rigging of the old craft—she careens and takes the task upon herself—it is now too late to take in sail; and the fact is but too clearly visible that the texture and strength of her canvas must now be tried.

The old ship Uncle Sam was at first full built—her keel was laid in seventy-six, the time that "tried men's souls," and she was launched in eighty-three—rigged and placed under the charge of George Washington, her first commander, in seventeen hundred and eighty-nine.

Since that time certain heirs of original proprietors have become somewhat sick of the old model, and are determined to either drive her to the bottom, or split her up and make from her two clippers, one of Boston and the other of Baltimore build, to run side and side. The most important feature of this transformation is not the speed of these new developments of genius—for extra speed is only in keeping with the fastness of the age—but the manning of one with black and the other with white mariners is the mischief.

In such a contingency it becomes a question with philosophers whether these two crafts, manned by such antipodes in complexion and character, will not cross each other's forefoot. The writer of this article, who has had some experience in maritime life, is fully of the opinion that such would inevitably be the case. Better, far better, would it be to improve the old model than to run such a hazard.

The frigate Constitution, now in the United States service, has been built and re-built until nothing original but the keel remains of that much-esteemed frigate; so careful have been the naval department, fearing if they once lost her model they could never equal it again. If man in the different departments of State at Washington will be as conservative and careful of the Constitution under their charge it will be well for them; for, if they once lose that model, it never can be equalled.

A clipper ship and black crew for speed and mutiny; but a full ship and white crew for safety, now and for ever.

The Territories.

MR. M. W. DELAHAY, late editor of the Territorial Register at Leavenworth, is bearer, to Washington from Kansas, of the free Constitution lately adopted by the free soil portion of that Territory. Now that the House is organized, both branches of the Kansas divisions will no doubt be knocking at the door of Congress for admission into the Union. We hope the long delay in organizing will have a tendency to bring members directly to the subjects before them, and that they will "trot 'em through by daylight."

This is a fast age, a fast country, and Kansas a fast Territory; and now that the block has been removed from the track of the great national engine, and the whole machinery is in motion, we shall look for big things. Among those big things we should not be surprised to see a big omnibus freighted with Kansas, Nebraska, Utah and New Mexico, in a state of transition from Territories to States. Who takes the driver's box, with these fourfold reins, that can crack his whip to the tune of two forty? Don't all speak at once.

FOR THE MORMON.

"But now are they many members, yet but one body." 1st Cor. xii. 20.

IF the church of God has but one body, and there is but one plan of redemption, "one Lord, one faith, one baptism," and "whosoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God," we ought to be incessant and unwearied in our endeavors to find out the principles that Christ taught, and diligent and unwavering in obeying and adhering to them when found; for, if they are calculated to lead us unto eternal life and to extricate us from the labyrinth of confusion and uncertainty into which our transgression of the laws and ordinances of God has brought us, they are of inestimable value to us—something worth striving for, and withal something not very difficult to obtain a knowledge of, if we are only sincere in our belief of that book which so many believe in when shut, but disbelieve when open—that text book for christendom, the Bible. If we can only put confidence in what Paul said in relation to it, viz., that, "whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope," it will not be very difficult for us to discover what the doctrine was that He taught the people in those days; and if Jesus Christ and his apostles taught the "everlasting gospel," and God—who is the same yesterday, to-day and forever—had but one plan for the redemption of the human family in the days of our Saviour, we must come to the conclusion that His immutable decrees will not be altered to suit the whimsical fancies of any of his spoiled children, or, that eighteen centuries will cause Him—with whom a thousand years are as one day—to materially change his views in relation to what is calculated to be beneficial to the children of men.

"If there come any unto you, (says John,) and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: for he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds." Now John referred to the doctrine of Christ, therefore we should be careful not to encourage or lend assistance to any that are promulgating principles at variance with those of Christ, for, by so doing, we transgress and come under condemnation. Paul says, that "in the last days perilous times shall come: for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, proud, blasphemers—having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof: from such turn away." This is a warning to us, besides which, we have many other tests given us, by Jesus and the apostles, wherewith to ascertain whether any of the many sects and communities that surround us are upholding true principles and promulgating the doctrine of Christ or not. Jesus says: "By their fruits ye shall know them;" "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit;" "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven"—therefore, we must first learn the will of God, and then do it. Now, if we can find any one denomination, out of the hundreds that profess to do the will of God, that actually do teach the doctrine of Christ, if its principles will bear investigation and comparison with the Lord's ancient gospel, and we find the various members all united in one body, subject to the same authority, see that the same precepts are taught, and the same fruits result from obedience to the laws and ordinances thereof, and that a similar organization exists, accompanied by the same power, gifts and blessings that characterized the "everlasting gospel" eighteen hundred years ago, we may safely conclude to embrace it. "But though we or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed," says Paul. Now Paul taught the same gospel that Jesus did, and was a faithful servant of God, therefore we can put confidence in his word: and if we teach any other, we must expect to suffer the consequences.

If God has a church upon the earth, it will be something as much more desirable and enduring, substantial and glorious, than all that has entered into the heart of man to conceive of, as He is superior to the feeble, transitory creatures that remain on the earth as monuments of his merciful forbearance and compassionate kindness; consequently we can, by the aid of the scriptures and that portion of the spirit of God which he gives to every sincere enquirer after truth, readily separate the dross from the pure metal and discover that pearl of great price which it should be the earnest endeavor of every child of God to seek after and obtain, and which is alone to be obtained through obedience to certain laws and regulations pertaining to God's organized kingdom; therefore, we need not expect to receive a blessing at the hands of our Father, unless we obey his commandments and come in at the door.

We can see around us hundreds of different bodies of professed christians, all differing in their forms of worship and articles of faith, and yet they will all assure us that they are pursuing the same course that Jesus pointed out, and claim him as their head; but as there cannot possibly be more than one right, it behooves us to arouse ourselves from our lethargy, and look around us and see whether we are following any of the blind guides who, with their followers, are destined to fall into the ditch. If we miss the narrow path, we are very likely to stray into the broad road that leads down to destruction; and, unless we alter our course, will not be very likely to arrive at the straight gate; and if we do not enter at the door, but try to climb up some other way, Jesus will perhaps consider us the same as thieves and robbers, and dispose of us accordingly.

GEORGE J. TAYLOR.

Correspondence.

From our St. Louis Correspondent.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

DEAR SIR,—I perceive from the general tenor of THE MORMON, that you enter a more extended field of intelligence and usefulness, than that usually occupied by the Editorial fraternity, and other soi-disant philanthopists of the age. Whether it is your individual character—the character of the system you advocate, or both; I will not here determine. Suffice it to say, that I believe "Mormonism" to be not only equal to any system of civil and religious government, ever established, among men but in every respect, superior to any other government extant.

Mr. John Reynolds, Ex-Governor of Illinois, in the history of his life, called "My Own Times" written by himself, says: "No Prince, or Potentate, has more power in an absolute monarchy than the leaders of the Mormons have in their Church government. This is one great element that enables the various leaders and Churches scattered over Europe, and America, to act as a unit. The organization of the Jesuits, is not more complete, powerful and absolute, than that of the Mormons.

No one can foretell the destiny of this sect. And it would be blasphemy at this day, to compare its founder with the Saviour; but nevertheless, it may become veritable history in a thousand years that the standing and character of Joseph Smith, as a Prophet, may rank equal to any of the Prophets who have preceded him."

The foregoing remarks from the "Old Ranger" will support my assumptions, that Mormonism is superior to any other organization, of which the world can boast. In twenty-five years, it has extended its benidictions amidst persecutions and perils of all sorts, to many hundred thousand souls, scattered over various countries. And instead of cursing them with the withering blight of modern Christianity, and dividing them into a thousand factions, it has imparted unto them the blessings of the Gospel of peace, and has caused them to feel and act as a holy band of brethren.

We often hear the sentiment vociferously enunciated in various States of the Union, that "Americans shall govern America" our Trans-Atlantic brethren exult equally in giving utterance to a once appropriate and still fondly cherished chorus, "Britania rules the waves." The French would like to govern France, and the people of other nations their own national institutions; but the Mormons as genuine cosmopolites modestly aspire to govern the world. The idea may appear to some persons at first view a little presumptuous and utopian; but when it is understood that their representatives have travelled among all the chief nations of the earth, and the principal islands of the sea, becoming thus intimately acquainted with the manners, customs, languages, laws, and governments of the diversified nations; and have moreover gathered adepts from all these nations—taught them one common tongue, and to feel one common bond of brotherhood, consequently one feeling of interest for the common weal. When these things are considered, it does not appear so very extraordinary.

"It is self evident to every intelligent person, who has considered the subject of Mormonism, that, it is a substantial reality living and thriving in spite of persecution, execration, expatriation, and other charitable contributions of its christian friends; and is likely to live and flourish when those 'old fogies' who are determined to ride their antiquated hobbies to the grave, have finished their course and are forgotten." To such gentlemen your expiet characters and general tactics must, I presume, be peculiarly annoying; not simply because of their innovations upon ancient habits and customs; but in consequence of the inevitable tendency of their own systems to oblivion. If Mormonism shall succeed, during the next twenty-five years, as it has during the past, it will so far eclipse the present popular systems of religious government, that they will either die of Consumption, or commit suicide and thus terminate their unprofitable career.

The prominent feature discoverable in the world is an ungenerous selfishness—a sectional jealousy—and fear that the rights and privileges enjoyed by the few should be too generally diffused. "If we let this man alone," said the Jews, "all men will believe on him, and they will come and take our place and nation." In reference to "the Mormons," on dit, "we must put them down, or they will put us down." It was this spirit that led the tyrant Herod to kill all the young children of a certain age, in order that the infant king might be executed in the general massacre. The same spirit led Pharoah to have all the Hebrew male children destroyed by the sage femmes, so that he might the more easily hold the people of Israel in subjection. The same spirit led the inhuman fiends of Missouri and Illinois to murder innocent men, women, and children of the Saints, including the noble and honored prophets, Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Mr. John Reynolds, in the work before mentioned, gives his feelings on their massacre in the following language: "No murder was ever committed under more dastardly and atrocious circumstances than this. The people of Hancock were determined to wreak their vengeance on the prophet and his brother, and perpetrated it in this barbarous and disgraceful manner. The Smiths were decoyed to Carthage, and a warrant issued for the pretended crime of treason, to confine them in jail, and then to take advantage of prisoners in a jail, and under the promised protection of the Governor, murder them, presents a crime that is seldom equalled for its atrocity and barbarity." The above testimony of the innocence of the murdered ones, being decoyed to Carthage, and imprisoned for the pretended crime of treason, and then inhumanly murdered, coming from so high an authority as ex-Governor of the very State in which the atrocious deed was perpetrated, will be sufficient to convince every honest mind that they were murdered in cold blood, and died innocent of the charge preferred against them.

I have been interested in the progress of Mormonism for a number of years; I am, therefore, not uninformed in regard to its history or progress; and independent of its own intrinsic merits and general character, I must confess that an acquaintance with a number of its prominent men has no way depreciated it in my estimation; their characters and policy being such as to excite the love and admiration of all lovers of truth. The air of independence and boldness assumed by its missionaries; the admirable order prevailing in the churches; the purity of its principles and doctrines; the order of the emigration agency, and marvellous success in all nations where the cause has been fairly heard; all prove to me the super excellence of Mormonism.

There is one principle, however, that has made many to stand aloof with astonishment and wonder. I mean polygamy. When I consult the tradition of the fathers, the general usages of society, and the natural prejudice upon the subject, I am not surprised that to many it should appear covered with the shades of darkness; but when we scan the pages of ancient history, and consider the domestic relations of the old prophets, and the degenerate condition of the world in this age, it assumes to intelligent minds a more feasible aspect.

I cnanot consider it licentious and degrading without identifying the men whom I have been taught to revere as the most noble, virtuous, and honorable. It seems to have incorporated itself so intimately with the history of the prophets, and the religion of Jesus Christ, that it appears impossible to repudiate and denounce it rationally, without destroying the history of the former, and the very existence of the latter. Whilst the history of Abraham, Gideon, David, and others are permitted to remain in the Bible, the doctrine is overtly countenanced; and whilst Jesus is recognized as the Saviour of mankind, his polygamic ancestry must be respected and honored by all those who are "heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ." Yours, &c.,

JAMES H. HART.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31, 1856.

On motion of Mr. Fitzpatrick, the Senate proceeded to ballot for printer:

FIRST BALLOT.

Nicholson	24	Beverly Tucker	8
Gales & Seaton	2	Scattering	19

Necessary for a choice. 27.

The Senate continued to vote until Mr. Nicholson was chosen, on the FOURTH BALLOT.

Nicholson	29	Scattering	15
Tucker	8

Mr. Seward then addressed the Senate on Central America affairs.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

No vote taken to-day for Speaker.

FEB. 1, 1856.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

No direct vote for Speaker.

FEB. 2, 1856.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Smith of Tenn., said he had heretofore voted against the plurality rule, but as yesterday's vote indicated some chances of an election, as Speaker, of a man of sound national views, he now offered a resolution for the adoption of that rule.

The House, by ten majority, refused to lay the resolution on the table.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 113 against 104.

Mr. Orr of S. C., then unconditionally withdrew his name as the Democratic caucus candidate, there being now a probability that greater strength could be concentrated upon his colleague, Mr. Aiken.

Mr. Boyce of S. C., moved to rescind the resolution.

The motion to rescind was laid on the table by a vote of 117 against 101. [Applause.]

Mr. Jones of Tenn., referring to the terms of the resolution—that if no election by a majority take place during the next three trials, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes on the fourth vote be elected Speaker—remarked that the "Republicans" are drilled and ready for the contest; and in order to give an opportunity for other gentlemen to come here understandingly, moved an adjournment till Monday.

The motion was disagreed to by 84 against 133. (Applause.) Impatient cries of "Call the roll," "Call the roll."

Mr. Walker of Ala., moved to rescind the plurality resolution.

The House decided the motion to be out of order, by forty-five majority.

Mr. Paine of N. C., moved that the House adjourn.

The motion was greeted with hisses in the galleries, and on the vote being taken, the announcement that the House refused to adjourn was received with applause from the same quarter.

Mr. Orr of South Carolina, said if the House was to be annoyed by applause in the galleries, he would move to clear them excepting that portion occupied by ladies.

Mr. Paine made an ineffectual motion to rescind the plurality rule, and the House proceeded to take the first ballot of the four as follows:

Banks	102	Fuller	14
Aikin	93	Wells	2
L. D. Campbell	4

Necessary for choice, 108.

Messrs. Barclay and Hickman voted for Wells, and Messrs. Dunn, Harrison, Moore and Scott for Mr. Campbell.

The second vote, excepting Fuller lost one, was the same as the first. The third was the same as the second, excepting Aiken lost one.

Mr. Fuller of Pa., repeated what he had said on two former occasions, namely, that he was not, and did not desire to be a candidate. One hundred and thirty votes had satisfied him that he was not the choice of a majority of the House, and on no other terms or conditions would he consent to take that position.

Mr. Barclay of Pa., remarked that he had been averse to anything like a coalition with Know Nothingism, whether it came from the North or the South. He asked Mr. Aiken whether the latter stood on the Democratic caucus platform, and whether he had not written a letter to Humphrey Marshall, making pledges to the Southern wing of the Know Nothings.

Mr. Aiken of S. C.—I am not a candidate for the Speakership; if my friends think proper to place me in the Chair, I will serve them to the best of my ability.

Humphrey Marshall of Ky.—I have only to say that Mr. Aiken has addressed me no letter whatever. [Applause, and cries of "call the roll," &c.]

The excitement was intense during the final ballot.

Mr. A. K. Marshall of Ky., during the call of the roll, congratulated his "American" friends, saying they had fought a good fight and conquered. There was now no Democratic candidate in the field, with an offensive caucus platform. Performing his duty as a patriot, and not as a partisan, he voted for Mr. Aiken.

Mr. Walker voted the same way, esteeming Mr. Aiken a man with no stains of mere partisanism on his skirts—a man who has not sought office, but to whom office is tendered, and is true to the Constitution.

Messrs. Paine and Lindley voted for Mr. Aiken, knowing him to be a national man.

Mr. Smith of Ala., voted for Mr. Aiken under protest.

Other gentlemen vainly sought to make explanations, the greatest confusion existing.

Several members now changed their votes, and were greeted with applause for so doing, amid impatient cries of "Announce the vote," "Announce the vote." The lobbies were crowded to suffocation, and the excitement was increased by the startling cry that a boy was being crushed to death by the pressure in the galleries. Some of the members shouted out, "Fall back," "Fall back," and others, "Hand him over the rail." The boy was at length released from his imminent danger,

"Announce the vote," was now shouted from all parts of the House.

The Clerk then read the vote as follows:

Banks	103	Wells	1
Aiken	100	Fuller	6
L. D. Campbell	4

Mr. Benson of Mo., one of the tellers, then declared that Mr. Banks was elected Speaker.

Deafening shouts of applause followed from the "Republican" side and other quarters of the House. The ladies waved their hankerchiefs in the galleries. For several minutes the disorder was beyond description.

Mr. A. K. Marshall raised the question that Mr. Banks was not elected, saying the Clerk had no power to authorize such a result to be announced. It must be so declared by the vote of the House.

The Clerk explained, giving reasons which appeared to be satisfactory for his conduct.

Mr. Campbell of Ohio appealed to the honor of gentlemen to carry the plurality resolution into effect, and end this disgraceful contest.

Mr. Cobb of Ga., regarded Mr. Banks as virtually elected by a majority of the House under the plurality rule.

Mr. Aiken asked to be allowed to conduct Mr. Banks as Speaker to the Chair. [Applause.]

Mr. Smith of Ala., highly appreciated Mr. Aiken's request. If granted, he thought it would heal divisions and pour oil on troubled waters. When grown up men make a child's bargain they ought to stick to it. [Laughter.]

After further debate, Mr. Clingman of N. C., offered a resolution declaring that by reason of the adoption of the plurality rule and the votes taken under it, Mr. Banks had been duly chosen Speaker, and is hereby so declared.

This passed by yeas, 156; nays, 39.

Several gentlemen explained, though they had consistently voted against Mr. Banks, they felt bound as judges, not as electors, to carry out the order of the House by voting for the above resolution.

Mr. Banks was, by request of the Clerk, conducted to the Chair by Mr. Aiken, Fuller of Penn., and Campbell of Ohio.

He was greeted with loud and enthusiastic cheers, and, amid the profound silence which followed, said:

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives: Before I proceed to complete the acceptance of the office which you have conferred upon me, I avail myself of your indulgence to express my obligation for the honor conferred upon me. It would afford me great pleasure were it accompanied even by the self-assurance that I would bring to the discharge of arduous and delicate duties, always difficult, but now environed with unusual difficulties, any capacity commensurate with their responsibility and dignity. I can only say I shall bear myself, so far as applicable, with fidelity to the interests and institutions of the country and the government, and with impartiality so far as regards the rights of the members of this House. I have no personal objects to accomplish. I am animated by a single desire of contributing in some little degree to the maintenance of the well-established principles of our government, in their original American signification, in developing that portion of the continent we occupy, so far as we may do so within the power conferred upon us, enlarging and swelling its capacities for beneficient influences at home and abroad, and maintaining intact in perpetuity the inestimable privileges transmitted to us. I am aware neither myself nor any other man is equal to the perfect accomplishment of these duties; I am, therefore as a man must be in such a presence, a suppliant for your indulgence and support. I again return to you my thanks for the honor you have conferred upon me.

Applause, deafening and long continued, followed.

Mr. Giddings of Ohio, being the oldest member of the House, administered the oath to Mr. Banks, by request of the Clerk.

Mr. Stanton of Ohio then offered the following resolution.

Resolved, That the thanks of the House are eminently due, and are hereby tendered to John W. Forney for the distinguished ability, fidelity and impartiality with which he has presided over the deliberations of the House during the arduous and protracted contest for Speaker.

This was unanimously adopted and the House adjourned.

SENATE.

FEB. 4, 1856.

Petitions were presented from several Naval officers who felt aggrieved by the action of the Naval Retiring Board.

Mr. Tombs said the Board should have kept a record to show they had not exceeded the jurisdiction conferred upon them. Wrong and injustice had been done by their decisions, and no act of his should sanction their proceedings.

Mr. Clayton defended the Board, but was willing to correct any errors they may have unintentionally committed.

After further debate, the subject was postponed.

Many bills were introduced, principally for internal improvements; and one by Mr. Adams to extend the term of naturalization.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Speaker administered the oath to support the Constitution of the United States to the Members, the Representatives of each State advancing as their names were called for that purpose. The Delegates from the Territories were likewise sworn. When the name of Mr. Whitfield was called, Mr. Grow said in deference to the wishes of his friends, he would not object to his being sworn. He thought, however, that circumstances would warrant the withholding the oath. He hoped to be heard some other time on the question.

On motion of Mr. Pennington, a Committe was appointed in conjunction with one of the Senate, to wait on the President and inform him that a qurom of the two Houses had assembled, and were ready to receive any communication he might be pleased to make.

Mr. Thurston offered a resolution for the election of a Clerk by viva voce. Laid on the table by 103 against 85.

A resolution, declaring William Cullom of Tenn., Clerk of the House, was adopted by 126 against 87.

As the Speaker administered the oath of office to Mr. Cullom, there were manifestations of approval in the galleries.

The members then proceeded to select seats, in accordance with a resolution moved by Mr. Ball, that all the members retire without the bar, and severally return as their names were drawn by the Clerk from a box, and take possession of such seats as they might select.

SENATE.

FEB. 5, 1856.

Mr. Clayton introduced a resolution appropriating two hundred cords of wood to the suffering poor of Washington, to be paid for out of the Contingent Fund—lost.

Mr. Weller introduced a bill authorizing the coinage at the San Francisco Mint of Unions of the value of $100 each and half Unions of the value of $50, to be made conformably to the standard gold coins and received as legal tender.

The consideration of the Central American question was then resumed.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House refused by twelve majority to table the resolution offered by Mr. Nichols yesterday, declaring Adam J. Glossbrenner Sergeant-at-arms.

The resolution (declaring Mr. Glossbrenner Sergeant-at-arms) was then adopted by 103 against 98.

Mr. Sherman offered a resolution declaring Nathan Darling Door-keeper of the House. Adopted by 119 against 85.

Mr. Campbell of Pennsylvania offered a resolution declaring Robert Morris Postmaster. Adopted—108 against 97.

The rules of the last House were adopted till otherwise ordered.

On motion of Mr. Wheeler there was ordered to be paid out of the contingent fund to John W. Forney, late Clerk, who presided over the House during its disorganization, eight dollars per day in addition to his regular salary, from December 3, to February 4.

Mr. Bingham offered a resolution declaring O. Follet of Columbus, Ohio, Printer to the House, pending which the House adjourned.

SENATE.

FEB. 6, 1856.

Mr. Clayton, (K. N.) of Del., submitted a joint resolution authorizing the sergeant-at-arms of both houses to ascertain without delay the cases in Washington of individual suffering for want of fuel, and appropriating fifteen hundred dollars for the relief of the poor.

After the adoption of an amendment making the Mayors of Washington and Georgetown the distributors of the money, the resolution was passed.

The resolution calling for the journal of the late Naval Retiring Board was then taken up, pending the discussion of which the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House proceeded to the election of a Printer by a viva voce vote, which resulted in Mr. O. Follett's receiving 80 votes, others less. Necessary to a choice 98.

Two more votes were taken, with nearly the same result. Adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1, 1856.

THE United States Treasurer reports that the net amount in the public treasury subject to draft, on the 28th ult., was twenty-four million, eighty-one thousand, five hundred and fifty dollars ($24,081,550.)

In the House to-day, on the resolution declaring Mr. Banks Speaker, Messrs. Dunn, Moore, Harrison and Haven voted as heretofore against him. On the resolution declaring Mr. Aiken Speaker, there was a partial union of Democrats and "Americans." Messrs. Barclay and Hickman, Democrats, and Mr. Cullen, "American," voted in the negative, and Messrs. Williams and Wheeler in the affirmative. Mr. Aiken thus received one vote on the direct question more than Mr. Banks, though a larger number voted on the Banks resolution than when the proposition to choose Mr. Aiken was before the House. The friends of Mr. Aiken to-night congratulated themselves that he might win by the adoption of the plurality resolution.

Southern Commercial Convention.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 1, 1856.

THE convention adopted a resolution declaring a first class line of steamers from Liverpool to some Southern port to be highly important, and recommending Southern Legislatures to aid in the establishment of such a line as soon as practicable.

A resolution declaring that Congress should aid a Southern line of ocean mail steamers, as well as a northern line, was pending at the adjournment.

The dinner this afternoon was a splendid affair. Gov. Wise made a strong internal improvement speech.

Know Nothing Presidential Movements in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Feb. 1, 1856.

AT the "American" District Convention held yesterday, A. B. Ely, James Keith, A. O. Brewster and W. S. Thurston were chosen to represent the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Seventh Districts at the National Convention in Philadelphia on February 22d.

At the Convention of the Fourth District resolutions that the delegates stand upon the Springfield platform and no other, and recommending Millard Fillmore for the Presidency were laid upon the table.

The Case of Messrs. Coburn and Dalton.

BOSTON, Feb. 3, 1856.

IN the case of Messrs. Coburn and Dalton the jury, at twelve o'clock on Saturday night, rendered a verdict of not guilty of manslaughter, but guilty of assault and battery.

Kansas News

CHICAGO, Feb. 4, 1856.

WE have advices from Kansas saying that no election was held at Leavenworth or at other points in that territory on the day fixed for the election, the State officers fearing violence from the Missourians.

Letters state that another general invasion was apprehended, and that extensive warlike preparations were going on in Lawrence and Topeka.

The Weather on the Sound.

STONINGTON, Feb. 4. 1856.

Our harbor is still free from ice, and navigation is uninterrupted. New London harbor is closed by ice, and persons cross with safety.

From Boston.

BOSTON, Feb. 4, 1856.

Two of our well known citizens died this morning, namely: David Safford, prominent for the interest he has for many years taken in missionary enterprises; and Cyrus Alger, the well known cannon and gunmaker.

Considerable anxiety and indignation was manifested here to-day, on account of the suppression of the Committee's Report on the affairs of the Vermont Central Railroad. It is alleged that the suppression of the Report was paid for by parties interested.

A duplicate copy of the Report is in existence, and will be published in The Chronicle on Wednesday next.

The citizens of Waltham, the native town of Mr. Banks, fired one hundred guns to-day in honor of his election. The announcement was made in Waltham on Saturday night by a special messenger from Boston. Several dwellings were illuminated, and congratulatory speeches made. Mrs. Banks was called upon and found in attendance at the sick bed of her mother. Hearty cheers were given at the residences of the leading "Republicans;" when about midnight the crowd dispersed.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4, 1856.

TO-DAY the acting Sergeant-at-Arms, Mr. Glossbrenner drew from the Treasury about $50,000 in gold, which amount had been advanced by him to pay Members of the House, Mr. Speaker Banks having, near midnight on Saturday signed drafts for that purpose. Two hundred and thirty thousand dollars are yet due members, and will be drawn for during the present week.

Mr. Cullom was elected Clerk of the House by the votes of all the "Republicans" present, excepting Messrs. Billinghurst, Bliss, Brenton, Day, Holloway, Leiter, Nichols, Spinner and Watson, combined with all the "Americans" present, excepting Messrs. Humphrey Marshall A. K. Marshall and Walker.

Judge Scarboro, having recovered from his recent illness, the Court of Claims is again in session.

It is calculated that at least five hundred applicants for office under the House organization, were in and about the Capitol to-day, while distant aspirants are operating through Congressional friends.

An Anti-Administration caucus was held at the capital to-night—John H. Petit of Indiana was the Chairman. Between eighty and ninety members were present, including "Republicans," and some Southern as well as Northern "Americans." A large number of office seekers were in outside attendance, anxiously inquiring as to the progress of the inside proceedings. French S. Evans of Washington was nominated Sergeant at-Arms; Capt. M. C. Darling of New York, Doorkeeper; Robt. Morris of Pennsylvania, Postmaster, and O. Follett, editor of The Ohio State Journal, Printer. It is understood that Col. Schouler of The Cincinnati Gazette, is associated with this gentlemen. V. W. Smith of Syracuse and Nathan Sargent were his competitors.

The Senate to-day confirmed Mr. Dallas as Minister to England.

"American" Movements in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Feb. 5, 1856.

THE "American" State Council of Massachusetts met in this city this afternoon, two hundred delegates being in attendance.

Mr. Elihu C. Baker, President of the State Senate, and Mr. A. A. Richmond of Adams, were chosen delegates at large to the Philadelphia National Convention, and the Hon. Timothy Davis, M. C. of Cloucester, and Joseph Thaxter, Esq., of Plymouth, substitutes.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, 1856.

PARKER H. FRENCH has again made formal application to be received as Minister from Nicaragua; but as the former objections to him and his government have not been removed, he will not probably be recognized as such until further developements.

Mr. Dallas is in this city on business with the Executive Department, preparatory to his departure for London.

The swarms of office seekers under the House organization have been largely increasd by accessions from abroad.

Commodore Gregory left here to-day, to take command of the steam frigate Merrimac, at Boston, which vessel is soon to make a trial trip to Norfolk.

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

Stars.

WE have on hand a number of the present volume of the MILLENIAL STAR, from the 1st to the 28th No

Price for the year.................$2 25
" " half year............ 1 12½

Also, a few numbers of the JOURNAL OF DISCOURSES, from No. 1 to 13; each No., 10 cents.

We have paid the American, as well as foreign, postage on the above, which is 2 cents each number, extra, for the volume. $1 04.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

JULY, 1855.

GROCERIES.

Sugar, crushed, per lb.	$0 25
do clarified "	30
do brown "	20
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	35
Tea, Young Hyson "	1 50
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r.	1 50
Tea, black, per lb.	1 50
Apples, dried, per lb.	30
Peaches " "	30
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb.	75
Allspice "	40
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	40
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	35
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	40
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	60
Brimstone "	30
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	50
Candy "	60
Candles, 6 to the lb.	50
Figs, per lb.	60
Cloves, per oz.	10
Nutmegs "	15
Oysters, per can	1 50
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	1 50
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 25
do pints "	75
Lemon Syrup "	1 25
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	18¾
do 10x12 "	20
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	20
Pepper "	15

OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.

Putty, per lb.	$0 30
Glue "	60
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	30
Copperas "	20
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	50
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	20
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $3 pr lb. or pr oz	15
Gum Camphor, per oz.	15
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	10
Turkey Opium "	75
Golden Seal "	10
Liquorice, per lb.	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 50
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal.	6 00
Linseed Oil "	8 00
Copal Varnish "	8 00
Whale Oil "	5 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	75
do do do	40
Mustang Liniment, p bot	40
Rope, sea grass, per lb.	30
Tobacco, per plug 15c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25

STATIONERY.

Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	30
do 2d do	40
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40

HARDWARE.

Axes	$3 25
do boys', handled	2 50
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	2 50
Shovels	2 50
do steel plated	3 00
Grass Scythes	2 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 00
Two prong Hay Forks	1 50
Three do do	1 75
Four do dung do	2 50
Hoes	1 25
Common Augers, per ¼	25
Bits "	25
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 50
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb.	1 50
Flat Irons "	25

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	30
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	80
Sand Paper, pr 2 sheets	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb.	25

SCREWS.

Size.	Gross.
½ inch	50
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 00

BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	2
2½	25
3	30
3½	40

TABLE BUTTS.

1½	20
1¾	25

TACKS.

4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	20
10 do	25
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40

GUN CAPS, per box.

G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Hat, 250	1 00
Powder, per lb.	75
Lead "	30

BOOTS AND SHOES.

Coarse Men's, $5 to	7 00
Fine do	9 50
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 65
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 25
do do Low	2 25
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 25
Knobs	45
Sole Leather, per lb.	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to	1 75
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz.	75
Oil Cassia "	75
Oil Peppermint "	75
Oil Lemon "	75

DRY GOODS.

Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 16¾ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	45
Ticking	30
Blue Drilling	30
Denims	35
Cotton Batten, per roll	30
do Yarn, per 5 lb.	2 00

VALLEY PRODUCE.

Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb.	35
Eggs, per doz.	35
Cheese, per lb.	45
Bacon, smoked, per lb.	20
Shoulder "	25
Ham "	30
Middle "	20
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 00
Oats "	1 70
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar-cured Beef, pr lb.	30
Beef, fresh, per lb.	9
Mutton "	10
Tongues, each	60
Tallow, per lb.	30
Lard "	30
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $3 to	5 00
Adobies, per 100	[illegible]
Stone, per cord	12 00
Cows, &c., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	150 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	12 00

St. Louis Book Agency.

J. S. CANTWELL, southwest corner of Washington avenue and Sixth street, St. Louis, Mo., has for sale, at the usual prices, the following books and pamphlets:

Book of Mormon, German; Voice of Warning, German; Voice of Warning, French; Martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and expulsion from Nauvoo; Route to Salt Lake Illustrated, in 14 monthly parts; Book of Mormon; Book of Doctrine and Covenants; Voice of Warning; Spencer's Letters; Hymn Books; Government of God, by J. Taylor; New Jerusalem, or the Fulfilment of Modern Prophecy; Divine Authority of Joseph Smith; Remarkable Visions; Only Way to be Saved; Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, by O. Pratt, 6 parts; Polygamy, by a Lady in Utah; The Seer, by O. Pratt, Vol. I., to which is added 6 parts of Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and Polygamy, by a Lady of Utah, elegantly bound, in one vol.; Orson Pratt's Works, bound; Times and Seasons, Vols. IV., V., and VI., well bound; Portraits of the First Presidency; Journal of Discourses, well bound; Millennial Star, Vol. XVII.

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to Feb. 8, 1856.

ASHES—Pot ... per 100 lb.	6 75 a 7 —
Pearl	7 75 a 8 —
CANDIES—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted ... per lb.	— a —
Ordinary	— a —
CANDLES—Sperm ... per lb.	38 a 40
Adamantine	26 a 32
Mould, yellow	16 a 17
COFFEE—Java, white	13½ a 14½
Mocha	14 a 15
Laguayra	10½ a 12
Maracaibo	11 a 12
St. Domingo (cash)	9¾ a 10
DRUGS AND DYES—Alcohol ... pr. gal.	— 82 a — 88
Alum ... per lb.	— 2¼ a — 2½
Arrowroot	— 50 a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— — a — 2½
Asafœtida	— 5 a — 25
Borax, refined	— 27 a — 29
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2¼ a — 3
do crude ... per ton.	35 — a — —
Camphor, crude ... per lb.	— 27 a — 30
do refined	— 34 a — 38
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 75 a 1 87
Chlorate Potash	— 50 a — 60
Cochineal	1 05 a 1 25
Copper—sheathing ... per lb.	— 25 a — 33
Copperas ... per 100 lb.	1 25 a — —
Cream Tartar ... per lb.	— 27 a — 30
Gum Arabic, picked	— 18 a — 35
Gum Copal	— 35 a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 25 a — 30
Iodine, resublimized	5 10 a — —
Ipecacuanha	2 — a 3 05
Madder	— 10 a — 11
Magnesia	— 15 a — 17½
Do calcined	— 30 a — 32
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 17 a — 18
Oil Anis	— — a 5 —
Oil Bergamot	1 90 a 2 —
Oil Cassia	— — a 3 62½
Oil Lemon	1 90 a 2 —
Oil Peppermint	4 — a 4 50
Opium, Turkey	4 75 a 5 50
Otto Rose ... per oz.	4 50 a 7 —
Oxalic Acid ... per lb.	— 33 a — 34
Phosphorus	1 40 a 1 50
Quicksilver	— 45 a — 48
Rhubarb, China	2 — a 2 50
Saleratus	— 5½ a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10 a — 11
Senna	— — a — 15
Shellac	— 11 a — 14
Sugar Lead, white	— 16 a — 18
do brown	— 9½ a — 10½
Sulphate Quinine	2 25 a 2 25
Tartaric Acid	— 42 a — 45
Verdigris	— 37 a — 40
Vitriol, blue	— 9 a — 12
DYE WOODS—Camwood ... per ton.	70 — a 80 —
Fustic	21 — a 30 —
Logwood	18 — a 30 —
FLOUR—State, common ... per bbl.	8 12½ a 7 18½
Michigan and Indiana	8 19¾ a 8 31¼
Genesee, extra	9 75 a 11 —
Rye Flour	5 50 a 7 75
Corn Meal	4 — a 4 25
FRUIT—Raisins ... per box.	3 37½ a 3 50
Raisins, layers	3 75 a 4 —
Currants ... per lb.	— 12 a — 25
GLASS (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10 ... per 50 feet.	3 25 a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75 a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 — a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50 a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 — a 7 50
GRAIN—Wheat ... per bush.	1 80 a 2 15
Corn, round yellow	— 90 a 92 —
Barley	1 25 a 1 30
Oats, Western	— 50 a — 52
Beans	— — a 2 75
GUNPOWDER ... per 25 lbs.	3 50 a 6 50
INDIGO ... per lb.	— 90 a 1 30
IRON—Pig, Eng., Scot ... per ton.	30 — a 32 —
Bar, Eng. refined	85 — a — —
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality ... per lb.	— 11½ a — 13
Sheet, Eng.	— 3½ a — 4
LEAD—Galena ... per 100 lbs.	6 50 a 7 —
Sheet and Pipe	— 8½ a — —
LEATHER ... per lb.	20 a 31
MOLASSES ... per gal.	42 a 49
NAILS—Cut, 4d and 6d. ... per lb.	4½ a —
Wrought, 6d and 20d.	6 a 7½
OILS—Olive ... per bskt., 12 bottles	3 50 a — —
Olive, in casks ... per gallon.	1 12 a 1 20
Linseed	— 88 a — 93
Whale	— 78 a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95 a 1 —
PAINTS—Lead, red, Am. ... per lb.	— 7½ a — 8
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— 8½ a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8½ a — —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	— 1 a — 1½
Ochre, in oil	— — a — 4½
Spanish Brown, dry ... per cwt.	— 60 a — 75
Litharge ... per lb.	— 8 a — 8½
Vermilion, Chinese	— 90 a — —
Venetian Red ... per cwt.	2 — a 2 50
RICE ... per 100 lbs.	4 — a 5 50
SALTPETRE ... per lb.	9 a 22
SEEDS—Clover ... per lb.	— 12½ a — 13½
Flax, American, rough ... per bush.	2 — a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	2 42½ a — —
SOAP—New York ... per lb.	4½ a 7
Castile	11 a 11½
SPICES—Ginger, Race ... per lb.	4½ a 5
Mace	90 a 95
Nutmegs	90 a 93
Pepper	10 a 11
Pimento	11 a 12
Cloves (cash)	14 a 15
SUGAR—New Orleans ... per lb.	7½ a 8
Havana, white	8 a 8½
do brown	7½ a 8½
Stuart's crushed	— a 10½
SUMAC, Sicily ... per ton.	72 50 a 82 50
TEAS—Gunpowder and Imperial ... per lb.	35 a 75
Hyson	30 a 80
Young Hyson	32 a 70
Hyson Skin	20 a 35
Black	22 a 50
TIN—Banca ... per lb.	— a 31½
Straits	29 a 29
Plates ... per box.	9 — a 10 50
TOBACCO	7 a 43½
TURPENTINE ... per 280 lbs.	3 62½ a — —
TAR ... per bbl.	3 — a 3 25
SPIRITS TURPENTINE ... per gallon.	— 41 a — 42

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29-tf

J. McGREGOR,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side.
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
84 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22-6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVICE,

GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on
Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22

REMOVAL
MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage.
d22

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29-6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29-6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12-1y

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,
ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.
The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind, which will insure satisfaction.
Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.
Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.
Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

FOR the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices.
f24 1y

THE MORMON.

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

WE believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We belibve that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul, car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? On devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés?" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore; philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système. Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immergé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
16 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
St. Louis.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets.
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
☞ Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.
St. Louis, Mo.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines, Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city.
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, Mo. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
150 bgs Greek raisins; 150 drums Smyrna do;
130 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire sauce;
400 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd stick refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
150 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
130 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
150 bxs lemon syrup; 150 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GARNER.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26:tf

NOW IS YOUR TIME TO BUY GROCERIES CHEAP.
CALL AND BE CONVINCED.
"HONEST COMPETITION IS THE LIFE OF TRADE."
FRANCIS LEPERE,
WHOLESALE & RETAIL GROCER,
South-east corner Seventh st. and Franklin Av.
On hand for the Holidays,
Currants, Citron, and Raisins, at the lowest prices, by F. LEPERE.
Fresh Family Flour, of best favorite country brands, constantly on hand, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
CHEESE—W. R. and English dairy—Sap Sago, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
ENGLISH SPLIT PEAS—10 bbls just received, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
SPICES—Cinnamon, Cloves, Ginger, Nutmegs, Mace, and Caraway Seeds, 1,500 lbs., whole and ground, in store, for sale low, by d22 1m F. LEPERE.

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st., d22-1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.

A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged, f10-6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, Mo. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Busby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T.
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware, Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c. fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

THE MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
The Greatest Blessing of the Age for the Cure of Diseases of Man or Beast requiring External Application.

"BRING hither the poor, the halt, the lame and the blind," if you would have them healed of their many infirmities. We boldly and fearlessly assert that the Mustang Liniment will positively cure Rheumatism. Let any who are afflicted with that most painful complaint try it thoroughly according to directions, and if they are not cured we will give them their money back. What more can we say? It will also cure the Piles. Thousands have tried it—and all were cured. Bruises, Sprains, Sores or Eruptions fade away as if touched by the magician's wand. Its application to burn or scald acts like "oil upon the troubled waters." The tempest of pain and agony is soon stifled, and the patient is hushed to quiet and peaceful slumbers. "There is balm for every wound," and that balm is the Mustang Liniment. Everybody that sells medicine keeps it for sale. "Hold your horses," and if they are crippled, galled or sprained, use the Mustang Liniment.

READ THE FOLLOWING CERTIFICATES.
THROUGH BY EXPRESS!!!

This is to certify that the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used quite extensively in the stables of Adams & Co.'s Great Southern, Eastern and Western Expresses, for curing galls, chafes, scrofulas, sprains and bruises, and it has proved very effectual. Many of their men have also used it on themselves and their families, and they all speak of its healing and remedial qualities in the highest terms. One of our ostlers got kicked and badly cut and bruised on his knee; as usual, the Liniment was resorted to, and the soreness and lameness was soon removed, and it was perfectly well in three or four days. We have no hesitation in recommending it as a valuable preparation to be used externally on man or beast.
J. DUNNING,
Foreman of Adams & Co.'s Express Stable, N. Y.

We take pleasure in recommending the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT to all our friends and customers as the best article we have ever used for sores, sprains or galls in horses. We have used it extensively and always effectually. Some of our men have also used it for severe bruises and sores, as well as rheumatic pains, and they all say it acts like magic—we can only say that we have entirely abandoned the use of any other Liniment.
J. M. HEWITT, Foreman for AMERICAN EXPRESS CO., 10 Wall st.
HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, 74 Broadway.
PULLEN, VIRGIL & CO., 10 Wall st.
WELLS, FARGO & CO., 16 Wall st.

MR. WILLIAM JOHNSON, for the last five years a citizen of Augusta, and now the proprietor of the fine hotel in Savannah, called the Marshall House, has favored us with the following certificate:

The MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used in my family, and on my farm, for a great variety of diseases requiring an external application, and has never failed to give immediate relief and effect a permanent cure. I have cured several cases of rheumatism that had resisted the skill of our best physicians. It has cured ringworms by a single application, chilblains in a few days, toothache, frost bites, cuts, sores and corns by a few applications; nervous headache cured entirely. In fact, I have used it for almost everything, and it has always cured. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used. WILLIAM JOHNSON.
Savannah, June 24th, 1852.

June, 25th, 1852.
I have used the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT in my stables upon my horses in cases of sprains, bruises, galls and sores of different kinds, incident to a large number of horses. I used it upon a horse that had been saddle galled for nearly a year. I had tried many remedies, and one in particular, that I had been in the habit of using for years, and had generally proved successful. Nothing appeared to give it any relief until I tried the Mustang Liniment, which cured it in a very short time. I consider it an invaluable remedy, and would not be without it. WM. H. HOLMES.

SAVANNAH, Geo., June 25, 1852.
We have also used the MUSTANG LINIMENT extensively in our stable, and we find it to be the best remedy we have ever used for sores or lameness of any kind.
SAWYER, HOLLISTER & CO.

The above are from two of the largest livery stables in the State of Georgia.

B. H. MEEKINS, 189 Walnut street, Cincinnati, was confined to his bed under the treatment of a physician some six weeks, with Neuralgia, of the whole of his right side, leg, arm and face; his sufferings were indescribable, and the only cessation from the most agonizing pain, was while under the influence of opium or morphine. His doctor finally advised him to try the MUSTANG LINIMENT; he did so, and in two days was able to go about his business perfectly cured.

This is to certify that I have used the MUSTANG LINIMENT recently in a very severe case of sprain. The right hip was so badly sprained and bruised that fears were entertained that it was out of joint. I obtained a bottle of Mustang Liniment and used it freely for four days, when the soreness and pain were all gone and the hip joint was well.

I have also used the Liniment for the Piles, with which I have been afflicted for many years. Its effects were wonderful. Free applications night and morning for a week have perfectly cured me. Thousands of persons are suffering with this painful disease, and you are at liberty to make this statement public, that all may learn what will cure them.

My brother also states that he has used the Mustang Liniment with the most perfect success in two cases of severe bruises, at our factory in Williamsburgh, and says he considers it invaluable about an establishment where a large number of men and horses are at work, and constantly liable to serious accidents. EDWIN R. BARRON.
64 Duane st., New York, June 25, 1852.

☞ While hundreds are rejoicing in the happy escape from smarting pains, occasioned by Burns, Bruises and Sprains, thousands of others will buy the Mustang Liniment and experience the same happy results.

☞ The popularity of the Mustang Liniment is a "fixed fact," therefore those suffering with Ulcers, Old Sores, Eruptions, and like complaints, need not be reminded of its superiority to give it a trial.

☞ The Ladies will always rejoice at the happy experience of curing eruptions, sore nipples, broken or caked breasts, piles and corns, after a thorough trial of the Mexican Mustang Liniment.

☞ The Mustang Liniment will give the most undoubted satisfaction to any one giving it a trial for stiff joints, stiff neck, or sore throat; it has proved itself efficacious in these complaints in many very stubborn cases.

☞ If you have any ugly, painful corns upon your feet, get a bottle of Mustang Liniment and apply it twice a day for eleven days, and the trouble will be gone.

GEO. W. WESTBROOK, Sole Proprietor, 343 Broadway, New York, and St. Louis, Mo.
PRICES—25 CENTS, 50 CENTS, AND $1 A BOTTLE.
The One Dollar Bottles contain eight times as much as the 25 cent Bottles.
The MUSTANG LINIMENT is sold by all Druggists in Chicago, and by one or more agents in every town and village in the State of Illinois.
d22

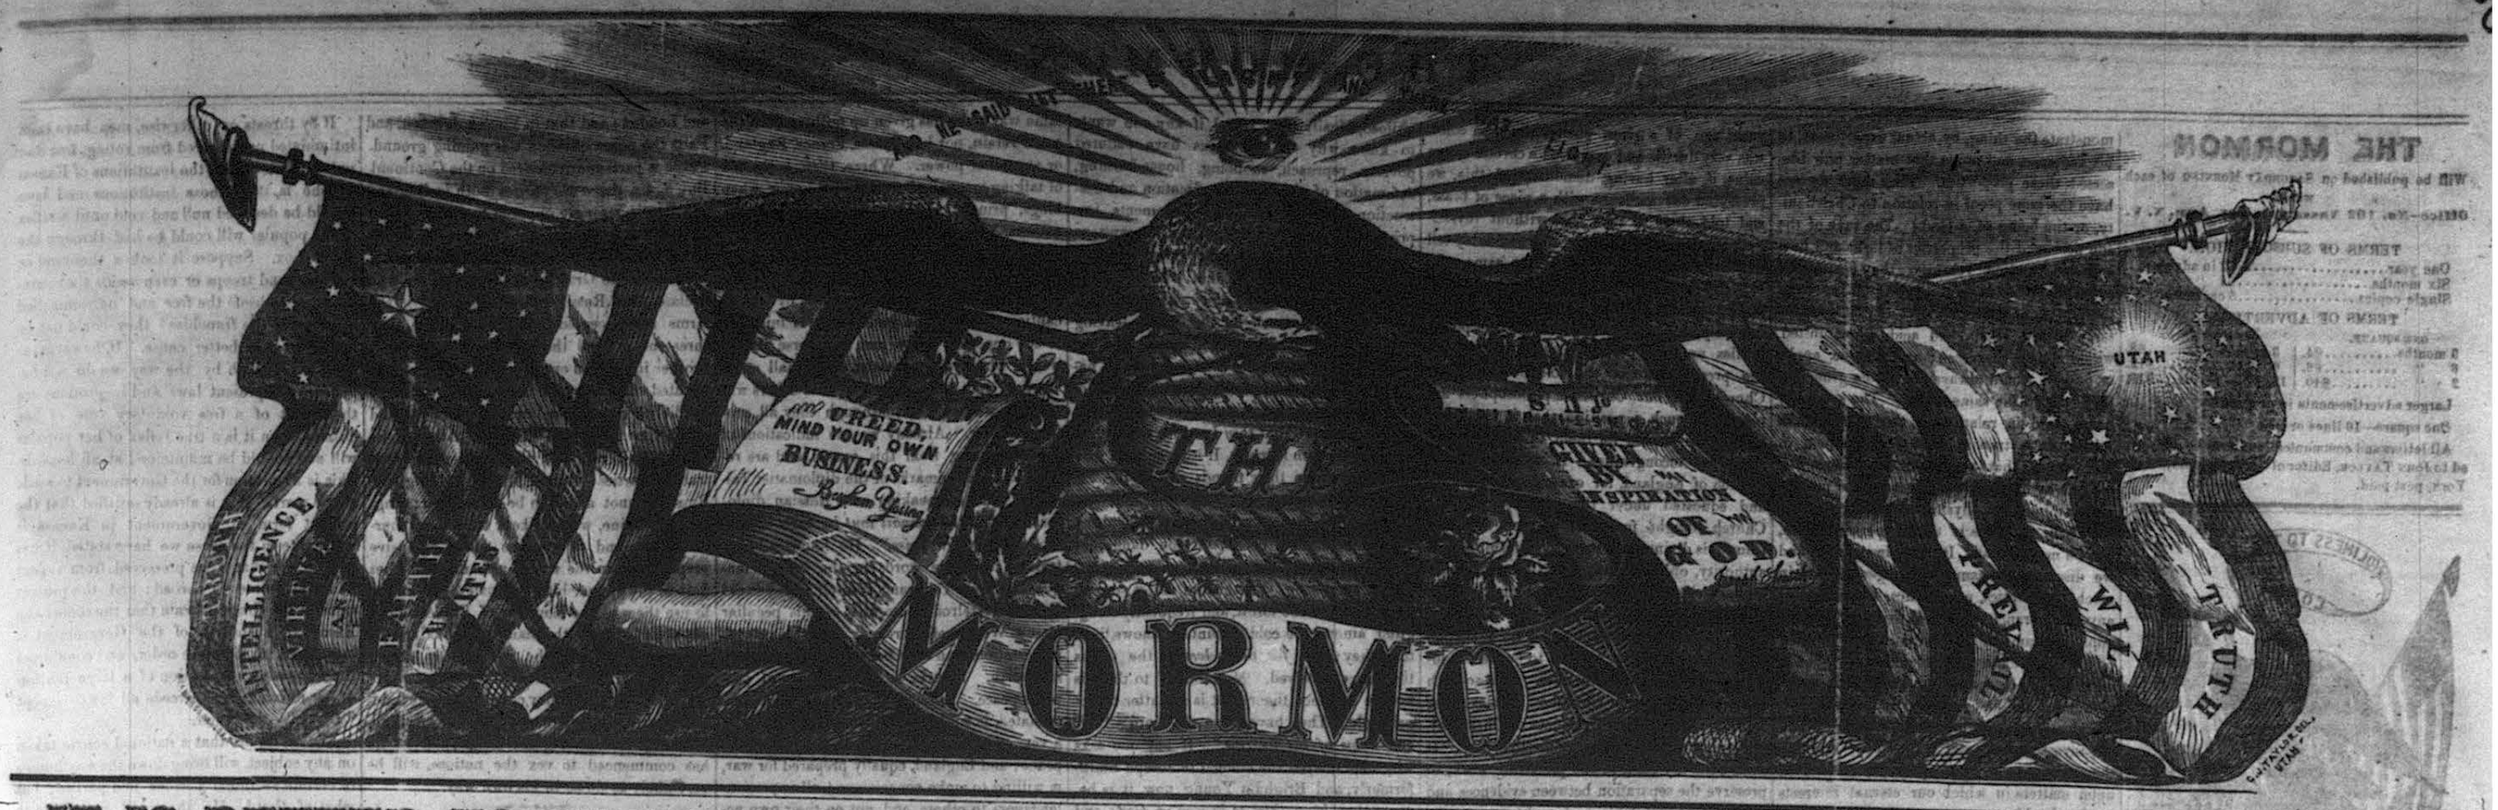
PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)

WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!

Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.

N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.

We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.



We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.

Please call and examine for yourseles, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
☞ Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. ja8

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS. fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. I.--NO. 52. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Time's Song.

BY MRS. HEMANS.

O'er the level plains where mountains
Greet me as I go;
O'er the desert waste where fountains
At my bidding flow;
On the boundless beam by day,
On the cloud by night,
I am rushing hence away!
Who will chain my flight?

War his weary watch was keeping;
I have crush'd his spear;
Grief within her bower weeping,
I have dried her tear;
Pleasure caught a minute's hold—
Then I hurried by,
Leaving all her banquet cold,
And her goblet dry.

Power had won a throne of glory—
Where is now his fame?
Genius said—"I live in story:"
Who hath heard his name?
Love, beneath a myrtle bough,
Whisper'd—"Why so fast?"
And the roses on his brow
Wither'd as I pass'd.

I have heard the heifer lowing
O'er the wild wave's bed,
I have seen the billows flowing
Where the cattle fed;
Where began my wanderings?
Memory will not say;
Where will rest my weary wings?
Science turns away.

Henry A. Wise and Vermont.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 17, 1856.

Resolutions of the Vermont Legislature on the Kansas Difficulties, Addressed to the Governor of Virginia—Message of the Governor to the General Assembly, Accompanying these Resolutions—Action of that Body Thereon.

GOVERNOR WISE addressed the following communication, with the preamble and resolutions herewith annexed, to the General Assembly of this State, this morning. While the Clerk of the House of Delegates was engaged with the reading of them, a feeling of indignation was evinced throughout the House, and I feel sure that nothing but a proper regard to the rules would have restrained the members from an expression of indignant scorn at this ebullition of Northern fanaticism.

The following is the Governor's communication, accompanying which were the resolutions herewith transmitted:

TO THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF DELEGATES OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA:

GENTLEMEN—I hesitate to decide upon complying with the request of the Governor and Legislature of Vermont, to lay before you the accompanying resolutions of that State, "on so much of the Governor's message as relates to Kansas."

These resolutions are in every sense offensive to us, and unbecoming an intercourse and correspondence which should obtain between sovereign States in the same confederacy. They are designed to irritate public feeling upon a topic concerning which it is naturally and habitually sensitive and excited, and are calculated to impair the affection which should bind the people of the States together in national union. Extremely erroneous and false in fact and in principle, they are not worthy of discussion. The time for discussing such unwelcome missives from State to State is passed. We cannot reason with the heads of fanatics, nor touch hearts fatally bent upon treason.

From time to time, for many years, the authors of such mischief have been remonstrated with in vain, and have been induced but to repeat outrages, to renew insults, and at last to organize opposition to the Constitution and laws and to seize upon State and federal authority for further aggression.

In the present posture of relations, we can but wait in calm, dignified and patient composure, either for the worst to come to the worst, or for a returning sense of patriotism, a reverence for the past, a sacred regard to law and order, a love of justice and of peace, to be re-awakened, and to restore to a sisterhood of States, its affection, its harmony, its glory and strength.

I, therefore, recommend that no action be had or taken upon these resolutions by you. It is proper, perhaps, that they should be preserved only as State archives, in proof of the wrong offered us, and of our forbearance; and this, and respect for State sovereignty alone, determine me to notice them as I now do. They are but minor results of the same cause of apprehension and danger which has assumed a much more formidable phase, and now arrests the gravest attention of our country. The federal government is arrested in its operation, the Representative branch of Congress is disorganized, and the representative principle itself is brought into disrepute by it at this very moment; and in such a crisis as this we can hardly descend to look to its results upon a Vermont Legislature and Executive. Our attention is called to Washington city, not to Monpelier. Parties, affiliated with those of Vermont who have sent to us these resolutions, have grown so strong as to succeed in electing to Congress more than one hundred representatives to oppose a mere minority, who are now defending the Constitution, and in withholding from that minority the support of thirty representatives more chiefly of the Southern States; and the effect is, that the House of Representatives cannot be organized, except upon terms subversive of the Constitution and Union; and the South is distracted and divided against itself. Is the design of the plurality, disunion? Is the purpose of the faction, division among ourselves. If so, it is time that all people and all interests in our country should be aroused to a sense of the fact that the easiest step to disunion is a withdrawal of representation, and that the most potent cause to compel a withdrawal of representation is to disorganize, distract and degrade representation. How long shall Virginia be kept waiting for organization on constitutional terms?—how long she shall be kept waiting on disorganization, to avoid being put upon terms of dishonor or being exposed to danger, are questions for her people and her Legislature to determine. For my part, I repeat the recommendation of calm, collected dignity, and of patient and forbearing patriotism. Wait! but be not wanting to ourselves and our prosperity, I earnestly implore you. With the highest respect, your obedient servant, HENRY A. WISE.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 15, 1856.

STATE OF VERMONT, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, MONTPELIER, Dec. 20, 1855.

TO THE HON. THE GOV. OF THE STATE OF VIRGINIA:

SIR—I have the honor to transmit to you the accompanying resolutions on so much of the Governor's message as relates to Kansas. I have the honor to be, with considerations of high respect, your obedient servant,

C. H. HAYDEN, Sec'y. STEPHEN ROYCE.

RESOLUTIONS ON SO MUCH OF THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE AS RELATES TO KANSAS.

Whereas, the power and influence of the slaveholding States in this Union has been, from an early period, successfully exerted in extending and strengthening the institution of human slavery, contrary to the clear intent of the founders of the government, and in violation of the spirit of the Constitution; and whereas, in order still further to extend slavery and to establish it in the free Territories of the United States, there have been passed the Fugitive Slave law, so called, and the code establishing Territorial government in the free Territories of Kansas and Nebraska, with provisions inviting the establishment of slavery therein; and in furtherance of this purpose, the citizens of Missouri have been suffered to invade the Territory of Kansas, in armed bands, and to prevent thereby the people of said Kansas from making their own laws or electing their own representates, and by lawless force to exclude them from exercising any voice in the government of said Territory; and whereas, the present administration of the general government has lent itself to those illegal and unjust schemes, and has either openly aided therein, or secretly connived thereat, and has taken no steps to execute the laws or to protect the people of said Territory in the exercise of their constitutional rights thus publicly assailed and otherthrown; and has, upon false pretences, removed such of its own officers as were not entirely subservient to these bad designs; and whereas, the right of citizens of slaveholding States to hold slaves in, and transport them through the free States has of late been asserted, and the act attempted, and in consequence thereof a citizen of a sister State has been put in prison under the usurped or grossly perverted power of a federal Judge; therefore it is, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Vermont,

Resolved, That the Fugitive Slave act of 1850, is contrary to the Constitution of the United States, in subversion of the rights, and a flagrant outrage upon the spirit of a free people, and that the same ought to be immediately repealed.

Resolved, That the enactment of the provisions of the territorial code of 1841, which abrogated the ancient prohibition of slavery in said Territories, and opened them to the wicked acts and calamitous results of that institution, was a gross fraud upon the just rights of the people,—a faithless breach of a solemn public compact, of which the slaveholding interest had already reaped the full benefit—an insult to the free States, and in violation of the natural rights of man, and that it merits the condemnation of the civilized world.

Resolved, That the armed and unlawful invasion of Kansas, by the citizens of Missouri, and their illegal and forcible exclusion of the people of that Territory from all the political rights to which they were entitled in the government thereof, for the sole purpose of establishing slavery therein, under the semblance of law, was an act of atrocity unequalled in the political history of this nation, and directly subversive of the fundamental principles of republican government, and that the State of Missouri will be justly chargeable as a party to that wrong, unless she publicly and distinctly disavow said acts of her citizens, and use every means in her power to prevent a recurrence thereof.

Resolved, That the non-interference of the federal administration, to prevent or punish said outrages, justly makes it, in the estimation of mankind, accessory thereto, and unworthy of the confidence or respect of freemen.

Resolved, That Vermont, while she will in no way assail the constitutional or domestic rights of the slaveholding States, will to the utmost of her power uphold and sustain the people of the Territories in their lawful effort to exclude slavery therefrom; that she will, at all hazards, and to the last extremity, resist all encroachments upon the constitutional rights of the States; that to the extent of her ability she will oppose the extension of slavery into, and the existence thereof, in the Territories of the United States, and the admission into the Union of any State whose Constitution does not perpetually prohibit slavery therein.

Resolved, That the slave who treads the soil of a free State by the consent of his master, becomes thereby at once and forever free, and entitled to the exercise of the whole power of the State, when necessary, in the defence of his freedom.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this General Assembly, no District Court of the United States has jurisdiction to issue writs of habeas corpus, or to render judgment thereon, except when necessary to the orderly proceedings of suits pending thereon, or in order to inquire into the legality of commitments made under color of its authority, and, therefore, that the imprisonment of Passmore Williamson, under the authority of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania, was not warranted by law, and void.

Resolved, That our Senators be, and they are hereby instructed, and our representatives in Congress are requested, to do all in their power to carry out the spirit and intent of the foregoing resolutions.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to cause a copy of these resolutions, properly certified, to be sent to each of our Senators and representatives, to be by them communicated to Congress; and that a copy of the same be also sent to the Governor of each State in the Union, with a request that they be laid before the Legislature thereof.

In House of Representatives, Nov. 12, read and adopted.

GEO. R. THOMPSON, Ass't Clerk.

In Senate, Nov. 15, 1855, read and adopted in concurrence. C. H. CHAPMAN, Sec'y.

STATE OF VERMONT, SEC'Y OF STATE'S OFFICE, MONTPELIER, Dec. 26, 1855.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct copy of the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly of this State, on file in this office.

CHARLES W. WILLARD, Sec'y of State.

Two thousand five hundred copies of the Governor's communication were ordered to be printed, the House feeling too much contempt for the resolutions to subject them to a similar rule.

"Let the Union Slide!"

THE Baltimore Patriot says, this expression is attributed to the most prominent candidate for Speaker now before the House of Representatives; and we refer to it, that we may mark our condemnation of those dangerous words so flippantly uttered. It matters not on what occasion they were elicited; it matters not upon what contingencies they were based. They are treasonable in their essence, and deserve to meet with the severest reprobation from all who desire to maintain the power and glory of the noblest and freest Republic the world ever yet saw.

He who first seriously contemplated a severance of the confederated States was a traitor in his heart, and became morally amenable to a traitor's doom. He who first put that thought into language would have been mercifully dealt by, if the penalty of ostracism had been enforced against him. Let the Union slide! Loosen the grand fabric built up by the sacrifice of many a heroic life—by the toils and sufferings of many a heroic heart—by many a plundered homestead—by the ashes of many a hearth made desolate—by widow's tears and by orphan's cries! At Concord, and Lexington, and Bunker's Hill; in the sad march through the Jerseys; in the winter camp at Valley Forge; and in blood-stained footprints of the patriots recorded on the winter's snow; in the jails and prison ships at New York; in the swamps of Georgia and the Carolinas; in the wilds of Kentucky; amid fierce savages, Tory malignants, and but too barbarous foreign foes, the foundations of the Union were laid.

That wild Christmas night upon the Delaware, when Washington dared the opposing ice, and hardily plucked at Trenton victorious laurels from the brows of his pursuers, the fabric of the Union rose remotely visible to men's eyes; and growing gradually more distinct at Bennington, and Saratoga, and King's Mountain, and Camden and Yorktown, penetrated the thick haze of doubts and fears, and exhibited its fair proportions, sharply defined, upon the back ground of the future. And yet there are those among us who cry out, "Let the Union slide," reckless of the reverent nature of the inheritance won by toil and agony, and bequeathed with prayers and solemn admonitions. There are, we say, those among us who proclaim themselves ready to prove false to their trust, to ignore the memory of their fathers, to mine with an insane hand the glorious building they reared, and to shout exultingly, "Let the Union slide!" Slide where! Into chaos and black night! Into that terrible limbo of things magnificent of promise, yet untimely shattered! Or where!

We say the people of the Union will never consent, at the bidding of any man or set of men, upon mere seditional issues, to "Let the Union slide." Three-quarters of a century have made this Union, not a mere confederation of States, but a confederation of hearts, bound by ties stronger than the Constitution whose provisions they revere, and by interests it would be madness to dissolve.

Let the Union slide—no! Let it last forever. Let it be handed down to succeeding generations, intact and impregnable. Let it stand like the old Rhodian Wonder, with a foot upon opposite shores, and lifting up to the oppressed of all nations a beacon to guide them into a haven of rest, where all may enjoy freedom of political action, restricted only by laws of their own adoption, and where liberty of conscience is protected beneath the Ægis of the Constitution. Mr. Banks said "Let the Union slide!" We say, "Let Mr. Banks slide!"—[New Jersey Eagle.

A Live Toad Ten Thousand Years Old.

A few days since, while some workmen were engaged in getting rock from a quarry in the western part of this city, a toad was found inhabiting the centre of a large block of limestone. This beautiful little crystal palace was some inch and a half in height by six inches in width, and was found at a depth of some twenty feet from the surface of the earth. The enclosure was perfect, prohibiting, to all appearance, the access of even air itself. Geologists, judging from the rock formation, would say that the toad was at least ten thousand years old, and the Lord knows how much older. It is still alive and doing well.—[Burlington (Iowa) Gazette.

The Farmers' Club.

THE Farmers' Club held a regular meeting last week at the room of the American Institute, in Broadway. Judge Livingston in the chair. The subject of discussion for the day was—"The Winter Feeding of Stock."

Mr. Waterbury addressed the Club at some length. He had intended, he said, to collect statistics to demonstrate the truth of the proposition which he assumed, that the quantity of feed consumed by stock produced a proportionate quantity of work from the animal. He thought that it could be demonstrated how much labor would be produced by feeding any given quantity of grain, oats, &c., to working cattle.

Mr. Judd called attention to the important fact, that when cattle are cold they consume a much larger quantity of food than when they are kept warm, the surplus food being employed in furnishing the requisite animal heat. He thought much provender might be saved by having barns and stables kept tight.

Mr. Brown remarked that care must be taken to give the animal proper ventilation. He also argued at some length and cited his own experience to prove, that the natural food of horse, such as grass or hay, was fully requisite to furnish strength for any but extraordinary labor. He had known a horse of his father's to live 30 years, performing ordinary labor, yet during the whole of that time, not being given but a few bushels of grain.

Mr. Waterbury remarked that working cattle should not be fed much immediately before being worked hard, otherwise they would be influenced by the same lassitude which is experienced by those who are fortunate enough to eat good dinners. After some further discussion, the subject, was, upon motion, set down for continuation at the next meeting, when statistics will be produced, showing the effect of different methods of winter feeding of stock.

Secretary Meigs desired the Club to taste some specimens of blackberries, and Cahawba grape vines, which request was diligently complied with by all present.

Mr. Ware exhibited some specimens of "Baldwin" and "Peck's Pleasant" apples, of which the Club partook and expressed its satisfaction.

Dr. Deck exhibited a curious flower, which he said, had been in his possession nine years, and had originally been taken from the breast of an Egyptian mummy. It possessed the remarkable property or faculty of opening its petals a few minutes after it had been immerged into cold water. He exhibited to the Club this phenomena, which was viewed with much astonishment. The flower was cut off at the stem, and yet retained this vital property. Dr. Deck says he has thus opened the flower over five hundred times. As soon as the flower is dried by the evaporation of the moisture, it closes as it was before immersion. The Dr. also exhibited some specimens of the "Scorpion" and "Centipede," which he denominated beautiful, but they were not particularly inviting to the uninitiated. The Club adjourned for two weeks.

Churches and Chastity.

Brooklyn Morals.

THERE is a deal of quaint significance in the mariner's remark: "that he knew it to be a civilized place, for he saw a gallows." In a like manner, the presence of immorality in a neighboring city appears to be detected by a superabundance of counteractive institutions. If we are to judge from the published reports of the past few weeks, Brooklyn—familiarly styled the City of Churches, from the multiplicity of tabernacles and chapels scattered within its limits—claims pre-eminence as a nursery for social infidelity. Seduction, crim. con., and illicit amour, are chronicled in the papers with disgusting frequency, and the participators in all which dissolute criminality are announced to be not, as with us, the forlorn prostitute and inveterate libertine, but persons of repute, patterns of presumptive morality, and even pillars of those sacred edifices, whose monumental turrets should throw a shade of protective morality over every nook and corner of the town!

Viewed according to recent developments, with respect to its matrimonial state, Brooklyn reminds us of the deceptive apples nurtured by the corrosive atmosphere of the Dead Sea—fair to the eye, but rotten at the core. Beneath the very eaves of their consecrated temples, we find the members of the congregation oblivious to the mandates of religion, indulging in the twin enormities of scandal and of adultery; and, strange to add, the tongues which discanted most virulently against the frailty of the flesh, appertained unto those who sinned most deeply in heart and too frequently in person. Should the good folks of Brooklyn desire to retrieve their shaken reputation for general morality, would it not be better for them to practice precept more earnestly in private, and to revere less devotedly its preaching in public? The austerity of out-door demeanor, assumed by the hypocritical fanatics of our sister city, would warrant the supposition of its being a Puritan Eden; while revelations of obscured privacy induce a presumption that, were a modern Sodom and Gomorrah to be ordained for destruction, insurance risks upon Brooklyn property might be deemed "extra hazardous."—[Sunday Mercury.

All Sorts of Minds.

THERE is a strong disposition in men of opposite minds to despise each other. A grave man cannot conceive what is the use of wit; a person who takes a strong common sense view of the subject, is for pushing out by the head and shoulders an ingenious theorist, who catches at the slightest and faintest analogies; and another man, who scents the ridiculous from afar, will hold no commerce with him who tests exquisitely the fine feeling of the heart, and is alive to nothing else; whereas, talent is talent, and mind is mind, in all its branches! Wit gives to life one of its best flavors, common sense leads to immediate action, and gives to society its daily motion; large and comprehensive views cause its annual rotation; ridicule chastizes folly and imprudence, and keeps men in their proper sphere; subtleties seize hold of the fine threads of truth; analogy darts away in the most sublime discoveries; feeling paints all the exquisite passions of man's soul, and rewards him, by a thousand inward visitations, for the sorrows that come from without. God made it all! It is all good! We must despise no sort of talent; they all have their separate duties and uses—all the happiness of man for their object; they all improve, exalt and gladden life.—[Sidney Smith.

The Muses.

THE muses are described in Mythology as daughters of Jupiter and Mnemosyne. They were believed to preside over poetry, music, and all the liberal arts and sciences, and were generally allowed to be nine in number. Calliope presided over epic poetry and eloquence, and is represented as holding a close rolled parchment, and sometimes a trumpet. Clio, who was the goddess of history, is represented as holding a half-open scroll. Melpomene, the inventress and goddess of tragedy, is represented as holding a tragic mask, or bowl and dagger. Erato presided over lyric, tender and amorous poetry. She is always represented as crowned with roses and myrtles, holding a lyre in her hand. Terpsichore was the goddess of dancing, and is represented as crowned with laurel, and holding a musical instrument. Urania, the muse of astronomy, is represented as holding a globe and a rod with which to point out objects. Thalia was the patroness of comedy. She was called "The Blooming One," with fair flowing hair, and generally holds a comic mask. Polymnia, the ninth muse, presided over singing and rhetoric. She was represented veiled in white, holding a sceptre in her left hand, and with her right raised, as if ready to harangue.

CANAL ACROSS THE ISTHMUS OF SUEZ.—The project of connecting the Mediterranean with the Red Sea by a ship canal is seriously entertained, and active measures are now being taken for its prosecution. The present Viceroy of Egypt, Said Pacha, has issued a firman, (a decree,) empowering M. Lesseps, his Chief Engineer, to form a company for the immediate construction of the Canal.

The distance across the Isthmus from Pelusium to the nearest point on the Red Sea is about sixty-one miles. It is proposed that the Canal shall be 300 feet broad and 30 feet deep, its estimated cost is thirty-five millions of dollars. Some of the heaviest capitalists of Europe are said to be interested in the enterprise.

Mock Auction Scene.

Peter Done Brown.

OUR readers may be aware that one of the many tricks of Peter Funk consists in putting up a genuine and really valuable gold watch, which, after being knocked down, is dexterously exchanged for a worthless article, upon some frivolous pretence. However sharp Peter may be in a generality of cases, he sometimes gets bit, most villainously at his own game, as an instance of late occurrence will clearly demonstrate. Nevertheless, Peter is so modest, that when he comes out of the little end of the horn, he maintains a dignified and perpetual silence on the subject.

Hans Peterskin, a Pennsylvania Dutchman, one of those phlegmatic natives of America, who, born in ignorance of the English tongue, acquire it never unadulterated, was recently on a visit to see "York." He had heard of Tammany Hall, and put up at that noted hostelry, which is unhappily surrounded by a perfect array of mock auctioneers. Hans, in his native state, was considered somewhat of a shrewd speculator, having commenced business as a peddler of Yankee notions, followed cattle breeding for a living, and finally ended off as an inventor of mining stock. The sale of this last profitable article, hypothecated upon the discovery of a copper vein running through his paternal farm, called him to this city, where he astonished the Wall street dealers by the oddity of his costume and the verdancy of his remarks upon matters and things.

Hans was trudging along Chatham street, his eyes wide open and his mouth distended; swinging the extremity of his long-tailed blue after the manner of a pendulum, when a pathetic appeal broke upon his ears from the direction of a mock auction establishment, being an unlimited invitation to mankind to avail themselves of the ridiculous sacrifices then taking place with regard to valuable gold watches. Now, a watch appeared to be an article of luxury Hans had long promised himself, and thus he thought to avail himself of the golden opportunity for purchase of the coveted article.

As Hans entered the establishment, the bidding became more and more exciting, and the reserved corps of Peter Funks closed around the verdant-looking speculative miner.

"This here val'able gold watch, made by Tobias, really worth sixty dollars, a goin' at ten—ten dollars."

The auctioneer smiled complacently upon Hans and handed him the "decoy" watch, The Pennsylvanian examined it minutely, and possessing some knowledge of the trading value of jewelry, concluded he might venture upon a bid; so, still holding on to the watch under pretence of a further inspection of its movements, he vented an "eleven."

After several apparent demurrers, the watch was finally knocked down to Hans for twelve and a half dollars, which the Dutchman promptly paid and transferred the watch to his pocket.

This unanticipated movement, as the "decoy" was in reality worth some twenty dollars, wholesale, somewhat discomposed the serenity of Mr. Funk's countenance; so he disinterestedly whispered to the Pennsylvanian:

"Just leave that watch, and we will clean it for you."

"Thank'ee," quoth Hans, "she'll go very well as she is."

"But it has got our private mark upon it."

"Well," tranquilly retorted Hans, "as I don't know what it is, it won't do no harm to nobody."

Finding these dodges unequal to the task of making the countryman disgorge, so that a galvanized article could be substituted in its stead, one of the employees of the shop advanced confidentially to the troublesome customer.

"I say, friend," he whispered, "make that man give you a new watch; that one you bought is brass—I am a watchmaker."

"Yes!" rejoined Hans, "I know that I saw you working at the trade in Moyamensing Prison."

"Sale closed till two o'clock!" angrily ejaculated the auctioneer, finding himself thoroughly victimized.

"Thank'ee," quoth Hans, "and if you've got any more twenty dollar watches to sell for twelve—you'll find me on hand!"

UPWARDS of five hundred legal voters have signed a petition for the annexation of Chelsea to the city of Boston.

THE MORMON

WILL be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 103 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
2 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—16 lines or less.

All letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEB. 16, 1856.

Is Mormonism a Philosophical Paradox?

Or, Is Mormonism Philosophically True?

ARTICLE III.

CONTINUED.

HAVING demonstrated in the foregoing that there is nothing unreasonable in God communicating with the human family, and that revelation is in strict accordance with sound philosophy. We next have to inquire:

What knowledge, test or evidence have we, or ought we to expect, of the divine authenticity of any professed communication from God: and will Mormonism abide the ordeal?

It is not enough to state that God might reveal himself to the human family; the question necessarily arises, has he done it? for we wish to meet the matter fairly; and as Mormonism professes to be a revelation from God, any communication that he might make to others would not affect that; the question is, has he revealed himself to the Mormons and dictated Mormonism? Will Mormonism bear the test? or is Mormonism philosophically true?

Without entering into any abstruse metaphysical disquisitions, we will proceed at once to the examination of these questions.

It may here be asked, How do I know that God spake to others? To this I simply answer, I do not know, nor can I, without revelation; nor can any one else. I may, and do believe that God spake to many men, as recorded in the scriptures; but faith is one thing, and knowledge another. Simpson, Paley, Watson, Dick, and many others, have brought forth strong and conclusive evidence of the authenticity of the scriptures, both from their own internal evidence and the fulfilment of their prophecies, also from the corroborative testimony of profane writers. In their writings they have displayed much talent, genius, research and erudition, but the evidence is not conclusive, it is relative, or collateral only; for it is a fact, that none of these ancient prophets inspired implicit confidence, even among their own followers. How, then, are we, after the lapse of ages, to know assuredly that they had divine communications? There is a secret something not developed, a criterion not yet touched upon, an evidence which all of these writers seem to be wofully ignorant of, and which is absolutely necessary to obtain a knowledge of these things. We have, it is true, in those evidences, a sufficient criterion for our faith, but nothing that will amount to satisfactory proof. It may be very well to prove that Abraham, Moses, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Hosea, Jesus, Peter, James, John, and others, existed, and that these prophecies have been fulfilled; but what then? what has that to do with us? It may, indeed, make us believe their word. If we do, what will be the result? We learn, then, "that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation, he that feareth God and worketh righteousness shall be accepted of him;" and that, therefore, if God spake to, or communicated with them, he will also with us. "If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him." "Ask and ye shall receive: seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." Thus we find, the moment we believe the scriptures, that God, like all his works, is the same, "yesterday, to-day and for ever:" that whatever was the privilege of other people, is our privilege; and that if they could have revelations, we can also; if they could know, so can we. This, then, is what we are in search of—an abiding, living demonstration, eternally the same, and applicable to all. When we have proved that Jesus came into the world, that he was a good man, that his disciples also were true, good men, and that Christianity was a revelation from God, our work is not then ended; we have to show that ours is the same Christianity—that it possesses the same powers and evidence, both internally and externally. A person lecturing on the properties of light, heat, air, or any substance in nature, would not amuse his hearers with something that took place eighteen hundred or five thousand years ago, only; if called upon, he would demonstrate the thing, by actual experiment, to his audience, and prove that matter now possessed those properties. Why must we not have the same proof in relation to Christianity, or the being of a God? The rays of the sun possessed the properties of light and heat eighteen hundred yearsago; they possess the same properties to-day. A magnet possessed the powers of attraction ages ago; it does the same to-day. Soda and acid, when united, would always effervesce; and a stone, apple, or orange, would always fall to the ground—they will do the same to-day. The same law holds good in relation to the operations of mind. It is true in animal magnetism or mesmerism, that certain manipulations performed by a competent person upon persons whose minds and physical temperaments render them fit subjects to be operated upon, can be magnetized. It was always true, and we discover the same unchangeable law, in mechanics, optics, pneumatics, hydraulics, or any other branch of natural science; why not apply the same rule to the science or philosophy of Christianity, or Mormonism? For, if certainty is necessary, and demonstration demanded in the first rudiments of natural philosophy, how much more is it requisite, when we investigate mental philosophy, examine the operations of spirit upon spirit, and treat upon matters in which our eternal interests are involved?

The aforesaid christian philosophers have established many truths, and brought forth many good arguments, in favor of ancient Christianity and the truth of the Bible; but that is not enough. They tell us what christianity was; we want to know what it is. It is not enough to reason upon the actual existence of things as they were, nor to prove from sacred and profane history that such a being as Jesus existed, or that he had apostles. It is not enough to prove that these men possessed supernatural powers, that the sick were healed, the lame walked, the deaf heard, or that there were other demonstrations of supernatural powers. The casuist would very justly remark, that certain causes always produced certain effects, and that if these were the effects of the gospel eighteen hundred years ago, why not to-day?—that cohesion, attraction and gravitation were the same—that the properties of air, fire and water were unchanged—and that christianity, to be philosophically true, must give the same evidence, and produce the same effects; if it does not, its professors render themselves liable to the charge of deception, fraud or priestcraft; to the accusation of religious empyricism, which is more repugnant to the minds of intelligent, honest men than any other species of deception, inasmuch as the most sacred feelings of the human mind are appealed to, to perpetrate, or cover up that fraud; and although great allowance must be made for the power of habit, custom, the influence of education and example, if it is false, it will not admit of being called by a milder name.

Our christian ministers very unceremoniously, and without any kind of proof, call Joseph Smith a false prophet, and his followers deceivers and deceived; and even our Christian philosophers gratuitously give Mahommed the appellation of "false prophet." Now, if these ministers and philosophers profess the Christianity of Jesus Christ, and take him and his apostles as examples, after having made use of all the arguments within their reach to prove the doctrines of the gospel true, we certainly have a right to expect the same evidence from them, that their professed prototypes gave. But if they, instead of this, introduce something else besides the gospel, certain formula, either of the Church of England as defended by Paley, Presbyterianism by Dick, or anything else that is simply the contrivance of man, certain forms, creeds, ceremonies and ordinances, that are a direct and palpable innovation upon Christianity, nowhere taught by Jesus and his apostles, and entirely without the spirit, power and evidences that formerly accompanied the gospel—what are we to think? That they are perverting philosophy, by trying to make it subservient to the sustaining of creeds and opinions, instead of using it as an unchangeable principle to the sustaining of eternal, unchangeable truths. It is not even pretended that the power of God is manifested in modern days, or by any of the soi-disant reformers. Paley and Dick, christian philosophers, both repudiate this idea. Adams, a celebrated writer, even asks, "Were these powers claimed or exercised by the founders of the sects of the Waldenses and Albigenses? Did Wickliffe, in England, pretend to it? Did Huss or Jerome, in Bohemia? Did Luther, in Germany? Zuinglius, in Switzerland; Calvin, in France; or any of the reformers, advance this plea?" What have we gained, then, if we prove that Jesus was the Messiah, and that his apostles were inspired men—that they possessed the gift of the Holy Ghost, power to work miracles, &c.? Does that prove that the Church of England, established by Henry VIII., or Presbyterianism, originating with Calvin or Knox of England, are either of them correct, or christian? Are we, on mere assumption, to swallow everything down bearing the name of christianity as truth? There is a certain evidence or power, a certain demonstration, as much needed to substantiate the truth of modern christianity, as there was ancient christianity, or the primitive gospel; and as the truth of modern science does not depend upon any abstruse metaphysical, mysterious reasoning, but can be clearly demonstrated, so could ancient christianity. And as it is not necessary for us to go to the ancients to prove the properties of any of the material elements, to show that such properties did exist: so, it is not necessary for us now to refer to the properties that existed eighteen hundred years ago, alone to obtain proofs of the influences and evidences of the gospel. Like everything in nature, it contains those evidences in itself; if it does not, it is a counterfeit. It would avail little for us to prove that a certain weight of gold eighteen hundred years ago, of a given purity, size and color, was very ductile and expressed a certain given value, if, after having demonstrated this, we presented our audience with a piece of brass, and told them to take that without investigation or test; they would very reasonably tell us they wanted this tested by the same rule. It is this strange incongruity, this perversion of Christianity that has filled the world with infidelity, and which involves heavy responsibilities upon its perverters. Indeed, such is the present state of the so-called Christian Church, and our Christian philosophers are placed in such a position that it is almost morally impossible for them to present anything but incongruities. A minister of the Church of England, for example, brought up and educated under the auspices of that Church, taught from his infancy that the Church is divine, with its articles, formula, and authority, ordained into that Church, obtaining his living in that Church, and emphatically identified with it, is very much tempted to twist, or pervert philosophy, and try to sustain his system with it, or at least to evade the investigation of these principles. It is so with philosophers of other Churches. Paley, after wading through his "Evidences of Christianity," many of which are very forcible, says, "It hath been my care, in the preceding work, to preserve the separation between evidences and doctrines as inviolable as I could; to remove from the primary question all considerations which have been unnecessarily joined with it; and to offer a defence to Christianity without seeing the tenets on which he had been instructed, attacked, or decried." Now this may be very courteous and gentlemanly; but we opine that when a man has accomplished all this, his work is only half done; for, if after proving that Christianity is not a forgery, that Jesus actually did appear, that he lived at the time specified, that he had apostles and other disciples who were also good men, that they worked real miracles, and that they did preach the gospel, the reasoning is certainly very deficient, unless we can prove that we have the same gospel, the same spirit, the same power, for if we are to believe that very Word which he has used such striking evidence to prove, and has been so elaborate in his defence of, the thing that he has omitted is of the most paramount importance; for that Word says: "He that transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God." Therefore, for a Christian philosopher and divine, in discussing the evidences of Christianity, to purposely avoid one of the most striking evidences of the truth, or falsehood of his own system, is, to be the most charitable, a very great oversight; for, if the gospel is unchangeable, the same evidence would be associated with it now as formerly; like all the works of nature, governed by eternal laws, it would possess the same properties to-day as it did eighteen hundred years ago, and would be as capable of proof and demonstration now as in any other age. We need not seek evidence from Tacitus, Teutonius, Juvenal, Marshall, Pliny, Marcus Aurelius, Clement, Polycarp, Ignatius, or any other profane or sacred writer; it we possessed the primitive gospel it would carry its own evidence in itself. Jesus said: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel unto every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned; and these signs shall follow those that believe; in my name they shall cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues; if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." Now, if this be true, we have as much right to look for these things to-day as they had then, and if these signs do not follow we have no right to call it the gospel. Such are the objections of many infidels, and we must admit they are perfectly valid; give us, they say, a gospel that is, and not one that was; we want fact instead of theory. The ancient apostles acted upon this principle. Peter, on the day of Pentecost, told the people to "repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus for the remission of sins, and they should receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." And what was that? He had told them just before "that Jesus, having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear." The people themselves were made the witnesses, and if they had obeyed Peter's instructions and not have received the gift of the Holy Ghost, they would have been perfectly justified in calling him an impostor. Jesus said, "Ye are my witnesses as also is the Holy Ghost that bears witness of me." Again: "If any man shall do his—the Father's—will he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." Again Paul said: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; for therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith." Paul was not ashamed of his gospel in any country, in any nation, among any people. Why? Because the gift of the Holy Ghost, the power of God accompanied it, and whoever in sincerity obeyed it received this power and knew for themselves.

From the above, then, it is very evident that the ancient gospel did not depend upon any abstract theory or nice metaphysical disquisition, but it was a thing adapted to the meanest capacity; a principle that all might understand; a thing that might be absolutely demonstrated by every sincere believer who obeyed the simple requirements of the gospel. "He that believeth hath the witness in himself," says the Scriptures. Paul said: "We are his witnesses as also is the Holy Ghost that beareth witness of us;" and Peter says, "Repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

Such was ancient Christianity, and such is Mormonism; it professes, promises, and imparts the same blessings, evidence, and certainty to every faithful believer. Its truths can be demonstrated by all; it is therefore philosophically true. And if any one wants to know why the Mormons have endured poverty, reproach, mobbing, house-burning, defamation of character, confiscation and destruction of property, disfranchisements, imprisonments, murders, and all the persecutions and afflictions that they have waded through, it will be found in this: that they know for themselves the truths of Mormonism. If any one requires a reason for the Elders leaving their families for years, and going without purse or scrip to preach the gospel to all nations, enduring the buffeting and reproach of men, and wandering as strangers and outcasts on the earth, it is that they know for themselves that Mormonism is true. If it is required why the Saints leave their friends and all the endearments of home and with their children, struggle with almost superhuman difficulties, on the boisterous ocean, on the dangerous seas, and equally dangerous and pestilential rivers, wandering through the desert among the savages of the forest, and frequently struggling among the cold mountain snows, it is that they know for themselves of the truths they have received. Mormonism to them is not an abstract theory; it is a matter-of-fact principle. They have done the Lord's "will and know of the doctrine." If any one asks why men obeyed the council of Joseph Smith formerly, and Brigham Young now, it is because they know them to be men of God; and the reason why the confidence is so universal among Saints is that the evidence is universal. It is of that nature that cannot be destroyed nor rooted out; like all the principles in nature, it is eternal. Jesus said to the woman of Samaria, "If thou had asked of me, I would have given thee water that would have been in thee a well, springing up to everlasting life." The Mormons have drunk of this well, and have the eternal, abiding evidence within themselves, and not only have they an inward testimony, but an outward one also, as the same signs follow Mormonism that did ancient Christianity, in every respect. It has, therefore, an outward manifestation of its truth. Thus ancient Christianity proves Mormonism true; and Mormonism, both by outward and inward manifestations, proves ancient Christianity true; for it stated that these signs should follow those that believed and obeyed, which they do now among the Mormons, and therefore Mormonism affords the most striking evidence of the truth of Christianity, as well as of its own verity. Thus is Mormonism a demonstrable fact, and philosophically true.

We are aware that some of the statements about the universality of the evidence among the Saints will be mere assertions to some; but as THE MORMON is read by thousands of Saints, if it is untrue, let them contradict it. If they do not, and the statements are incorrect, they become the silent and willing witnesses of falsehood. We have heard thousands testify that, both by outward and inward manifestations, they know of its truth.

TO BE CONTINUED.

European Peace Negotiations.

By the arrival of the Persia we are in possession of news in relation to the peace propositions between the European belligerents, and whatever may be the object, whether a military manouvre, a diplomatic, or financial intrigue, or a sincere desire to patch up a peace, is difficult at present to determine. The elements are certainly milder, and the spirit much more compromising and pacific than we have seen displayed for some time.

It would seem that Austria, having sent in her ultimatum to the Czar, which has been strongly backed by representations from Prussia, to the Russian Emperor, of the attitude of Austria, and of certain preliminary belligerent steps which the latter power had taken in case of the non-compliance of Russia, had induced the Czar to consent to the plan proposed. That the subject is now being taken seriously into consideration by the French and English governments, (the Turkish seem to be hardly mentioned,) and there is really a prospect of negotiation, if not of peace. We think the latter, however, as yet quite problematic.

We have waded through a long series of communications, editorial opinions, and official documents, from St. Petersburg, Vienna, Berlin, Constantinople, Brussels, Paris, and London, in relation to the above matter, and are not a little amused at the various opinions expressed, the pacific and philanthropic spirit manifested by all, and the self-laudations and gratulations of the several belligerents in relation to their extreme sensitiveness of honor, pure desire for the peace and happiness of Europe, and the honorable, disinterested feelings by which all parties have been actuated; whereas, if it comes to the fact, not one of them believes the other, if they really put credit in their own statements. If they do, why are they so jealous of each other? Why so much afraid of ruses, traps, intrigues, and dishonesty? Because they are all strategical, intrigueants, and dishonest. Talk about honest nations, governments, kings, princes, statesmen, and diplomatists—the thing is a burlesque. There may be, and is, a relative honesty, but that standard raises and falls according to circumstances and expediency. Where did England get her possessions from? Did she purchase them? No. Did France obtain hers honestly? No. By what means did Turkey come in possession of her former extensive territories? The answer is, by the sword. How did Russia obtain her possessions in the very Crimea about which they are now fighting? By conquest. Why did Alexander, Cyrus, Hannibal, Cæsar, Charlemagne, Bonsparte, Mahomed, Nicholas, or France, England, Russia, Prussia, or any other power, possess themselves of fresh territories? Because they had the power to do so. Why did others submit? Because they could not help themselves. Why did any of them ever give up provinces, states, dominions, or powers, after having obtained them? Because it was either expedient to their own prosperity, or they could not retain them. Turkey obtained her power by the sword, and lost it in the same way; she has given up nothing that she could retain, nor has Russia, France, England, or any other power. Where, then, is the use of talking so much about national honor, when kings, princes, generals, diplomatists, states, nations, and emperors have all violated it? What is considered talent in a diplomatist? To be able to overmatch another, and to obtain advantages for his own nation, by technicalities, cunning, and guile, however injurious to the opposing party, just as a horse jockey would, who is a diplomatist on a small scale. They all want to cheat, and believe others will cheat as well as them, although they all profess honesty. Already we see indications of trouble arising from this source, and are reminded of the remarks of the diplomatist Tallyrand, who, in speaking of a Russian diplomatist, said, "Ill connait tout les mots neutres de la langue Française." He knows all neutral or indefinite words in the French language. Was Tallyrand himself any better? Prince Nesselrode is accused of this peculiar trait. We therefore repeat that the present protestations can only be taken for what they are worth. Austria, as a philanthropist, proposes peace. Russia, although not at all necessitated, is willing to concede. France is in a very good condition to fight, yet she prefers peace; and England, equally prepared for war, is willing to make concessions; all as particular favors to others, and not on their own account. We are to suppose that not one of them is a penny poorer than at the commencement of the war, and have not one man less; and that it is out of a sincere desire for peace and the benefit of Europe that they are actuated. There is, however, despite all this honesty, a disposition to make certain appropriations, and some gentle hints thrown out in relation to this matter. The Paris Journal des Debats of January 23d has the following:

"FATE OF THE DANUBIAN PRINCIPALITIES.

"Europe has taken the engagement to ameliorate the political and social condition of Wallachia and Moldavia. This engagement will be fulfilled. If the Principalities fall once more under Turkish domination, they will speedily become Russian in heart and spirit. There, as in all the East, it is by the political and social amelioration of the population that Russia must be repulsed. The day when the East feels that it escapes becoming Russian it will no longer attempt to become so. Look at Greece; she may have loved the Russians as enemies of the Turks—she will not have them for masters. Her independence separates her ever from Russia. We must make the same remark for the Principalities. The day when they commence to have a better social position they will cease to incline towards Russia. All that Europe can bestow upon them in prosperity and independence will separate them more from their ancient protectors."

If any reliance is to be placed in the following, it would seem that Austria has not been so entirely disinterested as she would make it appear:

"THE NEWS IN PRUSSIA.

"[Berlin (Jan 22) Correspondence of the London Standard.]

"If the Paris Journal des Debats be rightly informed, Austria had consented to the restoration of Poland. This is a more serious avowal than the journal in question would seem to think, and yet it is made evidently on no ordinary authority. We are told that it was Colonel Manteuffel who discovered the extent of the engagement into which Austria had entered with the Western Powers, and we are led to infer that it produced an effect on his own government of so deep a nature as to excite those efforts which have ended in the acceptance of the Austrian propositions. To Prussia, indeed, is attributed in chief part the resolution of Russia to agree to preliminaries of peace. But what are we to think of Austria, if it be true that she was ready to appoint military commissioners, in order to settle with the Western Powers the part she should take, not in compelling the Czar to give guarantees for the integrity of the Turkish empire, but to make a partition of the Russian empire? Are we to believe that Austria was serious in her offer or acceptance of the offer to restore Poland at the expense of both Russia and Prussia? Is it true that the Western Powers were, for sake of buying the support of Austria, ready to hand over Moldavia and Wallachia to a new master, and that master the most odious in the eyes of the people of these oppressed countries? . . . . . If all this be true, the world will have discovered how it is, from having learned how thoroughly unprincipled is the crooked science of diplomacy. The restoration of Poland on the one hand, and the government of the Principalities on the other, ought to be something more than questions of convenience. There must assuredly be some principle involved therein."

The above may be true or not. If it should be, we discover nothing very surprising in it. Nations have always acted on this principle. All that we can see is an element of discord and a barrier in the way of peace. It may have originated from partisans. Prince Napoleon seems to be an advocate of the liberation of Poland; for when the acceptance by Russia of the peace propositions were announced, he said, "Then Italy and Poland are sacrificed." We presume, however, that the Emperor will regulate and express France's views in relation to that matter. A Belgian journal, the Independence, finds fault with the wording of one of the peace propositions, and after discussing at some length the signification of the term neutralization, states:

"We are, then, justified in demanding that the word 'neutralization' shall be effaced; for on concluding peace it is absurd and dangerous to anticipate cases of war. The Western Powers have reserved to themselves the right, independently of the four articles, to require from Russia guarantees for the maintenance of peace. It is quite evident that these exigencies ought to be extremely moderate; but it is equally evident that no man can pronounce that to be exorbitant which is indispensable for the security of Europe—that is to say, the re-establishment of the treaties of 1815, and such as they existed in 1830. It was for the equilibrium of Europe that the province taken by Russia from Prussia, her ancient ally, had been constituted an independent kingdom, on the soil of which a Russian army should never place its foot. Now, what is the consequence of the present state of things? It is this—that Russian armies to the number of from 300,000 to 400,000 men can occupy Poland, and they can in a few days march into Eastern Prussia, invade Silesia, Brandenburg, and enter Berlin; that they can by a flank march invade the whole of Gallicia, and reach Vienna in eight days, and that, thus masters of the whole of Germany, they can advance to the Rhine, and in less than one month invade France. It is then for the common advantage of Europe to demand the execution of the treaties which have never been abrogated, and the re-establishment of those remains, poor as they are, of Polish nationality. If Russia refuse, on the ground of the insurrection of 1830, she can be answered that all should not be punished for one fault, and that at all events that has been sufficiently expiated."

From the above, however, we may reasonably gather, as well as from certain alterations proposed by the Czar in the Austrian peace proposals, as well as a mention of a fifth point, wherein certain other unexpressed conditions are to be discussed, and other contingencies that may arise, that peace at least is problematic.

It seems to be a fact, however, that Russia has accepted the proposed ultimatum of Austria, and that this has been published in Russia, and that telegraphic despatches announcing this fact have been received both in Paris and London; and that in Vienna, London, and Paris the peace question was gaining ground. Peace is particularly desired on the Continent. But, again, there are parties both in England and Russia strongly opposed to peace. Lord Palmerston is himself not very pacific, and it is also stated that there is an old Russian party, headed by the Grand Duke Constantine, who declare that Russia will be disgraced if the terms are accepted and peace made, and threatens to head the insurgents against his brother in such an event. It is, in fact, a complicated affair, in which there are a great many conflicting interests and opinions involved, and which time alone can unravel. After all, its solution will rest with the three grand contracting parties—Russia, France, and England. Russia cannot afford to be dishonored; England, we opine, would like a little more martial glory, and as she has made extensive preparations in the way of armaments for her fleet in the approaching campaign, would like to use them. The Emperor of France might not object to have the name of rebuking the Czar, and of taking the initiative in giving peace to Europe; whilst Turkey and the provinces, about which they commenced the fight, will scarce receive a thought. The Lord, however, will control the whole, and as he has commenced to vex the nations, will be very likely to do so in his own way.

Kansas Again.

KANSAS is an interesting country: not so much for the peculiarity of its soil and climate, as its inhabitants; and not so much for the peculiarity of its inhabitants, as the position they occupy with reference to the Union. Each State, whether North or South of Mason and Dixon's line, sees in Kansas the representatives of her interest, and is endeavoring, with sympathy, money or men, to foster and protect that interest.

The freesoilers of Kansas are appealing in thunder tones to their constituents—the Northern States—for "aid and comfort," while the propogandists are appealing to their constituents of the South for the "needful," men and means, each determined, if we may judge from their own accounts, "to do or die."

Hence, as we said, Kansas is an interesting country, or a country of interest to every State in the Union.

That these two elements so opposite to each other can be perpetuated in the same territory, under the same government, whatever that government may be, can never be entertained by sensible men; nor even hoped for by fanatics. Consequently, each party is assiduous, both at home and abroad, to gain the ascendency over, and subjugate the other.

The President of the United States, standing as he does, and should do, on National grounds, committed to no party or sect peculiar to climate or locality, is forced, in the nature of things, to take cognizance of the almost constant breaches of peace between the belligerents, and to interpose the strong arm of the National Government to insure domestic tranquility. To this end we are informed, the Executive purposes to send immediately to the Kansas frontier, such a force as the unprecedented position of affairs in Kansas demand. We hail such a movement as dictated by a wise conservative policy, and in direct keeping with the policy pursued by the founders of the General Government. We say let the law be magnified, whether in Kansas, Boston, New Orleans, or Utah; and we cherish the public administrator that hews to the constitutional line, without fear or favor, as a public benefactor; and the reverse a public nuisance.

By the Squatter Sovereign, a regular fire-eating pro-slavery Kansas paper, we learn that Gen. D. R. Atchison, of Missouri, is about to move with his family and slaves to Kansas, there to make his future home. The extent of influence exercised by ex-Senator Atchison over the Southern mind, renders it certain that a strong and desperate effort will be made to make Kansas a Slave Territory. The very fact of Gen. Atchison's withdrawal from public service and moving to Kansas, to become a citizen and share in the destinies of that Territory, speaks volumes for the magnitude of this little Kansas affair, as some are disposed to call it. On the other hand, we learn by the abolition papers—though many of them are less committal than the Squatter Sovereign—that means are being raised in all the free States to rid Kansas of her emmisaries and "take the scalp of Atchison."

That our readers may have some idea of the movements in behalf of the free Kansas Emigrant Aid Society, we need only to state the proceeds of one evening's collection at Mr. H. W. Beecher's Church, in Brooklyn, which we are told amounted to forty thousand dollars. Such is the interest felt with regard to the Kansas issue.

As far as we are concerned, we repudiate both parties in just so far as they transcend the legitimate, natural results of popular sovereignty brought about in the natural way. If we moved to Kansas we should expect to be governed by the majority preponderance, whether for or against our own peculiar predilections; and we should expect of Government, in case we could not decide our own matters without quarrelling, to interfere so far as to keep the peace and insure the republican principle of popular sovereignty. Such being the case now in Kansas, we approve of the course being taken by the Executive, not as the vindicator of a party, but of the spirit and genius of the Constitution.

It is not the business of the President, neither of any other citizen remote from Kansas, to interfere with her institutions which bear directly upon her own and no other citizens; and in order to get at this, every citizen should have the privilege of exercising unmolested his prerogative of franchise; and if the elements in Kansas are too turbid to admit of this prerogative without the jeopardy of life or limb, it is high time the General Government should interfere and protect that right which it professes to guarantee.

If by threats or otherwise, men have been intimidated or debarred from voting, free and untrammelled upon the institutions of Kansas as she is, then those institutions and laws should be declared null and void until a reflex of the popular will could be had through the ballot box. Suppose it took a thousand or ten thousand troops or even twice that number to vouchsafe the free and untrammelled exercise of the franchise? they could not be employed in a better cause. If, however, as some say (which by the way we do not believe) the present laws and institutions are the result of a free voluntary vote of her citizens, then it is a true reflex of her popular will and should be maintained at all hazards. This is a question for the Government to settle at the start. If it is already satisfied that the present form of Government in Kansas is legitimate in the sense we have stated, it has only to see that it be preserved from violent hands at home or abroad; and the present signs of the times indicate that the sooner the Executive authority of the Government is interposed to preserve order, and counteract the increasing disposition of a large portion of her citizens to supercede all laws—except "Lynch"—the better.

We are aware that a national course taken on any subject, will bring down the anathemas of certain sectional persons and parties; but what of that? He that will undertake to save the country on a sectional basis, will loose it; and on a national basis only can it be saved and perpetuated.

Shaker Lecture.

A Lecture was delivered in the Tabernacle in this city on Thursday evening 31st of December, to a crowded house, by F. W. Evans, one of the Shaker fraternity, on the subject of Shakerism.

Mr. Evans said that Shakers were known and understood by society in general, to be an industrious people; in this, public opinion was correct, but farther than this the public very much erred with regard to that people.

"The number of Shaker Societies now in existence is eighteen; they are in seven States of the Union, none in foreign countries, a free Government being essential to the existence of Shaker Societies. The order was founded through the instrumentality of a female, and they were accused of regarding her in the light of a divine being. They at least held her in as great esteem as they did Christ. He was but a man—she but a woman. She was born in the year 1686, and received her revelation in 1770. They hold that there were four dispensations given to man: the first beginning with Adam, extending to Abraham, the next from Abraham to Jesus, the third from Jesus to Ann Lee, and the fourth from Ann Lee onward.

"The first Shaker Society was established in Albany in 1792. The society had always maintained intercourse with the spiritual world, as a living principle essential to its existence. They hold that all truths harmonize together, therefore the system of Shakerism had nothing to fear from the progress of scientific truth. It was not opposed to any science; nor was there any true science opposed to it, and in this respect it differed from any theological system with which they were acquainted. They did not think that truth was confined to one little spot. Revelation was not direct from the Deity; God never communicated directly to any human being. Where the Scriptures say that God talked with Moses face to face, they need to be compared with other Scriptures, which correct them and set them right. If the Bible was the word of God, they say that He never changes, and if it was right for a man to have two wives a thousand years ago it was right to-day. But it was not the God of the Universe that spoke to man and justified the ancient patriarchs in polygamy, it was the God of Israel, of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

Here Mr. Evans took a very different course, from the Christian world in general, to get over the Bible institution of Poligamy. The Christian world are forced to admit that Poligamy was once tolerated by the Almighty, but that he don't tolerate it now; while Mr. Evans will not allow of this changeableness in God, and in order to avoid Poligamy. (for it must of course be avoided somehow) says, the God that tolerated Poligamy was only the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and not the God of the Universe.

"The Shakers are an isolated people. It was said of Israel of old that he should dwell alone, and not be numbered with the nations; so it is with reference to the Shakers. They were distinguished from all other denominations by three great principles: First, revelation; second, an equal division of property; and third, relation of the sexes. They believe that these three principles can be traced through the four dispensations, which were referred to; and that truth has been progressive from the time of Adam to the present day."

The lecturer took up the subject of property and andvocated at length the common stock principle.

A rich man he said, could not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven any more than a cabel (not a camel, for that was what the word meant in the original,) could enter into the eye of a needle. Heaven was a place where all were equal. Mr. Evans said he could prove, had he time, that there was not a real Christian in the house—and did not think it a great undertaking to do so. But they were just as good under any other name as the name of Christian. He said we had to be all Jews before we professed to be Christians.

The lecturer said he would now speak of the relation of the sexes. This was a subject to which he had given much thought, and wished he could speak as freely upon it as he had upon the principle of property.

He then advanced the principle that intercourse with the sexes should be held with a view to reproduction only; anything beyond this was a lust of the flesh and a violation of the physiological laws of our being.

We have given this brief outline that our readers might be able to form an opinion of Shakerism in its best phase, and supported by one of its most able advocates. He concluded by making an apology for detaining his audience so long—having spoken over two hours.

Cherokee Mission.

THROUGH the politeness of Elder J. H. Hart we have been favored with the perusal of several letters addressed to him by elders laboring among the Cherokees. As the Saints are interested in the spread of the Gospel among the tawny sons of the forest, as well as among the more priviledged of the world, we publish the following for their information:

Elder Case writes from Creek Nation, Jan. 2d: "Since I wrote you by Bro. Kenny I have spent my time in the Cheokee Nation very agreeably while waiting the arrival of Bro. Miller, whose privilege it is to open the door for the introduction of the Gospel to the Creek Nation. I have baptized six persons and eight or ten others have signified their intention of being baptized as soon as the weather becomes more favorable, at present it is extremely cold. Influential men are preaching Mormonism all through the nation, and many are believing. Among those we have baptized there are some persons of influence and the leaven is working well."

After relating some manifestations of the power of God among them he continues: "Many are receiving dreams and visions showing them that this is the work of the Lord, and through this the people receive us kindly and afford us opportunities of preaching. One man who had never invited any preacher to his house received Bro. Miller, and with him there is now a home for any Mormon Elder. The spirit of inquiry is increasing and the work progresses. Missionaries "who preach for hire and divine for money" are raging for fear they will lose their craft and their flocks. Some of their flock we have already got and they rejoice in the truth. They say they have learned more in one evening chatting with me than all they ever learned from their sectarian teachers. Yes, say they, we can learn anything now, we have men who can teach us "things both new and old," we can learn about God, ourselves and our forefathers; and thus they rejoice and long for the Book of Mormon wherein they may find more intelligence.

Bro. Eyring and I arrived in this Nation last Monday. He is going to learn the Creek language as the greater portion of the people have no knowledge of the English. The people are anxious to hear what we have to say, as the missionaries have spread all manner of reports about us being thieves, and that we ought to be hung and ——. We fear nothing—there is more for us than those who are against us. I feel that the responsibility resting upon us is great in this new field of labor, and beg the prayers of the Saints in our behalf. A good work has to be done here, I have some good boys to help me, and with the blessing of the Lord we will endeavor to accomplish it."

By another letter, dated Saline District, Jan. 10th, we have a confirmation of the above. We wish our brethren prosperity in the Redeemer's cause and pray that while they have much satisfaction in their labors, the Cherokees may turn unto the Lord God of their fathers, with full purpose of heart to do His will and fulfil His purposes in the great work of the last days.

Hand-Carts Coming Up.

WE have received the following welcome communication from Elder Edmund Ellsworth, which will no doubt be read with interest especially by those who wish to try the hand-carts. We say to Bro. Edmund you shall have a chance:

BIRMINGHAM, Jan. 21, 1856.

ELDER TAYLOR,—Dear Bro:—I am rejoicing in my labors in this land, and feel that this mission is full of salvation to me. By the November mail I received a letter from our mutch respected President Brigham Young, in which he seemed to be full of blessings for the brethren absent on missions; calling on me to know if I was willing to be the first to lead out in the hand-cart expedition.

Before the letter came, in a dream, I was called to the performance of this duty, and the good spirit attending the dream filled my heart with enthusiasm on the subject, and I immediately began preaching about the undertaking, I offered my services to Bro. F. D. Richards, to help carry out the scheme, if such a thing was suggested, which I feel also to do to you, that you may know that I have full faith and confidence in the undertaking that it will be a succesful plan for emigrating the poor from these lands. And in any way that you may see fit to dispose of my services to forward the undertaking I shall feel proud to assist you.

With my prayers for your prosperity in all your struggles for the building up of our Father's Kingdom here on earth, I am dear Bro. yours truly, in the Gospel of Peace.

EDMUND ELLSWORTH.

The John J. Boyd.

THE John J. Boyd has not yet arrived, we suppose it is owing to the prevalence of strong westerly winds, however as several vessels have arrived within a day or two, that started about the same time, we must expect her soon.

THE STEAMER PACIFIC has been out twenty-one days. In addition to the Arctic and the Alabama, the U. S. steamer Despatch has been sent by the government to cruise in search of the Pacific.

THE STEAMSHIP PERSIA, is to be thrown open for the inspection of visitors on Monday next, admittance 12 1-2 cents, to be appropriated to charitable purposes.

A BILL has passed the Legislature of Alabama making it criminal to give, sell or loan a minor a Bowie knife or pistol.

From the Plains.—Reported Mail.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 12.

THE Salt Lake mail arrived at Independence on Saturday last, but brought no news of importance. Snow is reported to be from three to fifteen feet in depth on the route. The Santa Fe and Salt Lake mails, outward bound, have been obliged to return, being unable to proceed. We recommend our friends to send by the way of San Diego.

There is no certainty of the mail by the Plains route; for several months past we have sent entirely by the way of San Diego; and we are informed that even on this route the mails go first to San Francisco, and then return to San Diego, and that there is great uncertainty and irregularity on the latter part of the sea route. When are these outrages in regard to the mail going to cease? In our opinion we have been bamboozeled long enough. Why can't we carry our own mail? We have borne with Uncle Sam's proceedings till patience is no longer a virtue. We don't want to hear dinged in our ears forever "that there are Indians on the Plains, and snow on the mountains." This is no news, they have both been there from time immemorial. We want the mail and not the eternal croaking of old grannies, and if others are afraid of snow and Indians we know of boys that are not.

Why not have a private mail of our own, and all sustain it; by a little extra charge the thing can be done, and pay well. And leave these whiners to carry their empty bags, and take their pay. When this is done we shall have a mail that we can depend upon, we have no faith in anything else.

FOR THE MORMON.

True Religion.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

A close observer of the doings of the children of men, cannot help exclaiming—"How few realize the great blessing and importance of this sublunary existence." How few of the thousand millions of human beings on this terrestrial spheroid know anything of the great I Am, that is clothed with transcendent brightness and dwelleth in the azure arches of Heaven! How few know themselves to be the workmanship of His Almighty hand, and recognize His will in the grand drama of the Universe!

The Astronomer, in examining the starry canopy of Heaven and trying to unravel the mysterious windings of those distant luminaries; the Geologist, that penetrates as it were the crust of the earth and digs into the bowels of the same, in order to find out by what process creation is carried on in those interior regions; the Chemist, that tries to analyse and decompose the gaseous matter of the atmosphere, and so trace it back to its primary elements; the natural philosopher that dives into the sciences of Acoustics, Optics, Hydrostatics and so forth, in order to investigate nature in its inmost recesses as it were; the Metaphysican, that examines only things purely abstract or spiritual; the followers of all those sciences will coincide, that the harmony and beauty of the laws which they discovered in their different fields of mental labor, are owing to a great generalizing power as they scientifically term it.

Which is more consistent, to believe in the existence, or non-existence of a Supreme Being? Which is the more reasonable to believe, that we are the living monuments of God's tender mercies, that we have come here to prepare ourselves for a higher and better world, or to believe that we are the results of a mere accidental, senseless, and chaotic agency, leaving this stage of action in order to be annihilated?

Every intelligent man who is familiar with sacred and profane history will acknowledge that a firm belief in God has in all ages of the world been calculated to make people righteous, strong in adversity and humble in fortune. Faith and confidence in Him, that stands at the helm, are to the children of men what the beacon is to the seafaring man in a tempestuous night, salvation; hope fills the mind, and makes him strong to overcome all difficulties; but when destitute of those precious principles, despair seizes the mind at the sight of the impending danger, and he perishes. People who are aware of the importance of their intellectual existence and walk in the fear of God, will always try to work the works of righteousness and prove themselves by deeds, the worthy offspring of their Heavenly Father.

If we take a view of the world in its present condition, we find, that although this age pretends to be the most enlightened and refined, it is shrouded in mist and darkness, and superstitious notions are, according to the character, manners and customs of Nations, in vogue. On unfolding the pages of history we find that from the different churches and denominations of so-called Christendom, down to the followers of Mohamed, Confuicus, To, Zoroaster, Brama and the monkeyworshippers in Ceylon, where gorgeous palaces are erected for the abode of those animals, the religious chieftains had introduced systems so as to suit their own purposes, doing little or nothing for the improvement of the human family; and if we are permitted to establish our opinion from the correct and faithful accounts of Historians of the present and bygone ages, it is evident that the character and life of those Pseudo Priests was by no means as holy and virtuous as they professed to be. Hence the intelligent part of the people looked upon the officials of a sham Religion as imposters, that did more harm than good. The present age, although it has by its wonderful improvements and inventions in sciences, arts, commerce and the various branches of manuel labor, elicited as it were the Promethean fire from the Heavens, is full of erroneous principles, and as the institutions of God have been substituted by those of men, it has in reference to the true knowledge of Godliness fatally deviated from the path of wise antiquity. As the Spirit of God has been withdrawn from the children of men, we find that darkness is increasing, charity, union, and peace have disappeared, selfishness, misery and all kinds of crimes are rearing their hideous heads, wars are raging, the Angel of Death stamps his foot, the red battle commences, where the roaring of the artillery of men is mingling with that of Heaven, and nations feel the shot, while famine, great political commotions, bellowing earthquakes, and volcanic eruptions show that we are on the eve of great and mighty events; and while the great Omnipotent Being speaks through lightning, thunder, political, social and physical commotions, fear and despondency seize the public mind, they have a foreboding of a coming evil, but they do not know the nature of it. The more a nation is losing the knowledge of God, they more it is retrograding.

Of all the philosophical systems that have been introduced, the schemes that have been invented, the great endeavors that have been made by the wisest philanthropists of all ages, for the purpose of improving the condition of the human family, none have succeeded. It is true that Lycurgus, Solen, Plato, Cicero, Marcus Aurelius and a great many others, all men of acquirements of the highest order have tried their best and advanced some good principles, but nothing was gained by them.

The Scriptures read that the wisdom of man is foolishness with God, showing the great and mighty difference that exists between a finite being of a limited understanding and an infinite being of the highest intelligence. Hence the founder of any system no matter how acute, learned and good he may appear in the eyes of the world, will accomplish nothing, unless he acts according to the principles of true religion. What do we understand by the term true religion? A system that is founded on principles that have been revealed from on High to men whom the Lord on account of their faithfulness, simplicity and honesty of heart has chosen to be instruments in His hand to save and exalt the children of men. Such a system, is the Gospel of Jesus Christ as recorded in Holy Writ, it is a waymark to eternal life, glory and happiness. True religion is calculated to enlighten, ennoble, and strengthen the mind and to happify our life; it makes us aware of the importance of our being here, it shows that our Spirit is immortal, that we have to rise in the scale of intellectual existence, it shows that if we are faithful and obedient to the commands of God, our life will be as endless as wide eternity, that we shall attain that acme of intelligence, power, glory and happiness which constitute Godliness. It embraces the past, present and future, and all principles of eternal truth, harmony and beauty. The history, sciences and arts, not of our planet alone, but of all the millions of worlds that revolve in the immensity of space, come under the domain of true religion. It is that grand philosophy that is adopted by God for the purpose of controling, saving and exalting worlds. Does true religion exist on the earth? Yes it does. It is Mormonism, a system that is the result of the restoration of the gospel by an Angel from the Heavens, in all its primitive beauty, in fulfillment with the 14th Chap. of John's Revelation; and although it is the true church of Christ founded on the principles of Revelation, according to the 5th Chap. 4th verse in Hebrews and other passages, and has all the institutions and blessings, gifts as mentioned in the 4th Chap. 11 and 12th verses of Ephesians and the 16th Chap. 15–20 verses Mark, it has been scoffed, sneered at, and trampled under foot, and was supposed to have been blotted out of the book of Remembrance, and entirely annihilated as it were; but in despite of the greatest exertions of the adversary and his followers, the gloomy battalions of fallen spirits, it has risen like a Phœnix out of its ashes, more powerful and beautiful than ever. A new era has commenced, the great misery of the children of men has softened the heart of our Heavely Father, who in his tender mercy sent down an Angel to proclaim once more the glad tidings of peace and salvation; the sun of regeneration of a fallen world is rising in all his majesty and splendor, and will continue until his brilliant rays will have entirely chased away the mist and darkness, and the Spirit of God shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. The above is the religious philosophy of a people that has been mobbed, calumniated and spoken of as illiterate, degraded, benighted, and leagued with the power of darkness, on account of advocating tenets diametrically opposed to the traditions and dogmas of Christendom.

Pennsylvania Correspondence.

QUINCY, Franklin, Co., Pa.

DEAR UNCLE:—Having deferred writing to you, for some time, I ask your pardon, and hope you will attribute my negligence not to any want of respect, but to a sense of my own incompetency, which I always feel in an attempting to commit my thoughts to paper. Although, as George was communicating regularly with you, I deemed my doing so of no importance. As you request it, however, I shall give you an epitome of our labors since I lift you in Philadelphia.

After parting from you I visited the Saints in Centreville, Delaware, being invited to do so by Bro. Wooley. The Saints in that district of country appeared to feel well. During my stay I preached twice, and Bro. Wooley baptised five new members and re-baptised two; on my return to Philadelphia, I found George Taylor awaiting my arrival with whom I left on the 26th of October, for Chambersburg 155 miles distant from Philadelphia, we were then met by a brother who conveyed us in a bugy to this place, where we met with a hearty reception from the assembled Saints.

We hold council meetings semi-monthly, and have sacrament administered every Sunday. We also set apart the first Monday in every month, as a day to fast. We have baptized seven who have supplied the places of four, who have gone to Iowa preparatory to their valley trip next spring. We have met with considerable opposition; but the Lord has been with us. We lately took a short trip into Maryland, our mission resulted however in little with the exception of confounding several sectarian demagogues with their own scriptures, which is an event so common that it scarce deserves attention. We only preached once while there and calculated to return; but the weather has been so severe that it rendered it impossible. The snow commenced falling the first of this month and has continued doing so, at intervals, until the present it now averages 20 or 22 inches in depth.

I was very much amused to witness the excitement raised among the inhabitants of the Pennsylvania mountains last November upon reading an article published in one of our Western papers, giving a startling account of the utter overthrow of the Mormon City, of which the following is an extract: "HORRIBLE EARTHQUAKE! THE SALT LAKE CITY SUNK!! And the waters of the lake having supplied its place, now leaves the Mormons its inhabitants, in a truly deplorable condition; some of whom were so lucky as to escape the perils of the gulf to enjoy imprisonment, in the upper stories of their houses (adobie ones) while others was floating about over the ruins of the other part, upon rafts, logs, barrels, &c., not knowing how soon their time might come."

The reason I mention this is, I was so astonished to to see the feelings of the people manifested upon such an occasion, one would have thought, as the greater part of the inhabitants here, hold to being christians, that they would have manifested a little sympathy for the loss of so many of their fellow creatures; inasmuch as they had gone there for the purpose of worshipping God according to the dictates of their consciences not being permitted to do so while in the States, on account of the rotterness of the hearts of a great number of the children of this generation. But instead of manifesting a spirit of sympathy for the situation of the Saints, when the news come of the earthquake it was carried through towns, villages and counties, as tidings of great joy; in this county ministers were engaged in announcing it to their hearers from the pulpit with great enthusiasm (the reason why, I suppose is that they considered their craft no longer in danger from that source) while class-leaders and members of the most popular churches were engaged in carrying it from house to house, with as much joy as satan could possibly be expected to manifest, in having been successful in the overthrow of God's holy city. One tavernkeeper in a small town near this place was known to treat a whole house full of ruffians upon the arrival of such "glorious news" as they have been pleased to term it, for indeed it was a sweet morsal to them.

[Wonder if the priests and class-leaders treated! They ought to have done. Such things do not occur every day to the Mormons: a horrible earthquake! How romantic! Salt Lake City sunk! Delightful! Charming!! when some thought they had luckily escaped to find themselves enjoying imprisonment in the upper stories of adobie houses. Better and better! others floating upon rafts, logs, barrels, not knowing how soon their time would come. Exquisite! Delightful! was there ever anything so fortunate. Why christians ought to have a jubilee, and double their subscriptions to the missionaries. Sympathy for Mormons. Pshaw! we rob, drive and kill them too, and gloat over their miseries that our sympathetic fountains may flow more freely over the awful condition of negroes and heathens. Proclaim the tidings! Pass around the rum bottle! Sing psalms ye Christians; and ye drunkards rejoice! Hurrah! three lazy cheers—the Mormon city's destroyed!! Let class-leaders ministers and tavernkeepers, priests and people rejoice and join in the general saturnalia, for two boys have been here preaching among us; we could not refute them; but the earthquake has. Three cheers again! Merrily, Merrily, Merrily, ho! Hip! hip!! HIP!!! HURRAH!!!!—ED.]

But O! the mortification they had to endure, and the disappointment they had to put up with, in finding that their boasting had been vain, inasmuch as it had been but a trick of their Captain (Satan) to inspire his subjects with new hope, and successful he was for a length of time, until he was detected, when his soldiers began to look rather dejected through being ashamed of their Captain's treachery, so much so, that not one of his subjects dares to come out to say a word to us, although there is one or two of his pious ministers and class-leaders breake loose once in a while and exclaim, "the Mormons ought all to be extermined forthwith, for if they are let alone they will overrun our country, and take away our place and nation."

The Saints in these parts feel well, and although they are all poor, at present, yet they live in hopes, that our Father will soon hear their prayers, and deliver them from the yoke of bondage. There has been several who thought they might get away to the valley this spring; but how certain their prospect is I am not aware. Since we have been here, we have ordained six to the ministry, one elder, three teachers, and two deacons who appear to enjoy the spirit of their calling bountifully. We have introduced the "Word of Wisdom" amongst the Saints, and most of them live up to it, which makes them to enjoy the spirit of God to a greater extent, and a merchant in their vicinity to become not a little enraged at us for introducing such principles into their midst; the introduction of which has prevented him from selling them his tea, coffee, snuff, and tobacco, as they all more or less used it.

We hold meetings now in this vicinity, three and four times a week but have been prevented from traveling a great deal on account of the severity of the weather, which prevents the people from coming to meeting as they would otherwise do.

Your affectionate nephew,

ANGUS M. CANNON.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7, 1856.

MR. CASS submitted a resolution directing the Committee on Naval Affairs to consider the expediency of an increase of the Navy.

Mr. Bayard introduced a bill providing for the public printing, engraving and binding.

The resolution directing the Committee on Finance to prepare and report the general appropriation bills, was considered.

Messrs. Toombs and Toucey supported the resolution.

Messrs. Summer and Wilson opposed it. Mr. Summer said it was an inopportune time to propose such a great change for the first time when the popular branch of Congress promised to differ from the Senate on great questions of national policy.

The resolution was adopted—the object being to prevent a bill involving millions being hurriedly acted upon at the close of the session, sometimes without bein read.

Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. Grow gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to secure Homesteads to actual settlers.

Mr. Millson gave notice of the introduction of a bill to repeal the act authorizing the establishment of the Naval Board.

The Speaker was authorized to appoint Standing Committees.

Mr. Pennington, from the Joint Committee appointed to wait on the President, reported that the latter had expressed his high appreciation of the courtesy, and would be happy to co-operate with Congress in any measures promotive of the public interests.

Mr. Campbell of Ohio moved a reconsideration of the resolution for the election of printer.

Agreed to by 102 against 81.

Mr. Campbell of Ohio made an ineffectual effort to consider the Senate's joint resolution for the relief of the poor of Washington and Georgetown.

The question then recurred on the resolution forthwith to proceed to the election of printer—pending which the House adjourned till Monday.

SENATE.

FEB. 11, 1856.

On motion of Mr. Fish the Secretary of War was requested to report whether any, and if so, what additional fortifications are necessary for the defense of the Harbor of New York and Brooklyn.

On motion of Mr. Thompson of Kentucky, a resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on Military Affairs to inquire into the expediency of abolishing the Military Asylum at Harrodsburg, Ky. Mr. Thompson said the old soldiers were not satisfied to be so far from salt water, where they could not get Scheidam schnapps and Irish whisky.

On motion of Mr. Sumner the Post Office Committee were directed to consider whether the charges on letters carried on ocean steamers are not unnecessarily large and burdensome, and whether something may not be done, and if so what, to secure the benefits of cheap ocean postage.

On motion of Mr. Sumner the Judiciary Committee was instructed to consider the expediency of the appointment of a commission to revise the public statues, reduce them to one connected text, and render the language plain to all. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House re-adopted the resolution to proceed to the election of a Printer, when a vote was taken with the following result:

Follett	68	Wendell	66
Farnham	16	Scattering	4
Nathan Sargent	6	Necessary to choice	87

Two more votes were taken, the last resulting as follows:

Follett	65	Wendell	71
Farnham	9	Scattering	16
Nathan Sargent	8	Necessary to choice	84

Mr. Underwood made an ineffectual motion to elect a Printer by plurality. Adjourned.

SENATE.

Feb. 12, 1856.

Mr. Douglass presented the petition of a Naval Officer complaining of action of the Retiring Board.

Mr. Hale introduced a bill to repeal the act to promote the efficiency of the Navy, which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The Central America question was then resumed and discussed to the time of adjournment.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House proceeded to vote for Printer—first ballot as follows:

Follet	65	Wendell	69
Farnham	9	Sargent	6

Scattering 15; necessary for a choice 83.

The second and third ballots gave the same result. Adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

Democrats Main Meeting.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 7—6 P. M.

THE Democrats of Merrimac County held an immense meeting in this city this afternoon. It has been snowing violently all day, yet multitudes of people have poured into the place and filled Phenix and Depot Halls to overflowing.

At the former place speeches were made by Cols. Weller of California, Orr of South Carolina, and Gen. Lane of Oregon, and at the latter by Gov. Cobb of Georgia, Mr. Lovejoy of Massachusetts, and by the Hon. John S. Wells of this State.

The Democrats claim, notwithstanding the storm, equal if not superior numbers to the opposition meeting on Tuesday.

The speaking will be resumed this evening when large additional delegations from other places will be present.

Serious Accident to Gen. Cass.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9, 1856.

Gen. Cass, this morning, fell from the steps of the Patent Office, a distance of four steps, and was picked up and conveyed to the National Hotel in a state of insensibility. His forehead is badly cut and it is feared his skull is fractured. When taken up he was bleeding profusely from the temple and the mouth. He was speechless for some time, but has recovered his voice, and now recognizes some of his friends. The physicians in attendance think that the injuries sustained by Mr. Cass will not prove serious, although from his advanced age and the severe jar to his frame, there is some danger to be apprehended from inflammation.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8, 1856.

Speaker Banks is closely engaged in the formation of Standing Committees, and has at least another day's work before him to complete them.

Attempt at Assassination.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10, 1856.

An attempt was made last night to assassinate Dennis Corcoran, one of the editors of The Delta. He was badly injured but will probably recover.

Proclamation by the President on Kansas Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11, 1856.

The President to-day issued a proclamation, which will appear in The Union to-morrow, setting forth that indications exist that public tranquility and the supremeacy of the law in Kansas is endangered by the reprehensible acts and purposes of persons both within and without the Territory, who propose to direct and control its political organization by force; that combinations have been formed therein to resist the execution of the Territorial laws, and thus in effect subvert by violence all the present constitutional and legal authority.

He invokes all good citizens to promote order by rendering obedience to the law—to discountenance and repulse the counsels of instigators and disorganisers—and to testify their attachment to their country, their pride in its greatness, their appreciation of the blessings they enjoy, and their determination that Republican institutions, shall not fall in their hands by co-operating to uphold the majesty of the laws and to vindicate the sanctity of the Constitution.

Light House Washed Away—Loss of Life.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 11, 1856.

During a storm on Saturday night, (2d inst.,) the Pungsteague Light House was swept away with three men in it. Nothing has since been seen of them.

Later from California.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11, 1856.

The steamship Prometheus, from San Juan on the 5th, arrived at this port to-day. She brings San Francisco dates to the 21st ult.

The Northern Light sailed on the 5th, for New York, with $350,000 in specie.

More fighting at Fort Walla Walla is reported. In an engagement between the Indians and troops at that point, the loss of the latter is stated at 23 killed and wounded.

The San Francisdo markets were unchanged.

Affairs in Nicargua were quiet. General Walker had suspended relations with the U. S. Minister Mr. Wheeler.

Assault on Horace Greely.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.

Albert Rust appeared in Court this morning, and gave bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance at the Criminal Court to answer for his assaults upon Horace Greeley a few weeks since. He was arrested at the instance of Francis C. Treadwell, of New York who acted, it is understood, without solicitation of Mr. Greeley.

THE "Wedowee (Ala.) Eagle" says: A catamount recently attacked a woman near this place, and after injuring her considerably, was beaten off by some of Todd's negroes. The overseer of the plantation went out with dogs and a party of mules to hunt the beast, when it attacked him and killed nine of Todd's negroes. The catamount finally got away.

MARRIED.

AT St. Peter's Church, Walworth, London, on the 16th of January, 1856, MARY ANN, the beloved and only daughter of C. C. Dulin, to T. B. TRIGG, Esq., of Swan St. Dover Road, London.

With Miss Dulin (now Mrs. Trigg,) we have never had the pleasure of an acquaintance, but with her father, Mr. C. C. Dulin, who is engaged in this Office, we have an intimate and agreeable acquaintance, and know him to be an upright faithful friend and gentleman; and we congratulate Mr. Trigg in his fortunate acquisition of a jewel of so valuable stock.

OBITUARY.

DIED, on the 27th of Jan., 1856, at the residence of Edward L. Page, in Barry, Illinois, ABAGAIL W. SPEAR, aged 75 years, 8 mon. and 3 days. The deceased was the widow of Frederic Spear, of Braintree, Mass., one of five brothers, who, with their father, participated in the battle of Bunker Hill. She had been for nearly fourteen years a firm and consistent member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and passed peacefully and without a struggle from the scenes of her earthly pilgrimage to join the illustrious dead of this and former dispensations; who, having kept their integrity, are prepared for that celestial inheritance which is secured to the Saints.

Deseret News, please copy.

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
84 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22–6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVICE,
GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22

REMOVAL.
MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage.
d22

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
☞ Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29-6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29-6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12-1y

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,
ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.
The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind, which will insure satisfaction.
Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.
Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.
Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams.)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN General and Assorted Merchandize,
GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment to all the various branches of merchandize. mh24

W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
☞ Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 153 and 149 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1853. d19-1y

M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tan and Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper riveted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. f24 1y

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

WE believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commençant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu; qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés?" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système. Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
St. Louis.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets,
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
☞Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
St. Louis, Mo.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines, Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city.
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire sauce;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
100 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
80 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GRIMES.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 1f

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26tf

NOW IS YOUR TIME TO BUY GROCERIES CHEAP.
CALL AND BE CONVINCED.
"HONEST COMPETITION IS THE LIFE OF TRADE."
FRANCIS LEPERE,
WHOLESALE & RETAIL GROCER,
South-east corner Seventh st. and Franklin Av.
On hand for the Holidays,
Currants, Citron, and Raisins, at the lowest prices, by F. LEPERE.

Fresh Family Flour, of best favorite country brands, constantly on hand, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.

CHEESE—W. R. and English dairy—Sap Sago, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.

ENGLISH SPLIT PEAS—10 bbls. just received, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.

SPICES—Cinnamon, Cloves, Ginger, Nutmegs, Mace, and Caraway Seeds, 1,500 lbs., whole and ground, in store, for sale low, by d22 1m F. LEPERE.

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22-1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.

A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10-6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all.
W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.

A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.

The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage.
P. S. Frost.

We have tried the above route and find it good.—Ed. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Newton, Jewett & Busby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St. Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T.
fe17 3m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing,
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c. fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of
Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

THE MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
The Greatest Blessing of the Age for the Cure of Diseases of Man or Beast requiring External Application.

"BRING hither the poor, the halt, the lame and the blind," if you would have them healed of their many infirmities. We boldly and fearlessly assert that the Mustang Liniment will positively cure Rheumatism. Let any who are afflicted with that most painful complaint try it thoroughly according to directions, and if they are not cured we will give them their money back. What more can we say? It will also cure the Piles. Thousands have tried it—and all were cured. Bruises, Sprains, Sores or Eruptions fade away as if touched by the magician's wand. Its application to burn or scald acts like "oil upon the troubled waters." The tempest of pain and agony is soon stifled, and the patient is hushed to quiet and peaceful slumbers. "There is balm for every wound," and that balm is the Mustang Liniment. Everybody that sells medicine keeps it for sale. "Hold your horses," and if they are crippled, galled or sprained, use the Mustang Liniment.

READ THE FOLLOWING CERTIFICATES.
THROUGH BY EXPRESS!!!

This is to certify that the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used quite extensively in the stables of Adams & Co.'s Great Southern, Eastern and Western Expresses, for curing galls, chafes, scrofulas, sprains and bruises, and it has proved very effectual. Many of their men have also used it on themselves and their families, and they all speak of its healing and remedial qualities in the highest terms. One of our ostlers got kicked and badly cut and bruised on his knee; as usual, the Liniment was resorted to, and the soreness and lameness was soon removed, and it was perfectly well in three or four days. We have no hesitation in recommending it as a valuable preparation to be used externally on man or beast.
J. DUNNING,
Foreman of Adams & Co.'s Express Stable, N. Y.

We take pleasure in recommending the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT to all our friends and customers as the best article we have ever used for sores, sprains or galls in horses. We have used it extensively and always effectually. Some of our men have also used it for severe bruises and sores, as well as rheumatic pains, and they all say it acts like magic—we can only say that we have entirely abandoned the use of any other Liniment.
J. M. HEWITT, Foreman for
AMERICAN EXPRESS CO., 10 Wall st.,
HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, 74 Broadway,
PULLEN, VIRGIL & CO., 10 Wall st.,
WELLS, FARGO & CO., 16 Wall st.

MR. WILLIAM JOHNSON, for the last five years a citizen of Augusta, and now the proprietor of the fine hotel in Savannah, called the Marshall House, has favored us with the following certificate:

The MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used in my family, and on my farm, for a great variety of diseases requiring an external application, and has never failed to give immediate relief and effect a permanent cure. I have cured several cases of rheumatism that had resisted the skill of our best physicians. It has cured ringworms by a single application, chilblains in a few days, toothache, frost bites, cuts, sores and corns by a few applications; nervous headache cured entirely. In fact, I have used it for almost everything, and it has always cured. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used. WILLIAM JOHNSON.
Savannah, June 24th, 1852.

June, 25th, 1852.
I have used the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT in my stables upon my horses in cases of sprains, bruises, galls and sores of different kinds, incident to a large number of horses. I used it upon a horse that had been saddle galled for nearly a year. I had tried many remedies, and one in particular, that I had been in the habit of using for years, and had generally proved successful. Nothing appeared to give it any relief until I tried the Mustang Liniment, which cured it in a very short time. I consider it an invaluable remedy, and would not be without it. WM. H. HOLMES.
SAVANNAH, Geo., June 25, 1852.

We have also used the MUSTANG LINIMENT extensively in our stable, and we find it to be the best remedy we have ever used for sores or lameness of any kind.
SAWYER, HOLLISTER & CO.

The above are from two of the largest livery stables in the State of Georgia.

B. H. MEEKINS, 180 Walnut street, Cincinnati, was confined to his bed under the treatment of a physician some six weeks, with Neuralgia, of the whole of his right side, leg, arm and face; his sufferings were indescribable, and the only cessation from the most agonizing pain, was while under the influence of opium or morphine. His doctor finally advised him to try the MUSTANG LINIMENT; he did so, and in two days was able to go about his business perfectly cured.

This is to certify that I have used the MUSTANG LINIMENT recently in a very severe case of sprain. The right hip was so badly sprained and bruised that fears were entertained that it was out of joint. I obtained a bottle of Mustang Liniment and used it freely for four days, when the soreness and pain were all gone and the hip joint was well.

I have also used the Liniment for the Piles, with which I have been afflicted for many years. Its effects were wonderful. Free applications night and morning for a week have perfectly cured me. Thousands of persons are suffering with this painful disease, and you are at liberty to make this statement public, that all may learn what will cure them.

My brother also states that he has used the Mustang Liniment with the most perfect success in two cases of severe bruises, at our factory in Williamsburgh, and says he considers it invaluable about an establishment where a large number of men and horses are at work, and constantly liable to serious accidents. EDWIN R. BARRON.
64 Duane st., New York, June 25, 1852.

☞ While hundreds are rejoicing in the happy escape from smarting pains, occasioned by Burns, Bruises and Sprains, thousands of others will buy the Mustang Liniment and experience the same happy results.

☞ The popularity of the Mustang Liniment is a "fixed fact," therefore those suffering with Ulcers, Old Sores, Eruptions, and like complaints, need not be reminded of its superiority to give it a trial.

☞ The Ladies will always rejoice at the happy experience of curing eruptions, sore nipples, broken or caked breasts, piles and corns, after a thorough trial of the Mexican Mustang Liniment.

☞ The Mustang Liniment will give the most undoubted satisfaction to any one giving it a trial for stiff joints, stiff neck, or sore throat; it has proved itself efficacious in these complaints in many very stubborn cases.

☞ If you have any ugly, painful corns upon your feet, get a bottle of Mustang Liniment and apply it twice a day for eleven days, and the trouble will be gone.

GEO. W. WESTBROOK, Sole Proprietor, 343 Broadway, New York, and St. Louis, Mo.

PRICES—25 CENTS, 50 CENTS, AND $1 A BOTTLE.

The One Dollar Bottles contain eight times as much as the 25 cent Bottles.

The MUSTANG LINIMENT is sold by all Druggists in Chicago, and by one or more agents in every town and village in the State of Illinois. d22

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)

WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!

Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.

N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.

We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.

We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.

Please call and examine for yourselves, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. 1y HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
N. Y. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
☞ Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor.
ja9

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS.
fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 1. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

FOR THE MORMON.

The Mormon Car.

"Puffers through by daylight."—A Robbins.
"Let her rip, and let her roll."—Dr. Clinton.
"Tick't the baggage for Salt Lake."—N. H. Felt.
"Lookout for the engine when the bell rings."—Judge Dulin.

TUNE—"Jeanette and Jeanot."

THE Mormon Car is moving, and has been in motion long;
At first her pow'r was feeble, but now it's getting strong;
And having started on the track, the best that we can do,
Is to keep the car in motion, and to pop her quickly through.

We have a good Conductor, and a Brakesman, with his force;
Who, when a danger threatens, can stop the Iron Horse.
We've an Engineer and Firemen, and an Engine good and true;
Then let's keep the car in motion, and pop her quickly through.

She has had a few collisions, as she's mov'd along her track;
And been jostled, crush'd, and splinter'd, but she never would go back:
And though oppos'd by every power, she's ne'er collaps'd a flue,
But let on steam, and clear'd the track, and popp'd her quickly through.

She's had stations with the Buckeyes, and with Pukes and Suckers too,
Who prophesied the Mormon Car could never travel through;
But on solid track, and fired up, with Deseret in view,
She disappointed all their hopes, and popp'd her quickly through.

She's friends around, in every land, in nations near and far,
Who're calling for the pure in heart to step into the Car.
They will station them, and ticket them—what more, then, can they do,
Than to tell them all to step aboard, and she will pop them through.

And to thousands now in every clime, who're hastening to their home;
Who, like "doves unto their windows," or in "ships of Tarshish come,"
There's a place for all, a home for all, in Deseret for you;
Then never faint, but go ahead, and pop her quickly through.

We have tried her on Religion, and she's distanc'd every clan;
We're running now with Politics, and soon we'll take the van;
Our Banner floats for all men who do the right pursue;
Who vice despise and virtue love, we'll pop them quickly through.

We've been long enough in leading-strings, and can't with patience wait;
But we'll make our bow to Uncle Sam, and ask to be a State.
And then with Brigham at the head, and Jed' and Heber too,
We'll all unite, with one consent, and pop her quickly through.

J. TAYLOR.

Free Love in the Church.

As we have distinctly expressed our opinion of Free Love as taught in Broadway and practised in Utah, impartiality seems to require that we should call attention to another development of the same principles and practices in a quarter, and under auspices quite unexpected.

There has lately appeared a work on India, written by David E. Allen, D. D., Missionary of the American Board for twenty-five years in India. A notice of this work in Zion's Herald, a Methodist newspaper published in Boston, calls attention to the following passage in it on the subject of polygamy, as indulged in by the converted members of the Indian missionary churches.

"Now what shall be done in respect to such persons (polygamists) when they give credible evidence of personal piety and seek admission into the Christian Church? No case of this kind occurred in my own missionary experience. But some cases have occurred in India, and this difficulty will occur in numerous instances in the progress of the Gospel. The subject will also have the consideration and decision of the highest authority, ecclesiastical and judiciary, in India and England. My opinion is that the general practice in missions in respect to such cases will be as follows: When any man who has more than one wife to whom he has been legally married, wishes to be admitted into the Christian Church, he will be required to make a free and full statement of his domestic relations. He will be permitted to retain his marital connection with all his wives and his parental relation to all his children, subject to the discipline of the Church for the proper government of his household. Whether he may or may not cohabit with his different wives will be left, I believe, entirely to him and to them, to act according to their views of duty. At the same time the nature of the married relation, according to the Christian dispensation and the usages of the Church, and the reason why such cases are for a while tolerated, will be fully explained. No man thus admitted while a polygamist can be ordained a Christian teacher. In this way polygamy will have the testimony of the Church against it; and as no Christian man can ever become a polygamist, all such cases will cease with the lives of those thus admitted."

Nor is this merely the speculation of Dr. Allen as to what would be proper to be done. It appears from a document in the appendix to his book that the subject has come under the consideration of the Calcutta Missionary Conference, composed of the missionaries sustained in that vicinity by the various sects of England and America, and including Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Baptists and Congregationalists, and after frequent consultations and much consideration, they came unanimously to the following conclusion:

"If a convert, before becoming a Christian, has married more wives than one, in accordance with the practice of the Jewish and primitive Christian Churches, he shall be permitted to keep them all, but such a person is not eligible to any office in the Church."

We are not aware to what precise extent this decision of the Calcutta Missionaries has received the sanction and approbation of our American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; but so far as it has been sanctioned by them and those who contribute to their funds, they do not seem to be in a very favorable position for opposing, on the ground of polygamous practices, the admission of Utah into the Union, or the recognition of Mormonism as one of the religious sects of the country, with all the rights, privileges and immunities generally claimed by these sects, and conceded as appertaining unto them.

If polygamy, and the continual practice of it, affords no ground for refusing to those who give other "credible evidence of personal piety" admission into our missionary churches, how can it be made an objection to admitting Utah and the Mormons into our political and religious fellowship and brotherhood? If this converted Mohammedan and that converted Hindoo may still keep with safety to their souls and without scandal to their brethren, their ten or twenty wives a piece, on what principle is the same privilege to be denied to Brigham Young or Parley Pratt? As to the restriction "that such a person is not "eligible to any office in the church," that might not go down in Utah; but we apprehend that here in New-York, the "Free Lovers," if they can only obtain the indorsement of the Churches and admission into them, will readily by way of affording some unction to the troubled consciences of their indulgent and accommodating brethren, forego for the present all claims and pretensions to the offices of ministers and deacons.

It will, however, doubtless be alleged by those who adopt and defend the decision of the Calcutta Missionaries, that a clear distinction exists between temporarily tolerating an admitted evil with the design and intention speedily to get rid of it, and the re-introduction of that evil where it has once been abolished. And these same persons will also be likely to insist that for the sake of making converts and extending the area of the church, some things must be put up with for a while in India that cannot for a moment be allowed in America. There is a certain plausibility in this reasoning. Yet how loud have been the outcries raised against the Catholic Missionaries for having fallen in with and honored the heathen ideas and habits of their converts, with a view of using those ideas and habits as a stepping stone to Christianity? At the same time, is it not the fact, that however far in this matter the Catholic Missionaries may have gone, yet never have they gone so far as to sanction polygamy in their converts?

Nor is the Church here in America, in a case quite parallel, at all favorable to the view entertained by the missionaries that polygamy, once recognized and sustained as compatible with church membership, is, by virtue of the simultaneous testimony of the church against it, going to "close" with the lives of the first converts. What, we beg leave respectfully to ask, has been the experience of the American Churches under a precisely similar operation—that of uttering the testimony of the Church against slavery, and at the same time admitting slaveholders, "when they gave credible evidence of personal piety," to seek and to obtain "admission into the Christian Church."

Take the case of the Methodists for example. Wesley began by denouncing slavery as the "sum of all villainies," and by the early discipline of the Methodist Church slaveholders could not be admitted into that communion. Before many years, however, influenced doubtless by much the same sort of reasoning relied upon and the same sort of hopes entertained by the Calcutta Missionaries, slaveholders did get admission into the Methodist Church—though some rule or usage still existed, by way of testimony against slavery, that no slaveholder should be a preacher or a bishop; and what has been the result of this temporising policy? Did slaveholding in the Methodist Church die out under it? Every body knows on the contrary, that slaveholding has split the church into halves—that the slaveholders indignant at the church's testimony against slavery, have seceded and set up a church of their own, by which no such testimony is uttered, and in which to be a slaveholder is no disqualification for the highest ecclesiastical preferments. The experience of the Presbyterian Church is precisely similar. The recent attempt in the Cherokee Nation, defeated only by the veto of John Ross, to silence the testimony of the missionary churches there against slavery, is precisely in point. Is it not reasonable to expect that similar results will happen to India, and that polygamy, from being tolerated in the churches as an admitted evil, will become in the end as slavery now has, to be recognized as a positive good, expressly sanctioned by the word of God?

[New York Tribune.

Thrilling Letter

From a Russian Sister of Mercy, at Sebastopol.

THE following is a translation of a letter written in May last by one of the Russian Sisters of Mercy, ministering at Sebastopol:

"Only a few days have passed since I last wrote to you, and now I could again fill at least twenty pages with the events of the one single night between Tuesday and Wednesday. Oh, how much I should have to tell you, but how, or with what words? My God, what a horror is war! What unnatural cruelty it is! In the night between Monday and Tuesday our men were ordered to dig fresh trenches and throw up batteries, with a strong force to protect the workmen. We were all night prepared for attack, but it passed off quietly, and the whole of Tuesday was calm and still. In the evening all was again expectation. Every preparation was made. Several mattressess were laid on the ground; small tables were arranged with lights and writing materials upon them. The attendants were placing heaps of lint, bandages, dressings, short stearine candles, and medicines upon a table. In one corner stood a large Samoar (a lamp-kettle) and near it two small tables, with small teapots and cups. On the other side was a table covered with brandy, wine, lemonade, tumblers and wine-glasses. The room is nearly dark, and a peculiar stillness reigns around, as in the air before a thunder storm. Fifteen surgeons, and more are seated round Birogoff in the room for operations, or are walking up and down in pairs. The officer and the smoritel (superintendent), who have to see that everything is in readiness, are busily moving about, or are fetching in more medical help and attendance. As you stand at the door, or look out through the lofty windows at both sides of the room, you see a bright, quiet night, for the moon is shining, and the stars are twinkling, without a cloud. Between nine and ten o'clock there is a flash like that of lightning at the windows, and suddenly it roars till every pane of glass rattles. By degrees flash follows flash more frequent and rapidly; you can no longer distinguish the shots from each other. The fifth and sixth bastions are lit up with fire; but the enemy's bombs do not reach the city. We sit and listen, ever in the same sort of twilight, and about an hour passes over. Then comes a litter, another, and another—it has begun. The candles are lit; folks run hurriedly backward and forward, and the large room is soon filled with the wounded—everywhere, where they can sit, they who have crawled in, do sit. How they shriek! What a din! Hell is let loose around us. You cannot hear the thunder of the guns for this wailing and groaning. That one screams, but not in words. This one cries: "Save me, brethren; save me!" Another sees the brandy on the table, and entreats me: "Be a kind mother for me, and give me a dram." In all directions voices are heard moaningly entreating the surgeons, who are probing the wounds: "Good, my lord, do not rack me." I myself walk with great difficulty between the rows of stretchers, and cry out: "Come here my men, and take him to Gustaczinki's house—that is where the hopelessly wounded are carried—"take this man to the Nikolaieff battery. Place that man upon this bed. Now they bring in officers too. The room is crowded densely with the wounded, but operations are not be thought of at this moment. God gives us but time to bind up the wound of all; we sisters are very busily engaged.

There they are bringing in an officer; his face is deluged with blood; I wash it off—meanwhile, he takes laboriously out of his snap-purse some money for the soldiers who brought him to drink his health. I have seen many do the same thing. I kneel on the floor to light the doctor—the wounded man has been shot in the breast—to see if the ball has gone right through. I place my hand under his back and feel for the wound. You may think how he lies weltering in his gore. But enough. You would shudder if I were to describe to you all the tortures and agonies I witnessed that night. Dawn comes at last, and the firing ceases. We have a little garden. Picture it to your mind—well, there are wounded lying there also. I took brandy and ran down to it, while the sun was rising most gloriously over the bay amid the twittering of birds, in the shade of acacias full of white blossoms. I found thirty, or thereabouts, all grievously wounded, most of them already at the point of death. My Maker and my Lord! what a contrast to this sweet spring morning. I begged two of the inhabitants, who had been helping most diligently all night to carry the wounded, to take these immediately into the hospital. Thank heaven, the bringing in on stretchers is at an end! The surgeons, who had gone home at daybreak to get some rest, returned, when those whose turn it was to be relieved, departed with the close of day.

"At 7 o'clock the operations recommence. Although it was not my day to be on duty, I resolved to be again in attendance. The operations last till two o'clock in the morning. Between 6 and 7 o'clock Pirogroff comes back and they operate till 8; then the work was over, and at 9 I went home. The cannonade, however, still continued and grew fiercer toward the morning; I accordingly got up about 6, and at 7 announced myself ready for duty. Everything was in order; 100 wounded were brought in this night. It is the truce; the amputations lasted three hours, but by one o'clock the dressing was finished. They brought me your parcel; I opened it and began to tear bandages off your linens directly. They are bringing me my dinner. All is quiet. Thank God, this day, then is a quiet one. The door is opened and one stretcher after the other is borne along. What's the meaning of this? How is this? When were you wounded poor men? 'We have lain out yonder ever since that night.'—There is a truce at this moment. Only think of this horror! They have been lying out yonder nearly twice twenty-four hours; a few compassionate Frenchmen had given them bread and water. We washed their wounds at once; we bound them up; we gave them to eat and to drink.

Of course they were all wounded in the legs though a few not severely. Again, there were twelve operations, and as no one expected an arrival of this sort out of hours, Dr. Chiebuikoff and myself were almost the only persons at the operating table. The night passed off quetly. Imagine my having to tie the arteries of Pirooroff's patients on that dreadful night, while he was pulling them out and holding pinchers in his hand. SISTER B."

MR. PRINCE, the well-known nurseryman of Flushing, (L. I) recommends the culture of liquorice as one of the most important plants that could be added to American agriculture. A deep sandy loam or other light soil is adapted to it, and the plant is propagated by cuttings from the root. It yields an immense crop, is quite valuable, and now largely imported.

INTELLIGENCE from Japan states that a fleet of American whalers, on being refused provisions at Nagasaki, had helped themselves by force leaving, however, an equivalent in cash. This transaction led to a rencontre between the crews of the whalers and the inhabitants, in which a number of the latter were shot.

M. Kossuth as a Journalist.

M. KOSSUTH intimates in the Atlas of yesterday the termination of his labors as an English journalist. It is but justice to say that his contributions to the Atlas have frequently imparted to the English public information that could not have been obtained from any other source; that his views of European politics, always broad and comprehensive, have been often strikingly just and original; and that the tone and temper of his writings have been uniformly uncompromising, elevated and dignified. Subjoined is M. Kossuth's farewell:

"After nine months of uninterrupted communion, my connexion with the Atlas is brought to a close.

"The object of my engaging in the cheerless task which I now terminate was clearly defined in my introductory article published in the 7th of April number of this paper. I leave the reader to judge whether I have been faithful to my programme. That programme is my testimony that I was not sanguine of success when I entered on the task, and in parting with it I confess that I did well not to be sanguine of success. Still, I look back with some satisfaction on this strange episode in my strange life; and, though I cannot boast of having derived immediate advantage from it, either to the cause to which I am religously devoted, or to myself, I do not regret the pains it has cost me to go through it. My conscience tells me that I have performed a duty; and to me that is enough. Some want hope for a motive, and success for a reward. With me the sense of duty is a sufficient motive; and the consciousness of having done a duty is sufficient reward. Besides, 'words lost on the ears of the living are not always lost for history,' and (I say it with sorrow, not with pride) I have the presentiment that many a word have I written on the future in the Atlas, which, after a short while, may read like anticipated record of history. But be this as it may, I remember to have read in the Times, the telling remark, that in England the leaders of party are intent on Parliamentary tactics instead of European politics. If that remark tells a true tale, it is not amiss that the British public should hear now and then some little of European politics. Well, I have the consciousness that I for one have spoken to them European politics. Modest as my acquirements otherwise may be, this object at least, is familiar to me; protracted study, experience, meditation, and my very sufferings concurred to familiarise me with it; and the moral solitude in which I stand in England has this advantage at least, that impassible to the varying emotions of the flitting moment and of party interest, I may keep a steady eye on the main feature of events, and take a broad view of a broad case. True it is, much prejudice exists in England against the opinions of foreigners. While on the Continent it is a vernacular truth that nobody is a prophet in his own land, in England the reverse is true. In almost every other regard the most cosmopolitan nation, in that one regard the English are not free from self-conceit. Emphatically a nation of "details," each man a "speciality," they do not much care to arrive at a bird's-eye view of a European case; and because they do not, they are inclined to think no foreigner can. Though the son of a foreign land, and though the best affections of my heart cling with superhuman ardour to the land of my birth, I am not an alien to any people on earth. Corrupt as is the Christianity of this our material age (alas! degraded into mere lip-worship), I thank our Father in Heaven that amongst all the vicissitudes of my sorrowful life, he has left me a heart religiously devoted to the sublime fundamental command of pure Christianity—brotherly love and charity. Fraternal solidarity is my religion. I am no stranger to my brethren the people of England; I take the deepest interest in the welfare of this country, which gave a shelter to my homeless head.

"It was this interest that prompted me to contribute the modest light of my lamp towards the enlightment of public opinion at this critical period of England's history.

"Whether or not I have been too presumptuous in undertaking the task, time will show. The task is done. In parting with it I publicly thank the proprietors of the Atlas for the fair field they held open to me for performing what I, in conscience, think to have been the duty of an honest man, and I thank the readers for the indulgence with which they have borne the unflatering austerity of my language, and the defects of a foreigner's pen.

"I conscientiously labored to take an English stand, and to judge matters from an English point of view. I wish for England's sake (and for England's sake alone; my national hopes rest on another ground!)—I wish, for England's sake, the truth I have told could have been worthier told, so that it might have left some impression on the public mind. But 'What is writ is writ—with me the pain;

With the future, the moral of the strain.'

"KOSSUTH."

Mr. Fillmore.

A FOREIGN correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger alludes thus handsomely to this eminent statesman:

"Nothing, indeed, can exceed the unostentations carriage and simplicity of the American ex-President on his whole journey through Europe. He goes and sees everything, yet nobody finds out who he is and what elevated station he occupied till he is gone. In Paris, while at the Hotel du Louvre, the landlord never knew his guest until some American had inquired for ex-President Fillmore, and the same thing occurred in Marseilles, Nizza, Genoa and Leghorn. When the people learned who he was there was considerable 'empressment' to serve him, but he afforded them no opportunity. Living in the simplest manner, and exacting nothing that is not usual with the most unpretending and unassuming gentlemen, he only leaves people with regret that they cannot show him some proof of their respect, or some attention corresponding with his station.

"Mr. Fillmore has now been in England, France, Prussia, Austria and Italy, and will have seen all Europe before he returns to the United States. He has everywhere been the unobserved observer of the people and their institutions, and will return to the United States a better judge of European governments than the whole body of unfledged diplomats we are in the habit of sending abroad that they may become acquainted with court gossip and court manners, much to the detriment of their knowledge and usefulness in foreign parts. The manner in which Mr. Fillmore travels is the only one by which an American can really become acquainted with Europe, and learn to love and cherish his own country. I hope to meet him again in Rome; and shall be delighted to pay him again that respectful homage to which his many private and public virtues, the true republican simplicity of his character, and the distinguished services he has rendered our great country, entitle him. What a source of pride to be able to call one the fellow-citizen of such a man."

Slavery or Dissolution.

UPON the question embraced in these resolutions [resolutions of the Maine Legislature] Mississippi has taken her position; not hastily but calmly, deliberately. It is embodied in her action in Convention in 1851; when, after the most grave consideration of the subject she declared, in reference to what were termed the "Measures of Compromise," and, in connection with them, the rejection by Congress of the proposition to exclude slavery from the Territories, and to abolish it in the District of Columbia, that while she did not entirely approve, she would abide by them as a permanent adjustment of a sectional controversy. She, at the same time declared that she held the Union secondary to the rights and principles it was designed to perpetuate, and that violations of her rights might occur, which would amount to intolerable oppression, and justify a resort to measures of resistance, among which she enumerated the following:

First—The interference by Congressional legislation with the institution of slavery in the States.

Second—Interference with the trade in slaves between the States.

Third—Any action of Congress on the subject of slavery in the District of Columbia or in places subject to the jurisprudence of Congress, incompatible with the safety and domestic tranquillity or the rights and honor of the slaveholding States.

Fourth—The refusal by Congress to admit a new State into the Union on the ground of her tolersting slavery within her limits.

Fifth—The passage of any law by Congress prohibiting slavery in any of the Territories.

Seventh—The repeal of the Fugitive Slave law, and the neglect or refusal by the General Government to enforce the Constitutional provisions for the reclamation of fugitive slaves.

I therefore recommend to the Legislature, in response to the resolutions of Maine, to return to her resolutions unanimously reaffitming the position of Mississippi, with a calm, temperate and dignified exposition of our rights, and our determination to maintain them at all hazards. If, then, Maine and our Northern sisters shall make the issue of the Union with us upon the Constitution, the responsibility will be with them, and the right with us, whatever may be the result.—[From the Message of Gov. McRea, of Mississippi.

Girls on a Strike.—Effects of Leap Year.

A card from the main factory girls reads as follows:

We are now working out our notice, and shall soon be be without employment; can turn our hand to most anything; don't like to be idle, but determined not to work for nothing when folks can afford to pay. Who wants help? We can make bonnets, dresses, puddings, pies and cakes, patch and darn, knit, roast, stew, fry, make butter and cheese, milk cows, feed chickens, hoe corn, sweep out the kitchen, put the parlor to rights, make beds, split wood, kindle fires, wash and iron, besides being remarkably fond of babies—in fact, can do anything the most accomplished housewife is capable of, not forgetting the scolding on Mondays and Saturdays. For specimens of spirits will refer you to our overseer. Speak quick. Black eyes, fair foreheads, clustering locks, beautiful as Hebe, can sing like a seraph and smile most bewitchingly. An elderly gentleman in want of a nice housewife, or a nice man in want of a wife—willing to sustain her character; in fact, we are in the market. Who bids? Going—going—gone! Who's the lucky man?

Hurrah for the Maine Girls.

IN one of the factories in Maine, recently, the proprietors reduced the wages, whereupon there was a general determination to strike, and as they were obliged to give a month's notice before quitting work, they meanwhile issued a circular to the world at large, in which is the following interesting paragraph: "We are now working out our notice, and shall soon be without employment; and can turn our hands to most anything; don't like to be idle—but determined not to work for nothing where folks can afford to pay. Who wants help! We can make bonnets, dresses, puddings, pies and cakes, patch, darn, knit, roast, stew and fry; make butter and cheese, milk cows, feed chickens, and hoe corn; sweep out the kitchen, put the parlor to rights, make beds, split wood, kindle fires, wash and iron, besides being remarkably fond of babies, in fact can do anything the most accomplished housewife is capable of, not forgetting the scoldings on Mondays and Saturdays. For specimens of spirit, will refer you to our overseer. Speak quick. Black eyes, fair foreheads, clustering locks, beautiful as a Hebe, can sing like a seraph, and smile most bewitchingly! An elderly gentleman in want of a good housekeeper, or a nice young man in want of a wife—willing to sustain either character; in fact, we are in the market. Who bids!—Going—going—GONE! Who's the lucky man?"—[Woman's Advocate.

The Draining of the Harlem Sea.

THE Chairman of the Commission on the Drainage of the Harlem Sea, (Holland,) has published a final report on this work, which is to be finished this year. The expenses from 1839 to 1855, inclusive, are $3,400,000, and the receipts from land to be sold is estimated at $3,200,000. It was at first supposed the reclaimed land would be worth only some $32 per acre, but in 1853 it was actually sold for over $120. This return exceeds all expectation, as the draining was not undertaken as a speculation, but as a precaution against further inroads of the sea. Fruitful farms already begin to appear here and there on the former floor of the sea. Forty-five thousand acres in all have been reclaimed from the sea, which will supply 100,000 people bountifully with the means of life.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
2 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

Letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, FEB. 23, 1856.

Church of England (Episcopalians), Presbyterians, Baptists, and Congregationalists Turned Polygamists.

THE above may seem strange to many, and its announcement be looked upon as an exaggeration, but it is nevertheless true; and notwithstanding the professed purity of christian professors, who, with sanctimonious looks, solemn visages, and affected virtuous indignation, have repelled the polluted polygamous Mormons; notwithstanding the holy horror of an immaculate press, and the fierce declamations of the meek soi-disant ministers of Christ, against such practices; and notwithstanding the sacred dread entertained by many of our Senators and Representatives "in Congress assembled" of admitting Utah as a State for fear of "fostening an incubus" upon this truly christian and virtuous nation, it is nevertheless true that the missionaries of those several Churches, before referred to, have unitedly been sanctioning the very things for which the people, the pulpit, the press, and Congress have been condemning the Mormons. Such is the world, religiously, politically, and socially; and such is the, so-called, christian consistentcy.

In a work recently published on "India, Ancient and Modern. Geographical, Historical, Political, Social, and Religious; with a Particular Account of the State and Prospects of Christianity. By David O. Allen, D. D., Missionary of the American Board for Twenty-five Years in India, etc. Boston: John P. Jewett & Co.; 1856," will be found some very interesting remarks on this subject. We quote from pages 553–4, where the Rev. Doctor says:

"Now what shall be done in respect to such persons (polygamists) when they give credible evidence of personal piety and seek admission into the Christian Church? No case of this kind occurred in my own missionary experience. But some cases have occurred in India, and this difficulty will occur in numerous instances in the progress of the Gospel. The subject will also have the consideration and decision of the highest authority, ecclesiastical and judiciary, in India and England. My opinion is that the general practice in missions in respect to such cases will be as follows: When any man who has more than one wife to whom he has been legally married wishes to be admitted into the Christian Church, he will be required to make a free and full statement of his domestic relations. He will be permitted to retain his marital connection with all his wives and his parental relation to all his children, subject to the discipline of the Church for the proper government of his household. Whether he may or may not cohabit with his different wives will be left, I believe, entirely to him and to them, to act according to their views of duty. At the same time the nature of the married relation, according to the Christian dispensation and the usage of the Church, and the reason why such cases are for a while tolerated, will be fully explained. No man thus admitted while a polygamist can be ordained a Christian teacher. In this way polygamy will have the testimony of the Church against it; and as no Christian man can ever become a polygamist, all such cases will cease with the lives of those thus admitted."

Nor is this merely the opinion of the Rev. Doctor as to what is likely to happen in the future; for, in the Appendix to his work, p. 601, he informs us that "the Calcutta Missionary Conference" (representing Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Baptists, and Congregationalists), "consisting of the Missionaries of the various Societies which have missionaries in that vicinity, after frequent consultations and much consideration on the subject of polygamy as it exists in India, were unanimous in the following" conclusion:

"If a convert before becoming a Christian has married more wives than one, in accordance with the practice of the Jewish and PRIMITIVE CHRISTIAN CHURCHES, he shall be permitted to keep them all, but such a person is not eligible to any office in the Church."

It would seem that the missionaries of those several churches, having imbibed a cosmopolitan spirit, freed from the narrow sectional and sectarian influence in the contracted circles of their home, have been led to contemplate the marital relations in another point of view from what they have been in the habit of speaking about them at home, as taught by their ministers, pedagogues and grandmothers, or even by their theologians and divines. The world is more of a matter-of-fact school, and teaches more practicable lessons than either bodies of divinity or systems of theology. Perhaps, however, those christian gentlemen, finding themselves as teachers among the polygamous Hindoos, Mahommedans and Jews, and being unable to refute the Hindoo philosophical arguments, and the scriptural arguments adduced both by the Jews and Mahommedans, found themselves either obliged to deny their own Bible, or to receive this doctrine; for notwithstanding it is quite popular for Christians, in a christian country, to disbelieve their Bible and reject it as evidence in most matters, it places missionaries in a very awkward position, after having proved that the Bible is true and that Christianity is of God, and holding up Abraham, David and others as men of God, to have to turn round and say, as Christians here do, "It is true polygamy was ordained of God and practised by good men, but now God has nothing to do with it, and it is an abominable pollution. The Bible is a good book and those were holy men of God, but their practices were corrupt and lascivious; and the Lord, not being so well instructed as our modern divines, being at that time in his youth, made a great mistake about these matters." This kind of thing may do among Christians, but Mahommedans and Hindoos, heathen though they be, could not receive it; they could not comprehend so well as Christians do, how the Bible can be true and men good, holy and virtuous, and the doctrines taught in the Bible false—nor how good, virtuous, chaste men can be corrupt and lascivious. It needs christian philosophy to unravel this mystery.

Now, we can readily account for the position in which these missionaries are placed, and think they have acted perfectly rational and consistent under the circumstances; but what are we to think of the barefaced hypocricy of those churches and christian ministers who, whilst they abuse the Mormons for polygamy in the United States, admit of it in their own churches in India. We might publish many complimentary remarks of Rev. gentlemen, but will let the following, from the pen of the Rev. Daniel P. Kidder, editor of The Sunday School Advocate, New York, suffice:

Mormonism.

The height of impudence is manifested by the recent establishment at New York of a paper called The Mormon. This paper not only advocates the knavish imposture of Joe Smith and Brigham Young, but shamelessly apologises for polygamy and other abominations practised by the Mormons. But a short time ago there seemed to be some little shame left among the more intelligent dupes of this foul system of pretended religion. There appears to be none now. The most loathsome features of this monstrous delusion are now voluntarily unmasked, and there can no longer be the slightest reason for any decent person to treat it with either respect or toleration. Polygamy is a crime according to the laws and sentiments of all christian nations, and hence those Mormon priests and elders (saints, as they blasphemously call themselves) who practice the crime, are criminals and outlaws. Their only fit place is a prison, and yet they come to New York and publish their vile practices, and attempt to disseminate the foul plague of their immorality by means of the press. —[Advocate, Mar. 24, 1855.

In juxta-position to the above, we now give a note from the work of the aforesaid Dr. Allen. (Appendix p. 605.)

"If polygamy was unlawful, then Leah was the only wife of Jacob, and none but her children were legitimate. Rachel as well as Bilhah and Zilpah were mere mistresses and their children six in number were bastards, the offspring of adulterous connection. And yet there is no intimation of any such views and feelings in Laban's family, or in Jacob's family, or in Jewish history. Bilhah and Zilpah are called Jacob's wives (Gen. 37: 2). God honored the sons of Rachel, Bilhah, and Zilpah equally with the sons of Leah, made them the patriarchs of 7 of the tribes of the nation, and gave them equal inheritance in Canaan."

Here Dr. Allen strenuously contends for polygamy—and are we to believe that the Rev. Daniel P. Kidder knew nothing about this matter? With these things in view, what are we to think of the impertinence of men who will hypocritically and unblushingly enunciate such sentiments as Mr. Kidder has in the above, while christian churches and their ministers are sanctioning those very things abroad, and perhaps, too, at their instance? The difference between the Mormons and them is, that the Mormons dare honestly, conscientiously and fearlessly declare their sentiments to the world, and publish them in "a paper called 'The Mormon,' established at New York." Mr. Kidder hypocritically denies it in his paper at New York, whilst his christian brethren covertly admit it in India.

It ill becomes such characters to talk about "knavish impostures," "vile practices," and of their disseminating "the foul plague of their immorality." Milder epithets would better become their sanctified lips; and we would recommend all such very reverend gentlemen, after washing out their mouths, to acknowledge before the world that they are reverend ranting hypocrites and dishonest men.

We find that the New York Tribune, the Anti-Slavery Standard, and other papers, have taken up this matter. In another column will be found the remarks of the Tribune on this subject.

Mr. Greeley says, and very correctly, that: "They do not seem to be in a very favorable position for opposing, on the ground of polygamous practices, the admission of Utah into the Union, or the recognition of Mormonism as one of the religious sects of the country, with all the rights, privileges and immunities generally claimed by these sects, and conceded as appertaining unto them.

If polygamy, and the continual practice of it, affords no ground for refusing to those who give other 'credible evidence of personal piety,' admission into our missionary churches, how can it be made an objection to admitting Utah and the Mormons into our political and religious fellowship and brotherhood? If this converted Mohammedan and that converted Hindoo may still keep, with safety to their souls and without scandal to their brethren, their ten or twenty wives apiece, on what principle is the same privilege to be denied to Brigham Young or Parley Pratt?"

On the ground of morality, then, taking these reverend gentlemen's own statements, there can be no bar to Utah being admitted and recognized as a State. But as it regards the "recognition of Mormonism as one of the religious sects of the country," we wish distinctly to be understood, that, although nationally we have all the rights of other citizens, we want no association with, nor claim we any affinity to, any other Church in existence. We have left them long ago, on account of their corruption, and having found better and purer principles, we should feel ourselves disgraced by their association; it would with us be a return of the "dog to its vomit," or "the sow that was washed to wallowing in the mire." We had their fellowship before we were Mormons; we could have it again if we would act hypocritically, smother our consciences, and deny what we know to be true. Having found the inestimable treasures of truth, the "pearl of great price," we can listen to no syren songs, nor can we feast on the apples of Sodom; but in answer both to their insidious wiles and vulgar hate, like Bunyan's Pilgrim, we press forward, put our fingers in our ears, and cry "life, life, eternal life."

We shall have recourse to this subject again, and give extracts from the work of Mr. Allen, who, it will be seen, is as deeply dyed in the polygamic faith as any Mormon we are acquainted with.

Latest News from Europe.

THE steamship Canada, whose tardy voyage from Liverpool began to create considerable anxiety, arrived at Halifax on Sunday morning last. She brings no tidings of the missing Pacific. Some doubtful information of her taking refuge in the Shannon was circulated in the beginning of the week, but up to this date nothing reliable is known of her whereabouts.

By the Canada there is nothing of vast importance from the East. "Boreas wi his blasts sae cald" seems to have cooled considerably the courage of the hostile armies in the Crimea. The crowned heads, their masters, don't feel quite so warm either. They seem to be travelling to the North. It is reported, and seemingly with good foundation, that a Peace Congress was to meet at Paris on February 17th. The Allies fearing the ruse of Russian diplomatists more than the prowess of Russian armies have wisely arranged for a limited Conference. Diplomacy is not to be permitted to play at Paris in 1856 the dull and insipid game it played at Vienna in 1855. No time is to be lost—the whole matter is to be brought to a conclusion by February 25.

It is stated that Prussia refuses to agree to the conditions exacted by the Allies preliminary to her admission into the Peace Conferences, and that consequently she will be excluded from the Conference, but be invited to sign the final deed of settlement.

Baron Brunow and Count Orloff are the Russian Plenipotentiaries, assisted by Messrs. Titoff and Fenton. Lord Clarendon represents England; Marquis d'Azeglio, Sardinia; Count Buol, Austria; M. Waleuski, France; Dervish Pasha, Turkey.

The English Parliament was opened by Her Majesty in person, on the 31st January, with the usual ceremonies, and, of course, with great splendor. The Royal Speech is generally looked forward to with great interest, both at home and abroad; being considered a sort of political thermometer. Victoria's speeches have generally had a commendable quality—brevity. Everybody has some favorite idea: Vic. seems to have hit upon brevity. There are, however, limits to everything—all overs are vices. Victoria withal her virtues has been over brief. Knowing her predilections, she might have been expected to treat her enemies to a display of her attainments, but to pass by friends is unkind to say the least. We cannot understand why America is unnoticed. She has had plenty leisure to cone over President Pierce's plain statements on the subject of foreign enlistment and the Central American treaty. Editors on both sides of the Atlantic have been free in their criticisms. Opposition members in the Lords and Commons have tried to draw out Palmerston and his colleagues; but all that "the powers that be" have thought proper to answer is, "no slight was meant by the nonmention of America in the Queen's speech."

It is amusing to read the various opinions of the English journals on this last royal production.

The London Times, Lord Palmerston's present organ, of course, praises it.

The Daily News says the speech was short, and ought to have been shorter.

The Morning Herald calls it evasive, unsatisfactory, and indecently brief.

The Morning Post, Advertiser, and Chronicle (ministerial or semi ministerial) praise it.

The opinion in regard to it on 'Change was not favorable, and consols receded, it having been expected it would have spoken more definitely of peace or war.

The Earl of Derby in the House of Lords was still less kind. He considered the Royal Speech "bare, cold, and meagre"—"redolent of water gruel." Some may think the noble Earl wanting in courtesy to his Royal mistress; but, as he had himself figured behind the curtain, he knew well the voice was Victoria's but the speech was Palmerston's. This is the key to the whole. Palmerston is a proficient in cunning and brevity. He was evidently not prepared to tell America all he has to say; he therefore concluded to say nothing, affording Uncle Sam an opportunity of "guessing."

The Mormon.

WITH the present number we commence the second year of THE MORMON. We intended to have addressed our friends and patrons, as is customary on such occasions, but a press of business compels us to defer it to our next. The article on "Mormonism" will be resumed next week.

The Steamer Persia.

ON Monday and Tuesday last the public were admitted to visit and examine this magnificent vessel. Probably sixteen thousand persons visited her on the two days, by which about $2000 will be realized by the City Missionary of Jersey City for the benefit of the poor. She left Jersey City on Wednesday afternoon for Liverpool, with a goodly number of passengers. As she was crossing the bar in Gedney's Channel she grounded, but was got off without damage and proceeded on her voyage.

Louis Kossuth.

ON our first page will be found the valedictory of M. Kossuth to the Atlas, English journal, which has elicited the following remarks:

We have not been without our opinion about Louis Kossuth, although we do not remember having expressed it. He is a man, as he has expressed himself in that article, familiar with European politics, a true patriot to his country, and sincerely desirous to promote her welfare; his life has been a continued struggle for the establishment of liberal principles in Hungary, and in battling against oppressive power. Like many others, he was foiled in his efforts; fate seemed to be against him, and his party was betrayed and subjugated; and, as is common in such cases, he had to fly for his life. The prominent stand that he had taken in the foundation and protection of Hungary, while it endangered his personal safety there, gained for him many friends abroad, who became admirers of his abnegation, patriotism, perseverance and heroism, and who sincerely sympathized with him and his colleagues in their misfortunes. Hence, in his extremity, the Emperor of Turkey, although not a believer in his political principles, offered to him a temporary asylum, at the risk of giving offence both to Austria and Russia. He was received, both in England and the United States, with open arms; and the overwhelming multitudes who greeted him with acclamations, on his arrival in those countries, showed how deeply they sympathized with him and his country; in fact, his travels through those countries was a continuous triumphal march, and we know not of any foreigner who was so heartily received and made so universally welcome.

His people, too, were cared for in both countries. In England, subscriptions were made for them, as well as in the United States. In this country the exiles were not only made welcome, but grants of land were also made to them, and every manifestation of kindness that strangers could reasonably expect. In addition to this, at his request, large sums of money were donated, and quantities of arms purchased. But now we must stop. When this was done, one would have thought that all which generosity, friendship, or hospitality required, was fulfilled—but no. M. Kossuth seemed to us to desire to involve the United States and England in his quarrel, and then, when he could not do it, complained bitterly of their coldness, neglect and ignorance, and used language towards both that was anything but courteous, especially considering his treatment. Now, with all deference, we do consider that the Constitutions of both these countries are altogether superior to any thing ever had in Hungary, and that freedom and constitutional rights are better guaranteed in them than ever they were there; his policy, therefore, at best was an untried theory. Furthermore, we believe that however the principles advocated by him might have benefitted Hungary, they would neither have benefitted England or the United States. Again, we consider the politicians of both countries fully equal, at all events as tacticians, to him, for, whilst he would have involved them in difficulties, they have very wisely known how to avoid them. In both countries he sought an official interview with their Premiers; by both he was privately, but not publicly, received. Lord Palmerston received him at his private dwelling, and so did Mr. Webster. We did not think at the time, nor do we now, that it was very proper in him to seek an official interview, under the circumstances; for so far from Hungary being a nation, it was only an integral part of one. Why, then, should a provincial statesman, however distinguished, taking advantage of public sympathy, seek to embroil two powerful nations in his cause? and because he could not, complain of them for want of sympathy and burlesque their institutions; the latter at least comes with a bad grace, for, whilst he has not accomplished that which he struggled for, the United States and England have obtained and maintained liberal governments.

Again, his uniting with factions, in England, was certainly in very bad taste, not to say highly improper, and did not show the marks of a very extended mind. It is true that he desisted on receiving a reprimand from Lord Palmerston; his own judgment, however, ought to have dictated another course. Nor did his association with Mazzini, Ledru Rollin, Victor Hugo, and other disaffected parties, in Jersey, exhibit much more sagacity. These parties all complained loudly of their expulsion from there. Whatever might be the harshness of this step, everyone must acknowledge that their course was highly impolitic. England was at peace with France, she was her ally; and in no place in Europe, perhaps, could they have obtained protection than there; for England, then, to keep an asylum for France's most bitter and avowed enemies, where they could securely foster their hatred and fulminate their treason, scarcely looked courteous. Kossuth does not like it; Hungary is all that he sees, and all that he does is for the liberation of Hungary. He tries the United States, he tries England, he tries Turkey, he tries the English Chartists, the French Rouges, and the Continental Refugees; he tries diplomacy, speechifying and writing, and retires evidently discouraged and unsuccessful from the field. He is a man of talent, a man of genius and enterprise, but is too enthusiastic and too much absorbed in one thought. We cannot but admire his patriotism, for that is a virtue; but even patriotism has its bounds. Hungary's days are numbered; like Poland, she has politically expired—and however nice the theories of M. Kossuth may appear on paper, they are practically impossible. The people of those countries, if they ever did understand liberty, do not understand it now; and if they regained it nominally, would be as likely to exchange it for despotism as anything else, as France has twice done. The collossal power of Russia would also be another obstacle, and make it, like Switzerland and some of the German nominally free cities, subject to the control of other nations and influences. For Hungary to be free, Europe must be free. Europe, if free, could not remain so at present—the elements are too combustible. One reason, then, why Kossuth has not prospered, may be found in European policy. Another, that all nations, understanding the above principle, do not feel as M. Kossuth. They all, through other than Hungarian glasses, see other nations besides Hungary.

Emigration.

WITH the exception of Sunday and Monday last, the weather at this port for the last eight days has been favorable for in-coming vessels, and comparatively mild. Some vessels that have been long at sea, and whose absence was a source of uneasiness, begin to make their appearance. We have much pleasure in announcing the arrival of the John J. Boyd on Saturday evening last, with a large company of Danes, Swedes, Norwegians, Icelanders, Italians, English and Scotch, under the presidency of Eld. Canute Peterson, assisted by Elders Jorgen W. J. Jenson and Charles R. Savage. The account of their voyage will be published next week.

Nearly the entire company left this city on Thursday evening for the West. Some families will seperate from the main body of the company at Chicago, and strike off for Burlington, where they will join Elder Christian Christianson and the Saints under his charge. The others continue their journey to St. Louis.

Elder A. Robbins of this office proceeds westward with them, to aid by his counsel, and attend to other emigration affairs.

Gen. Atchison in Kansas.

GENERAL ATCHISON, with a company of two hundred of his neighbors, have made their arrangements to remove to this Territory early in the spring. He will locate in the neighborhood of Atchison, where himself and friends will meet with a cordial welcome from the squatters in this section of the Territory. It is the intention of General Atchison to engage in farming, and for that purpose he will bring with him a number of slaves. Many of his companions, who will accompany him, are capitalists and large slave-holders, and their settlement in this section of the Territory is a consummation devoutly to be wished for.—[Squatter Sovereign.

Mexican Affairs.

A WASHINGTON writer under date of February 7th says:

I learn that Gen. Almonte will leave to day for New Orleans, on his return to Mexico, having had his last audience of leave, and presented his Secretary of Legation, Don Argel Sturbiele, as Charge of Affairs. Colonel Robles, who has been appointed Minister to succeed Gen. Almonte, probably left Vera Cruz in the last British mail steamer, on his way to Washington, via Havana. The three million question is left undecided, but under protest against payment to the Assignees of Santa Anna. Gen. Almonte also submitted strong protests against the late Texan invasion of the soil of Mexico, and a demand for indemnity on account of the spoilation of Mexican property by the invaders.

The Law of Libel.

In a libel case in Philadelphia, in which a man named Donnelly was plantiff and the proprietors of the Ledger defendants, the Judge in his charge to the Jury said: "One rule which may be stated without fear of contradiction is, that the Editor of a public Journal may tell the truth in all cases, without fear of the consequences; and that while he does so, he cannot be made answerable in a civil proceeding, nor, indeed, anywhere, unless it be proved that the publication was wantonly made for the sole purpose of injuring the party in reference to whom such publication is made." It appears that in this case the Ledger charged Mr. Donnelly with driving his wife from his house, under very aggravated circumstances, while he was in a state of intoxication. The Jury promptly assessed the damages done to the plantiff's character at one dollar! It is becoming an unprofitable business for pettifogers to commence libel suits against newspapers. These gentlemen will have to turn their attention to some other branch of the profession.

COLD WEATHER AT PEMBINA.—Mr. Burdick member of the House from Pembina, informs us that he has received a letter from Pembina, stating that unprecedented cold weather has been experienced in that region this winter. The mercury in the thermometer for a week averaged 52 degrees below zero. The half breeds who had started out on their winter hunt, were compelled to return to the settlement, owing to the severity of the weather, and they had also lost cattle and numerous horses from the same cause.—[St. Paul Democrat, Feb. 6.

THE BRITISH CURRENCY.—It has been finally decided to introduce the decimal currency all over the United Kingdom. The pound will be retained as the unit, and divided into one thousand parts. The half crown will be abolished—the shilling fifty, the sixpence twenty-five, and a new coin will be introduced representing five farthings, while the present farthing will be depreciated one twenty-fifth in value—that is, there will be one thousand to the pound sterling instead of nine hundred and sixty.

MR. LOONEY, of Root River, Minnesota, gathered this year over 4,000 bushels of corn from 70 acres, more than half of which had not been touched from the time it was planted. Mr. L. also raised a cart load of 70 pumkins from one seed.

THE Mississippi River is closed its entire length by floating ice. This fact has never been known to occur before in the memory of man.

FOR THE MORMON.

Education.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

SCIENTIFIC observations show that every thing in the universe is subject to an endless variety of progressive changes, especially man, who is a prominent being in the scale of creation: hence the necessity of improving and storing our minds with useful knowledge.

On examining the annals of history, we find that education was looked upon by the patres conscripti of Rome and Greece as one of the most important subjects in government affairs, that was considered worthy of the deliberations and discussions of their wisest men. Laws were enacted for the purpose of establishing schools and academies; in fact, every thing was done by the leaders of those mighty Republics, to make all classes of society partakers of the blessing of education; the natural consequence was, that the Romans and Greeks became the most enlightened and refined, and in sciences and fine arts superior to any nation.

Education implies the knowledge of sciences, fine arts and languages, and is divided into common and classical education. The former embraces the usual sciences and languages of the age, and the latter the higher branches of philosophy and the ancient or classic languages. The classics have generally a reference to the languages spoken of by the ancients, but in modern times they refer to every literary production of first rank. Education is next to the gospel of paramount importance for the improvement of the human family, and well calculated to bring about great changes in society. The mind may be compared to a piece of rock, it is rough in its natural condition—hence, it requires chiseling and moulding; in fact, it has to pass through all the artistical manifestations and operations of a master genius, in order to be of value. Everyone is endowed with some natural gifts or talents, but they lie as it were hushed in slumber; they wait for an opportunity to make themselves manifest, till some circumstance touches the spring of their intellects; the spell is broken, they begin to develope themselves and astonish the world with great inventions; but how many are called into existence and pass beyond the veil, without having had a chance to see their precious gifts developed and become prominent personages in the arena of mental exertion—who knows but what some of them might have had the marvellous intellects of an Archimedes or Arago, and been ranked among the wisest men of the earth. Is it not grieving to the philanthropic mind to see thousands of honest-hearted people leave this stage of action, without ever having an opportunity for the development of their mental capacities, and be comparatively buried in oblivion! Is it not painful to think that so many innocent beings, upon whom the Lord looks as the offsprings of His tender mercies, should, by the peculiar nature of circumstances, be deprived of the blessing of mental improvement! Yes, it is inconsistent with the wisdom of the great Jehovah, who suffers the sun to shine upon both the righteous and the wicked, and who seeks to extend the blessings of life, light and intelligence over his vast creation.

The Saints of the Most High need not fear being neglected in that respect; they are under His special care and protection. No stern Gentile or sectarian tradition deprives them of the blessings of education, nor prevents them from becoming a refined and delightsome people. Every body in the Church of Christ has a wide scope and an ample opportunity for a full development of his physical and mental powers. Everything is done by the authorities to promote learning among the people, by the establishment of schools and academies, with competent teachers at the head; even fine arts are not forgotten—philharmonic and polysophic societies have been founded for the purpose of improving the Saints even in an esthetic regard.

As soon as man has commenced his career on this terrestrial ball, the development of his physical and mental powers should be urged on according to his health, age, capacities and circumstances. When the student has got a knowledge of the rudiments of a common school education, he may go into some higher branches. I have to remark here, that the teacher will have to explain all rules concerning grammar or sciences in as simple and lucid a manner as possible, so that he may bring every new principle of learning within the pupil's compass of understanding. As soon as the student comprehends the philosophy of a rule, he may commit the same to his memory, but not before; if he does, he will find greater obstacles in the progress of his studies, as one principle is generally illustrated by the preceding one; nor is it wisdom for the teacher to hurry his pupil, but the best way is to dwell on one point till it is fully understood, and then he may go on without fear; nor is it policy in the commencement of the studies to attack several languages or sciences at once, as the mind, not being sufficiently capacitated, will be crowded upon and not be able to comprehend all. Such a course, if persisted in, may lead to even mental derangement. It is of great importance that mental exertions should be counterbalanced by gymnastical or bodily exercises, and not as it is done in a great many colleges and academies, where they confine a young man four or five hours to the dull, warm air of a schoolroom, without a recess or reservation. Such a course of education is calculated to injure body and mind, because a sick or infirm system effects the intellectual faculties and makes them dull, owing to the intimate connection that exists between the spirit and the body. A person that desires to obtain a knowledge of languages, will do well to study at least the rudiments of Latin, as it is the key to French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese, and so enables him to make faster progress.

The study of abstract sciences, as mathematics, logic, etc., improves the intellectual faculties and capacitates also the student to reason upon anything in a well connected and lucid manner, so that he is able to overthrow all the fallacious arguments of sophistry. A great deal depends upon the particular style of teaching. The Greek philosophers, who are looked upon as a pattern by pedagogues and philologists, considered the manner in which Socrates taught his pupils the best. That great man used to teach in conversing with his hearers, putting questions to them which elicited answers; and so, by advancing his ideas and discussing upon them, he illustrated every point, and his hearers improved rapidly—this is the Socratic method, which has been introduced in a great many academies, both in Europe and America.

Education not only improves the powers of perception, but it also expands and ennobles the soul and enlarges our knowledge. The study of history makes us acquainted with the past—we get, as it were, familiar with men whose noble deeds have immortalized them. We are led into the august assembly of the Roman Senate, whose awe-inspiring bearing and statue-like appearance made Hannibal and his soldiers believe they had entered the abode of demi-gods. The great and mighty statesman, the refined poet, the elevated philosopher, the self-denying and virtuous patriot; Nero, that hyena in human shape; Pope Alexander VI., that personification of vice and crime; Duke Alba of Spain, that monster whom the curse of nations is resting: they are all, as it were, arrayed before our eyes; the noble deeds of those great men of bygone ages have engraved themselves upon our minds; we feel to sympathize with their disasters, to rejoice in their brilliant career of earthly greatness, while the disgusting and hideous crimes of those outcasts of human beings are revolting to us. The study of geography, natural history and natural philosophy makes us acquainted with foreign countries and nations—their manners and customs; it shows us that there is life, light and intelligence throughout the immensity of space, it leads us into the utmost recesses of nature, and it makes us lift up our heart in adoration for the great Creator of so many marvellous works. The study of languages enables us to embody, as it were, our ideas in words, and convey the same to our fellow-creatures; it shows us that words are the intelligent monuments of our feelings, the hieroglyphics of our sentiments. In order to improve our taste, manners and conversational powers, it will be well to cultivate, if possible, the society of good, intelligent and refined men, whose topics concerning fine arts and polite and elegant literature are discussed.

Education, finally, enables us to move with ease in every station of life, and to be useful to our fellow-creatures. Hence the necessity for everyone in the Church of Christ, especially the Elders, to improve the time by self-tuition or by attending schools, that they may be fit representatives of so eminent a body as the Latter Day Saints, and so show to the world that we, not only in theology, but also in everything else, are superior to the nations of the earth.

Later from Fort Pierre.

THE St. Louis Democrat says:—We have received by telegraph from our correspondent at Weston the following news from Fort Pierre:

WESTON, Jan, 31, 1856.

Messrs. Dunlap and Woodford, pilot and mate of the steamer Grey Cloud arrived from Fort Pierre night before last en route to St. Louis. The Grey Cloud got within 230 miles of the Fort on the 2d of November. Sent on an express to the fort and received an answer to wait for Major How, who was coming with two hundred troops to take charge of the boat and cargo. On the 21st the river closed, and it commenced snowing very fast. The next day the boat was visited by seventy-five Indian warriors, who demanded ammunition and provisions. We heard of the troops fifty miles off. The thermometer at this time had fallen to 35 degrees below zero. On the 31st December the crew was discharged by order of General Harney, and he took possession of the boat and cargo. The cold was so great that several of the men were badly frozen. On the 7th of January General Harney arrived, twenty-two days out from the fort. He traveled all the way on the ice, with only thirty men. During his journey he saw a large number of Indians, and told them that "this was the time for them to fight while the cold weather lasted; he had but few men, and they might kill him now, but he would give them h—l in the spring."

Dunlap and others left the Grey Cloud on the 12th of January, and came on the ice as far as Council Bluffs.

A Voice from South Carolina.

THE Columbia (S. C.) Times, in speaking of the election of Banks to the Speakership says:

This result, it is to be hoped, will have the effect of uniting the South in defence of her Rights and institutions. It remains to be seen what course will be adopted by those gentlemen who counselled us to "Wait and Watch." The outposts have been carried by the Black Republican Army. Shall we wait until the Temple is in a blaze before we strike in defence of our altars, our wives and our little ones? When will the people of the South act? Are they disposed to wait and watch a little longer?—God forbid! They are now in bondage and under the control of abolitionists. Their Representative Hall is in the hands of Black Republican Abolition Incendiaries, who are ready to aid in the use of the torch and the knife to carry out their hellish purposes against the people of the slaveholding States.

THE Washington Union of Sunday morning says: Mrs. Bishop (already the mother of eleven boys and two girls) gave birth on Wednesday night to three boys—making a family of sixteen children.

Correspondence.

HENDERSON CO., Ill. Jan. 14, 1856.

BRO. TAYLOR,—Dear Sir: May I beg the privilege of asking you the following question?

What does Jacob mean, in his Second Book where he says, "This people begin to wax in iniquity; they understand not the Sciptures; for they seek to excuse themselves in committing whoredoms, because of the things which were written, concerning David and Solomon his son. Behold David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was abominable before me, saith the Lord."

I see nothing either in the Book of Mormon, or Bible but this, which I cannot understand, relative to the doctrines taught in the proceedings and writings of the Church on this subject If you will answer the above I shall feel much obliged; as I ask not through a spirit of contention, but from a sincere desire to know the truth.

I remain Dear Brother, very Respectfully, your Sister in the Gospel, *****.

The above we consider a very reasonable request, particularly on a matter that involves such important consequences, and as such we have forwarded the following answer. We read the letter to several of our friends, one of whom remarked: There now! How will you get over that? Now it very fortunately happens that we have nothing to get over, Mormonism takes a straight line and does not twist either to the right, or left; neither does it leap over; but passes right through. If there is a wrong principle we want to know it, and to discard it; we don't want to feed ulcers on the system; if a thing is wrong in principle nothing can make it right, and to endeavor to sustain a wrong because it is an appendage to Mormonism, is a principle to which we can never subscribe. Mormonism professes to embrace all truth and to reject all error. We want no sophistry, no expediency, no covering up, our motto is, an open sea, a correct compass, and fair sailing.

As others may have had the same queries, we publish it for their information.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2, 1856.

DEAR SISTER,—In relation to the question you ask, what does Jacob mean in his Second Book, where he says "The people begin to wax in iniquity; they understand not the Scriptures; for they seek to excuse themselves in committing whoredoms, because of the things that were written concerning David and Solomon his son. Behold David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which things was an abomination unto me, saith the Lord." In the first place these people to whom Jacob speaks, were not married, but were living in whoredoms, without marriage. In the second place, it is evident "they understood not the Scriptures," or they would have known that Solomon and David were married to their wives, and that they were given them of God. Hence Nathan when speaking to David concerning Bethsheba says, "I GAVE thee thy masters houses, and thy master's wives into thy bosom." . . . . and if that had been too little, I would moreover have given unto thee such and such things." 1 Sam. Therefore David and Solomon's acts were no excuse for the whoredoms of this people.

The question with you however seems to be why the Lord should condemn the acts of Solomon and David, when he expressly states that he gave them wives. David and Solomon both took unto them "strange wives" and did many things that were abominable in the sight of God. David especially was cursed on this account, and Solomon's strange wives led his heart from God and he became an idolater; but independent of this they carried these things to an extreme; and although permitted of God to have wives, for a certain purpose, when they transcended their bounds and made of it simply a matter of lust, it became an abomination. The people to whom Jacob writes, understood not the Scriptures, nor the object of having more wives, and neither was it necessary then that they should have. Jacob at the same time informs them that the Lord saith, "If I will, saith the Lord of Hosts, raise up seed unto me, I will command my people; otherwise they shall hearken unto these things."

From the above we learn: 1st. That David and Solomon's wives were given of God. 2d. That God could not ordain an abomination; and that therefore it was their strange wives and their excesses that God was angry with; for he could not be angry at men for receiving his own gifts. 3d. That the people to whom Jacob speaks, were whoremongers and adulterers, and were prohibited from doing these things and even from having more than one wife. 4th. That if the Lord saw proper he would command his people to have more wives. This he has done. I hope the above will be satisfactory. Yours &c.,

JOHN TAYLOR.

PORT DOVER, C. W., Jan. 31, 1856.

DEAR BROTHER TAYLOR: I have received and read with much satisfaction, and I trust benefit to myself, your truly interesting and valuable paper, for the last year, and am constrained to say the Lord bless Brother Taylor in the arduous and responsible station to which he has been called; fully concurring in the sentiments contained in your prospectus, for the coming year, "that a bag of flour to a hungry family is of more value than empty prayers." I accompany my good wishes with the needful, for I am fully sensible that the heavy expenses connected with the publishing of THE MORMON should not be thrown upon your shoulders, but be borne by those for whom you labor. It is a doctrine long since established, from that best of books, that "the laborer is worthy of his hire;" and from the past year's labors we have a guarantee for the year to come. I have no doubt but the brethren will respond to the call; let each brother decide that he will either procure five subscribers or order that number for gratuitous distribution among his friends, and the information so desirable will be spread far and wide throughout the continent of America, and many would be led to acknowledge the truth, and would most undoubtedly embrace it. It is very evident from the signs of the times, that the present is one of the most eventful periods since the advent of our Saviour.

Enclosed I send you ten dollars, for which you will please forward me five copies of THE MORMON for one year, and oblige your friend and brother,

M. C. N.

ATCHISON KANSAS TERRITORY, January 29, 1856.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

DEAR BROTHER—The snow is now two feet deep here, and the weather is cold enough to require fire at all hours. The Missouri river is now frozen over and has been ever since the 24th of December—teams are crossing all the time; unless there is very warm weather, lasting for several days, the river will remain so for some time; yet, if the snow extends west to the mountains, the Missouri river will certainly overflow the bottoms this spring. While I write, the conversation in the room is in regard to late fights in Kansas; the war cloud has not entirely blown away yet. The Saints in Atchison and Mormon Grove are enjoying good health, with peace. There is no work, and but little business of any kind doing.

I remain,
Your Brother in the Covenant,
A. L. SILER.

Fulfilment of a Dream

After More than Two Hundred Years.

"ON the 13th of June, 1632, at Waterless, in the presence of several witnesses, there was a great fight between a mouse and a snake, and, after a long combat, the mouse prevailed and killed the snake. Mr. Wilson, the minister of Boston, who, we are told, was a very sincere and holy man, gave the following interpretation of the matter: 'The snake,' said he, 'is the devil; the mouse, a poor contemptible people, whom God has brought hither, who shall overcome Satan here, and dispossess him of his kingdom. At the same time, he told the governor that, before he resolved to come into this country, he dreamed that he was there, and saw a church rise out of the earth, which grew up and became a marvelous goodly church."—[History of the Western World.

Truly some things do cast their shadows before, and I opine that in the above remarkable interpretation and dream, is a shadowing of the approach of the organization of the kingdom of God. The Bible and the Book of Mormon inform us that in the latter days the ancient prophets that had lived upon the land of Joseph, or what is now called the American continent, should "whisper from the dust;" the result of their "whisperings" would be the organization of the kingdom of God on the western world. Isaiah: ch. xxviii.; 2 Nephi. ch. xi.

Joseph Smith, by direction of God, on the morning of the 22d of September, A.D. 1827, took some plates, upon which was engraven the history of the ancient inhabitants of America, from beneath the surface of the hill Cumorah, town of Manchester, Ontario county, State of New York, United States.

These records being taken from the ground, translated into the English language, and published to the world as the "Book of Mormon," soon found faithful adherents; and on the 6th of April, 1830, Joseph Smith, by divine command, organized the kingdom of God, with six members, at the house of Mr. Whitmer, in Fayette, Seneca county, State of New York, United States. The Church numbers at present about 400,000. Ever since the organization, "a poor contemptible people," under the the influence of the Holy Ghost, has been "brought hither" year after year from all nations of the earth.

A church has "risen" from the ground, and it certainly "grows," and already has become a "marvellous goodly church," and bids fair, at no very distant period, to "dispossess Satan of his kingdom." That Church is—The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Territory of Utah, United States.

GEORGE F. A. SPILLER.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 5, 1856.

More Leap Year Developments.

THE Lowell News says that the Leap Year Ball of the carpet factory girls came off according to announcement, on Thursday evening, and was a very pleasant affair. "The ladies," it says, "to the number of about seventy-five, healthy, robust, cherry and lovely, took their carriages, called for their beaux, were driven to the hall, where ladies managed, selected their own partners, ordered the supper and gloriously paid all the bills!" The partners selected spoke well for the judgment of the girls. The News says:

"We were amused, however, on observing bright eyed lasses, with roguish eyes, trip up the demure young men and solicit the honor of their hand for the 'next cotillion.' Who could refuse? One enraptured soul engaged himself to eight different ladies for 'Money Musk,' and to six others for 'Hull's Victory!' Many a poor heart hid away under a vest was irretrievably ruined. But it could not be helped."

The company broke up about 2 o'clock, when the ladies escorted their beaux home, and then went off to their own.

MARRIAGE OF ANTOINETTE L. BROWN.—The Rochester Democrat of Friday publishes the marriage of the well-known advocate of Woman's Rights, the Rev. Antoinette L. Brown, to Mr. Samuel C. Blackwell, of Cincinnati. The wedding ceremony was performed by Joseph Brown, Esq., the bride's father, at his residence in the town of Henrietta, Monroe County, on Thursday of last week. The Democrat supposes Mr. Blackwell to be a brother of Lucy Stone's husband. The affair was kept so still that none of Miss Brown's friends in Rochester suspected it until the deed was done.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14, 1856.

THE annual report of the Superintendent of the United States Coast Survey was laid before the Senate.

Mr. Weller introduced a bill providing for an over land mail from some point on the Mississippi River to San Francisco.

The Senate resumed the consideration of Mr. Wilson's resolution, calling on the President for all the information in his possession respecting the disturbances in Kansas, affecting the freedom of election.

Messrs. Weller, Tessenden, Geyer, and Toucey, participated in the debate, after which the subject was postponed and the propriety of repealing the law under which the board acted, was discussed to the time of adjournment. Adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. John Letcher was appointed a member of the Committee of Ways and Means in place of Mr. Jones of Tennessee, excused from service thereon.

On motion of Mr. Cobb of Ga., the President's Annual Message and the accompanying documents were referred to a Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union.

Mr. Florence presented a memorial from A. H. Reeder, contesting the seat of J. S. Whitfield as Delegate from Kansas.

The memorial, together with others contesting the seats of Messrs. Atlen of Illinois, Galligo of New Mexico, and Eustis of Louisiana, were referred to the Committee on Elections.

The President's special message in regard to Kansas was taken up.

Mr. Houston moved to refer it to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union.

Mr. Giddings appealed to the friends of humanity to send it to the Committee on Territories, as it was necessary to legislate at the earliest possible moment, in order to avert the dangers threatening the people of the Territory, and prevent them from being butchered by the Federal troops.

Mr. Dunn thought the Judiciary Committee the proper reference. He protested against the bayonet being presented against his brethren in Kansas.

Messrs. Orr and others contended as to the various recommendations contained in the message that the House could determine after discussion on the proper reference of them.

Mr. Houston's motion prevailed by three majority. Adjourned to Monday.

SENATE.

Feb. 18, 1856.

Mr. Hamlin gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to amend and consolidate the navigation, revenue and collection laws.

Mr. Wilson offered a resolution [which lies over, under the rule,) calling on the President for full information as to Kansas affairs, and what measures have been taken to prevent the illegal interference with the rights of the people of the Territory by persons not residing therein.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the resolution calling for the journal of the proceedings of the Naval Board.

The discussion of the resolution was not concluded when a message from the President was announced, in reply to the resolution calling for information concerning Kansas affairs, except the instructions of the Secretary of War to Colonel Sumner.

Mr. Toucey expressed his warm approval of the course pursued by the Executive, and hoped he would be sustained by every law-abiding man. The President had done neither more nor less than his duty on that subject.

Mr. Wilson said the correspondence totally misrepresented affairs in Kansas. He contended that the Border Ruffians had carried the elections there at the point of the bowie-knife. He had not concluded when the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Fifteen thousand copies of the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury, twenty thousand of the President's Annual Message and accompanying documents, and ten thousand copies of the Report of the Coast Survey were ordered to be printed.

Sixty thousand copies of the mechanical portion of the Report of the Commissioner of Patents was ordered to be printed.

On the motion of Mr. Grow the President was requested, if not incompatible with the public interest, to transmit to this House a copy of the laws passed by the Legislature of Kansas, and copies of all the Executive proceedings and correspondence of the Governor of that Territory.

Mr. Lane, delegate from Oregon, introduced a bill to enable the people of that Territory to form a State Government, preliminary to admission into the Union.

Referred to the Committe on Territories.

The Committee of Ways and Means was authorized to employ a permanent clerk.

Mr. Dunn introduced a bill re-establishing the boundaries of Kansas, and prohibiting slavery in that Territory and Nebraska.

Referred to Committee on Territories. Adjourned.

SENATE.

Feb. 19, 1856.

The consideration of the Kansas question was resumed.

Mr. Geyer asked Mr. Wilson on what authority he yesterday stated that Mr. Atchison went to Kansas armed, to control the election.

Mr. Wilson replied on the authority of Gen. Pomeroy. On the 13th of March, as stated by Gen. P., Mr. Atchison entered the Territory armed with a bowie-knife and revolver, ready to shed the blood of any man who would not do his bidding.

Mr. Geyer did not suppose Gen. Pomeroy made the statement on his own authority, but that some one else had so reported to him. The only time Mr. Atchison ever crossed the border, so far as he (Geyer) had been able to learn, was during the late disturbances, an account of which was read in the Senate yesterday. At that time it was apprehended that there would be a serious collision and destruction of life. Then Mr. Atchison, with two or three other gentlemen, went into Kansas for the purpose of persuading those assembled at Wakausa to forbearance and moderation. He went there to counsel peace, not to excite violence, and that was the only time he ever went there.

Mr. Jones of Tennessee obtained the floor and the further consideration of the subject was postponed until Monday. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Hickman, from the Committee on Elections, offered a resolution empowering the Committee to send for persons and papers in the contested Kansas election case.

Mr. Phelps thought that the exercise of such a power would be a usurpation, as Mr. Reeder does not claim he was elected by virtue of the law passed by the Kansas Legislature. He defended his constituents from the charge of being "border ruffians" which had been repeated here and elsewhere, and by one Senator Wilson, who comes from a State where men warred on defenseless women, and burned Ursuline Convents. He earnestly condemned the anti-slavery men in Kansas and claimed that the Missourians desire not the shedding of blood, but to sustain the laws.

Mr. Washburne of Maine regretted that Mr. Phelps had indulged in such remarks, which were exceedingly exciting, not to say inflamatory. A large majority of the people of this country believe in their hearts that there was no Legislature of Kansas, no law, and nothing having the rigor and effect of law, under which the election had been held and by which Mr. Whitfield claims his seat as delegate. This matter should be investigated, and be asked how could it be done unless power to send for persons and papers was granted.

Mr. Stephens remarked that Gov. Reeder himself commissioned the members of the Legislative Assembly, which passed the law under which Mr. Whitfield was elected—the validity of which Mr. Reeder was called on the House to investigate, consequently all further proceedings were stopped by the official acts of Gov. Reeder, who was thus out of his own mouth condemned.

Mr. Campbell of Ohio, said it was a well settled principle of law that any statute may be violated by fraud, which violation forms a subject for thorough investigation. On this point the House should be satisfied, and something more was desired on which to form the judgment than mere newspaper reports and telegraphic dispatches.

Mr. Hickman, thought the newspaper reports of the difficulties in Kansas, had exaggerated or magnified either on one or the other side of the question—according to the sentiments of the writers. It is consequently important that the investigation should be aided by the means proposed. Mr. Reeder had done all the act of Congress required of him in the premises.

The question was then taken on Mr. Stephens's motion, that the request of the Committee on Elections be referred back to the Committee with instructions to report the grounds on which they ask for the power to send for persons and papers.

The motion was negatived by the casting vote of the Speaker.

Pending the consideration of the main question [resolution to grant the Committee power to send for persons and papers] the House adjourned.

SENATE. Feb. 20, 1856.

Mr. Douglas, on his own request, was excused from serving on the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Mason stated that the existing maps of Central America are nearly all of British origin; therefore, in view of conflicting opinions between this Government and England, the Committee on Foreign Relations consider it eminently important that a correct map be procured for diffusion throughout the Union.

On motion, ten thousand copies of the map of Central America prepared by the U. S. Coast Survey were ordered printed.

After other miscellaneous business a brief discussion on the Central American question ensued, Messrs. Butler, Crittenden and Mason taking part in it.

The Central American question was made the special order for Tuesday.

The resolution calling for a copy of the journal of the Naval Retiring Board was adopted.

Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

By Mr. Mace, to prevent the extension of slavery in the Territories of the United States north of 36 deg. 30 minutes. [Sensation.]

Mr. Mace moved its reference to the Committee on Territories.

A good deal of talk ensued, but no business of consequence worthy of notice.

The election of Chaplain was indefinitely postponed, by six majority, with the understanding that all of the ministers of the city be invited, meantime, to officiate alternately.

Adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14, 1856.

GOV. SHANNON, Governor of Kansas, arrived here this forenoon.

Relief for Vessels in Distress.

BOSTON, Feb. 14, 1856.

THE Board of Underwriters and merchants have signed a memorial to be presented to Congress, praying that a steamer may be dispatched by Government to the aid of vessels on the coast.

The Hon. Benjamin Seaver, late Mayor of this city, died this morning.

The Weather, etc.

BUFFALO, Feb. 14, 1856.

THE thermometer here this morning indicates 10 degrees below zero. The mails are very irregular and will continue so to be till the weather moderates.

Railroad Travel.

BOSTON, Feb. 18, 1856.

A STRONG northwest gale has been blowing for the last forty hours.

Railroad travel is greatly retarded in all directions by the drifting of the snow.

Neither the Sunday night or the morning train from New York has yet arrived here. The track is all blocked up this side of Springfield.

No mail train left Boston for New York this afternoon. No train arrived from Portland to-day.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19, 1856.

THE Senate to-day, in Executive Session, after a very warm debate, confirmed Wilson Shannon as Governor of Kansas, by a strictly party vote—twelve votes being cast in the negative.

During the Executive Session an ineffectual effort was made to conduct the discussion with open doors.

Col. Fremont's warrant for the Mariposa tract of land in California was signed to-day by the Land Commissioner.

Southern Mail—Marine Disaster.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19, 1856.

NEW ORLEANS papers of Wednesday are received.

The ship Canton, from New York for Rotterdam, and the James Ray, from Philadelphia for Liverpool, disabled, have put into Savannah.

The Steamships Arago, Canada, and Pacific.

BOSTON, Feb. 20, 1856.

THE steamship Arago, which arrived at Havre January 26, from New York, reported having experienced very heavy weather on the passage. On the Banks she ran into several icebergs, which damaged the false keel and rubbed off several sheets of copper forward.

Capt. Lang of the Canada thinks the statement of the Pacific putting into the River Shannon previous to the 28th of January, wholly unfounded. She was last seen off Waterford from the ship Tonawanda, from Philadelphia, since arrived at Liverpool.

Capt. Lang reports very severe weather during the whole passage, with strong westerly gales—hence he infers that if the Pacific had been disabled by ice she would have had no difficulty in putting back under canvas.

The Steamship Alabama at Halifax—No Tidings of the Pacific.

HALIFAX, Feb. 20, 1856.

THE steamer Alabama arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning—her search for the Pacific having proved fruitless. She crossed the Grand Banks in latitude 43 deg.; was twenty-four hours in the ice. She left Cape Race for this port on the 16th short of coal, and will leave here on her return to New York, this evening. The United States propeller Arctic is still here.

Statistics of Western Hog Packing.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 20, 1856.

THE total number of hogs packed during the past season was 405,396—an increase over that of last year of 49,610. The increase in weight is equal to 7½ per cent., and in the yield of lard 3¼ lbs. per hog over last year.

A RIVAL TO COLT'S REVOLVER.—Mr. J. W. Morse, late State Engineer of Louisiana, has invented a gun or pistol which the Baton Rouge Comet thinks is superior in efficiency to Colt's invention. It loads at the breech, says the Comet, fires a Minnie ball, and a man may shoot it as fast as he can put his cartridges in. The firing is no way interrupted until the barrel becomes too hot to admit of handling. The whole apparatus of the lock does not take up half the space of the ordinary gun-lock, and independent of this it is impervious to water. Mr. Morse, will, in a few days, go to Washington to obtain letters patent for his invention.

THE BRIGHTNESS OF ANCIENT PAINTINGS.—Sir Joshua Reynolds, the great artist, confessed, after making it the study of his life, that he had never been able to discover how Raphael and the other great artists had been able to preserve the beauty and brightness of their paintings. The colors of Sir Joshua already look chalky and dead; while those of Titian are equally as vivid and beautiful as when first laid on by the great artist, and paintings which have been more than two thousand years in the damp, dark toombs of Egypt, are yet fresh and bright.

LAW AGAINST LADY SEDUCERS.—There is a seduction bill before the Kentucky Legislature to which an amendmett has been presented, which, if adopted, will create some stir among the ladies. It provides that any female, guilty of attempting to seduce a young man by wearing low neck dresses, and other captivating articles of attire, shall be punished with the same penalty affixed to cases of seduction.

A LADY named Miller, upwards of 70 years of age, residing about eight miles from Pittsburg, who has been lying seriously ill for some time, has not eaten a morsel of food for forty days, and her only drink was water. Her physicians have not given the disease any name.

THACKERAY offered to lecture before the New Orleans Lyceum for $250 per night, and half of the profits. The officers deemed this too high.

THE Boston Traveller of Tuesday says:—A letter received in this city from St. Thomas, dated Dec. 18th, states that accounts received there from St. John, P. R., are to the effect that business was utterly prostrated by the ravages of the cholera, the number of cases, so far, in that city, according to the official statement, being 3,500, with the large per centage of 1599 deaths. The disease had not spread in the surrounding country to any great extent.

THE Chicago Times says, during the ninety-two days comprising the last quarter of 1855, the almost incredible number of fourteen millions three hundred and sixty-eight thousand news-papers and printed publications have passed through the post office Chicago.

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

Stars.

WE have on hand a number of the present volume of the MILLENIAL STAR, from the 1st to the 28th No

Price for the year..............$2 25
" " half year............ 1 12½

Also, a few numbers of the JOURNAL OF DISCOURSES, from No. 1 to 13; each No., 10 cents.

We have paid the American, as well as foreign, postage on the above, which is 2 cents each number, extra, for the volume. $1 04.

St. Louis Book Agency.

J. S. CANTWELL, southwest corner of Washington avenue and Sixth street, St. Louis, Mo., has for sale, at the usual prices, the following books and pamphlets:

Book of Mormon, German; Voice of Warning, German; Voice of Warning, French; Martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and expulsion from Nauvoo; Route to Salt Lake Illustrated, in 14 monthly parts; Book of Mormon; Book of Doctrine and Covenants; Voice of Warning; Spencer's Letters; Hymn Books; Government of God, by J. Taylor; New Jerusalem, or the Fulfilment of Modern Prophecy; Divine Authority of Joseph Smith; Remarkable Visions; Only Way to be Saved; Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, by O. Pratt, 6 parts; Polygamy, by a Lady in Utah; The Seer, by O. Pratt, Vol. I., to which is added 6 parts of Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and Polygamy, by a Lady of Utah, elegantly bound, in one vol.; Orson Pratt's Works, bound; Times and Seasons, Vols. IV., V., and VI., well bound; Portraits of the First Presidency; Journal of Discourses, well bound; Millennial Star, Vol. XVII.

Mormon Publications.

THE DESERET NEWS is a weekly paper, the official organ of the Church in Utah, and is published in Salt Lake City; it is ably edited by Albert Carrington. It is circulated extensively in Utah Territory; how much abroad we are not prepared to say. Price of subscription, $5 in advance.

THE MILLENNIEL STAR.—A weekly publication of 16 pages, adapted for binding; of which there are 16 volumes now bound. It is printed on good paper, clear type, and is devoted principally to the progress of the work in Europe. It is very ably edited by F. D. Richards, one of the Twelve Apostles, and President of the European Church.

Price in England, one penny, or two cents. The law of postage between England and the United States is, that two cents on each paper shall be prepaid in each country, and two cents after the arrival.

Price of subscription, including foreign postage, $2.25, in advance, sent to the address of subscribers. Elder Richards has requested us to act as agent, but has not given us the terms. The above is the nearest approximate that we can arrive at without instructions.

The subscriptions can be sent to us, and we will immediately forward the names and address.

Published at 36 Islington, Liverpool, and at 35 Jewin street, City, London.

Besides the above, there is a paper published in Australia, another in Bombay, one in Switzerland, one commencing on the Sandwich Islands, one in California, and one in Cincinnati; besides a host of minor publications.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

JULY, 1855.

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb.	30 35
do clarified "	30
do brown "	30
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	35
Tea, Young Hyson "	1 50
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	1 50
Tea, black, per lb	1 50
Apples, dried, per lb	30
Peaches "	30
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb	75
Allspice "	40
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	40
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	40
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	40
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	60
Brimstone "	30
Sulphur "	30
Borax "	75
Raisins "	75
Candy "	60
Candles, 6 to the lb.	50
Figs, per lb.	60
Cloves, per oz.	10
Nutmegs "	10
Oysters, per can	1 50
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	1 50
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 25
do pints "	75
Lemon Syrup "	1 25
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	15
do 10x12 "	20
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	30
Pepper "	15
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb.	30
Glue "	60
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	30
Copperas "	30
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	60
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	40
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $2 pr lb. or pr oz	15
Gum Camphor, per oz.	15
Gum Arabic "	10
Cream Tartar "	10
S. C. Soda "	15
Turkey Opium "	75
Golden Seal "	15
Liquorice, per lb	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	16 00
Turpentine, per gal.	5 00
Linseed Oil "	6 00
Copal Varnish "	8 00
White Oil "	6 00
Tanner's Oil "	5 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	[illegible]
Painkiller, per bottle	75
do do do	40
Mustang Liniment, p bot	40
Rope, sea grass, per lb.	40
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	20
do 2d do	40
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$2 25
do boys', handled	2 00
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	2 00
Shovels	2 50
do steel plated	3 00
Grain Scythes	3 00
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 00
Two prong Hay Forks	1 50
Three do do	1 75
Four do dung do	2 50
Hoes	1 25
Compass Augers, per j.	[illegible]
Bitts	[illegible]
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 50
Common do	1 00
Brass Kettles, per lb	1 00
Flat Irons	50

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	25
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	50
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	80
Sand Paper, pr 2 sheets	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb.	25
SCREWS. Size.	Gross.
½ inch	50
[illegible]	1
[illegible]	1 25
[illegible]	1 50
[illegible]	1 75
[illegible]	2 50
[illegible]	3 00
[illegible]	4 00
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	20
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1½	20
1¾	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	20
10 do	25
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	20
Hicks' Best, 250	1 00
Powder per lb.	70
Lead "	20
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	7 00
Fine do	9 50
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 00
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 25
do do Low	2 25
do Fine Boots	3 25
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 00
Kacks	45
Sole Leather, per lb.	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	5 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to	1 75
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz	75
Oil Cassia "	75
Oil Peppermint "	75
Oil Lemon "	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 15¢ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 15c pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	45
Ticking	30
Blue Drilling	30
Denims	25
Cotton Batten, per roll	25
do Yarn, per 5 lb	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 [illegible]
Butter, per lb.	35
Eggs, per doz.	25
Cheese, per lb.	25
Bacon, smoked, per lb.	30
Shoulder "	25
Ham "	35
Middle "	30
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 00
Oats "	1 70
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar cured Beef, pr lb	30
Beef, fresh, per lb.	9
Mutton "	10
Tongues, each	50
Tallow, per lb.	60
Lard "	60
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft., $3 to	5 00
Adobies, per 100	[illegible]
Stone, per cord	12 00
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	12 00

Mormon Books

WE have received, and have for sale, the following Books, and at the annexed prices:

Book of Mormon, roan	1 25
Doctrines and Covenants	1 00
Spencer's Letters, cloth bound—O. Spencer	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
Voice of Warning—P. P. Pratt	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
do do calf gilt, do	1 25
Government of God—J. Taylor	0 50
Pearl of Great Price—F. DeRichards	0 37½
Livre de Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Das Buch Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Zion's Panier—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Etoile du Deseret—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Route to Salt Lake, illustrated—Piercy & Linforth—per No.	0 40

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to Feb. 22, 1856.

Article	Price
ASHES—Pot..........per 100 lb.	6 50 a 7 —
Pearl	7 75 a 8 —
CANDIES—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted..........per lb.	— a —
Ordinary	— a —
CANDLES—Sperm..........per lb.	38 a 40
Adamantine	26 a 32
Mould, yellow	15 a 17
COFFEE—Java, white	14 a 14½
Mocha	— a 15
Laguayra	10½ a 12
Maracaibo	10½ a 12
St. Domingo (cash)	9½ a 10
DRUGS AND DYES—Alcohol..pr. gal.	— 66 a — 72
Alum..........per lb.	— 2¼ a — 2¾
Arrowroot	— 50 a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— — a — 2½
Asafœtida	— 5 a — 25
Borax, refined	— 28 a — 28½
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2¼ a — —
do crude..........per ton.	30 — a 32 —
Camphor, crude..........per lb.	— 24 a — 24½
do refined	— 34 a — —
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 80 a 1 90
Chlorate Potash	— 40 a — 45
Cochineal	1 05 a 1 25
Copper—sheathing..........per lb.	— 23 a — 27
Copperas..........per 100 lb.	1 25 a — —
Cream Tartar..........per lb.	— 30½ a — 31
Gum Arabic, picked	— 18 a — 35
Gum Copal	— 40 a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 28 a — 30
Iodine, resublamized	5 10 a — —
Ipecacuanha	2 12½ a 2 25
Madder	— 10 a — 11½
Magnesia	— 15 a — 17½
Do calcined	— 30 a — 32
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 18 a — 20
Oil Anis	— — a 5 —
Oil Bergamot	2 — a 2 12½
Oil Cassia	— — a 3 50
Oil Lemon	2 — a 2 12½
Oil Peppermint	3 — a — —
Opium, Turkey	4 75 a 5 50
Otto Rose..........per oz.	3 50 a 6 50
Oxalic Acid..........per lb.	— 33 a — 34
Phosphorus	1 40 a 1 50
Quicksilver	— 43 a — 48
Rhubarb, China	2 — a 2 50
Saleratus	— 5¼ a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10 a — 11
Senna	— — a — 15
Shellac	— 11 a — 15
Sugar Lead, white	— 15 a — 16
do brown	— 9½ a — 10
Sulphate Quinine	2 25 a 2 70
Tartaric Acid	— 44 a — 45
Verdigris	— 37 a — 40
Vitriol, blue	— 10 a — 10½
DYE WOODS—Camwood...per ton.	70 — a 80 —
Fustic	17 — a 30 —
Logwood	19 — a 30 —
FLOUR—State, common...per bbl.	6 75 a 8 —
Michigan and Indiana	7 — a 7 75
Genesee, extra	8 — a 10 50
Rye Flour	4 75 a 6 75
Corn Meal	4 — a 4 12½
FRUIT—Raisins..........per box.	2 50 a 3 —
Raisins, layers	3 — a 3 25
Currants..........per lb.	— 15 a — 25
GLASS (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10..........per 50 feet.	3 25 a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75 a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 — a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50 a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 — a 7 50
GRAIN—Wheat..........per bush.	1 70 a 2 12
Corn, round yellow	— 78 a 92 —
Barley	1 15 a 1 29
Oats, Western	— 48 a — 50
Beans	2 25 a 2 50
GUNPOWDER..........per 25 lbs.	3 50 a 6 50
INDIGO..........per lb.	— 90 a 1 30
IRON—Pig, Eng., Scot....per ton.	33 — a 35 —
Bar, Eng. refined	65 — a — —
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality...per lb.	— 15 a — 22
Sheet, Eng.	— 3¼ a — 4
LEAD—Galena.......per 100 lbs.	7 — a 7 25
Sheet and Pipe	— 8¼ a —
LEATHER..........per lb.	20 a 31
MOLASSES..........per gal.	33 a 44
NAILS—Cut, 4d and 6d..........per lb.	4½ a —
Wrought, 6d and 20d	6 a 7½
OILS—Olive...per bskt., 12 bottles	3 50 a — —
Olive, in casks..........per gallon.	1 15 a 1 22½
Linseed	— 88 a — 93
Whale	— 80 a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95 a 1 —
PAINTS—Lead, red, Am....per lb.	— 7¼ a — 8
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— 8¼ a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8¼ a —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	1 — a 1 62½
Ochre, in oil	— 4 a — 6
Spanish Brown, dry.......per cwt.	— 60 a — 75
Litharge..........per lb.	— 7¼ a — 8¼
Vermilion, Chinese	1 05 a — —
Venetian Red..........per cwt.	2 — a 2 37½
RICE..........per 100 lbs.	4 50 a 5 25
SALTPETRE..........per lb.	9 a 20
SEEDS—Clover..........per lb.	— 12½ a — 13½
Flax, American, rough..per bush.	2 — a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	2 30 a 2 40
SOAP—New York..........per lb.	4¼ a 7
Castile	11 a 11½
SPICES—Ginger, Race..........per lb.	5 a 5½
Mace	82½ a 87½
Nutmegs	90 a 93
Pepper	10 a 11½
Pimento	12 a 12½
Cloves (cash)	13 a 15
SUGAR—New Orleans..........per lb.	7½ a 8
Havana, white	9 a 9½
do brown	7½ a 8½
Stuart's crushed	a 10½
SUMAC, Sicily..........per ton.	72 50 a 82 50
TEAS—Gunpowder and Imperial..per lb.	35 a 75
Hyson	30 a 80
Young Hyson	32 a 70
Hyson Skin	20 a 85
Black	22 a 50
TIN—Banca..........per lb.	— a 31½
Straits	29 a 29
Plates..........per box.	9 — a 10 50
TOBACCO	7 a 43½
TURPENTINE..........per 280 lbs.	3 62½ a — —
TAR..........per bbl.	3 — a 3 25
SPIRITS TURPENTINE...per gallon.	— 41 a — 42

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side.

Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.

N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.

d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,

84 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.

House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.

Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22-6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVICE,

GUN AND LOCKSMITH,

Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.

Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,

HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK. d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.

Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.

Mattresses cleaned and renovated.

Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged. d22

REMOVAL.
MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.

MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.

☞ Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.

SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.

Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29-6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29-6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of WAGONS of every description.

Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H. j12-1y

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,

ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.

The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind, which will insure satisfaction.

Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.

Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.

HOOPER & WILLIAMS.

G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,

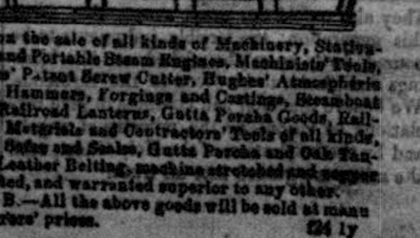
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.

Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.

E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.

REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.



UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.

Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
☞ Saw Spindles always on hand. j13

WM. O. GIBSON, J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29-tf

M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.

N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices.

f24 1y

23829

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaitraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours? Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés?" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophèties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les ecès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets.
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines, Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

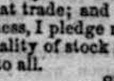
CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city,
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 baskets dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26:tf



NOW IS YOUR TIME TO BUY GROCERIES CHEAP.
CALL AND BE CONVINCED.
"HONEST COMPETITION IS THE LIFE OF TRADE."
FRANCIS LEPERE,
WHOLESALE & RETAIL GROCER,
South-east corner Seventh st. and Franklin Av.
On hand for the Holidays,
Currants, Citron, and Raisins, at the lowest prices, by F. LEPERE.
Fresh Family Flour, of best favorite country brands, constantly on hand, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
CHEESE—W. R. and English dairy—Sap Sago, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
ENGLISH SPLIT PEAS—10 bbls. just received, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
SPICES—Cinnamon, Cloves, Ginger, Nutmegs, Mace, and Caraway Seeds, 1,500 lbs., whole and ground, in store, for sale low, by d22 1m F. LEPERE.

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22–1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.

A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10–6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 84 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all.
W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. F. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT, STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Busby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T.
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER;
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c. fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of
Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

THE MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
The Greatest Blessing of the Age for the Cure of Diseases of Man or Beast requiring External Application.

"BRING hither the poor, the halt, the lame and the blind," if you would have them healed of their many infirmities. We boldly and fearlessly assert that the Mustang Liniment will positively cure Rheumatism. Let any who are afflicted with that most painful complaint try it thoroughly according to directions, and if they are not cured we will give them their money back. What more can we say? It will also cure the Piles. Thousands have tried it—and all were cured. Bruises, Sprains, Sores or Eruptions fade away as if touched by the magician's wand. Its application to burn or scald acts like "oil upon the troubled waters." The tempest of pain and agony is soon stifled, and the patient is hushed to quiet and peaceful slumbers. "There is balm for every wound," and that balm is the Mustang Liniment. Everybody that sells medicine keeps it for sale. "Hold your horses," and if they are crippled, galled or sprained, use the Mustang Liniment.

READ THE FOLLOWING CERTIFICATES.
THROUGH BY EXPRESS!!!

This is to certify that the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used quite extensively in the stables of Adams & Co.'s Great Southern, Eastern and Western Expresses, for curing galls, chafes, scrofulas, sprains and bruises, and it has proved very effectual. Many of their men have also used it on themselves and their families, and they all speak of its healing and remedial qualities in the highest terms. One of our ostlers got kicked and badly cut and bruised on his knee; as usual, the Liniment was resorted to, and the soreness and lameness was soon removed, and it was perfectly well in three or four days. We have no hesitation in recommending it as a valuable preparation to be used externally on man or beast.
J. DUNNING,
Foreman of Adams & Co.'s Express Stable, N. Y.

We take pleasure in recommending the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT to all our friends and customers as the best article we have ever used for sores, sprains or galls in horses. We have used it extensively and always effectually. Some of our men have also used it for severe bruises and sores, as well as rheumatic pains, and they all say it acts like magic—we can only say that we have entirely abandoned the use of any other Liniment.
J. M. HEWITT, Foreman for
AMERICAN EXPRESS CO., 10 Wall st.
HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, 74 Broadway.
PULLEN, VIRGIL & CO., 10 Wall st.
WELLS, FARGO & CO., 16 Wall st.

MR. WILLIAM JOHNSON, for the last five years a citizen of Augusta, and now the proprietor of the fine hotel in Savannah, called the Marshall House, has favored us with the following certificate:
The MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used in my family, and on my farm, for a great variety of diseases requiring an external application, and has never failed to give immediate relief and effect a permanent cure. I have cured several cases of rheumatism that had resisted the skill of our best physicians. It has cured ringworms by a single application, chilblains in a few days, toothache, frost bites, cuts, sores and corns by a few applications; nervous headache cured entirely. In fact, I have used it for almost everything, and it has always cured. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used. WILLIAM JOHNSON.
Savannah, June 24th, 1852.

June, 25th, 1852.
I have used the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT in my stables upon my horses in cases of sprains, bruises, galls and sores of different kinds, incident to a large number of horses. I used it upon a horse that had been saddle galled for nearly a year. I had tried many remedies, and one in particular, that I had been in the habit of using for years, and had generally proved successful. Nothing appeared to give it any relief until I tried the Mustang Liniment, which cured it in a very short time. I consider it an invaluable remedy, and would not be without it. WM. H. HOLMES.
SAVANNAH, Geo., June 25, 1852.

We have also used the MUSTANG LINIMENT extensively in our stable, and we find it to be the best remedy we have ever used for sores or lameness of any kind.
SAWYER, HOLLISTER & CO.
The above are from two of the largest livery stables in the State of Georgia.

B. H. MEEKINS, 189 Walnut street, Cincinnati, was confined to his bed under the treatment of a physician some six weeks, with Neuralgia, of the whole of his right side, leg, arm and face; his sufferings were indescribable, and the only cessation from the most agonizing pain, was while under the influence of opium or morphine. His doctor finally advised him to try the MUSTANG LINIMENT; he did so, and in two days was able to go about his business perfectly cured.

This is to certify that I have used the MUSTANG LINIMENT recently in a very severe case of sprain. The right hip was so badly sprained and bruised that fears were entertained that it was out of joint. I obtained a bottle of Mustang Liniment and used it freely for four days, when the soreness and pain were all gone and the hip joint was well.
I have also used the Liniment for the Piles, with which I have been afflicted for many years. Its effects were wonderful. Free applications night and morning for a week have perfectly cured me. Thousands of persons are suffering with this painful disease, and you are at liberty to make this statement public, that all may learn what will cure them.
My brother also states that he has used the Mustang Liniment with the most perfect success in two cases of severe bruises, at our factory in Williamsburgh, and says he considers it invaluable about an establishment where a large number of men and horses are at work, and constantly liable to serious accidents. EDWIN R. BARRON.
64 Duane st., New York, June 25, 1852.

☞ While hundreds are rejoicing in the happy escape from smarting pains, occasioned by Burns, Bruises and Sprains, thousands of others will buy the Mustang Liniment and experience the same happy results.

☞ The popularity of the Mustang Liniment is a "fixed fact," therefore those suffering with Ulcers, Old Sores, Eruptions, and like complaints, need not be reminded of its superiority to give it a trial.

☞ The Ladies will always rejoice at the happy experience of curing eruptions, sore nipples, broken or caked breasts, piles and corns, after a thorough trial of the Mexican Mustang Liniment.

☞ The Mustang Liniment will give the most undoubted satisfaction to any one giving it a trial for stiff joints, stiff neck, or sore throat; it has proved itself efficacious in these complaints in many very stubborn cases.

☞ If you have any ugly, painful corns upon your feet, get a bottle of Mustang Liniment and apply it twice a day for eleven days, and the trouble will be gone.

GEO. W. WESTBROOK, Sole Proprietor, 343 Broadway, New York, and St. Louis, Mo.
PRICES—25 CENTS, 50 CENTS, AND $1 A BOTTLE.
The One Dollar Bottles contain eight times as much as the 25 cent Bottles.
The MUSTANG LINIMENT is sold by all Druggists in Chicago, and by one or more agents in every town and village in the State of Illinois. d22

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
Please call and examine for yourseles, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
☞ Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je9–

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS.
fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 2. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 1, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Dead, Yet Undivided.

BY CHARLES SWAIN.

They are together still—
The parted still are one!
The love our being's home can fill,
Although the loved be gone!
The mystery of the spirit's birth
Outfathoms human skill;
Though one's in heaven and one on earth,
They are together still!

For there's a feeling that unites
The distant and the dead;
The last sweet bloom that winter blights,
Yet leaves the odor shed:
And thus affection lives beyond
Death's dark and withering will;
No power hath he to part the fond—
They meet, in spirit, still!

In quiet thought, in lonely prayer,
That spirit all pervades;
It lends a glory to the air
When every planet fades;
It circles all with holiness,
It blunts the barb of ill;
And e'en the parted it can bless,
And link together still!

Kansas Again.

We have from time to time given an account of the affairs in Kansas, and as the strife is still progressing it may not be uninteresting to our readers to have some of the prominent items, on both sides laid before them. It will be seem by the following that both North and South are zealously engaged in raising both men and means to go to that Territory to establish their several claims. The South think they see their rights and are bound to have them, so they say; and the North profess equal honesty, equal zeal, and an equal desire for right. Members of Congress on both sides are equally zealous. Kansas is to be the battle ground, while the President is determined that the highminded patriotic, peaceable and justice loving citizens of the United States shan't fight. It is evident, however, that they are getting up a row, and for the present we must leave our readers to judge who are in the right and what will be the end of these things. We might say, but "will wait a little longer."

Gov. Johnson of Georgia, in reference to the resolutions of the Vermont Legislature heretofore referred to, hold the following:

But it is vain to expect that our assailants will voluntarily relent their purpose or relax their efforts for our destruction. They will either conquer the friends of the Constitution and the Union or they must be conquered. In the latter result, the rights of the South will be maintained; but in the event of the former, the South must take care of herself. Such is the awful issue which is now distinctly presented to the country. Whilst you should studiously avoid all rashness, either in expression or action, you will be disloyal to the great first law of self-protection if you should fail to adopt such measures of legislation as may be best calculated to avert impending calamities if they may be, and if not, to protect the State against their ruinous consequence. Georgia took her position upon this momentous issue in her Convention of 1850. In the fourth resolution adopted by that body she solemnly announced that she would "resist, even (as a last resort) to the disruption of every tie that binds her to the Union," the acts of aggression therein enumerated. But the Convention did not designate the time and mode of resistance, but left it for a future Convention to determine. But such a Convention cannot be assembled without legislative authority. I therefore respectfully renew the recommendation contained in my message to the General Assembly at the commencement of your session, that you pass an act authorizing the Governor, upon the happening of any of the contingencies specified in the fourth resolution of the Convention of 1850, to call a Convention to consider and determine the time and mode of resistance thereby contemplated. Should such contingency never arise, the Legislature can do no harm; if it should, it will be notice in advance to our assailants; will throw upon them the responsibility of consequences, and justify the State in the estimation of mankind. The signs of the times are portentous; it rests with you calmly and firmly to place the State in the best attitude to breast the swelling storm.

The reading of the message and of the Vermont resolutions in the House of Representatives was followed by a scene, which the Milledgeville journals thus describe:

Every man expressed the utmost contempt and loathing for this string of insulting falsehoods and for their authors. The only point upon which they were not agreed was what disposition should be made of them.

Mr. Lewis, of Green, moved to refer them to the committee on the State of the Republic.

Mr. Jones, of Morgan, opposed, and offered a resolution that the Governor transmit to the Governor of Vermont, with a request to lay the same before the Legislature of said State, the resolves of the Georgia Convention of 1850, and to enclose within the same a leaden bullet.

Mr. Terhune said he would go for that if they would send powder with it.

Mr. Jones—And a coil of rope.

Mr. Terhune—"Hanging is too for traitors." He was opposed to referring these resolutions to the Committee on the State of the Republic. Words were useless. The time for action had come. He, for one, was prepared to act, and he hoped they would not be bound in the form of a committee.

Mr. Crook, Chairman of the Committee, assured the gentleman from Floyd that the Committee had as much contempt for these things as he, and that some active indication of that would be recommended by them.

Mr. Smith, of Union, offered the following resolutions, the reading of which was received with applause by the House:

Resolved, By the General Assembly of the State of Georgia, that his Excellency, the Governor, be, and is hereby, requested to transmit the Vermont resolutions forthwith to the deep, dark and fetid sink of social and political iniquity from whence they emanated, with the following unequivocal declaration inscribed thereon:

Resolved, That Georgia, standing on her Constitutional palladium, heeds not the maniac ravings of hell-born fanaticism, nor stoops from her lofty position to hold terms with perjured traitors.

After some further discussion, the motion to refer prevailed. A motion was then made to print five hundred copies of the Governor's Message (accompanying these resolutions) and Vermont resolves. The House would not for a moment entertain the idea of printing these insults, but, after some further debate, one hundred copies of the message were ordered to be printed.

In the Senate, the following resolution was offered:

Resolved, That his Excellency, President Pierce, be requested to employ a sufficient number of able-bodied Irishmen to proceed to the State of Vermont, and to dig a ditch around the limits of the same, and to float "the thing" into the Atlantic.

As John Quincy Adams once said, in reply to the bluster of slaveholders, "This is terrible—very terrible!" The descendants of Ethan Allen should tremble in view of their impending fate.

South Again.

From the (Alabama) Spirit of the South.

TO KANSAS EMIGRANTS AND TO ALL FRIENDS OF THE SOUTH.

I had proposed to start with my company of Kansas emigrants on the 11th of February next, but many of them being unable to get ready by that time, and others being unwilling to go before spring, and especially as I am advised by my correspondents that the Missouri and Kansas rivers are already impeded by ice, I have determined to postpone starting till the winter breaks.

The emigrants may rendezvous at Eufaula, on the 31st of March next, at Columbus, Ga., on the 3d of April, and at Montgomery, Ala., on the 5th of April next—so that I can start from Eufaula, via Columbus and Montgomery, collecting on the way those I find at the different places of rendezvous. The company will travel from Montgomery by steamers, via Mobile and New Orleans, or else by railroad via Atlanta to Nashville, and thence by steamer to Kansas. I engage to transport no baggage except six blankets, one gun, one knapsack and one frying-pan to each emigrant. For baggage over and above this, the emigrant himself must engage transportation; many will have no more, and I must treat all alike. While I thought my company would be small I expected to be able to take women, children and slaves; but I find I must leave them to give place to men, who are now greatly needed in Kansas to preserve the public peace and enforce the laws. I now expect over four hundred men, and I will take no females, nor slaves, nor minors under eighteen years of age. Women and children should not be exposed there in tents in the spring, but the husbands should go first and prepare houses.

The regiment will be divided into companies of forty or fifty men, under the usual military officers, elected by the men. Officers have no emoluments, and the organization is on the principle of volunteer militia to sustain the laws; a majority of each company may expel any member. Rations, transportation and fare, that of soldiers in service. By remunerating me for the privilege of joining my party, for subsistence and transportation to Kansas, and for furnishing men to enter his pre-emption, each emigrant agrees to acquire a pre-emption, and to pay me, when his titles are perfected, a sum equal to the value of one-half of his pre-emption, which obligation he may discharge in money or property at a fair valuation, at his own option. I had heretofore, from misinformation, supposed pre-emptions assignable before patent, but on examining the act I find they are not. Neither does the donation act apply to Kansas, but each male of full age, widow or head of family who has not had a pre-emption under the act of 1841 and does not own 320 acres of land, and who has improved and settled on it—not to sell on speculation, but for his own use and cultivation—is entitled to enter 100 acres, at $1 25 per acre, payable any time before the land sales.

I have simplified my proposals to a single proposition, as above, in order to be more easily understood and to obviate the many questions that overwhelm me.

Besides taking only free males over eighteen the great number of applications compels this further modification, i. e.:—I will receive only those emigrants who rendezvous at the places above designated—at either of which places, i. e., Eufaula, Columbus, or Montgomery, I will receive all males over eighteen from any Southern state, who join me at the time above designated; their rations to begin from the time above named for rendezvous. Emigrants must pay their own expenses to the place and day of rendezvous. Those gentlemen in California and other States, forming companies to join me, can very easily obtain free transportation for their companies, by proper application to the directors of the railroads over which they must pass. They give free passage to cattle and agricultural productions to fairs, and why not to volunteers perilling all in their defence?

Without Kansas and slavery, free negrodom will soon crush out cattle, cotton, colleges, property and progress; drones will eat out the hive, railroads disappear, and wild beasts, briars and brambles overrun the land. It is a question not of property, but of the supremacy of the white race, in which rich and poor have equal interest. Kansas lost, and all west, nay, all east, of the Mississippi must soon follow. Kansas is the great outpost and standpoint in the contest. A people who will not defend their outposts have already succumbed to the invader. Do we fear to send one man, lest the North may send two? Then we have already ingloriously surrendered without a struggle.

All who intend to go, will please write me immediately.

W. P. Belcher, Esq., Abbeville, C. H., S. C., and Capt. E. B. Bell, Graniteville, Edgefield, S. C., I understand, are raising companies to join me. They doubtless can get free transportation for them to Columbus, Ga., and Carolina emigrants might do well to come with one of them.

All editors friendly to the enterprize, it is hoped, will copy this address in full.

J. Buford.

Eufaula, Ala., Jan. 10, 1856.

From the Edgefield (S. C.) Advertiser.

Go! for Kansas.

At the solicitation of many friends, I will proceed to organize a company of one hundred men to proceed to Kansas about the last of March.

This pioneer band needs the aid of the moneyed citizens. They go to a far-off country for the purpose of securing homes, and at the same time to defend Southern institutions. They appeal to their native State for aid, with the hope that their appeal will not be in vain.

It is impossible that the people of South Carolina can hear without emotion the news which daily comes to us from Kansas. The long and bitter animosities have, at last, ripened, and slavery and abolition—the North and the South—confront each other in armed and deadly war. The issue has come, and to the people of the South and of this State, to each and every slaveholder, the question addresses itself. What shall we do for Kansas? Shall we look listlessly, tamely on, while our friends, surrounded by the hosts of abolition, are risking their fortunes, perhaps shedding their blood, in our behalf? Can we do nothing, give nothing of our abundance in such a cause?

We trust that these questions may be answered in a worthy and liberal manner. Let patriotism, and State pride, and Southern spirit be expressed in some suitable, practical form of aid for Kansas. E. B. Bell.

House of Representatives, Dec. 31, 1855.

Capt. E. B. Bell—Dear Sir—In reply to your letter of the 28th, I must first repeat my proposition. The pledge was to give a hundred dollars to each company of one hundred men that might go to Kansas, under pledge to remain two years. Whenever you organize a company of a hundred men, and start for Kansas, I will pay to your treasurer the amount pledged. If my colleagues are not called upon to contribute to companies which may be raised in their own districts, they authorize me to say that each will contribute handsomely to the aid of your company.

Your intention of appealing, through the press, to the spirit and patriotism of the people of the State, is admirable. There are men scattered all over the State, also, who are willing to go, but not in sufficient numbers to form a separate company in each district. Come out with your publication, and when you get one hundred men solemnly pledged to go to Kansas, I feel authorized to pledge the South Carolina delegation for two hundred and fifty dollars.

You will certainly have the hundred dollars from me whenever you are ready to move with a hundred men. Or, should you fail in getting the full number of a hundred men, then you may call on me on the day that you start for as many dollars as you have men, under pledge to go and to remain two years in Kansas. P. S. Brooks.

Soliciting Aid in Georgia.

The Milledgeville correspondent of the Savannah Republican says: On the 6th inst., a gentleman from Kansas, by the name of White, the object of whose mission is to raise pro-slavery recruits for the ballot box in that Territory, delivered, in his own peculiar and forcible style, an interesting address to a large audience. If Kansas is what he represents her to be, any poor man who is willing to fight for the interests of the South might promote his welfare by emigrating thither. His contempt for abolitionists was clearly manifested, and especially for such as have been sent to that Territory by societies in the non-slaveholding States with a view to the formation of an anti-slavery constitution. He said that the object of his friends in Kansas was to triumph at the ballot box; but that if they failed in this, they were determined to achieve a victory at the cannon's mouth. He urged that the Legislature would promptly aid his enterprise or refuse to do so, in order that he might, if they failed, go before the people at once and raise funds by private subscription.

Southern Emigrants for Kansas—Alabamians Coming—Major Buford, etc.

From the Westport (Miss.) Border Times, Jan. 7th

We learn from the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser and Gazette of the 29th ult., that Major Jeff. Buford, of Eufaula, Ala., will leave that place about the 15th of February next with a company of between two and three hundred Southern emigrants, bound for Kansas Territory. The company will be in charge of Major Buford, who is highly spoken of as a wealthy, intelligent and energetic gentleman, and one well calculated to carry out a scheme of this kind. It is an individual enterprise; and if a few thousands more of our wealthy Southerners would imitate his example, Kansas would soon be beyond the reach of abolitionism.

As Major Buford passes through a wealthy section of country on his route, we trust that he will meet with the encouragement due him and that men and means will be furnished to carry out the scheme in a proper manner. The spirit of the South is rising—we are happy to see it—long have the fires been burning on the borderer's altar, sometimes dimly, always steadfastly; and now that signals of recognition and aid are looming up in the South, the warm flow of life blood goes cheerily through our veins, and we bid defiance to hordes of Northern Goths and Vandals, whose only aim seems to be bringing of discord, ruin and desolation to the teeming soil of Kansas Territory where, without them, all would be peace and prosperity. They had better beware the "Ides of March," for by that time thousands of Southerners will have made Kansas their home hundreds of whom are staying in the border counties of Missouri during the winter, from the fact of having been unable to put up comfortable winter quarters after having made their claims in the Territory. They are that class which the pious (!) and refined (!) Northern press denominates as "border ruffians;" and more, they are a class of men who know their right; and will maintain them.

In this connection, we would suggest Westport as one of the best places of rendezvous. Here all the necessary information as to claims, situations, &c., can be easily obtained; and in addition to this, our merchants, mechanics and business men generally are perhaps better prepared to do an outfitting business than at any other point. These are mere suggestions, and emanate from a desire not only to encourage emigration, but to afford every facility in our power to those at a distance, who are desirous of settling in Kansas, the information they may want.

Kansas Excitement in Lafayette, Indiana.

The excitement in town to-day, says the Lafayette (Ind.) American, of the 11th inst., in regard to Kansas, is considerable, be the same more or less, and fair prospects exist of a company being raised to proceed at once to the new Territory. If they go with the intention of becoming actual settlers, all right. Let them take with them the sinews of war, too, and be able to defend their rights, at the ballot box and elsewhere. But let them not imitate the example of the Missouri ruffians, by invading the Territory as an armed force of non-residents. The wrongs of Missouri bandits will excuse no similar wrongs on the part of Indianians. Keep cool, act calmly, be sure you are "right, and go ahead."

The North.

The Kansas Appeal in Rhode Island.

Governor Hoppin, of Rhode Island, has, like the Governors of Ohio and New York, communicated the appeal of the settlers of Kansas to the State Legislature, with the sympathetic message. The message of Governor Hoppin is as follows:

Executive Department,
Providence, Feb. 12, 1856.

It is my painful duty to transmit to the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives the accompanying document, received on Friday last from J. H. Lane, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Kansas Territory. The information communicated through this document is of a nature which demands the serious consideration of the Legislature, and which, if authentic, should call forth from the government and people of Rhode Island the expression, in language which cannot be misunderstood, of their indignant horror at so gross an outrage against our most sacred rights. I will not allow myself to comment upon the grave matters now presented to you for your deliberation, involving issues pregnant with the dissolution of the Union and the gloom of civil war. In the performance of my official duty I lay this document before you, that you may, in your combined wisdom, consider and decide what action, if any, the fearful exigency of the case demands.

William W. Hoppin.

After the communication and accompanying document had been read, the House concurred with the Senate in the passage of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the communication from his Excellency the Governor, relative to the condition of the people of Kansas, with the accompanying papers, be and they are hereby referred to a Committee consisting of Messrs. John Boyden, of Cumberland, Lieutenant Governor Rose, and William D. Brayton, of Warwick, on the part of the Senate, and Messrs. George Manchester, of Portsmouth, Charles H. Parkhurst, of Providence, and Joseph M. Blake, of Bristol, on the part of the House, for the purpose of considering the same, and reporting such action as they may deem proper.

A Plan for Settling Kansas.

To the Editor of the New York Tribune.

Sir: As there are many at the North interested in making Kansas a Free State whose private circumstances or business relations will not allow of their immediate emigration thither, I would propose that every such person shall send a substitute in the following manner: In every town in our rural districts there can be found from five to ten, or more, young men, married or unmarried, who could arrange their business so as to go to Kansas this Spring, but who, although they may have enough to take them there and provide them with the means of commencing operations, yet fear they will not be able to pay for their land when it comes into market.

Now I think those of us who can, should come forward and engage to furnish $200, or a warrant, to pay for the 160 acres which such a man may have claimed, and give him a deed for half of it, if he will do duty as a Free-State man in Kansas, residing on and improving his part of the quarter section for five years.

Kansas Meeting in New Haven.

The New Haven Journal of the 16th inst., says: The largest Kansas meeting that we have had during the past year was held last evening at Brewster's Hall. The hall was crowded at an early hour by our most respectable citizens, who seemed to take a deeper interest than ever in Kansas affairs.

Gen. Pomeroy, of Kansas, who had been announced as the speaker of the evening, was introduced by Hon. N. D. Sperry, who briefly stated the objects of the meeting. The General made a fine speech. He entertained the audience for more than an hour with his wit and eloquence, and was followed by C. B. Lines, Esq., who made a few remarks, in which he stated that a company was forming in this city to go to Kansas, and that he was going to leave New Haven, where he was born and had always lived, and although not a young man, was going with the New Haven colony to Kansas.

Judge Foster offered the following resolutions, and moved their adoption:

Resolved, That the Chairman of this meeting be requested to communicate to Generals Robinson and Lane and their compatriots, our admiration of the magnanimous and heroic stand by the free State men of Kansas, for the protection of their homes and their rights, under the prudent and brave conduct of their above named leaders—confirmed, also, by its issue in repelling the invaders through the mere terror of their arms and valor—together with our conviction that those events will ever constitute an illustrious chapter in the history of the defences of American national freedom.

Resolved, That the arguments put forth of late, in high places as well as in low, to uphold the validity of the Kansas ruffian Legislature, its doings and its delegate are nothing else than those perverted technicalities which are actually the daggers employed by the assassins of liberty.

Resolved, That the distinct on between "collecting money, engaging men and providing arms" for the purpose of an "invasive aggression," and "collecting, engaging and providing" the same for actual settlers, and for the purpose of preventing or counteracting an existing "invasive aggression," is unmistakeable; that the men who, from among us, propose, in the character of actual settlers, to transfer to Kansas the free institutions of New England, deserve and shall receive our cordial and substantial co-operation, and that N. D. Sperry, F. B. Pye, Chas. Thompson, Atwater Trest and John Peck, be a committee to collect subscriptions to be expended under the directions of the general Kansas committee in such a way as best to insure the safety, comfort and efficiency of the Connecticut emigrants.

A Meeting in Worcester, Massachusetts Rifles Subscribed.

A large meeting was held in Worcester on the 9th inst., to take such action as might be deemed advisable, to strengthen the hearts and hands of those who are upholding the cause of freedom in Kansas. Addresses were made by Gen. Pomeroy and Mr. Eli B. Thayer, which were received with much enthusiasm. Mr. Thayer said he was a peace man, and his offer to furnish a thousand rifles, was based upon an earnest and sincere desire to prevent the shedding of blood. He desired that some additional arms should be sent out, and he proposed to pay for ten Sharp's rifles at $25 each, on condition that, during the coming week, other citizens of Worcester would subscribe enough to make up the number to one hundred rifles. Several gentlemen subscribed for a rifle, and sent their names to the chair, and before the audience left the hall, twenty three rifles, equivalent to the sum of $575, were subscribed for.

Emigrant Aid in Lockport.

The Kansas Aid Society of Lockport, N. Y., immediately on the receipt of President Pierce's "border ruffian" proclamation, resolved to raise $1,000 to send to Kansas.

We have selected the above out of multitudes of the same tenor from North, South, East and West. The Anti-Slavery journals animadvert very severely on the proceedings of President Pierce on sending out the military to Kansas. Whilst the pro-slavery party think he is doing right. Sparks begin to fly in Congress and we may soon expect warm times.

Capt. Wm. Polk, of the U. S. Revenue service, died at Frederick, Md., on the 12th inst., and on the next day his wife died.

The Last Autograph of Logan Fontenelle.

One day last week, the aged Omaha Chief "Two White Buffalo," better known as "White Cow," strode majestically into our sanctum. With a solemn mystic air he passed to where we were sitting with quill in hand just raised from a half written article, extended his long brawny hand, at the same time ejaculating "cugga how" (how are you friend or brother.) We shook the hand of the noble old patriarch, gave him a seat, laid down our pen and faced him for a "talk." With his hand he motioned his attendant braves to seats around him, on the floor, whilst he lay off from his giant bust the skin of the buffalo that served as covering for his person, revealing huge scars upon the breast, neck and arms, of wounds received in battle, or from the weapons of his concealed foe, whilst the chief was hastening upon the war path of the treacherous Sioux.

A huge red-stone pipe which had served for many a winter, for token of war or peace, was filled with "kinnekanick," lighted by the fire, and placed to his mouth, from which escaped huge volumes of smoke whose aromatic flavor filled the room; after passing to us and his braves, he drew forth from his girdle, (from which was suspended the dark shiny scalp-locks of three Sioux warriors, a dingy piece of parchment carefully enveloped and tied with the sinews of the Buffalo. Slowly and cautiously he unwound the fastenings whilst his men in silence watched his motion, giving the precious relic a close and scrutinizing glance, he reached it forward, shrugged his bowed shoulders, looked us keenly in the face and in a voice of solemn and vehement oratory said, (interpreted by a person present)

"Johnson,* Brother—The white snow is on the hills, the frost has dried up the grass, green herbs and the leaves of the forest. The waters are turned to stone and are cold; dead and cold as the sparkling waters is our Chief. Logan was good, manly and brave; he loved the war-path and feared not the warriors of the Sioux. They came upon him; they pierced him with many arrows and took his scalp. These three scalp-locks, from the bravest of the Sioux, is my revenge. Logan has gone to the spirit land where the Buffalo never fail. This paper Logan wrote one sleep before his life was taken. He bade me bring it to you. A few only of Omaha warriors remain—the Sioux are many, we are sad and hungry and have now no home."

The chief resumed his war-pipe whilst we perused the last epistle and autograph of the brave and good Chief Logan Fontenelle.

We decyphered its contents. It was written at Blackbird, Nebraska, asking us to attend to some business for him in his absence.

Next day the wily Sioux, from an ambush, left him cold, bleeding and lifeless.

The old chief said he must go again to the hunting ground—he had nothing to eat—would come and see me on his return; then gathering about him his wild covering, arose, pressed our hand in token of continued friendship and strode from the room, leaving us to a long and sad reverie. The noble and brave, how diminished and fallen!!

*J. E. Johnson of the Council Bluffs Bugle.

How to Get Rid of a Faithless Wife.

A young man at Radcliffe, near Bury, England, after a short experience of matrimony found that his wife had more fondness for a lodger in the house than for her lawful husband, and that in fact, there was a criminal intimacy between them, adopted a capital expedient to get rid of both wife and paramour. He never breathed his suspicion to any one, but told his wife one day that he had determined to go to Australia. She was willing to go with him, she said, but what was to become of John, the lodger? It was agreed, however that John should accompany them, and with this she was satisfied. The husband procured passage at this port, ostensibly for three persons, but really only for two; and although he accompanied his wife and John on board the vessel, he left the ship by the steam-tug unobserved, and has returned to his situation at Radcliffe, leaving his wife and "John" to the undisturbed possession of each other's charms.

Dr. Leas, of Baltimore, has entered the Russian service as surgeon, with high pay and emoluments.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
2 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

Letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 1, 1856.

Polygamy among the Churches.

In our last we had occasion to refer to Dr. Allen's work, and the operations of the Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregationalist and Episcopalian churches in India. The following is an extract from the same work:

"The Calcutta Missionary Conference, consisting of the missionaries of the different Societies which have missionaries in that city and its vicinity, after frequent consultations and much consideration on the subject of polygamy as it exists in India, were unanimous in the following opinions:

'1. It is in accordance with the spirit of the Bible and the practice of the Protestant Church, to consider the State as the proper fountain of legislation in all civil questions affecting marriage and divorce.

'2. The Bible being the true standard of morals, ought to be consulted in every thing which it contains on the subjects of marriage and divorce, and nothing determined contrary to its general principles.

'3. Married persons, being both Christians, should not be divorced for any other cause than adultery. But if one of the parties be an unbeliever, and though not an adulterer, wilfully depart from and desert the other, a divorce may be properly sued for. They were of the opinion however, that such liberty is allowable only in extreme cases, and where all known means of reconciliation after a trial of not less than one year have failed.

'4. Heathen and Mohammedan marriages and divorces, recognized by the laws of the country, are to be held valid. But it is strongly recommended that if either party, before conversion, have put away the other on slight ground, the divorced party should, in all practicable and desirable cases, be taken back again.

'5. If a convert, before becoming a Christian, has married more wives than one, in accordance with the practice of the Jewish and primitive Christian Churches, he shall be permitted to keep them all; but such a person is not eligible to any office in the Church. In no other case is polygamy to be tolerated among Christians.'"
—[Appendix C., p. 601.

It will be seen, from the above, that all the missionaries in Calcutta and vicinity subscribed to these articles, and were unanimous in their adoption; that it was not the opinion of one alone, but the opinion of all; and that however they might disagree, on other doctrines, they were unanimous in their opinions upon the subject of polygamy, as expressed above; that it was not an opinion formed in haste, without examination, but, after frequent consultations and much deliberation, that they arrived at their conclusions. They, of course, had to struggle against education, early habits, and ideas of propriety, and perhaps against some of their own teachings. It is also possible that not a few of them might have some serious twinges of conscience, in consequence of remarks made about the Mormons, before their "much consideration and frequent consultations on the subject." Be that as it may, the calm investigation of this matter led them to the above conclusions.

There were, unquestionably, other reasons that would operate upon their minds, not the least of which would be the influence and power of the State in regard to such matters; this is specifically referred to in the first article, above alluded to, where it is expressly stated, "That it is the practice of the Protestant church to consider the State as the proper fountain of legislation in all questions affecting marriage and divorce." This is more fully explained in another part of this work. The Doctor says:

"The English government has always had the power to make any new laws for which there might appear to be occasion. But none have been enacted concerning polygamy, nor does it appear likely that any such will be enacted for some time to come. So the laws and usages previously existing are still in force, and they are administered by English magistrates. Thus in Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, which have belonged to the English for several generations, polygamy is practised as freely by the different classes and castes of the native population, as it would be if they were living under governments professing their own faith. And in the same manner polygamy with all its evils, personal, social, and moral, exists among more than 100 millions of people living under the British government. People of different religions and castes never intermarry with each other, and all questions and cases concerning marriage, inheritance, etc., are decided in the courts according to established laws and usages of the respective parties. Cases of this character, where the parties are Hindus, are decided according to the Hindu laws and usages, and where the parties are Mohammedans according to their laws and usages. So also with the Parsees, the Jews, etc. In cases affecting the validity of marriages, as cases concerning hereditary right to property, the question considered by the courts is, whether the marriage in its circumstances and connections was in accordance with the established usages of that class of people, and was then regarded by all interested as a proper and valid marriage. If it is decided to be of this character, then all questions depending upon the marriage or involved in it, are determined according to the laws and usages of the parties interested.

"It has been mentioned that polygamy among the native population of India is protected by Acts of Parliament, and by the decisions of the highest courts. The marriage of a Hindu or a Mohammedan or a Jew in India with his second, third, or fourth wife, if it is performed according to the Hindu or Mohammedan or Jewish laws and usages, is as valid as his marriage with his first wife, as valid as the marriage of any European or American is in his own country. The children of each wife are equally legitimate. He cannot divorce either of his wives without due form of law, and the law is open to his wives for redress, if he should refuse to support them or their children."—pp. 464-5.

The above, then, being the law of the State, how could the church resist it? The Episcopal or English church is a creature of State, and if the State permitted polygamy, the church must, for the Queen is "the defender of the faith." If the State therefore permitted its hundred millions of people to practise polygamy, what could the church do? Its voice would be very feeble against law, scripture and universal custom. It is, in fact, acknowledged by the church, that the State is the proper fountain of legislation in this matter. The Church of England admitting polygamy, and that church orthodox, of course other orthodox churches must acknowledge the christianity of the Episcopalians, or be behind the times—be behind them in policy, in enlightenment, and probably in converts. A compromise is therefore made, and the thing decided upon by "all the missionaries of the different christian churches in and around Calcutta." We may consider the thing then as fairly settled there; and by all fair reasoning we must naturally conclude that it is also settled with the churches, of which they form a part, unless they instantly repudiate the practise of the missionary board, and cut them off from church fellowship; for, if polygamy is wrong here, it must be in India. We must acknowledge that we were scarcely prepared for so wholesale a conversion to this principle, which has hitherto been considered the most obnoxious part of Mormonism—but such is the mutability of human affairs. We learn that it is principally attributed to their examination of the scriptures and to their testimony on this subject. If they search them a little farther, they will want to be baptized for the remission of sins, and have hands laid on them for the gift of the Holy Ghost; for, having made the discovery that polygamy is "in accordance with the practice of the Jewish and primitive christian churches," they cannot fail to discover that the above doctrines are also primitive christian doctrines.

But some may ask, "What will the church say?" Why, it is the church that is believing these things; and although not in accordance with the feelings of some, it is nevertheless, they say, the doctrine of the Bible, and the practice of the primitive Christians. And although not strictly orthodox, they think it expedient sometimes to take the practice of the ancient patriarchs, the primitive Christians, and the Bible, as a "standard of faith and practice," although unpopular, and to believe that Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, Jesus and his apostles, and the primitive Christians, were tolerably good men, especially when it suits christian convenience.

We may therefore set it down as a settled fact, that we shall hear no more from these churches about Mormon polygamy. Furthermore, polygamy won't do now, even for buncomb in Congress; for if christian England allows one hundred millions of her subjects to practise polygamy, and protects these millions in their practises by special laws; if her own Christian church, of which her most gracious christian majesty Queen Victoria is the head, permits it; and if, in addition to this, the whole of the United States Christian missionary board in India sanction polygamy, and receive polygamists into their churches—how can the Congress of the United States, who do not profess to interfere in religious matters, reasonably reject the admission of Utah, as a State, on that score?

Industry and Eminence.

On account of the facilities which riches afford to the indolent for the gratification of their desires, many persons, entertain, we would say, thoughtlessly, the notion that where great riches are, great indolence is not far distant. None have, in our opinion, been more misjudged on this score than the members of monarchial families. We do not point to the family of Queen Victoria or to that of any King or Emperor as a model of industry; but having stumbled upon the following paragraph respecting the training of the English monarch's family, we thought it worthy of a place and a few observations in our columns.

"Queen Victoria's children pass their time in the following manner: They breakfast at eight, and dine at one o'clock; and their various occupations are allotted out with almost military exactness. An hour is devoted to ancient, and another to modern authors; they are trained in military exercises; then succeed music and dancing. Next, they proceed to the riding-school; and when the girls go on with their appropriate exercises, the young princes go to work in a carpenter's shop, fitted up expressly for them, with a turning-lathe, and other tools necessary to a perfect knowledge of the craft. This done, they take their guns for a shooting stroll through the gardens. The evening meal, preparations for the morning's lessons, and brief religious instructions, close the day."

To the rich with whom we have influence, we would say, train up your children as well and as much better as you can. Let none be so unthoughtful as to conclude that because they have wealth, and no human prospect of ever depending upon their physical exertions as a means of procuring the necessaries of existence, that labor is not befitting them and their children. The poor must labor to live, but those who are under no such necessity, may and should labor to qualify themselves for any position that providence may have designed for them, and to be useful in every position which fortuitous circumstances may create around them.

The great men who can boast, or rather claim, great men never boast, wealthy ancestors owe their eminence and influence among their fellow beings, not from their possession of abundance of pelf, but to the fact they were practical men who had contracted habits of industry in youth, and labored while others played.

Though we have said the poor must labor to live, we wish none to think that because they are now poor and necessitated to labor hard to procure the necessaries of life, that labor and unceasing labor only is to be their portion. In old countries, where laws are made for the people, and not by the people, it is certainly true, that one generation of poor uncared-for men and women, have bequeathed to the next generation, a race of paupers, but in this land, where the soil and all the gifts of God are the inheritances of every man, none need falter, none need faint or dispair. The poor to-day, may be the rich of to-morrow.

From the High Council at St. Louis, to the Saints Throughout the Stake—Greeting:

BELOVED BRETHREN:

We are about to emerge from a severe winter, and to enter the busy season of emigration, and participate in the varied scenes and responsibilities incident thereto, and we have thought, that a few suggestions and counsels from us at this time, might not be inappropriate; but rather a benefit to our brethrend scattered abroad through this Stake of Zion.

Some of you have been speculating and toiling to obtain an outfit for five, ten and twelve years, and are now as ill prepared as when you commenced. There have been times probably when you could have gathered; but, thinking you had not quite enough money, clothing and other knick knacks for the journey and to last you for several years after you arrived the opportunity was lost and you were beggared both in funds and faith, and have been compelled to lay again the foundation of repentance faith and baptism, and would be glad to crawl up to Zion if you could thereby expiate the follies of your past conduct.

Some will flatter themselves on looking at the foregoing picture that the Lord has dealt more kindly and dispensed his favors to them more gratiously and will be prepared to say "The lines have fallen upon us in pleasant places, and we have a goodly heritage." And might very consistantly congratulate themselves that they never wronged their own souls, or grieved the good Spirit of their God by giving a dollar to any one. Such characters forcibly remind us of that gentleman who said "soul thou hast much good laid up for many years eat, drink and be merry." And if we mistake not they will ere long feel the homely application of the response "thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee."

There is another class who have been liberal, generous and unremitting in their desires for many years, but seem to imagine because they are placed in connexion of a new set of circumstances, that they can slacken their diligence and neglect their duties with impunity, and still be considered honorable members of the Kingdom of God. When the teachers approach them and attempt to dissipate the icy coldness from their frozen heart, and peradventure thaw them out they get scared and begin to tell of all the good they did when first they obeyed the Gospel, and will say perhaps in the same breath the church "may slide," they can't afford to do any more because they want to bye "a hobby," and if they get it, and pursue this course; they generally slide straightway to the devil.

Some may be found among us who pride themselves in having been in Nauvoo—who, when the brethren braved the inhuman fiends who sought their lives—and boldly encountered the wintry storm—the danger of the desert, and all the hardships connected with their exodus from Nauvoo and settlement in the vallies of the mountains—sneaked off into some corner and hid themselves until they were satisfied that they were out of danger. These gentlemen remind us of that brave fellow who secreting himself in the hour of danger, left his young wife to grapple with a grisley bear hand to hand, who when she had given the fatal stab, and brought the grisley monster reeling at her feet, stepped bouyantly from his hiding place and with a scientific flourish of his huge knife, cut off poor Bruin's tail, shouting in triumph! "we've killed him." These great seventies and elders consider themselves altogether out of the reach of ordinary men. They neither regard Bishop's Courts nor High Councils, and are rarely found in the congregration of the Saints. When they do perchance protrude themselves, they doubtless feel small, and they look small, most insignificant, particularly when they expand their generous souls by donating a smooth quarter to some charitable purpose. But could we see them in their private caucuses, when wine and whiskey flow freely round, and hear their big swelling words of vanity, intermixed with unmeaning jargon, and furthermore attended with puerility and folly, they would appear yet more puerile and contemptible. But let them slide, or let them repent of their follies, and learn obedience to the laws of God, and the priesthood of God. Unless they do this the day cometh that will burn them up, and not leave them root nor branch.

There are some men of so tractible a disposition, and are so peffectly docile that they deem it a virtue to allow their wives to govern them. There loving wives lady-like can generally appreciate the honors confered or assumed—of financier-general, grumbler—and commander-in-chief of husband and all he can subjugate to there supreme will. This class of men may pass unnoticed in the Gentile world, but they can not be tolerated in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. When a man holding the Priesthood of God so far forgets himself as to resign his presidency to his wife to be governed and controled by her supreme will, he ought at the same time to resign his standing in the Kingdom of God. There is no place for him among the Saints; neither on earth, nor in the Heavens.

Let not any one suppose that we have over drawn the above picture; for the honor of our sex we wish we had, but our observation convinces us that it is but too true. We have known men who would be just, and pay their tithing, aye and generous too, and assist the poor and needy in their distress; but having resigned their supremacy to what is naturally the weaker vessel, they have no direct control over that the Lord gave them, and consequently render themselves contemptible both to God and man.

We have often seen a good deal of inconvenience, trouble and difficulty occasioned among our brethren for want of due confidence in the authorities of the Church. The saying of Jesus "He that would save his life shall lose it; and he that would lose his life for my sake shall save it," is constantly exemplified in the history of the half-hearted and timorous of the Latter Day Saints. They are tried first perhaps with wives and children, houses and lands, gold and silver. If they are willing to lose all these things, and count them all subordinate to the will and counsels of God, they stand the best possible chance of retaining them through this life, and in the world to to come life everlasting. But if these things are regarded as supreme, and are worshipped and served before the Lord and his Gospel they will in all probability be taken away and given to those who know how to use them. Thus to him that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but, to him that hath not shall be taken away even that he seemeth to have.

We are happy to see many of our brethren prompt in paying their tithing, and assisting otherwise with their surplus funds to build up the Kingdom of God. To those who have neglected these things; we say, go and do likewise. If you have surplus means after paying your tithing and purchasing the necessary outfit for the journey, we counsel you to make a liberal donation to the Perpetual Emigration Fund, for the blessing and salvation of the poor, and secure thereby the benedictions of Heaven and the approbation of your brethren.

We wish to remind our brethren throughout this Stake of Zion that we have opened a set of books, for the benefit of those who wish to save their dimes; and deposit on account of their emigration to Utah. The subject was proposed by President Snow just prior to his departure last fall. His plans have been matured, and we are now prepared to receive your deposits, and to open up accounts with you for your emigration.

Each person will be provided with a check book; in which all his deposits will be duly entered as in the tithing account. The business will be attended to daily, in the tithing office. In conclusion we recommend all who can possibly gather up to Zion to go up without more delay. If you cannot get ox teams for the journey, be independent, and go with hand-carts; and the Lord God of Israel will bless and strengthen you, and enable you to perform the journey with pleasure and delight.

Signed in behalf of the counsel.

JAMES HART, President.
JAMES S. CANTWELL, Clerk.

The St. Louis Evening Mirror,

Female Life Among the Mormons.

A long extract from "Female Life Among The Mormons," clipped from the St. Louis Evening Mirror, was forwarded to us a few days ago. We have learned not to be surprised at anything, or we might have begun our notice of this favor, by expressing our surprise at the imprudence of the gentleman in charge of the editorial department of the above named journal.

The book referred to was reviewed in the 22d number of last year's volume of this paper. We then replied to Editors around us, who, in their zeal to find something to say against the Mormons, had not, for their own reputation, been sufficiently careful in their examination of the precious volume, before they recommended it to the public. We showed that the book, attributed to Maria Ward, a lady of whose existence we then knew nothing, and are still entirely ignorant, abounded with marks of gross imposition on the credulity of the public. To utter ignorance of the history of our Church, to facts patented to the world, the writer manifests such gross ignorance of the country which she professes to describe, as the scenes where she figured in Mormonism, that no one with a moment's reflection could look on the work as anything less than a gross imposition—the work of some one who for filthy lucre would pander to the taste of the bigoted and depraved. We pitied the unfortunate Editors in the East who noticed the work favorably—being some hundreds of miles from the country described, there was some slight excuse for their ignorance. We did not then expect to recur to the subject, for we little anticipated that another man could be found in the Editorial corps so effectually gulled, as to publigh such trash, for never have we met outside of that book the same amount of historical religious, geographical and statistical ignorance in the same space.

As the editor of The Mirror may fairly be supposed to be somewhat acquainted with the country he inhabits, perhaps he will be able to explain by what process his favorite authoress gets the Mormons to St. Louis (p. 166) on their way from Nauvoo to Salt Lake, and when they left St. Louis on their way to Salt Lake, where they crossed the Mississippi? Clear away these mysteries, Mr. Editor, and we will send you some more.

A friend lately from London informs us that the precious production of the professed "wife of an Elder from Utah" has already found its legitimate place in Holywell street, alongside of "Varney the Vampire, or the Feast of Blood;" "Paul Clifford, the Dashing Highwayman;" and "Jack the Giant Killer."

POETRY is said to be the flower of literature; prose is the corn, potatoes and meat; satire is the aquafortis; wit is the spice and pepper; love letters are the honey and sugar; letters containing remittances are the apple dumplings.

Washington's Birthday.

FRIDAY last, being the 124th anniversary of the birthday of the Immortal Washington, this city, from an early hour, presented a scene of considerable excitement. Though the streets were like one vast mud pool, the weather above was favorable for out-door display. Thousands of the "fair" sex, and the other sex, and of both sexes of every hue, in their best externals, paraded the streets to see and be seen. The day was spent in procession and cannon-firing, the evening in feasting and political speechifying. We learn by our exchanges that the 22d February was a day of rejoicing throughout all the States. We are glad to notice it. We cannot remember ever hearing the name of George Washington lisped without experiencing a feeling of profound respect arise in our bosom for the General who bore that name, and we doubt much if the same has not been the experience of every man, in whose bosom beats a true and honest heart. We wish that the remembrance of his untiring labors for the freedom of his country, the establishment of the liberty of conscience and equal rights might dwell in the mind of every man. If the host of aspirants to the name of patriots, who figured last Friday in the public halls of the Union, would imitate his conduct with the same zeal that they spoke of his wishes, America would yet be "the home of the oppressed, the land of the free." Could we seriously entertain the hope that our wishes would be realized, we could rejoice with uplifted head and feel a sensation of honorable pride, in pointing to the future; but alas! we have little foundation for hope. Party spirit is rampant. The day professedly hallowed to the memory of this great man has been chosen for the display of hostile feeling—the North against the South.

Conventions have been held in different parts of the country, at which inflammatory declamations have been heard, but little calculated for good. In view of all things, we would say to the sons of Zion, though others may not heed our words, seek to emulate the deeds of the venerable Washington; qualify yourselves for every good work, that, like him, when your country may require your services, you may step forth and be her saviours.

The J. J. Boyd.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18, 1856.

DEAR PRESIDENT TAYLOR: Agreeably with your request, I present a brief outline of our voyage across the Atlantic, in the J. J. Boyd.

We left Liverpool on Wednesday, December 12th, at 7 A. M., and had a fine run down the channel, sighted Cape Clear on the Friday morning following, and had mild weather, with a fair wind for three days after. During this time we had leisure to devise plans for the maintenance of order, and cleanliness during the voyage. Notwithstanding that our company consisted of Danes, Norwegians Swedes, Icelanders, Italians, English, Irish, and Scotch, the rules adopted proved efficacious in maintaining a strict entente cordiale among us all. The Saints were at the sound of the trumpet called to prayer morning and evening. Meetings were also frequently held in the Danish, English, and Italian languages during the voyage. On the whole, we enjoyed ourselves first-rate, notwithstanding the many gales and hurricanes we experienced, from the breaking up of the fine weather, in about long. 15 deg., to our anchoring off Sandy Hook. About midway on our passage, we fell in with the clipper ship "Louis Napoleon," from Baltimore to Liverpool, laden with flour, with all her masts and spars carried away and leeward bulwarks stove in; upon nearing the ship we found her in a sinking condition. The captain and crew desired to be taken off, which was done. This acquisition was of great advantage to us, as the bad weather, sickness, and exhaustion from overwork, had made quite a gap in our complement of sailors.

We had much sickness on board, from the breaking out of the measles, which caused many deaths among the Danish, chiefly among the children. In the English and Italian companies we lost three children. The weather got worse after crossing the Banks, so much so, that we were driven into the Gulf Stream three times, and many of our sailors were frostbitten. Our Captain got superstitious on account of the long passage, and ordered that there should be no singing on board; the mate said, that all ships that had preachers on board were always sure of a bad passage; however, the Lord heard our prayers, and in his own due time we arrived at our destination. On the evening of the 15th of February we were safely at anchor—having been sixty-six days out from Liverpool. Our supply of water was almost exhausted; we had on our arrival only about one day's water on board. The provisions were very good, and proved abundant to the last. On our taking the pilot, he informed us that there had been many disasters during the months of January and February; many ships had been wrecked. We had made the passage without the loss of a single spar. Truly we can say that we have been blest, and that our long voyage has been an advantage to us in many ways.

Praying that we may be as blest during our sojourn on the land of the Saints as we have until the present time.

I remain, yours respectfully in the Gospel,
C. R. SAVAGE.

PARDON OF INDIANS.—We understand that the President of the United States has forwarded to Fort Leavenworth a pardon for the Indians held in confinement at that post, charged with the murder of the mail party, near Fort Laramie, last year. These Indians—five in number—were delivered up to Gen. Harney, and sent to Fort Leavenworth for confinement and trial.—[St. Louis Republican.

ALL labor of mind, says Huferland, required of a child before the 7th year, is in opposition to the laws of nature, and will prove injurious to the physical organization, and prevent the proper and natural development.

FOR THE MORMON.

Virtue.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

No matter in what station of life man is moving, in what disadvantageous circumstances he may be placed; whether fortune is smiling upon him, and all the riches and luxuries of life are at his command; whether he is ranked by birth among the Nobles of the Earth; or whether adversity is frowning upon him, and he is struggling with poverty, privations and all those annoyances and inconveniences that are calculated to mar our happiness; there is One thing, he cannot be deprived of, it is Virtue, that precious gem, that enables him to overcome all the temptations of his precarious situation, to rise through the miasmatic air of vice and crime, and to associate with minds that are lovely as the spirits of heaven and pure as the dew before it reddens in the dawn.

Long and violent are often those moral struggles; but he that has a firm determination of doing right, will amidst decay and corruption rise triumphantly; darkness will leave him; he will no longer be haunted by the gloomy, hideous phantoms of an ill-guided and depraved mind; light, peace and serenity will return to the bosom of his soul, and cause him once more to take a noble and prominent part on the stage of this World.

The progressive mind will understand, that neither a vast amount of learning, nor of so-called high life however full its display of grand pomp and dazzling riches, nor the idolatrous worshipping of the world's creeds and dogmas constitute Virtue; but that it is the springing up from, or the germination of, a true, simple life, that is spent in the contemplation and cultivation of every thing grand, noble and beautiful, where man realizes the responsibility of his station here below, and that he is possessed of a particle of that element, that emanates from the dispenser of light; such a man will not tinge the beauty of his soul with the pollutions of the Earth, but keep it as pure as the pellaied mirror of the cloudless heaven. A truly virtuous man will see the necessity of controling himself; he will seek to get familiar with every principle of truth; whether it is found in arts and sciences, or in Holy Writ; he will embrace everything that comes from God and His servants, no matter how disagreeable it may be to his preconceived notions, traditions and feelings. Virtue leads to an enlightenment superior to that gained by the mystical and erroneous dogmas of Sectarianism, and ancient and modern philosophy; it opens the mind for the reception of a knowledge of things not yet conceived in the womb of the ages of the world, without listening to the private interpretation of narrow-contracted, selfish spiritualizers; it leads to glories of celestial worlds, to which the silver moon in her midnight splendor and the sun in his noon-day brilliancy is pale; it does not seek to rise for the purpose of gaining personal distinction, or advantage over fellow beings; it makes man humble, self-denying, always willing to sacrifice, and to do good both to friends and enemies.

What is nobler, than to forget wrongs and remember kindness, to bear with one another's weaknesses and frailties, and hide them from the slander of the World? Whether we are in the stormy and icy countries of the North, or where the Sun looks down upon the crystal caverns and fathomless gold mines of the tropics; where the fields blush with the fresh flowers of a perennial spring, and all is loveliness; whether thousands of miles separate us, years flee like a dream, and time brings about great changes in our sphere of life; whether difficulties and trials surround us, and tempests assail us and toss us about on the ocean of life, we shall, if we are virtuous, always dwell with fond recollection on him, that guided us, with kind and gentle words, in the path of righteousness, that showed forbearance with our follies—that, when distress and sickness assailed us, came to comfort and assist us, and so proved his friendship in very deed. What he has done for us is so strongly engraved upon our mind, that nothing but death can obliterate it; it has implanted in us a seed, that brought forth gratitude—a delicate plant, that wants to be cultivated by tender and gentle feelings.

From the divine teachings of the Saviour and his apostles, we learn that one of the greatest gems in the human character is charity. Paul, in the first epistle to the Corinthians, chapter 13, says, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and even of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing."

The Apostle lays great stress upon practising charity, and considers the same of great importance for the perfection of a saint, because it capacitates him to be kind, humble, mild, faithful, to suffer long, not to envy, to be grieved at iniquity, to rejoice in the truth, to hope and endure all things. The above logical analysis of charity shows the necessity of cultivating those principles, and by so doing, we shall be enabled to move peaceably and quietly among all classes of society, without hurting the feelings of our fellow-beings; difficulties and obstacles will be removed, the rugged path of our career will become smooth, and life will glide on as the calm, quiet stream of crystal water, till we are relieved of our earthly tenement, and rest from our toils and labors, till the light of the great resurrection morning will summon us to eternal blessedness.

Having spoken of the different characteristics of virtue, I conclude with saying that it is one of the most prominent attributes of godliness; that those celestial beings, that have passed through all the purifying trials and tribulations of earthly probations, possess that precious jewel in the highest degree. Hence we find in the sacred writings of the great oracles of Divine Wisdom, that the Saviour who had descended from the mansions of glory, who was crowned with the supremacy of intelligence and all other godlike attributes, was a beau-ideal of virtue. His noble actions and teachings were the pure reflex of a beautiful soul, that aimed at nothing but peace and love to man. Let us, then, follow the example of that sublime being, and be virtuous, that our names may be remembered by the recording angel of our Father in Heaven.

SUMMARY.

THE Collins mail steamship Atlantic arrived off Sandy Hook late on Saturday evening, and came up to this city early on Sunday morning. The Cunard mail steamship Asia, which left the same port three days later, arrived at her wharf in Jersey City the same afternoon. Neither of them bring any intelligence of the Pacific. The steamers despatched from this port in search of her have been unsuccessful in their mission.

Important dispatches are said to have been brought by these steamers on the present difficulties between England and the United States. The press have been rife in war speculations. Congress has, however, up to this date, received no information on the subject; something is daily expected. In the midst of uncertainty one thing at least is certain—the English papers brought by the Atlantic and Asia have stirred up the bellicose spirit of the gentlemen of the quill. The editor of the London Times, and other journalists, have, in the absence of better employment, shown symptoms of anxiety to have a "set-to" with the fraternity on this side of the Atlantic. The gloves have been hastily picked up, and the press now belch forth war, war, both in prose and rhyme.

Gen. G. D. Grant and Lieut.-Col. Wm. H. Kimball, of the Nauvoo legion, arrived by the Atlantic. We were happy to greet these brethren once more on their native shores, and to find them in excellent health and spirits. They have been preaching the gospel in England, and return much satisfied with the success of their labors in the ministry. We are also favored at the present time with the visit of Dr. Clinton from Philadelphia.

On Monday evening the American National Convention, which has had its sittings at Philadelphia, nominated Millard Fillmore for President and Andrew J. Donelson for Vice-President, for the forthcoming election. On the receipt of this intelligence at Washington, great enthusiasm was manifested; one hundred guns were fired in honor of Mr. Fillmore's nomination. In other parts of the Union the decision of the Convention has been equally well received.

The article on "Mormonism" is postponed.

A Brother of Anthony Burns on His Travels.

THE Virginia Sentinel relates the following: Henry Burns, brother of the notorious Anthony Burns, belongs to a gentleman on Red River, in Louisiana. His master recently gave him written permission to visit his relatives in Virginia. On his way Henry was forced by ice to quit the Ohio river and travel through the State of Ohio. He stated on his arrival here that the abolitionists bothered him mightly in Ohio—especially when they found out that he was brother to Anthony. They offered to set him up in business and raise him a large sum of money, if he would abscond; but Henry spurned their offers. He said his master had more money bet upon his return than they can raise, and that his master "is bound to win."

New Building Material.

A NEW material for building purposes is now claiming the attention of builders. It is artificial sandstone, and is composed entirely of sand and lime. The ingredients are mixed in the required proportions, and then, by a very powerful machine, subjected to great pressure, which immediately induces a chemical change, rendering the blocks in a short time as hard as sandstone from the quarry, and like it in appearance. These blocks, which are about three times the size of common bricks, have been subjected to chemical and atmospheric tests that crumbled brick into powder at once, without injury. Experiments with it, in respect to its powef of resisting cold and heat, have been performed by Professors Henry and Silliman, and from the opinion given by them the new material would appear to possess merits likely to render it of substantial value.

Sentimentalism.

MRS. SWISSHELM, in noticing the publication of a new love story, says: All that stuff about woman's love has been said over and over again a hundred thousand times, to the great detriment of the best interests of humanity. There is no kind of necessity for using the press to persude silly girls that it is very romantic and womanly to love a scoundrel—to leave her affections unurged by reason and experience, and drift helplessly into sin, shame and despair, as an evidence of her unsuspecting womanhood.

It is not true that woman's affections are any stronger, more durable than man's. We think the opposite is the case, and that two-thirds of all the women who pine away or die of love, do so for the want of something better to do. Everything calculated to make love-sickness a feminine acquirement is a great injury, but to strew the path of the suicide with the flowers of poesy and romance, is in the highest degree reprehensible.

The best motto to guard young girls through the mazes of love is, "Do right, and trust in God." A young girl who has done no wrong has little cause to mourn over the fickleness of a pretended lover. Better he should change his mind before than after marriage.

This is the best piece of common sense we have ever heard uttered on this subject.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.

THE Senate passed the bill providing for the establishment of a Young Men's Library in the District of Columbia.

Executive documents relative to Indian disturbances on the Pacific coast were then received, after which several bills of no general importance were passed, and the Senate adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House took up the subject of the election of a chaplain, and considerable discussion took place upon it.

The proceedings connected with the subject were designated as farcical, and the hunt after the office was severely condemned.

Several gentlemen wished to have continued the order inviting clergymen of all denominations to officiate alternately.

Mr. Letcher said this would answer admirably, as men were here of every shade of religion, and some of no religion at all.

The applause from the galleries which followed Mr. Letcher's remarks was promptly rebuked by the Speaker.

There were sixteen candidates for chaplaincy, and on the second trial to elect one, Daniel Waldo, a New York revolutionary soldier, in the 94th year of his age, and a clergyman of the Congregational church for more than seventy years, was chosen.

SENATE. Feb. 25.

Lord Clarendon having stated recently in the House of Lords that Secretary Marcy had expressed his satisfaction with the explanation given by her Majesty's representative at Washington on the enlistment of soldiers in the United States for the Crimea, has brought the subject once more on the topis.

Mr. Mason submitted a resolution requesting the President, if not incompatible with the public interest, to communicate to the Senate all the correspondence which may have taken place between this Government and that of Great Britain, regarding the enlistment of soldiers in the United States to serve in the British army, accompanied by such evidence and documents as the President may deem proper, to show the connection of the agents or officers of the British Government with the violation of our laws and national rights.

Mr. Mason said the statement of Lord Clarendon in the British Parliament, in regard to this matter, had recently been received in the English papers, and unless the American side of the argument was likewise made known, the community would be misled. It was, therefore, important that all the correspondence should at once be made public.

Mr. James concurred in the opinion of the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. Cass, (who appeared in his seat for the first time since the late accident.) not only agreed heartily with every word which Mr. Mason uttered, but would go further than he had. He (Cass) showed from the evidence on the trial of the British agents for violating the Neutrality laws, that the complicity of the British Government could not be successfully denied.

Mr. Cass considered, that paying the passage of men to Canada, and then enlisting them, was a palpable violation of our neutrality laws.

Mr. Grittenden thought the British Government had made all the apology that could be expected of it when it acknowledged its error, declared it unintentional and promised that it should not again occur. He understood that as soon as the British Government was apprised of the dissatisfaction of this Government on account of the recruiting operations the work was promptly desisted from. This was the highest satisfaction for such an injury, and no further apology ought to be demanded.

After considerable discussion Mr. Mason's resolution was adopted. On motion, the consideration of the President's Special Kansas Message was resumed.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion of Mr. Thorington, the committee on Military Affairs were instructed to inquire as to the expediency of establishing a Military Academy and School of Practice in the Mississippi Valley.

SENATE. Feb. 26.

Mr. Mallory, from the Naval Committee, reported a bill authorizing the construction of ten steam sloops of war, and would ask its consideration on Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The following gentlemen were appointed the Special Committee on the subject of a railroad between the Atlantic and Pacific: Messrs. Denver, California; Woodworth, Ill.; Houston, Ala.; Mott, Ohio; Wells, Wis.; Kidwell, Va.; Jewett, Ky.; McCarty, N. Y.; Evans, Texas; Reade, N. C.; Wood, Me.; Lindley, Mo.; Kunkel, Pa.

The Speaker nominated as Regents of the Smithsonian Institute, on the part of the House, Messrs. Meacham, Warner and English.

Mr. Meacham was excused from serving, as he was not willing to consent to follow an institution which had diverted from the law of its establishment, and which is not making a proper impression on the country.

The Speaker laid before the House a message from the President, transmitting and recommending to the favorable consideration of Congress the following communication from the Secretary of War, dated February 25:

"Improvements in arms and munitions of war having been recently perfected, whereby their efficiency has been much increased, it is very desirable that these improvements should be applied, as far and as soon as practicable, to the arms on hand, both in Government arsenals and in possession of the States. Although our present supply of arms is as good as, and probably superior to, those of the same date of manufacture of any other nation, in the use of them, in their present condition, we should have to cope, at a disadvantage, with others who may have been beforehand with us in the application to their arms of the recent improvements.

"It has been our policy heretofore to carry on gradually and slowly the work of preparing for military efficiency, both offensive and defensive, and in pursuance of this policy the estimates of the War Department from year to year have been limited to the execution of such work only as accorded with the ordinary means of our armories and arsenals, with but a small force of operatives in employment. The regular estimates last submitted to Congress are based on these considerations. In view, however, of the propriety of assuring, at the earliest practicable period, military efficiency as it regards armament and munitions, (we have it abundantly as regards men,) it seems proper that more active and vigorous measures should now be adopted; that we should increase the capacity for producing and the force in employment at our armories and arsenals; that we should prepare more rapidly armaments and ammunition for our fortifications; that we should increase our supplies of improved small arms by manufacturing new ones and altering those of an inefficient style of fabrication, including both the United States and State arms, and that we should provide ample supplies of ammunition, accoutrements and implements for immediate and most efficient use. In order to effect this it is necessary that more than ordinary means be placed at the disposal of the Executive, and I respectfully suggest and recommend that application be made for the early appropriation of three millions of dollars for increasing the military efficiency of the country, to be applied at the discretion of the President toward the objects before stated."

Mr. Humphrey Marshall regarded this as a war message designed to operate on the other side of the water.

A debate ensued as to whether the communication should go to the Committee on Ways and Means or to the Military Committee.

Mr. Keitt thought the Committee on Claims the proper Committee, as both the other Committees claimed jurisdiction over the subject. [Laughter.]

Without concluding the debate the House adjourned.

SENATE.

Feb. 27.

Mr. Weller, from the Military Committee, reported a bill to increase the efficiency of the army, according to the recommendation of the President. (Sent to the House yesterday.)

The bill regarding fortifications in California, Texas and Florida was discussed and re-committed to the military committee, with instructions to report such new works as may be necessary.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Grow, from the Committee on Territories, reported a bill authorising the people of Oregon to form a state government.

The discussion on referring the message of the President, recommending the appropriation of $3,000,000 to increase the efficiency of the military, was resumed.

Mr. Quitman said there was nothing in the message ominous of war, as had been stated; though, in his opinion, there was a possibility—if not a probability—of war. England could not engage in a war with this country, without convulsing her kingdom—three millions of subjects being dependent on one only of our products—cotton.

Mr. Humphrey Marshall contended that from the face of the message he was justified in believing that the President looked to war. He did not want to see the Executive filibuster about the subject—sounding the note of alarm as if preparing for a conflict, unless questions have arisen justifying such conduct. If necessary, he (Marshal) would not hesitate to vote supplies for the defence of the honor of the country, when the application comes in a proper manner.

The message was referred to Military Committee. Adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22, 1856.

THE Canada's mails arrived this morning. The Government dispatches from England contain nothing of a definite character, neither is their any prospect of an early settlement of the matters in dispute between that Government and the United States. The enlistment difficulty is absorbed in the Central American question.

Later from California and Nicaragua.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25, 1856.

THE steamship Daniel Webster, from San Juan, Nicaragua, arrived here yesterday. All the Central American States except Nicaragua have formed an alliance, and Col Kinney had gone to Granada to effect an alliance with Walker.

From California the mining intelligence is excellent and the agricultural prospects good. There had been considerable rain.

The San Francisco markets had a downward tendency. The California Legislature had not elected a Senator, and there was little probability of a choice. Mr. Foote is the American candidate. Messrs. Sanders and Hammond, both formerly Collectors at San Francisco, have been indicted for embezzling funds.

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM MEXICO.

By the arrival of the steamer Texas at this port, we have Vera Cruz dates to the 22d.

The troops in the Castle of St. Juan de Ulloa pronounced for Tamariz on the night of the 12th inst. There was some firing on both sides, but the loss was slight until the 20th, when the castle surrendered to the city. The leaders of the revolt had been condemned to be shot.

Pueblo was still in the hands of Harory Tamariz.

From Hayti.

BOSTON, Feb. 25, 1856.

ACCOUNTS from Gonaives to February 1, state that on the morning of that day a proclamation was published, and that the Haytien troops were on their way to their homes by order of the Emperor, and that the invasion of Dominica had been abandoned.

Breaking up of the Ohio at Cincinnati—Seven Steamers, numerous Barges, &c., Sunk.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 25, 1856.

THE Licking River, opposite this city, commenced rising rapidly yesterday morning, throwing immense quantities of ice into the Ohio, thereby breaking up the ice in the latter. The steamboats Albertine, Flag, Bridge City, Grapeshot, Madonna, Salem and Yorktown—all stern wheel boats—sunk, and will prove a total loss. Several other steamers were injured. A large number of barges and flatboats were also sunk.

The total loss, so far, is estimated at about $200,000—and the end is not yet. The Ohio River has risen about eight feet during the last twelve hours, and is still rising.

Charge of Embezzlement.

BOSTON, Feb. 28, 1856.

CALEB B. Atkins, teller of the Washington Bank, was carried before the police court this morning, charged with embezzling $14,000 of the funds of the institution. He was ordered to give bonds in $23,000 for examination to-morrow.

Interesting from Kansas.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26, 1856.

Saturday's Missouri Democrat has three letters from Kansas, dated 14th, 15th and 18th, indicating the probable renewal of hostilities on the 4th of March, which is the time fixed for the inauguration of the new State officers. Judge Elmore has advised the officers elect not to take the oath of office, as to do so will be treason. Robinson declares that he will take the oath of office, if he is hanged the same hour.

The merchants of Kansas publish an appeal to the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to use their influence to prevent further incursions into the Territory, as they will be obliged to open avenues of trade with the East through other States, if their trade through Missouri continues to be interrupted.

Rejoicings over the "American" Nominations at Albany.

ALBANY, Feb. 27, 1856.

ONE hundred guns were fired here this afternoon in honor of the nomination of Messrs. Fillmore and Donelson. This evening bonfires are blazing all over the city. State street hill is a perfect blaze of light. The office of The Morning Express and other buildings are illuminated. The office of The Register is in darkness. The "American" members of the Senate and Assembly are holding a meeting to-night to fix the time for a grand ratification meeting at the Capitol.

Marine Disasters.

BOSTON, Feb. 27, 1856.

THE schooner Kossuth ran into an unknown schooner off Cape Ann, on Monday night, capsizing the latter. Probably all on board were drowned. The injury to the Kossuth is slight.

The schooner "J. W.," from Boston for New York, put into Newport yesterday, leaky, with damage to spars and sails, and crew frost-bitten.

Importance of Recreation.

THE following felicitous passage occurs in in the admirable speech of the Hon. Edward Everett, at the Webster Festival at the Revere House, Boston, recently. The orator, in referring to Mr. Webster's taste for manly spirits, added these words; "The Americans, as a people—at least the professional and mercantile classes—have too little considered the importance of healthful, generous recreation. They have not learned the lesson contained in the very word which teaches that the worn-out man is re-created, made over again by the seasonable relaxation of the strained faculties. The old world learned this lesson years ago, and found out (Herod 1, 173) that as the bow always bent, will at last break, so the man, forever on the strain of thought and action, will at last go mad or break down. Thrown upon a new continent—eager to do the work of twenty centuries in two—the Anglo-American population has overworked, and is daily overworking itself. From morning to night—from January to December—brain and hands, eyes and fingers, the powers of the body and the powers of the mind, are in spasmodic, merciless activity. There is no lack of a few tasteless and soulless dissipations which are called amusements, but noble athletic sports, manly out-door exercises, are too little cultivated in town or country."

Deluge in the Planet Saturn.

IN a recent work, entitled "The New Theory of Creation and Deluge," among other startling predictions it is stated that it is probable the rings which surround Saturn are composed of water, snow or ice, which at some future time may descend and deluge the planet, as ours was deluged in the days of Noah. It now appears that this event is likely to take place a little sooner than was anticipated, for Sir David Brewster says: "Mr. Otto Struve and Mr. Bond have lately studied with the great Munich telescope at the Observatory of Pulkoway, the third ring of Saturn, which Mr. Lassels and Mr. Bond discovered to be fluid. These astronomers are of the opinion that this fluid ring is not of very recent formation, and that it is not subject to rapid change; and they have come to the extraordinary conclusion that the inner border of the ring has since the time of Huygens, been gradually approaching the body of Saturn, and that we may expect, sooner or later, perhaps in some dozen of years, to see the rings united with the body of the planet."

Something of a Family.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Urbana (Ohio) Citizen writes from Bourbon county, Ky., about a family, as follows:

The old gentleman is a native of Maryland, and is now in his 70th year; was brought to the State of Kentucky when quite young, and has raised his family in the above county, consisting of six sons and three daughters.

In the following table you have the height, weight and entire ages of the whole family:

	Height.	Weight.
Father	6 feet 4 inches	200 pounds.
Mother	6 " 4 "	285 "
Thomas	6 " 4 "	230 "
James	6 " 6 "	215 "
Sarah	6 " 2 "	165 "
John	6 " 11½ "	266 "
Mary	6 " 2 "	150 "
Elijah	6 " 8 "	210 "
Martha	6 " 6 "	220 "
Eli	6 " 6½ "	197 "
Daughter	6 " 8 "	160 "
	70	2298
Computed strength of father and sons		6500 pounds.
Entire ages		557 years.

The family are all living except the youngest daughter, are all wealthy, and of the first families of Kentucky. I must add, that several of the grand-children are over 6 1-2 feet, and still growing.

P. T. Barnum a Bankrupt.

THE meeting of the creditors of the Jerome Company and of P. T. Barnum, at New Haven, on Monday night last, resulted in a recommendation to go into liquidation. They have done so. Mr. Barnum has also made an assignment. The indebtedness of the Jerome Company is $560,000. There is a prevailing opinion that very little will be realised to the creditors. Mr. Chauncey B. Jerome, the original founder of the Company, has also gone into bankruptcy. Two appointments of assignees have been made for Mr. Barnum—one in New Haven and the other in Bridgport—by the action of the creditors, who forced Mr. B. into bankruptcy. The courts must decide which assignees are legally appointed. It is understood that Barnum is entirely ruined, and that the Jerome creditors will get but a small dividend from his estate. His property in Connecticut is mortgaged for over $900,000, and the Museum buildings belong to the estate of F. Olmstead, deceased. The lease, which is valuable, has belonged to Mrs. Barnum for many years.—[New York Tribune.

Rights of Married Women.

THE New York Legislature has a bill before it which provides that any married woman, whose husband, from drunkenness or profligacy or other cause, shall neglect or refuse to provide for her support, or the support of her children, or any married woman who may be deserted by her husband, without fault on her part, shall have the right to transact business in her own name, collect her own earnings and those of her minor children, and educate her children, free from the interference of her husband, or any other person. She may also bind out or hire out her minor children. Also, hereafter, it shall be necessary to the validity of every indenture of apprenticeship that the mother, if living with her husband, sign the same. The bill aims at abuses that exist to an alarming extent.

Novel Team.

THE Prairie Farmer says: We were witness this morning to a scene on South Water street which carried us back a decade or so in the history of our city—when the swarthy Indian and his accompaniments were familiar adjuncts in our street life.

This was no less than a Mackinaw dog and sledge and a pair of snow shoes. The dog—a noble animal, showing in his massive chest and fore-arm, and the lengthened nose, his combined descent from the mastiff and wolf,—trotted easily along attached to the sledge, containing a load of about 80 pounds weight; and his owner informed us that he had frequently traveled 36 miles a day with a load of 200 lbs. The breed are perfectly docile and easily kept. They are worth at Mackinaw from $20 to $30.

By the way, we may remark, the above dog has drawn a gentleman the entire distance from Green Bay to our City, averaging thirty miles per day on the journey.

Editing a Paper.

IT is a somewhat curious fact that a vast number of men who are utterly incapable of managing their own business or any other, still think they perfectly understand that of an editor's, and regard themselves as under a special mission to give the latter the benefit of their views on all occasions. It is singular, but there are very many who really seem to sincerely believe that writing comes by nature—that the editor is without this endowment; and they ought in Christian charity to help him out. Could some of these self-elected censors be put in harness for a while and realize what it means to be a mental engine under a perpetual press of intellectual steam, they would probably change their views of the case with which they would knock off a little article.

People who think editing a paper is a pleasanter diversion than digging cellars by moonlight, or lugging bricks up a four story building in a hot July's sun, may profit by the following sensible remarks from the editor of the Bedford (Vt.) Gazette: "It is not so easy a task to write for a newspaper as people suppose. A man may be a good scholar, a profound thinker, a vigilant observer of passing events, without being able to write for a newspaper. The power of writing a leading article for a newspaper is a TACT which few possess, and which we have known many with all their learning and diligence, unable to acquire. It requires a large amount of information on various subjects, and a readiness of application that must never be at fault, or the writer will fail. For, remember, the editor is always writing against time; and the inexorable printer must have his copy, so that there is no time to revise and amend, but as slip after slip is written, the 'devil' snatches it away, and one-half is usually set up in print before the other half is written. This exacts a decision of thought and faculty of writing, which like poetry, seems rather a gift of nature than an acquired faculty."—[Council Bluffs Bugle.

Horses Poisoned by Eating Frozen Rotten Carrots.

MR. NEWELL FARNHAM, of this town, has within the last two or three days lost four fine colts, and four more are now laboring under an attack which caused the death of the others. Mr. F. is celebrated for his horse stock, which was the finest in the country, and his loss, which is a severe one to him, is something of a public misfortune. It appears that Mr. Farnham, some ten days before, had carried out of his cellar some carrots that were rotten, and thrown them in his barn-yard, where, after they were frozen, his horses ate of them. A day or two after he observed that they refused their food and water, had frequent spells of stretching their mouths open, and spitting out their cud—these symptoms gradually increased until the animals died.—[Lockport Courier, Feb. 15.

MISS ANNA PLEUT was recently married at Cincinnati to Robert Ark. A cotemporary thinks the event promises a new edition of Pleut-Ark's Lives.

SPUNKY.—A Western editor gives a cotemporary the following rather strong hint:

"The editor of the Social Visitor speaks of us as a reformed dentist, and volunteers a little advice, suggesting that we let politics alone and stick to our profession. We beg to inform the gentleman that we pull teeth at the usual rates, and the noses of impertinent meddlers for nothing."

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

Stars.

WE have on hand a number of the present volume of the MILLENNIAL STAR, from the 1st to the 28th No

Price for the year ... $2 25

" " half year ... 1 12½

Also, a few numbers of the JOURNAL OF DISCOURSES, from No. 1 to 13; each No., 10 cents.

We have paid the American, as well as foreign, postage on the above, which is 2 cents each number, extra, for the volume. $1 04.

St. Louis Book Agency.

J. S. CANTWELL, southwest corner of Washington avenue and Sixth street, St. Louis, Mo., has for sale, at the usual prices, the following books and pamphlets:

Book of Mormon, German; Voice of Warning, German; Voice of Warning, French; Martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and expulsion from Nauvoo; Route to Salt Lake Illustrated, in 14 monthly parts; Book of Mormon; Book of Doctrine and Covenants; Voice of Warning; Spencer's Letters; Hymn Books; Government of God, by J. Taylor; New Jerusalem, or the Fulfilment of Modern Prophecy; Divine Authority of Joseph Smith; Remarkable Visions; Only Way to be Saved; Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, by O. Pratt, 6 parts; Polygamy, by a Lady in Utah; The Seer, by O. Pratt, Vol. I., to which is added 6 parts of Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and Polygamy, by a Lady of Utah, elegantly bound, in one vol.; Orson Pratt's Works, bound; Times and Seasons, Vols. IV., V., and VI., well bound; Portraits of the First Presidency; Journal of Discourses, well bound; Millennial Star, Vol. XVII.

Mormon Publications.

THE DESERET NEWS is a weekly paper, the official organ of the Church in Utah, and is published in Salt Lake City; it is ably edited by Albert Carrington. It is circulated extensively in Utah Territory; how much abroad we are not prepared to say.

Price of subscription, $5 in advance.

THE MILLENNIEL STAR.—A weekly publication of 16 pages, adapted for binding; of which there are 16 volumes now bound. It is printed on good paper, clear type, and is devoted principally to the progress of the work in Europe. It is very ably edited by F. D. Richards, one of the Twelve Apostles, and President of the European Church.

Price in England, one penny, or two cents. The law of postage between England and the United States is, that two cents on each paper shall be prepaid in each country, and two cents after the arrival.

Price of subscription, including foreign postage, $2.25, in advance, sent to the address of subscribers. Elder Richards has requested us to act as agent, but has not given us the terms. The above is the nearest approximate that we can arrive at without instructions.

The subscriptions can be sent to us, and we will immediately forward the names and address.

Published at 36 Islington, Liverpool, and at 35 Jewin street, City, London.

Besides the above, there is a paper published in Australia, another in Bombay, one in Switzerland, one commencing on the Sandwich Islands, one in California, and one in Cincinnati; besides a host of minor publications.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

JULY, 1855.

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb.	$0 35
do clarified "	30
do brown "	30
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	35
Tea, Young Hyson "	1 50
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	1 50
Tea, black, per lb.	1 50
Apples, dried, per lb.	30
Peaches " "	30
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb.	75
Allspice "	40
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	40
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	35
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	40
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	60
Brimstone "	30
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	50
Candy "	60
Candles, 6 to the lb.	50
Figs, per lb.	60
Cloves, per oz.	10
Nutmegs "	15
Oysters, per can	1 50
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	1 50
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 25
do pints "	75
Lemon Syrup "	1 25
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	18¾
do 10x12 "	30
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	10
Pepper "	15
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb.	$0 30
Glue "	60
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	30
Copperas "	30
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	50
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	30
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $4 pr lb. or pr oz	15
Gum Camphor, per oz.	14
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	10
Turkey Opium "	75
Golden Seal "	10
Liquorice, per lb.	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal.	6 00
Linseed Oil "	6 00
Copal Varnish "	8 00
Whale Oil "	6 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	75
do do do	40
Mustang Liniment, p bot	40
Rope, sea grass, per lb.	50
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	20
do 2d do	40
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	4 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$2 75
do boys', handled	2 00
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	2 50
Shovels	2 50
do steel plated	3 00
Grain Scythes	2 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 10
Two prong Hay Forks	1 50
Three do do	1 75
Four do dung do	2 50
Hoes	1 21
Concave Augers, per ½	25
Bitts "	21
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 50
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb.	1 00
Flat Irons "	20

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	30
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	60
Sand Paper, pr 2 sheets	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb.	25
SCREWS. Size.	Gross.
¾ inch	50
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 00
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	2
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1½	20
1¾	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	20
10 do	25
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box.
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Bst, 250	1 00
Powder per lb.	70
Lead "	20
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	7 00
Fine do	9 50
Ladies' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 00
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 25
do do Low	2 25
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 20
Kacks	45
Sole Leather, per lb.	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to	1 75
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz.	75
Oil Cassia "	75
Oil Peppermint "	75
Oil Lemon "	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 16¾ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	40
Ticking	30
Blue Drilling	20
Denims	25
Cotton Batten, per roll	20
do Yarn, per 5 lb.	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb.	33
Eggs, per doz.	25
Cheese, per lb.	25
Bacon, smoked, per lb.	20
Shoulder "	25
Ham "	20
Middle "	40
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 00
Oats "	1 75
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar-cured Beef, per lb.	20
Beef, fresh, per lb.	9
Mutton "	10
Tongues, each	60
Tallow, per lb.	20
Lard "	20
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $4 to	5 00
Adobies, per 100	20
Stone, per cord	12 00
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	12 00

Mormon Books

WE have received, and have for sale, the following Books, and at the annexed prices:

Book of Mormon, roan	1 25
Doctrines and Covenants	1 00
Spencer's Letters, cloth bound—O. Spencer	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
Voice of Warning—P. P. Pratt	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
do do calf gilt, do	1 25
Government of God—J. Taylor	0 50
Pearl of Great Price—F. D. Richards	0 37½
Livre de Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Das Buch Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Zion's Panier—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Etoile du Deseret—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Route to Salt Lake, illustrated—Piercy & Linforth—per No.	0 40

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to Feb. 29, 1856.

Article	Price
ASHES—Pot ... per 100 lb.	6 25 a — —
Pearl	7 75 a 8 —
CANDIES—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted ... per lb.	— a —
Ordinary	— a —
CANDLES—Sperm ... per lb.	38 a 40
Adamantine	26 a 32
Mould, yellow	15 a 17
COFFEE—Java, white	14 a 14½
Mocha	— a 15
Laguayra	11 a 13
Maracaibo	11 a 13
St. Domingo (cash)	— a 10½
DRUGS AND DYES—Alcohol ... pr. gal.	— 66 a — 72
Alum ... per lb.	— 2½ a — 2¼
Arrowroot	— 60 a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— — a — 2½
Asafœtida	— 5 a — 25
Borax, refined	— 28 a — 28½
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2¼ a — —
do crude ... per ton.	30 — a 33 —
Camphor, crude ... per lb.	— 24 a — 24½
do refined	— 35 a — —
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 80 a 1 88
Chlorate Potash	— 40 a — 45
Cochineal	1 05 a 1 20
Copper—sheathing ... per lb.	— 23 a — 27
Copperas ... per 100 lb.	1 25 a — —
Cream Tartar ... per lb.	— 30½ a — 31
Gum Arabic, picked	— 18 a — 37½
Gum Copal	— 40 a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 25 a — 30
Iodine, resublimized	5 10 a — —
Ipecacuanha	2 12½ a 2 25
Madder	— 10 a — 11½
Magnesia	— 15 a — 17½
Do calcined	— 30 a — 35
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 18 a — 20
Oil Anis	— — a 5 —
Oil Bergamot	2 — a 2 12½
Oil Cassia	— — a 3 50
Oil Lemon	2 — a 2 12½
Oil Peppermint	2 75 a 3 —
Opium, Turkey	4 50 a — —
Otto Rose ... per oz.	3 50 a 6 50
Oxalic Acid ... per lb.	— 33 a — 34
Phosphorus	1 — a 1 —
Quicksilver	— 43 a — —
Rhubarb, China	2 — a 2 25
Saleratus	— 5½ a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10 a — 11
Senna	— — a — 15
Shellac	— 11 a — 13
Sugar Lead, white	— 15 a — 16
do brown	— 9½ a — 10
Sulphate Quinine	2 55 a 2 65
Tartaric Acid	— 44 a — 45
Verdigris	— 37 a — 40
Vitriol, blue	— 10 a — 10½
DYE WOODS—Camwood ... per ton.	— — a 80 —
Fustic	17 — a 30 —
Logwood	19 — a 30 —
FLOUR—State, common ... per bbl.	6 62½ a 6 68
Michigan and Indiana	6 87½ a 7 12½
Genesee, extra	7 50 a 8 —
Rye Flour	5 50 a 6 —
Corn Meal	4 — a 4 12½
FRUIT—Raisins ... per box.	2 75 a 3 —
Raisins, layers	— — a 3 25
Currants ... per lb.	— 15 a — 25
GLASS (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10 ... per 50 feet.	3 25 a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75 a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 — a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50 a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 — a 7 50
GRAIN—Wheat ... per bush.	1 45 a 2 05
Corn, round yellow	— 76 a 77 —
Barley	1 12 a 1 22
Oats, Western	— 43 a — 46
Beans	2 25 a — —
GUNPOWDER ... per 25 lbs.	3 50 a 6 50
INDIGO ... per lb.	— 90 a 1 30
IRON—Pig, Eng., Scot ... per ton.	35 — a 36 —
Bar, Eng. refined	65 — a — —
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality ... per lb.	— 15 a — 22
Sheet, Eng	— 3½ a — 4
LEAD—Galena ... per 100 lbs.	7 — a 7 25
Sheet and Pipe	— 8½ a — —
LEATHER ... per lb.	20 a 31
MOLASSES ... per gal.	33 a 44
NAILS—Cut, 4d and 6d ... per lb.	4½ a — —
Wrought, 6d and 20d	6 a 7½
OILS—Olive ... per bskt., 12 bottles	3 50 a — —
Olive, in casks ... per gallon.	1 15 a 1 22½
Linseed	— 85 a — —
Whale	— 80 a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95 a 1 —
PAINTS—Lead, red, Am ... per lb.	— 7½ a — 8
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— 8½ a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8½ a — —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	1 — a 1 62½
Ochre, in oil	— 4 a — 6
Spanish Brown, dry ... per cwt.	— 60 a — 75
Litharge ... per lb.	— 7½ a — 8½
Vermilion, Chinese	1 05 a — —
Venetian Red ... per cwt.	2 — a 2 37½
RICE ... per 100 lbs.	4 50 a 5 25
SALTPETRE ... per lb.	9 a 20
SEEDS—Clover ... per lb.	— — a — 13½
Flax, American, rough ... per bush.	2 — a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	2 25 a — —
SOAP—New York ... per lb.	4½ a 7
Castile	11 a 11½
SPICES—Ginger, Race ... per lb.	5 a 5½
Mace	82½ a 87½
Nutmegs	91 a 95
Pepper	10 a 11½
Pimento	12 a 12½
Cloves (cash)	13 a 13½
SUGAR—New Orleans ... per lb.	7½ a 9
Havana, white	9 a 9½
do brown	7½ a 8½
Stuart's crushed	— a 10½
SUMAC, Sicily ... per ton.	72 50 a 82 50
TEAS—Gunpowder and Imperial ... per lb.	35 a 75
Hyson	30 a 80
Young Hyson	32 a 70
Hyson Skin	20 a 35
Black	22 a 50
TIN—Banca ... per lb.	— a 31½
Straits	29 a 29
Plates ... per box.	9 — a 10 50
TOBACCO	7 a 43½
TURPENTINE ... per 280 lbs.	3 62½ a — —
TAR ... per bbl.	3 — a 3 25
SPIRITS TURPENTINE ... per gallon.	— 41 a — 42

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. 423-tf

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article.
Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread. mh1

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22–6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVICE,
GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on
Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 188 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage.
d22

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29-6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29-6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12-1y

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,
ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.
The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind, which will insure satisfaction.
Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.
Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.
Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET.
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

FOR the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. f26 1y

THE MORMON.

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the ufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaitraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés?" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaitre Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systêmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence. ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally.
fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets.
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH,
St. Louis, Mo.
☞ Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines, Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

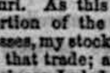
CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city.
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire sauce;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11. 1855. 26:tf



NOW IS YOUR TIME TO BUY GROCERIES CHEAP.
CALL AND BE CONVINCED.
"HONEST COMPETITION IS THE LIFE OF TRADE."
FRANCIS LEPERE,
WHOLESALE & RETAIL GROCER,
South-east corner Seventh st. and Franklin Av.
On hand for the Holidays,
Currants, Citron, and Raisins, at the lowest prices, by F. LEPERE.
Fresh Family Flour, of best favorite country brands, constantly on hand, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
CHEESE—W. R. and English dairy—Sap Sago, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
ENGLISH SPLIT PEAS—10 bbls. just received, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.
SPICES—Cinnamon, Cloves, Ginger, Nutmegs, Mace, and Caraway Seeds, 1,500 lbs., whole and ground, in store, for sale low, by d22 1m F. LEPERE.

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22–1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.

A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
Has constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10–6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—Ed. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Busby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T.
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE.
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

THE MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
The Greatest Blessing of the Age for the Cure of Diseases of Man or Beast requiring External Application.

"BRING hither the poor, the halt, the lame and the blind," if you would have them healed of their many infirmities. We boldly and fearlessly assert that the Mustang Liniment will positively cure Rheumatism. Let any who are afflicted with that most painful complaint try it thoroughly according to directions, and if they are not cured we will give them their money back. What more can we say? It will also cure the Piles. Thousands have tried it—and all were cured. Bruises, Sprains, Sores or Eruptions fade away as if touched by the magician's wand. Its application to burn or scald acts like "oil upon the troubled waters." The tempest of pain and agony is soon stifled, and the patient is hushed to quiet and peaceful slumbers. "There is balm for every wound," and that balm is the Mustang Liniment. Everybody that sells medicine keeps it for sale. "Hold your horses," and if they are crippled, galled or sprained, use the Mustang Liniment.

READ THE FOLLOWING CERTIFICATES.
THROUGH BY EXPRESS!!!
This is to certify that the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used quite extensively in the stables of Adams & Co.'s Great Southern, Eastern and Western Expresses, for curing galls, chafes, scrofulas, sprains and bruises, and it has proved very effectual. Many of their men have also used it on themselves and their families, and they all speak of its healing and remedial qualities in the highest terms. One of our ostlers got kicked and badly cut and bruised on his knee; as usual, the Liniment was resorted to, and the soreness and lameness was soon removed, and it was perfectly well in three or four days. We have no hesitation in recommending it as a valuable preparation to be used externally on man or beast.
J. DUNNING,
Foreman of Adams & Co.'s Express Stable, N. Y.

We take pleasure in recommending the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT to all our friends and customers as the best article we have ever used for sores, sprains or galls in horses. We have used it extensively and always effectually. Some of our men have also used it for severe bruises and sores, as well as rheumatic pains, and they all say it acts like magic—we can only say that we have entirely abandoned the use of any other Liniment.
J. M. HEWITT, Foreman for
AMERICAN EXPRESS CO., 10 Wall st.
HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, 74 Broadway.
PULLEN, VIRGIL & CO., 10 Wall st.
WELLS, FARGO & CO., 16 Wall st.

MR. WILLIAM JOHNSON, for the last five years a citizen of Augusta, and now the proprietor of the fine hotel in Savannah, called the Marshall House, has favored us with the following certificate:
The MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT has been used in my family, and on my farm, for a great variety of diseases requiring an external application, and has never failed to give immediate relief and effect a permanent cure. I have cured several cases of rheumatism that had resisted the skill of our best physicians. It has cured ringworms by a single application, chilblains in a few days, toothache, frost bites, cuts, sores and corns by a few applications; nervous headache cured entirely. In fact, I have used it for almost everything, and it has always cured. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used. WILLIAM JOHNSON.
Savannah, June 24th, 1852.

June, 25th, 1852.
I have used the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT in my stables upon my horses in cases of sprains, bruises, galls and sores of different kinds, incident to a large number of horses. I used it upon a horse that had been saddle galled for nearly a year. I had tried many remedies, and one in particular, that I had been in the habit of using for years, and had generally proved successful. Nothing appeared to give it any relief until I tried the Mustang Liniment, which cured it in a very short time. I consider it an invaluable remedy, and would not be without it. WM. H. HOLMES.
SAVANNAH, Geo., June 25, 1852.

We have also used the MUSTANG LINIMENT extensively in our stable, and we find it to be the best remedy we have ever used for sores or lameness of any kind.
SAWYER, HOLLISTER & CO.
The above are from two of the largest livery stables in the State of Georgia.

B. H. MEEKINS, 189 Walnut street, Cincinnati, was confined to his bed under the treatment of a physician some six weeks, with Neuralgia, of the whole of his right side, leg, arm and face; his sufferings were indescribable, and the only cessation from the most agonizing pain, was while under the influence of opium or morphine. His doctor finally advised him to try the MUSTANG LINIMENT; he did so, and in two days was able to go about his business perfectly cured.

This is to certify that I have used the MUSTANG LINIMENT recently in a very severe case of sprain. The right hip was so badly sprained and bruised that fears were entertained that it was out of joint. I obtained a bottle of Mustang Liniment and used it freely for four days, when the soreness and pain were all gone and the hip joint was well.

I have also used the Liniment for the Piles, with which I have been afflicted for many years. Its effects were wonderful. Free applications night and morning for a week have perfectly cured me. Thousands of persons are suffering with this painful disease, and you are at liberty to make this statement public, that all may learn what will cure them.

My brother also states that he has used the Mustang Liniment with the most perfect success in two cases of severe bruises, at our factory in Williamsburgh, and says he considers it invaluable about an establishment where a large number of men and horses are at work, and constantly liable to serious accidents. EDWIN R. BARRON.
64 Duane st., New York, June 25, 1852.

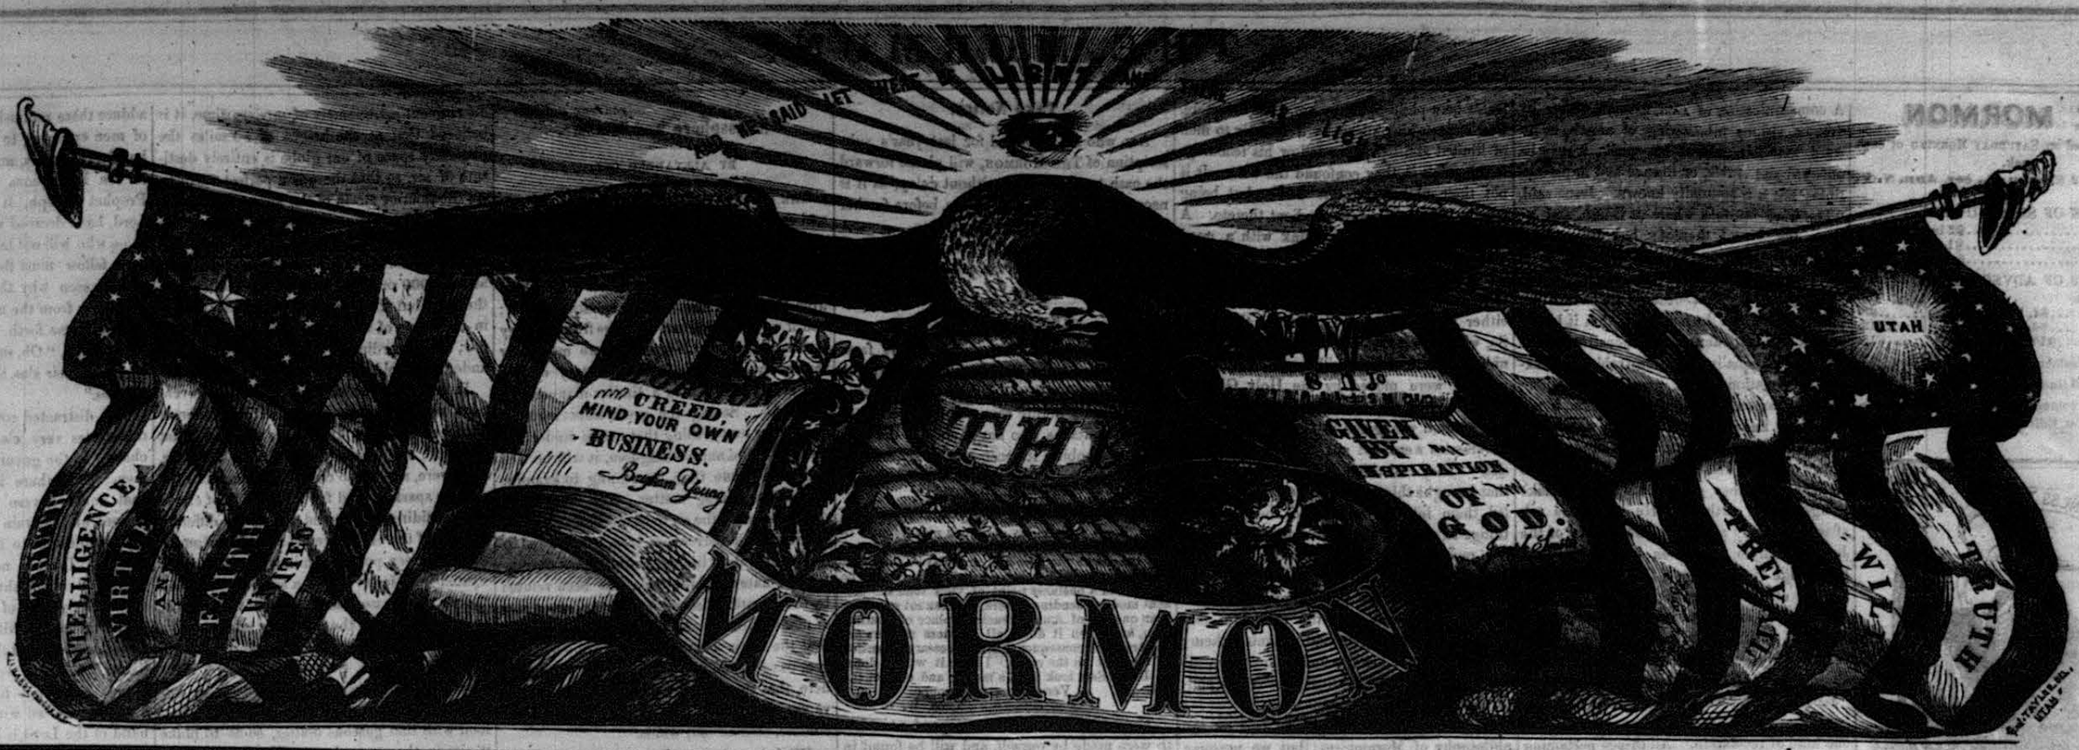
☞ While hundreds are rejoicing in the happy escape from smarting pains, occasioned by Burns, Bruises and Sprains, thousands of others will buy the Mustang Liniment and experience the same happy results.

☞ The popularity of the Mustang Liniment is a "fixed fact," therefore those suffering with Ulcers, Old Sores, Eruptions, and like complaints, need not be reminded of its superiority to give it a trial.

☞ The Ladies will always rejoice at the happy experience of curing eruptions, sore nipples, broken or caked breasts, piles and corns, after a thorough trial of the Mexican Mustang Liniment.

☞ The Mustang Liniment will give the most undoubted satisfaction to any one giving it a trial for stiff joints, stiff neck, or sore throat; it has proved itself efficacious in these complaints in many very stubborn cases.

☞ If you have any ugly, painful corns upon your feet, get a bottle of Mustang Liniment and apply it twice a day for eleven days, and the trouble will be gone.



GEO. W. WESTBROOK, Sole Proprietor, 343 Broadway, New York, and St. Louis, Mo.
PRICES—25 CENTS, 50 CENTS, AND $1 A BOTTLE.
The One Dollar Bottles contain eight times as much as the 25 cent Bottles.
The MUSTANG LINIMENT is sold by all Druggists in Chicago, and by one or more agents in every town and village in the State of Illinois.
d22

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
Please call and examine for yourseles, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods.
Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 8 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
☞ Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je9–

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS.
fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 3. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Never Hold Malice.

BY ELIZA COOK.

On never hold malice, it poisons our life,
With the gall drop of hate, and the nightshade of strife;
Let us scorn where we must, and despise where we may,
But let anger like sunlight go down with the day.
Our spirits in clashing may bear the hot spark,
But no smouldering flame to break out in the dark;
'Tis the narrowest heart that creation can make,
Where passion folds up like the coils of a snake.

Oh never hold-malice, it cannot be good,
For 'tis nobler to strike in the rush of hot blood,
Than to bitterly cherish the name of the foe—
Wait to sharpen a weapon or measure the blow.
The wild dog in hunger—the wolf in its spring—
The shark of the waters—the asp with its sting—
Are less to be feared than the vengeance of man,
When it lyeth in secret to wound where it can.

Oh never hold malice, dislike if you will,
Yet, remember, humanity linketh us still;
We are all of us human, and all of us erring,
And mercy within us should always be stirring.
Shall we dare to look up to the Father above
With petitions for pardon, or pleading for love;
Shall we dare, while we pant for revenge on another,
To ask from a God, yet deny to a brother?

Transatlantic Steamships.

Progress of Steam and Enterprise.

On the 23d April, 1838, a tremendous excitement prevailed in New York. "From an early hour in the morning until dark"—we quote the language of this journal—"myriads of persons crowded the Battery to have a glimpse of the first steam vessel which had crossed the Atlantic from the British isles and arrived safely in port: it is said that every Englishman in the city at one time or other during the day was gazing at the dark looking vessel (the Sirius,) with the American colors at the fore and the flag of Old England at the stern. The excitement was further increased by the arrival of the Great Western from Bristol, which left that port on the 7th instant making the passage in fifteen days—thus solving the problem of possibility, and showing what can be done by enterprise, expenditure, courage and skill. The Sirius is, however, the pioneer. It is a singular coincidence that both vessels should have arrived on St. George's day, the patron saint of the country to which they belong."

On the 31st March of the same year, the London papers alluded to the experiment doubtfully. "There is really no mistake," said the Times, "in this long talked of project of navigating the Atlantic ocean by steam. There is no doubt of an intention to make the attempt, and to give the experiment, as such, a fair trial. The Sirius is absolutely getting under weigh for America."

Eighteen years will soon have elapsed since these doubts were uttered, and their solution thus enthusiastically recorded. What a change. We have fourteen lines of steamers actually running between the United States and Europe, comprising no less than forty-two vessels.

Their rise and progress is curious. The Sirius and Great Western did not long enjoy a monopoly of the ocean ferry. They were quickly joined by the Royal William (which made a trip or two), the City of Liverpool, the British Queen, and President. Soon the Sirius and British Queen were sold, the President went down, and their place was taken by a new line, got up by a combination of Scotchmen and Bluenoses—an astonishing set of people for enterprise. The new line was called the Cunard line, from the leading Bluenose, and launched four steamers—the Acadia, the Caledonia, the Britannia, and the Columbia: they commenced to run about 1840, and ran from Boston and Halifax to Liverpool. In 1843, the Columbia was lost—the only vessel ever lost by the Cunard line; all the lives on board were saved.

Shortly after, a French line, consisting of four steamers, was established, but after a few trips it was abandoned. Then a Belgian line was organized, and also abandoned. Soon afterward, the first American line of transatlantic steamers was inaugurated by the sailing of the Washington for Bremen. She was shortly after followed by the Hermann; both of which ships run still, with apparent success and profit. They were followed at an interval of four or five years by the Collins line, which launched successively the Atlantic, Arctic, Baltic and Pacific: and are now building the Adriatic to take the place of the lost Arctic.

Latterly several new lines have been established. The America-Havre line, which was started a few years ago, having lost its two vessels—the Humboldt and Franklin—replaced them by the Arago and Fulton. Glasgow started a line of screw steamers to New York, and another line on the same plan was shortly afterward started between Liverpool and Philadelphia; without, however, competing with the Collins or Cunard lines. Quite recently a screw line, consisting of the Minna and Brenda, has been established to run between London, Cork and New York; they will probably be called the Corkscrews. The Cunard Company has also begun to run a line between Havre and New York; a Belgian company has launched vessels to run from Antwerp; and the French are going to run vessels with warlike names from Havre on their own account.

Altogether we may sum up the ocean steam lines established between the United States and Europe in the following table:

	Names.	Class.	Ton'ge.
LIVERPOOL AND NEW YORK.
Collins line....	Atlantic....	Paddle wheel....	3000
	Pacific.....	"	3000
	Baltic.....	"	3000
	Adriatic ...	"	4200
Cunard line....	Persia	"	3600
	Africa.....	"	2250
	Asia	"	2260
	Europa	"	2250
LIVERPOOL AND BOSTON.
Cunard line....	America....	"	1800
	Arabia.....	"	2250
	Canada	"	1800
	Niagara	"	2250
GLASGOW AND NEW YORK.
Scotch line....	Edinburgh.....	Screw.....	2500
	New York..	"	2150
	Glasgow ...	"	1962
LONDON, CORK AND NEW YORK.
Cork line.....	Minna	"	1300
	Brenda	"	1300
NEW YORK AND HAVRE.
Cunard line....	Ætna	"	3000
	Jura.....	"	3000
	Emeu.....	"	2000
	Lebanon ...	"	2000
	Cambria....	Paddle wheel....	1800
French line....	Alma	Screw.....	1500
	Barcelona..	"	1500
	Sebastopol .	"	1500
Old Havre line.	Arago	Paddle wheel....	2700
	Fulton.....	"	2500
	Union	"	2000
New Havre line	Ericsson ...	"	1800
ANTWERP, SOUTHAMPTON AND NEW YORK.
Belgian line....	Belgique.....	Screw.....	2590
	Constitution	"	2500
	Leopold 1..	"	2500
	Duc de Brabant	"	2500
	Congress	"	2500
NEW YORK, SOUTHAMPTON AND BREMEN.
Bremen line...	Washington.	Paddle wheel....	2000
	Hermann...	"	2000
LIVERPOOL AND PHILADELPHIA.
Philad'a line...	City of Baltim'e	Screw.....	2367
	City of Wash'g'n	"	2380
	City of Manches'r	"	2109

In addition to the above, a line has been established between Portland and Liverpool, in which the Sarah Sands and Canadian run.

The disasters to ocean steamships may likewise be summed up as follows:

Names.
President	Never heard of.
Columbia	All hands saved.
Humboldt	"
City of Glasgow	Never heard of.
City of Philadelphia	All hands saved.
Franklin	"
Arctic	A few only saved.

This bill of mortality is really very small when the total number of steamers afloat is considered. As science progresses, even this proportion will be lessened. We may hope that, when we have a hundred steamers afloat, we shall neither hear of lost vessels, or feel excited or anxious, with good reason, when a steamer is unduly delayed.—[N. Y. Herald.

The English Mammoth Steamship.

It is almost impossible (says the editor of the Statt of Maine), for an ordinary mind to take in, at once, the full idea of the proportions of the new iron ship that is now building on the Thames (England). With a view to answer some of the many inquiries concerning this novel monster, we give a few facts and figures furnished us as to her proportions and destination. Her dimensions—Length, 684 feet; breadth, 83 feet; depth, 58 feet; number of decks, 4; measurement, 27,000 tons. She is to have both screw and paddle engines whose nominal horse power will be—screw, 1600; paddles, 1000; total, 2,600 horse power. Cylinder of screw engine, 4 feet; diameter of cylinder, 84 inches; stroke, 4 feet; cylinders of paddle engine, 74 inches; length of stroke, 14 feet 6 inches. Each engine room will be forty feet long. The screw propeller will be 23 feet in diameter. The paddle wheels have been fixed at 58 feet in diameter. Draft of water loaded, 28 feet; draft of water in ballast, 18 feet. The masts are five in number—ship rigged. The steering apparatus consists of two rudders, with power sufficient to bring her round.

Incidents in Real Life Rivalling Fiction.

"A Night Scene in London."

Under this heading Mr. Dickens describes, in Household Words of this week, what he witnessed one night outside the Whitechapel workhouse:

On the 5th of last November, I, the conductor of this journal, accompanied by a friend well known to the public, accidentally strayed into Whitechapel. It was a miserable evening; very dark, very muddy, and raining hard. There are many woful sights in that part of London, and it has been well known to me in most of its aspects for many years. We had forgotten the mud and rain in slowly walking along and looking about us, when we found ourselves, at 8 o'clock, before the workhouse. Crouched against the wall of the workhouse, in the dark street, on the muddy pavement-stones, with the rain raining upon them, were five bundles of rags. They were motionless, and had no resemblance to the human form. Five great beehives covered with rags—would have looked like those five great bundles upon which the rain rained down in the public street.

"What is this?" said my companion.

"What is this?"

"Some miserable people shut out of the casual ward, I think," said I.

[Mr. Dickens then describes his enquiries in the workhouse. He found out that the women were shut out simply because the house was full.]

We went to the ragged bundle nearest the workhouse door, and I touched it. No movement replying, I gently shook it. The rags began to be slowly stirred within, and by little and little a head was unshrouded—the head of a young woman of three or four and twenty, as I should judge, gaunt with want, and foul with dirt, but not naturally ugly.

"Tell us," said I, stooping down, "why are you lying here?"

"Because I can't get into the workhouse."

She spoke in a faint, dull way, and had no curiosity of interest left. She looked dreamily at the black sky and the falling rain, but never looked at me or my companion.

"Were you here last night?"

"Yes; all last night, and the night afore too."

"Do you know any of those others?"

"I know her next but one; she was here last night; and she told me she came out of Essex. I don't know no more of her."

"You were here all last night, but you have not been here all day?"

"No; not all day."

"Where have you been all day?"

"About the streets."

"What have you had to eat?"

"Nothing."

"Come," said I, "think a little. You are tired and have been asleep, and do not quite consider what you are saying to us. You have had something to eat to-day. Come! think of it."

"No, I haven't. Nothing but such bits as I could pick up about the market. Why, look at me!"

She bared her neck, and I covered it up again.

"If you had a shilling to get some supper and a lodging, should you know where to get it?"

"Yes, I could do that."

"For God's sake get it, then."

I put the money into her hand, and she feebly rose and went away. She never thanked me, never looked at me, melted away into the miserable night, in the strangest manner I ever saw. I have seen many strange things, but not one that has left a deeper impression on my memory than the dull impassive way in which that worn-out heap of misery took that piece of money and was lost. One by one I spoke to all the five. In every one interest and curiosity was as extinct as in the first. They were all dull and languid. No one made any sort of profession or complaint, no one cared to look at me, no one thanked me. When I came to the third, I suppose she saw that my companion and I glanced, with a new horror upon us, at the last two, who had dropped against each other in their sleep, and were lying like two broken images. She said she believed they were young sisters. These were the only words that were originated among the five.

Hints for Strawberry Culture.

The ground designed for the strawberry-bed should be plowed or spaded as deep as tools can well make it. If the soil is light and thin a thick coat of swamp-muck or partially decomposed leaves, with leached or unleached ashes, will be fine to turn under. After the ground is pulverized and levelled, mark it off into rows two feet apart. Now plant eight rows of Hovey Seedling and one of the Early Scarlet, two feet apart in the rows, and so continue until the bed is finished. We speak particularly of these two varieties, as we should consider it labor lost to cultivate a variety which only gives fruit three or four weeks in the season. And we have never found a finer fruit, in point of size and flavor, than the Hovey, and none finer flavored than the Early Scarlet. Care should be taken that the plants are put into the ground just as they are taken out of it; that is, with all their internals spreading; and, not all gathered together and crammed into a little hole—Now, if the object be to get a large number of plants for another year, keep them well worked with the hoe, and let the runners take root. The whole ground will be full by fall. But if fruit be the object, cover the whole surface of the ground with partially decomposed leaves or straw, and as the first runners begin to show themselves, take them off. Care must be used in taking off the runners; they should be cut, and not pulled off, as careless servants will ruin many plants. When the vine has once commenced fruiting it will show but little disposition to run, as its whole effort is to make the fruit—particularly if the vine is not over-stimulated. It is not enough that the strawberry-bed is in a moist, cool location; for if the ground is moist, the plants want water to set the fruit, and to swell the fruit when set. It is asserted by some English cultivators that the plant should not have water when in bloom, as it washes the pollen away. This may do for England, but it does not do here. We care not how much water they have when in bloom. If the season proves dry, we give them water to set the fruit by artificial rain; and unless it rains twice a week, we give artificial rain to swell the fruit, and then we give artificial rain to form the next fruit-stems, and so on. Fear not to give too much water; water morning and evening. If grass and weeds show themselves, use the hoe freely. After it is no longer an object to gather the fruit, let the vines run and mat together. In the winter go through with the hoes, thinning out to twelve or eighteen inches; leaving the cut-up vines to decay where they were cut; and then cover the whole bed with leaves, straw, swamp-muck. &c., but use no animal manure. Let the proportion of male and female plants remain the same as when first planted.

Let the cultivator remember the four great requisites for a profitable strawberry-bed:—Proper location, vegetable manures, shade to the ground, and WATER, WATER, WATER.

Who Gen. Walker Is.

William Walker was born in Nashville, Tenn., and is now about thirty-three years old. His father is James Walker, Esq., a citizen of Nashville, of Scottish birth, and very much respected. His mother was a Miss Norvell, an estimable lady, from Kentucky. Walker, after quitting school in his native State, which he did with much credit and honor, commenced the study of medicine in the University of Pennsylvania, where he graduated. He then went to Europe, entered the medical schools of Paris as a student, received a diploma there, and after some time spent in travel, returned to this country, went to Nashville and commenced the study and the practice of law.—Walker is thus both a lawyer and physician. From Nashville he went to New Orleans, and was for a time editor of the Crescent. In 1850 he went to San Francisco,-and became one of the editors of the Herald. While in this position an article appeared in the Herald animadverting upon the Judiciary, to which exception was taken by Judge Parsons, of the District Court, who forthwith summoned him before his court, and inflicted on the editor a fine of $500. This Walker refused to pay, and was accordingly imprisoned, but was subsequently discharged on a writ of habeas corpus, issued from the Superior Court, which action was sustained by the Legislature at the next Session. The next enterprise in which Walker was engaged was the famous expedition to Sonora, with the disastrous result of which our readers are as familiar as they are with his more recent history.—[Washington Star.

The Human Form.

BY JOSEPH BONOMI.

This is a small work on artistic antiquarianism, as curious as it is original. It is the Canon of the proportions of the human frame, handed down to us by Vitruvius, in the third book of his Treatise on Architecture. From some obscurity in that writer's text, and from the poor illustrations that accompany the old editions, this Canon has hitherto been disregarded. In the Academy of Venice, however, there has been discovered a drawing by Leonardo da Vinci, and a translation of Vitruvius' remarks into Italian, so lucid and so intelligible that it is probable the Italian artist must have possessed a more perfect copy of the author than now exists.

The importance of this new reading is, that it probably hands down to us the great Canon of Polycletus, as it agrees with the best Greek statues, and is understood by comparison with the three succeeding Canons used by the Egyptians.

Man is found to be constructed on purely geometric laws, though the beauty of his body and the harmony of its parts are now forever we suppose, hidden by the labors of the tailor. A great miracle is a house that widens and widens without any reconstruction, and adapts itself to the fresh wants of every year—that widens and still preserves its relative proportions—that widens and still preserves its original shape and form. The original text is too curious to escape quotation:

"Nature, in the composition of the human frame, has so ordained that the face, from the chin to the highest point of the forehead, whence the hair begins, is a tenth part of the whole stature; the same proportion obtains in the hand measured from the wrist to the extremity of the middle finger. The head, from the chin to the top of the scalp, is an eighth. From the top of the chest to the highest point of the forehead is a seventh. From the nipples to the top of the scalp is the fourth of the whole stature. If the length of the face, from the chin to the roots of the hair, be divided into three equal parts, the first division determines the place of the nostrils; the second, the point where the eyebrows meet. The foot is the seventh part of the height of the entire frame; the cubit and the chest are each a fourth. The other members have certain affinities which were always observed by the most celebrated of ancient painters and sculptors, and we must look for them in those productions which have excited universal admiration.

"The navel is naturally, the central point of the human body; for if a man should lie on his back, with his arms and legs extended, the perciphery of the circle which may be described about him, with the navel for its centre, would touch the extremities of his hands and feet. The same affinities obtain, if we apply a square to the human figure; for like the contiguous sides, the height, from the feet to the top of the head, is found to be the same as the distance from the extremity of one hand to the other, when the arms are extended. The stardards according to which all admeasurements are wont to be made, are likewise deduced from the members of the body; such as the digit, the palm, the foot, and the cubit, all of which are subdivided by the perfect number which the Greeks call Teleios."

The book is a valuable one to artists and persons interested in Greek Art; and we are very grateful to Mr. Bonomi for the easy access which he has given us to this curious treasury of artistic speculation.—[London Atheneum.

Instructive.

Mr. Aiken, who was beaten by Mr. Banks, inherited a fortune of more than a million of dollars. Mr. Banks served his time as a machinist, and is not to-day worth $2,000 in the world. Mr. Aiken owns more than 1,500 slaves. Mr. Banks has a wife and two children, and worked twenty years of his life in a machine shop. Mr. Aiken represented the slave power; Mr. Banks the free muscle and spirit of the country. Mr. Aiken was beaten by Mr. Banks.—[Oswego Journal.

The Dutch Skipper, The Jew and His Goat.

Whitechapel County Court.—Planter v. Pignatelli.

This was an action to recover damages for trespass, and for the value of clothing maliciously eaten by defendant's goat. The case convulsed the Court with laughter, and is one of some interest to bad neighbors. The plaintiff is a retired Dutch skipper, residing at Strathmore-terrace, Shadwell, and defendant is his next door neighbor. Mr. Young appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Philp was for the defendant.

Mr. Philp: Your honor, I understand the plaintiff is a Russian, and if so is an outlaw here.

Mr. Planter: Vat dat! a Rooshun! say am I—just speak dat over, over. (Laughter.)

The Judge: If you are a Russian, you are not entitled to the protection of our laws, so far as becoming plaintiff in a civil suit at law.

The Plaintiff (in a towering passion:) Mine lort, I never vos a Rooshun, and help mine goot luck nevare vill be. I vost porne in te fisht market at the coot City of Amsterdamp (loud laughter;) I not mean mongst te fisht, but in te houst in te market. (Laughter.)

The Judge: That is near enough; what do you complain of?

The Plaintiff: Of dat man's goat eating mint vrow's muslint tress, a taple cloth, and a towell (laughter;) of pulling town a fence I put up.

By Mr. Philp: He pad man kept his goat in de tust pin, and poor ting have nothing to eat but, cinters, lived upon my clothes hung out to dry. (Laughter.) The wint plew my vrow's chemise over to de gote and he swallow it (laughter;) I pelief mint servant pull the chemise out of to gote's troat and pelly (loud laughter;) the gote destroy my muslins vife's tress. I had leave from mint lanslort to put up a high fence to keep Mr. Pignatelli ant his gote from mischief. He got pig tog, too, who try his pest to eat us up, as well as to gote eat up our clothes. (Laughter.)

Margaret McCarty stated that she formerly was a servant to Mr. Pignatelli, and saw her master and mistress pull down the fence. That her mistress wished her to aid, as three could not split on each other. That previous to her master commencing the raid, he loaded his gun, and swore that if the Roosian skipper came into his garden to interfere, he would shoot him, but not to kill him. He would only mark him, as there was no harm in half killing a Roosian in London. (Loud laughter.)

Mary Smith, servant to the skipper, and Ann Sullivan, the charwoman, now corroborated the evidence.

Mr. Philp cross-examined Miss Sullivan as to whether she did not go to a ball in the dress after the goat had rumpled the muslin. The witness said if she had, she would have danced in her petticoats. As to a masquerade, she didn't know what it meant, unless it was some sort of sweetstuff.

Mrs. Planter was called to prove the value of the things destroyed, and made it appear that war to the knife had been for some time proclaimed between each side.

The judge said the plaintiff had a perfect right to erect the fence, and the defendant had no right to pull it down. The goat had no right to eat chemises, and the award would be three pounds damages, and costs.

A Dead Prayer Meeting.

We meet with queer things in our exchange papers. Here is the obituary notice of a prayer meeting:

Died.—In Laodicea, the Prayer Meeting, aged one year. The health of the meeting was poor, and its life was despaired of. But a few anxious friends kept it alive, and sometimes it would revive as to encourage them. Discourgement, however, at last prevailed, and the prayer meeting is dead. It died from neglect. Not a christian was present when it died. Over forty christians (!) were living within a mile of it, and not one was there. Had two only been there its life might have been saved, for where two are agreed as touching anything they shall ask, it shall be done for them. Two-thirds of the forty might have been there, had they been so disposed. But they were not, and so the prayer meeting died.

Philosophy.—The discovery of what is true, and the practice of that which is good, are the two most important objects of Philosophy.

Mr. Hammond of the Register fired a parting shot at Mr. Cassidy, late of the late Atlas, after this funny style:

Among all our institutions, great and small, there is not one to be compared with the editor of The Albany Evening Atlas. He is a prophet, and foretells events, some of which come to pass, and some do not. He makes a great many discoveries; some of which are real, and some imaginary. Like a "scurvy politician," he puts "spectacles on his nose," and looks into things. Sometimes he sees something, and sometimes he "seems to see the things he does not." He is an entomologist, and has a cabinet of humbugs of his own discovery and preserving, some of which are remarkable monstrosities, some are monstrously large, and some equally remarkable for their diminutiveness. He adds a new specimen to his collection every day, and people wonder at his industry in placing them there. They wonder where he gets them all from, as well as at his ingenuity in dressing them up for public inspection. The other day he found one in the shape of a union of the Hard Democracy and the Soft Shell Whigs; a little later he found one in a union between the former and the Know Nothings; and now he has presented us with one in the shape of a fusion between the "American" party and "Black Republicans." He used to have one in the shape of a "corner-stone," and kept it on exhibition for several years, until John Van Buren kicked it out of the collection. If anybody wants a humbug discovered, invented, or manufactured, of any possible shape, color, size, or character, let him call upon the editor of The Atlas, and his soul shall be satisfied. And if he is desirous of securing the greatest, most magnificent specimen of all, let him take the editor himself. He will have the very ne plus ultra of entomology—a bug without a fellow, the likeness of which may be looked in vain for in the heavens above, the earth beneath, or the waters under the earth. Nature threw away the pattern when she finished him.

[We are no partisan of either gentleman, but think it a pity that men should wield the pen to bespatter each other's private character because of difference in principle. We publish the above as a specimen of what editors treat each other to now and again.—Ed. Mormon.]

The Distance of the Sun from the Earth Increasing.

The German journals have given some tables which prove that the distance between the earth and the sun is increasing annually, and argue from it that the increasing humidity of our summers and the loss of fertility by the earth are to be attributed solely to this circumstance. No credit has heretofore been given to traditions of ancient Egyptians and Chinese, according to which these people formerly said the sun's disc was almost four times as large as we now see it, for they estimated the apparent diameter of the sun as double of what it is seen in our day. If, however, we pay attention to the continued diminution of the apparent diameter of the sun, according to the best observations of several centuries, we must suppose that the ancients were not mistaken in the estimates they have transmitted to us. In the course of six thousand years from the present time, they assume that the distance will be so great that only an eighth part of the warmth we now enjoy from the sun will be communicated to the earth, and it will then be covered with eternal ice, in the same manner as we now see the plains of the north, where the elephant formerly lived, and have neither spring nor autumn.—[Port. Trans.

Experiments with Crystallised Iron.

Dr. Noud, of London, during a visit to the Welch iron mines, instituted some experiments, which prove that the metal may be made to pass from one state to the other. Seeing a great quantity of iron chain lying about, and learning that, though scarcely worn, it had been laid aside in consequence of the breaking up of some of the links, he examined several from different parts of the chain. On striking it, he found that a single smart blow with a hammer was sufficient to snap the metal, the fracture of which was crystalline, and its brittleness such that it could, without difficulty, be broken into small pieces under the hammer. He then heated strongly in a forge some of the broken links, and allowed them to cool very slowly underneath a bed of fine sand; after twenty-four hours they were examined, and the metal was found to have recovered its tenacity, and its texture was perfectly fibrous.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months.....	$4.	3 months.....	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
2 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1856.

Is Mormonism a Philosophical Paradox?

Or, Is Mormonism Philosophically True?

ARTICLE III.

CONTINUED.

In the preceding, we clearly exhibited upon what principle the ancient saints, as well as modern Saints, or Mormons, were made acquainted with the truths of the doctrines of the gospel. We clearly developed that it was not from any abstract reasoning, or nice metaphysical disquisition, but from certain demonstrative evidence and testimony, that it was nothing wild or visionary, but something real and tangible—something that all might experience and all comprehend; that they had both outward and inward manifestations, evidence both mental and physical, that it was not dependent upon any slight testimony, but was sustained on clear and definite evidence; that it was as demonstrable as the effects of air, fire, light, or the rays of the sun; and that all who obeyed the gospel, whether in ancient or modern times, and lived up to its requirements, knew for themselves that the evidence was as universal as the obedience to its requirements. But a sceptic or unbeliever might ask, How am I to know this? To which we would answer, In the same way that others have found it out. But can we not understand it without this? No; no more than you can understand natural or mental philosophy without study. You may see a man electrified, but you cannot understand the sensation without the application of the same upon yourself. You cannot comprehend fully either joys or pleasure without experience; you, of course, can have an opinion, but not a knowledge, and nothing but experience in the gospel can give certainty. We have reasoned upon the being of a God; we have shown that it is in accordance with the most liberal and enlightened philosophy that God should reveal himself to man. We have the statements of men who said that they had received revelations; and, as before stated, we cannot controvert those assertions. These men offer upon certain principles to give demonstrative proof of the truth of their missions, and tell us that if we will follow their instructions we shall also know for ourselves, and be no longer dependent upon their testimony. This is all that they could do, and all that we can fairly ask, and we have no right to denounce them without first putting their verity to the test. We follow this rule in natural philosophy, and test all things by a given criterion; sometimes by weight, sometimes by bulk, and sometimes by the test of acids, the action or effects of one body upon another has to be tested in order to be demonstrated. A watch or clockmaker tells us to wind up the machine. We must remove the gate to let water upon a water-wheel, the valve must be raised before the steam will move an engine; if we refuse to comply with these conditions, those machines will fail of their appropriate action. Now, if this is fair in natural things, why is it not in spiritual things? Men of God, who say they have had revelation, and therefore the most competent judges of these matters, tell us that "no man knows the things of God but by the spirit of God." But they tell us also how we are to get His spirit whereby we may know; hence Peter said, "Repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus, for the remission of sins, and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." What will that do? "Take of the things of God and show them unto you"—"Bring things past to your remembrance, lead you into all truth and show you things to come." "If any man do His will he shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself." We say, then, that no man, according to the strictest rules of philosophy, has a right to say either that ancient christianity or modern christianity, which is Mormonism, is untrue, until he has tried the test that God has given; we say, as the disciples said anciently, obey this gospel and you shall know for yourselves by the gift of the Holy Ghost. If you obey these requirements in sincerity and faithfulness, and do not receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, then is Mormonism false. But how by revelation? What is revelation? A communication of God to man, either by dreams, visions, ministering of angels, or inward manifestations of his spirit; it may be outward and visible, or inward and imperceptible; but it is assuredly known. Jesus said, "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and ye hear the sound thereof; but cannot tell whence it comes or whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the spirit." Now, will any one say that because we cannot see the wind, that we do not know that it blows, or that this fact cannot be demonstrated; the other fact is equally as demonstrable. Speaking of revelation: ideas come by revelation; anything communicated is a revelation, if not previously known to the party to whom it is communicated. Revelations of God reveal the things of God; hence Moses had the pattern of heavenly things given unto him to make things on the earth by. He made the ark after a heavenly pattern. The pattern of the Jewish Temple was given by revelation; a knowledge of God, angels, the destinations of spirits; of the resurrection of the body, of eternal lives and exaltation, of the reunion of body and spirit, and the future destiny of man, as well as his origin, all came by revelation. Prophecy, P. P. Pratt has justly observed, is "history reversed." History unfolds what has been, prophecy what is to come; prophecy is one kind of revelation. All things pertaining to the operation of God, angels, or spirits in their various operations, in the invisible world, are as strictly and philosophically true, if we could only understand the principles by which they are governed, as any thing that we are familiar with in the material world. We have our bodies and spirits; our entrance into this world and our exit; we come; we live; we depart, and we live again; we existed before; we exist here; we shall exist after we leave here; we are eternal; our body is eternal; our spirits are eternal; our existence, separate or united, is eternal. Mormon philosophy teaches, who we are and what we are, where we came from, what we are doing here, and where we are going. It teaches us of God, of our relationship to Him, and how we can obtain a knowledge of Him. It tells us how the world was made, and why it was made, and for what it was made, and why we were created, and what is the object of our existence. It explains the nature of matter and spirit; shows the philosophy of the heavens and the earth; puts us into communion or school with God. It teaches us the nature of our spiritual and eternal relationship and existence, as well as our temporal or natural existence: God and eternity have always been mysteries. It is the philosophy of Mormonism to unravel this mystery; to find out the great moving cause; this invisible operator; to develope the relation and fitness of things; to show the object of this and other creations; to trace the designs of the Great Omnipotent in the organization of the world and man; to examine the nature and properties of man; to trace the workings of his body, or visible material, as well as his spirit or invisible part, which is composed of more subtle, elastic, and imperceptible matter. To find out what relationship he bears to this great creative power; to trace the mode of communication and to lead man through the subtle mazes of this mundane sphere to God and to celestial inheritances in the eternal world, and then throughout the eternity which is to come, to increase, expand, enlarge, and impart as eternity rolls in its endless cycles.

It may be asked, Are all Mormons, then, philosophers? To this we answer, Not in the general acceptation of the term; Mormonism is philosophically true, but all Mormons are not philosophers—neither do we consider it necessary. A man may understand first principles, without knowing the mysteries; he may also enjoy certain influences and powers and priesthood, without being able to define the cause of those operations or their scientific bearings. We have taken the pains to investigate this subject, but the Mormons arrive at conclusions by a much shorter cut. The above may be necessary to some. The Mormons know by obedience. They may not be all philosophers, but they know it by inspiration through obedience. A blacksmith can heat iron in a fire, as well as a philosopher: a lady can infuse tea, without knowing the chemical properties of either the fire, water, or tea; she can make bread, without understanding how wheat is raised, dressed, or ground into flour. Nor is it necessary for an Elder, who "baptizes for the remission of sins," or "lays on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost," to understand the philosophy of its operations. They are God's ordinances, and He bestows the blessings promised through obedience to His commands. The blind man might not know much about Jesus, nor be acquainted with the mysticisms and intricacies of Jewish theology; but one thing he knew as well as any theologian, that he "was once blind, but he then could see." The ancient apostles were not all philosophers, but Jesus told them that they should heal the sick and cast out devils in his name. They simply believed him, tried the experiment and found it effectual; and when they returned from a mission, reported that even "devils were subject to them in his name," or by his power. This was all they understood about it at that time; they could not tell how the spirit operated, nor by what invisible agency the devils were subjected or banished, they simply knew it by its effects—just the same as a boy would know that a ball would rebound if struck against a wall or the ground, without knowing the properties of matter or the nature either of resistance, elasticity, or projectile force. A man, under the direction of another, may be able to make an electrical machine, and not understand its properties nor the nature and force of electric fluid. So a man may receive the gospel through faith in testimony, and by yielding obedience by baptism administered by an authorized agent, and having hands laid upon him for the gift of the Holy Ghost by an Elder legally qualified, the blessing will follow the administration, whether the person to whom it is administered or the administrator be a philosopher or not. Furthermore, God imparts his philosophy frequently to men of limited abilities; they follow his teachings—the result is, they confound the wise. It is not their philosophy, but God's; but being true to law, it is always obedient thereto. A boat with a hole in it will sink with a good man in it—a sound boat will bear up a wicked man. Telegraphic wires will operate as they are operated upon, and might convey either a revelation of God or of the devil. So, when the apostles were put into communion with God, although illiterate, "they spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost;" hence they became intelligent, and "a mouth and wisdom was given to them that all their adversaries were not able to gainsay nor resist." They had the gift of the Holy Ghost, that brought things past to their remembrance, led them into all truth, and showed them things to come. They had a principle of living revelation, or a living fountain of true eternal principles. Those principles would always overturn the puerile principles of a corrupt philosophy and the ridiculous fantasies of a false religion and vanquish them; they might not always understand why—it was the gift of God to them; but it was philosophical; such is Mormonism.

A great deal more might be said on the philosophy of Mormonism; but we presume sufficient has been said to develope an outline at least of our views; we consider we have substantiated what we undertook to do, and have demonstrated that Mormonism is philosophically true.

When we have time we shall take pleasure in examining its political accuracy.

Emigration.

As time rolls on and spring approaches, it will be well for the Saints in the United States, who purpose going to Salt Lake this season, to commence making their arrangements, and in order to facilitate the movements in the approaching spring, the Presiding Elders in the different Conferences are requested to find out those in their several districts who purpose emigrating this season, and whether they propose going by wagons or by hand-carts I wish the Saints to report to their several Presidents their position and calculations. If the Presidents of Conferences cannot personally visit all their Branches, let them write immediately to the Presiding Elder of each Branch of their Conference for this information, and then let them forward it to me. I am desirous to know how many are going, and what number of wagons and hand-carts will be wanted, that I may forthwith give an order for the required number. I would here inform the Saints that I have already ordered one hundred hand-carts to be made of the best timber, light, but good workmanship, and strong; the price of these will be about $20. Gen. Grant, late from England, received an appointment to proceed to the West and have some hand-carts made of a cheaper and coarser kind. What the price will be I cannot yet determine. As the hand-cart is an experiment, we wish to try various kinds; the cheap ones will, of course, be heavier. I have also made contracts for wagons with a gentleman who has furnished our emigration heretofore, and who has given general satisfaction, both as to price and quality. I have agents likewise in the West, inquiring into the prices of cattle, cows, horses, flour, &c. At present good cattle are ranging from $75 to $90, in the vicinity of where our emigration will start from; flour, from $3.-50 to $5 per cwt., according to location; cows, from $20 to $30. I am in hopes, however, that cattle, at least, will be lower in the Spring.* It is our intention to find out where they can be procured at the lowest rates, and then have our agents purchase, and drive them, if from two to four hundred miles, to the place of outfit. I have instructed some of our most competent agents, after having obtained the prices of cattle in various locations, to hold themselves in readiness to purchase. Those desirous of obtaining cattle can have the services and experience of those brethren by allowing them a reasonable per centage; by adopting this plan much time and money will be saved. The money for this purpose must be sent here immediately, and I will make arrangements to forward it to those who purchase. The best way to forward it is to deposit the money in a bank where you reside and forward a check on a New York bank, payable to John Taylor.

The Presiding Elders will please attend to this matter forthwith.

Respectfully, &c., JOHN TAYLOR.

* I have accounts from one source, but whether sufficiently correct or not I cannot say, of cattle ranging $10 below the above prices.

Europe.

THE steamships Arago, America and Baltic have brought us a batch of papers from Europe, but no intelligence of general interest. All eyes are turned to the peace conferences at Paris. Some of the ambassadors having been longer en route than was anticipated, the congress was not to open till the 23rd of February. At the date of the Baltic's departure from Liverpool, Feb. 20, the envoys had all arrived and Paris was on the qui vive.

The news of peace proposals seems to have given great dissatisfaction to the French army in the Crimea. It caused considerable astonishment in the Russian camp: offensive measures on their part were discontinued.

The excitement on the English-American difficulties had considerably abated. The war cry of the press found no echo in the bosoms of the English people. Large meetings had been convened in the most influential towns of Great Britain, deprecatory of the course of those who sought to embroil the two nations in war.

Arrival.

ELDER LEVI SAVAGE, JR., of the 2d Quorum of Seventies, arrived in this city on Wednesday evening, from the East Indies, where he has been on a mission. Elder S. is in excellent health.

Take Notice.

ALL who are indebted for last year's subscription of THE MORMON, will please forward the cash to this Office without delay, as it is necessary to ballance our books, before further advance in our second volume.

☞ Those who are intending to subscribe this season, "hurry up the cakes" and forward the needful.

The Mail Again.

WE are continually receiving letters from all parts about the Utah mail; the following is a sample of many that might be produced—it is from a highly respectable merchant of our acquaintance who has friends in the Valley. We publish it because of its sentiments.

——, March 3, 1856.

MR. JOHN TAYLOR—Dear Sir:

* * * * * * *

I see in your paper of the 16th ult. that some one in St. Louis proposes to get up a private mail to Salt Lake—why not do it? I for one would rather pay ten times the postage, and have a mail that could be depended upon; I believe it would be cheaper in a business point of view than the present mode of sending letters, as I cannot get more than one out of four to reach its place of destination, and when it does, all business matters are prostrated in consequence of unnecessary detention of the mail on the route. I hope it will be done, or Uncle Sam look to the matter and correct the evil. Very respectfully yours.

THOS. W. ******

The remarks that our correspondent refers to were made by ourself, and will be found in THE MORMON of February 16, coupled with a telegraphic despatch from Independence to St. Louis, announcing the arrival of the Salt Lake mail at Independence, and the return of the outward-bound mail. Whether the mail ever arrived or not of course we don't know; but one thing we do know, that the mail referred to never arrived here, although it bears date of St. Louis, Feb. 12. We have been asked by scores of people, expecting letters, if the mail had arrived. Our universal answer is, No! and our answer has been—no, from the last of October mail until the present time. We are asked why we don't get our mail; that question must be answered by the Post Office department; and it is a question that will soon have to be answered, for we are determined not to put up with such impositions, and Uncle Sam must either clear the track of his old granny fixings and put men there, or we shall have to do it for him; this postal ostracism is rather too severe an operation, and affects too seriously the business of Utah and its social intercourse, to be put up with. We say, carry the mail or clear the track, and we know who will do it. We have borne with Indian stories and reported snow, and fictitious telegraphic despatches, and tweedle-de and tweedle-dum, long enough. We say, give us the mail, or there will be a noise in the camp. We want no more whining, no more soft soap—The Mail! THE MAIL we must have, and will have.

Let those interested see to it, or we will see to it for them.

Fillmore and Donelson.

While sitting in our sanctum on the afternoon of Friday last our ears were unexpectedly saluted with the roar of cannon. As the arrival of some great man, prince, potentate, Chinese ambassador, or mammoth steamship had not previously been announced as among the expected at the city of Gotham, we could not divine the cause of the brisk booming that rent the air. "The wish being father to the thought," we at first concluded that good tidings of the Pacific had been received, but on enquiry, however, we found that it was the friends of Messrs. Fillmore & Donelson acknowledging the Convention's nomination of these gentlemen for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency of the United States. In the evening, a mass meeting was held at the Broadway Tabernacle to ratify their nomination. Mr. J. W. Barker, president of the State Council of the State of New York, read the call of the meeting, and nominated Col. J. M. Reynolds of New York as chairman for the evening, which was supported by the people. The gentlemen who addressed the meeting were well received, above all Mr. Donelson, who, being in the city, was invited to be present. His rising to speak drew forth a long and loud burst of enthusiasm. The speeches of the evening were in consonance with the occasion—great profession of earnestness for the preservation of the Union and laudation of the patriotism and other virtues of the gentlemen nominated.

During the evening the following resolutions were introduced and adopted:

Resolved, That heartily, cheerfully, unanimously—everyone and altogether—we hereby confirm and ratify the nominations made by the American party, assembled in National Convention, in Philadelphia, and we earnestly recommend them to the support of the whole American people—(Applause.)

Resolved, That in Millard Fillmore (cheers) and Andrew Jackson Donelson, (cheers,) we, as Americans, have the best specimens of the old whig and democratic parties—(applause)—choice chips from the old blocks—and that we present their names not only to Americans, but to democrats and whigs, as representatives of the best men and best principles of their respective parties—(Applause.)

Resolved, That in Millard Fillmore we have the friend, the confidant the associate of a Clay and Webster, and the inheritor of that patriotism and love of country that ever inspired them in Ashland and Marshfield; and in Andrew Jackson Donelson, (cheers,) the confidant, the pupil, the bosom companion of the illustrious soldier and statesman of the Hermitage—(Cheers.)

Census of St. Louis.

ACCORDING to the census just taken, the population of St. Louis is as follows;

Whites	119,054
Free colored	1,541
Slaves	1,539
Total	122,134
Manufacturing establishments	601
Capital invested in same	$6,558,700
Number of hands employed	10,645
Number of churches	60
Value of same	$1,587,800
Brick houses	10,252
Stone houses	239
Frame houses	8,021
Total number of houses	14,311
Number of vehicles	1,503
Merchants	1,115
Grocers	424
Auctioneers	18
Brokers	29
Taverns	60
Dram shops	353
Beer saloons	88
Lottery offices	10
Ninepin alleys	7
Billiard saloons	39
Lawyers	67
Physicians	165
Clergymen	48
No occupation	231

FOR THE MORMON.

Atmosphere and Miasma.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

THE peculiarly organized system of the animal creation requires a constant inhalation of air, without which life would come to an end; hence the All-wise Creator has surrounded the earth with an ocean of air, called atmosphere from the Greek, atmos, vapor sphera, the ball; and if we are permitted to judge from analogy and astronomical observations, we may infer that every satellite of the planetary system and even the Sun is in a similar manner provided for. Seeing the great importance of the air for every thing that comes under the domain of the animal kingdom, it will be well and at the same time interesting to examine that life-sustaining matter. The classical ancients supposed the air to be one of the primary elements; that erroneous idea, which owed its existence to their limited knowledge of chemistry and natural philosophy, has been refuted by the scientific discoveries and improvements of modern times. A chemical analysis shows that the air is composed of hydrogen, nitrogen, oxygen and carbon. I have to remark here, that the volume of hydrogen, or watery vapors floating in the air depend upon the climate, seasons and winds.

What is understood by carbon or carbonic acid? Carbo is derived from the Latin, carbo, coal; acid, comes from the same language, and signifies, sour, sharp, biting. It is generated by the combustion of organic bodies, as vegetables, trees, etc., and by the respiration of animals. A person might suppose, that the continued production of carbonic acid effects the atmosphere, and causes an alteration in the compound parts thereof; but as far as has been ascertained by pneumatic observations, the composition of the air is always the same, owing to the interesting and remarkable fact, that while grasses, herbs, plants and trees are germinating and growing, the fresh, green parts of the vegetables in connection with the solar light, decompose and neutralize the carbonic acid, assimilating or converting the carbon to their same nature, and returning by that process the oxygen to the atmosphere, so that the loss of that gaseous matter which the constant respiration of animals and combustion requires, is always made up again; proving thus, that as soon as one particle of oxygen is abstracted, the air at that very moment receives a new supply of that matter.

In reference to oxygen it may be observed, that it is of great importance for us, constituting not less than three-fourths of the crust of the earth, and its living inhabitants. Mineralogy shows that clay and flint contain a vast amount of oxygen. It is well to remark here, that oxygen as a constituent of the floating element of our globe, is a gaseous matter; but by chemical combination with other bodies, it assumes the condition of solid or liquid.

The air, which term is derived from the Latin, air, signifying the pure element of ether, is sometimes heavy, sometimes light, or, transparent. Heavy air, is owing to the superincumbent strata pressing on those below; which phenomenon will result in a condensation and compression of the inferior strata. Hurricanes, winds or gentle breezes are according to the weight by which the pressure of the superior strata upon those of the lower atmosphere takes place. The air is calm, so that even not a gentle breeze is playing, as soon as the equilibrium between the higher and inferior strata is restored. Some people believe that owing to the power of expansion of the air, the particles of the same extend to the endless regions of other planetary spaces; but that is an incorrect idea of the nature of the atmospheric air. That very same expansive force causes the particles or atoms of the air to diminish the power of dilatation; and as we know from acrostatic experiments, the higher regions of the atmosphere have a very low temperature, which is also calculated to decrease the expansive force of the air.

Previous to enlarging more upon this subject, I have to speak a little of another principle, viz., gravity, by which term the natural philosopher understands that force, that causes all the material particles or atoms of bodies to attract or draw one to another. A universal attraction between heavenly bodies, is termed gravitation, and is then applied to satellites revolving round their Suns. That force, that causes a stone, when thrown in the air, to fall, is termed gravity, owing to the attraction of the earth; the term molecular attraction is applied to that law, that causes a union of particles of bodies. Philosophers and Astronomers of all ages, as for instance Democritus and Epicurus, born in the year 300 before Christ; Vepler, born 1600, Bacon, Galileo and Hook; Newton, born 1665 and Cavendish, born 1798; they all had introduced their hypotheses to illustrate and mathematically demonstrate the law of universal attraction; one system was substituted by another, till the improved sciences of modern Astronomy and natural philosophy have at least to a certain extent rectified the erroneous opinions of celebrated men of by-gone ages.

From pneumatic and aerostatic observations it is evident that there is a point where the equilibrium between the expansive force of the air and the gravity of the earth is restored, or where the force that causes particles or atoms to expand is equal to that law by which bodies are made to fall; hence, it is reasonable and consistent to conclude, that at a certain attitude the atmosphere comes to an end. In reference to the height of the atmospheric air, a great many hypotheses have been introduced; but, judging from the fact that the inferior strata of that floating element are heavier than the superior, that all the particles of the same have the property of decreasing in density, and from the interesting discoveries made concerning crepuscular or twilight phenomena, the altitude or height of the air is generally supposed to be about 70 miles from the surface of the earth; and if we credit eminent astronomers of modern time, it is believed that at the height of 50 miles the planetary space of our globe is entirely destitute of air, so that there is a perfect vacuum. As the inferior strata of the air are the heaviest, and the superincumbent the lightest, the formation and discharge of clouds before and during a storm takes place at an altitude of about 2000 or 3000 feet above the level of the sea; but those small clouds that we see in the shape of white, fleecy specks on a fine day, are, according to the estimation of Alexander Humbold, 4 miles high.

In a time in which such wonderful inventions and improvements in all the different branches of human knowledge are made, that the wind, the steam, the lightning, &c., are, as it were, subject to the will of man, and the electric spark is used for the purpose of carrying the tidings of joy and woe to the different corners of the earth, we need not be astonished to see men put their minds on the utmost stretch in order to get up a scheme, by which the air may be used as a power of locomotion, as a high road to the planetary spaces. We read in the history of the eighteenth century, that two brothers, Stephen and Joseph Mongolfier, on the principle of heated air or hydrogen being lighter than the air, filled a balloon with that gaseous matter, so as to make it rise in the atmosphere. The first attempt of ærostation was made on the 5th of June, 1783. Mr. Charles, Professor of Natural Philosophy at Paris, was the first who had a balloon inflated with hydrogen instead of heated air, and launched into the airy element in August, 1783. Since that time great improvements and many aerial voyages have been made. The most interesting ascents were those of Mr. Green. At the height of 23,100 feet above the level of the sea the barometer fell to about 13 inches, and the centigrade thermometer, which stood 870.8 Fahrenheit on the ground, was then 5 deg. below zero, or the freezing point. Remarkable facts were ascertained by close observations in those elevated regions; the atmosphere was so dry, (the ascent was made in July,) that hygrometric substances, as parchment, paper, &c., were twisted and dried as if by fire. Owing to the rarefied air, the respiration organs and the blood-circulating vessels were in such an operation, that the pulse beat 120 times in a minute, instead of 66 times, which is the usual number when the system is under the influence of the lower atmosphere on the ground. The report of a pistol was so faint, that it was hardly audible. Pigeons thrown out of that globe-shaped silken body would only, with the utmost difficulty, keep themselves in the immensity of space, and then dart down like an arrow into the lower strata of a heavier air. The æronaut could not portray the feelings of wonder and amazement that overcame him while in these higher regions, in the midst of a majestic and grand silence under the canopy of a deep-blue colored, night-like heaven.

When the air is full of mephitical, impure vapors, rising from the low, swampy ground of bottom-lands, or from stagnant waters, or the decomposition of animal or vegetable substances, it is then called miasma, from the Greek, effluvia of putrefying bodies. Miasmatic atmosphere is exceedingly dangerous to the system, according to its susceptibility to the influence of mephitical vapors. The inhalation of such air causes a superabundance of carbon and corruptible matter in the body, so that the respired oxygen is not sufficient to resist and neutralize it; the equilibrium in the system is disturbed, and a person gets predisposed to all those physical derangements which proceed from so large an amount of that destructive agent.

People that seek the tropics, or countries that abound in miasma, will do well to prepare their systems for the change by an appropriate regimen and strict temperature in all things, to discontinue the use of animal food and stimulants, and choose a farinaceous diet, vegetables and fruits, and then they may expect to have a great immunity from the deadly effects of miasmatic poison.

From Our St. Louis Correspondent.

Great Events Foreshadowed.

IF there was ever a time when distress of nations and perplexity, men's hearts failing them for fear of the things coming on the earth were the order of the day—now, is certainly the time above all others, whether the pending desolating difficulties will be productive of weal or woe to the nations engaged in the terrible conflict, must be determined by the history of the future. It is frequently observed that "Great events cast their shadows in advance," and if these dark clouds be but the for eshadowing of threatening storms yet in the future, as we have every reason to believe, where is the people or nation that will be able to withstand their fury? The pending conference of the belligerent nations will, it is hoped, contract a treaty, by which the Gods of war may be represented, peace restored, and the nations regain their equilibrium. But what treaty or covenant will ever induce them "to beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks, and to learn war no more?" It was presumed by those peace Congressmen who agitated society a few years ago by crying, Peace! Peace! to their deluded followers; that they by the sagacity of their wisdom, could terminate the calamities of war, and usher in the glorious millennium, when nation would not lift up sword against nation, but settle all their difficulties by arbitration. Peace had been enjoyed so long at that period, that "War" was almost an abstract idea to these pacific alarmists; and when they at length succeeded in enlisting the press and pulpit in the service, a general hue and cry was heard of peace! peace! but unfortunately for these gentlemen, at the very time they were loudly vociferating, peace! the dogs of war were at their heels, and barking in their very teeth. I do not wish to cast any unnecessary reflections upon these would-be peace-makers; but simply adduce these reminisences to show the futility of men engaging to establish peace; if God has decreed wars, and be it remembered that in the Revelations of Jesus Christ to the Prophet Joseph, it is said "Behold I, the Lord, have decreed wars in all the earth, and those who will not take up their sword against their fellow must flee to Zion." This is one great reason why the Latter Day Saints are gathering from the nations of the earth. The cry has gone forth among all nations come out of them, "Oh, my people, and be not partakers of their sins, that ye receive not of their plagues."

The distracted condition of the world demonstrates very clearly the necessity of a change in the government of the children of men. But where is there a master spirit that could govern and control the hostile nations, and restrain their wrath, and restrict their evolutions to their legitimate sphere of action? There is none but the Spirit of our God, and if he shall overturn and desolate all the kingdoms of the earth, and establish in the meantime his own kingdom, and give "the kingdom and the greatness thereof to the Saints," I would recommend our Christian friends not to get too much vexed about it, but be comforted with the assurance that the hand of the Lord is in all things, and he will do what seemeth him good. It might be considered by some blasphemous and reasonable to say "the Saints shall judge (govern) the world," but since the old Prophets have made the assertion and modern Prophets have confirmed it, I shall not be thought presumptuous nor unreasonable by any rational individual when I endorse the Prophetic statement. And if it be realy true—and no Bible believer can say it's false; it would certainly be the best policy for the world at large "and all the rest of mankind" to lay aside the ponderous volumes of law, and commence the study of the laws of God—the principles of truth and righteousness, and the perfect order of the Government of Heaven; for, notwithstanding they are now so little known by the majority of the world; the time is not far distant when they will be universally sought, and as universally appreciated. In the meantime those who fight against them the most will comprehend them the least, and be the least qualified to associate with Apostles and Saints, when they are called upon to judge the world. But those who study the laws of God with a meek and quiet spirit, and are prepared to receive the kingdom as "a little child," they will know and understand, and will be raised to thrones and dominions, principalities and powers.

If we could recommend the study of the laws of God as a good speculation for aspirants by which to aggrandise themselves; there would doubtless be numerous candidates for the honor and emoluments of the profession; but seeing the lessons are unpopular—degrees of honor hard to be attained—and when attained are unproductive of that the world worship—gold; it is not surprising that so few comparatively speaking aspire to the honors of the profession, and identify themselves with the Kingdom of God. To those, however, who might wish to become students in the Lord's Academy, I will offer a few suggestions concerning elementary principles, degrees, and other items connected with the science of Theology.

Faith is the first principle in Theology and necessarily implies confidence in the existence of a God. The God of Israel who is worshipped by all Saints, sits enthroned in glory in the Eternal World—and is in form of man, Jesus Christ is the brightness of his glory and the express image of his person. The Father and the Son are two distinct persons, as much as any other father and son. The Holy Spirit is infinitely extended, and may be called omnipresent, because of the exhaustless quantity of its substantiality. It is not a person like the Father and the Son, but is an essence or living principle by which all things are created, controlled and sustained, whether in the Heavens or on the earth, and is sometimes in the Scriptures called God. These facts constitute the fundamental principles of all true Religion, which if fully comprehended and appreciated will qualify the student to take the first degrees; which may be classified under the following heads: Repentance, Baptism for the Remission of Sins, the reception of the Holy Ghost, by the laying on of hands, Ordinations, and Endowments, and Infinitum. When these degrees are given and received in conformity with the will of God; the initiated are entitled to the Saintly Cognomen, and are regarded as children of the Most High, and eligible for all the honors of his Kingdom, and can say we are made unto our God, Kings and Priests, and shall reign with Him on the earth.

Men pride themselves considerably in obtaining letters patents, credentials, and diplomas from Scientific Institutions, Theological Societies, and Political Governments; but what will it profit them when they enter the Eternal World? Their imaginary honors will then depart from them, and all their covenants will be abrogated. But not so with the Saints of God; every degree taken by them has a bearing upon and connection with the Eternal Worlds. The covenants they make are sealed in Heaven as well as on earth. The Priesthood they receive, and everything associated with it is eternal. Their wives and children are guaranteed to them for eternity as well as time. And thus all are sealed up unto Eternal Life.

If the rulers and Governors of the nations were all required to take these degrees, and learn to honor the laws of God before they took upon themselves the honor of ruling nations and governing kingdoms, we should see fewer despots in the world. Wars would be less frequent among the nations, political differences would soon come to an end; and the governments of the earth would approximate to the Government of Heaven. Until it might be said "The will of God is done on earth as it is done in Heaven."

JAMES H. HART.

St. Louis, Feb. 23, 1856.

From Our Iowa Correspondent.

CARION, Linn Co., Iowa, }
Feb. 11, 1856. }

—PRESIDENT TAYLOR,—Dear Sir: It is with feelings of great respect that I address you a few lines that you may know our whereabouts and our feelings towards the Great Work of God.

Last season a few brethren and sisters with myself left the Union Branch of the Church in Franklin Co., Pa., and came thus far on our way to the pleasant valleys of Ephraim. We expect some other brethern here this season from the same place. We long to mingle with the Saints in Zion, that we may be instructed in the ways of the Lord and be prepared for that rest which remaineth for the people of God.

We consider it advisable for us to remain for sometime here that we may by industry and the blessings of Heaven procure what is necessary to cross the plains. Wages for some trades are good in this place. While we are here we would be very happy to receive the visits of any elders from the valley or on their way thither. We would receive them with joy and gladness of heart, and we say to any elder or elders passing, call upon us and rest yourselves for days, weeks or months if you choose, we shall be happy to see you. We are lonely here, shut out from communion with the Saints. There are plenty of Secterians here, Universalist, Methodists, Congregationalists, Campbelites, Baptists, Presbyterians, Lutherians, United Brethren, and professed Infidels. The latter generally the most resonable when salvation is the subject of conversation. By the greater portion of the people the way of truth is evil spoken of, and the name of God set aside; they blaspheme his most holy and excellent name.

The Prophets Joseph Hyrum and Brigham, and the Twelve Apostles are represented by many as the worst of characters; but in the midst of all I feel to thank and praise the name of the great God of Joseph Hyrum and Brigham for the spirit we have received has given us a hope beyond the power of satan or his servants to destroy. Your excellent paper is a great comfort to us. We read its pages with pleasure and delight in seeing the progress of the Kingdom of God among the nations. In our circumstances THE MORMON is beyond all value and I shall do my best to sustain it. Notwithstanding my poverty my conscience will not permit me to say that I will send you less than ten dollars for my next year's subscription. I enclose you also a six months subscription for THE MORMON from a sceptic on Religion.

Cattle sell here from 75 to 110 dollars per yoke; cows from 20 to 46; horses from 95 to 175; pork 425; wheat 80 to 90 cts; corn 25 cts.; butter 25 cts.; eggs 20 cts. per doz. [The above prices for cattle are high.—ED.] Winter has been extremely cold, when summer weather comes we expect there will be much business done and laboring and tradesmen will be in demand. The country is very beautiful.

My prayer is that you may prosper and that the rich blessing of God may rest upon you and qualify you for your important mission.

Desiring a remembrance in your prayers, I am, yours in the Covenant.

WILLIAM TERMAN.

Steamship Pacific.

DURING the past week we have had fresh stories about some one seeing something on the broad Atlantic ocean resembling a steamer—of course the Pacific. It is really astonishing to see how otherwise sensible men will use the electric spark to excite the public with such stories, as:

"A gentleman who came out in the America, and who appears to be intelligent, and has a good knowledge of vessels, states that on the third day out from Liverpool, he saw a steamer without a bowsprit, and otherwise resembling the Collins boats, heading towards the St. George's channel, with a signal set in the rigging, and as the Baltic (the only other Collins steamer which could have been in that neighborhood) arrived at Liverpool some days previous, after a good run of eleven days, there appears to be some slight grounds for hope that the steamer seen may prove to have been the Pacific working her way to Cork or Liverpool, in a disabled condition."

An intelligent gentleman having a good knowledge of vessels saw a steamer heading towards St. George's channel. Did he really? Nobody else of course saw it! Perhaps he was "tar-sighted." Why did he not call the captain's attention to it? He had a heart that would respond to a signal set in the rigging.

It may not be a crime to raise a few dollars on the sale of an "Extra," but it is heartless cupidity alone that would play with the feelings of the friends and relatives of those on board the Pacific, by raising their expectations again and again with such groundless stories only to increase the pangs of disappointment.

The New Ocean Steamers.

THE new class of steamers, of which the Persia is the first, will decide not only the question as to the form of hull best fitted to contend, under all circumstances, with the restless and wayward sea, but will also solve the problem as to the plan of engine which will furnish the greatest amount of power at the least cost of fuel and space. The Persia has the marine side lever engines, with 100 inch cylinders and 10 feet stroke, built at the Napier Works. The New York Courier says, the new Vanderbilt steamer, built in that city, has the walking-beam engines, with 90 inch cylinders and 22 feet stroke, built at the Allaire Works. The new Collins steamer Adriatic has the oscillating engines, with 100 inch cylinders and 12 feet stroke, built at the Novelty Works. The three great machine shops in the world will thus send forth engines, the success of which will go far to determine the most effective and economical method of using steam on the ocean. The side-lever, walking-beam and oscillating, each has its advocates, and each class has done good service. But never before has the respective capacity of each been so thoroughly tested as it will be in the new fleet.

How to Make a Paris Letter.

RESEMBLANCES have often been discovered between the Paris correspondence of certain New York papers and that of certain European papers. Most marvellous coincidence of idea and of expression have been repeatedly traced, and a decidedly French manner of thinking and of writing has been found in the gentlemen who do the foreign news of our New York neighbors. One of the most remarkable coincidences of this kind that we have yet seen is that in a certain letter published in the Brussels Independance Belge of January 12th, and one in the New York Daily Times of February 7th. For the sake of exhibiting this miraculous resemblance in the clearest light, we print, side by side, extracts from the two journals.

[Correspondance particulière de l'Indépendance Belge.]

PARIS, 11 Janvier.—La société hivernale lente à se reconstituer, les théâtres promettant beaucoup et ne donnant pas gran'chose—voilà pour le moral. L'ensemble ne constitue pas un Paris très-amusant; mais que voulez-vous, c'est Paris! car Paris, c'est le pays des ressources de toutes sortes, des changements à vue, des étonnements, des éblouissements, des merveilles? On s'assied triste, et se lève gai! On sort l'humeur noire, on rentre couleur de rose! C'est ici que les jours se suivent et ne se ressemblent pas. C'est la ville des antithèses et des disparates, des abîmes et des cimes, des fleurs et des cloaques, de la noce et de l'enterrement du blanc et du noir, de toutes les misères et de tous les vices, de toutes les prospérités, et de toutes les vertus!

* * * * *

De quoi vous parlerai-je donc aujourd'hui, par ce temps si gris, si mou, si énervant que les brumes du ciel semblant s'infiltrer dans le cerveau de celui qui aurait besoin d'avoir l'esprit sur le qui-vive? Ah! un lecteur, c'est bientôt trouvé, et est bientôt prêt! Monsieur s'accote dans un bon fauteuil, le dos à la fenêtre ou cingle la pluie, les pieds sur les chenets ou le feu se mire, et...allons! à l'autre de l'informer! de l'amuser! L'informer de quoi? il n'y a rien! L'amuser de qui? Cruvelli est mariée! Que dis-je. Cruvelli! il n'y a plus de Sophie ni de Cruvelli, il y a une baronne de plus, et de quel droit parler des barronnes!

[Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Times.]

PARIS, Jan. 14.—With the bad weather, the winter society slow to organize itself, the theatres promising a great deal and giving nothing, Paris is not very amusing. But then it is still Paris; which is to say that it takes a nothing, the sunshine, a scandal, no matter who or what, to amuse the whole town to the point of a furore. Paris is the city of resources of all sorts, of sudden changes, of astonishment, of charms, of miracles. You sit down melancholy, and you get up gay. You start out gloomy, and you return couleur de rose. It is at Paris that the days follow, but do not resemble each other. It is the city of antitheses, of hills and of valleys; of flowers and of filth, of black and of white, of all the miseries and all the vices, of all the fortunes and all the virtues, of life. If one cannot be satisfied in such a bee-hive of feverish existences, where else will he go?

But of what shall I talk to you to-day, with the weather so gloomy that the vapory fog seems to infiltrate into the brain at the time when it has most need to be on the qui vive! Ah, a reader. A reader is soon found and is soon ready. Mr. Jones props himself in a soft armchair, the back to the window where the rain patters down, or the cold wind whistles, the feet against the fender where sparkles a warm fire, and allons! it is the business of the other, that is my business, to inform and to amuse him! But inform him of what? There is nothing! Amuse him about who? Cruvelli is married. There is no longer neither a Sophie, nor a Cruvelli—there is a baroness more in the world, and what right have I to talk of baronnesses?

It does not require much knowledge of French to discover the resemblance between the styles of these writers. The question is, does the Paris correspondent of the New York Times reside in Paris, New York, or Brussels? His letters with a file of the Independance Belge before him, might be written equally well in either city.—[Philadelphia Bulletin.

[We apprehend the Paris correspondent might be found without crossing the Atlantic. We had the offer, not long ago, of the services of a Paris correspondent who, we think, had not the most distant idea of crossing anything more than the East River in the ferry boat.—ED. MORMON.]

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.

A message was received from the President, communicating the official documents on the British enlistment cases. Six thousand extra copies were ordered to be printed.

The documents comprise about five hundred foolscap pages—one-third relative to the movements of the Government to suppress recruiting, the orders of the Attorney General, the trial of Hertz, &c.

On motion of Mr. Mason, the resolution was adopted requesting the President to inform the Senate whether an offer was made by Great Britain to this Government to arbitrate, by means of some friendly power, the differences regarding the construction of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and to transmit any correspondence touching the proposed arbitration.

Mr. Mason remarked that, on a former occasion, he stated that it was his impression no such offer had been made, but probably some suggestion of such character had been thrown out, incidentally or unofficially, to our Minister. The British Government, through its official organ, has announced that such an offer had been made, but not having been accepted, would be renewed. It was, therefore, important that the true state of the case should be made known.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Many bills were introduced and referred, and a number of resolutions adopted, including one introduced by Mr. Florence, instructing the Committee on Naval Affairs to inquire into the expediency of making an immediate provision for the construction of ten sloops or other vessels of war.

The deficiency in the Appropriation bill was being considered. Adjourned to Monday.

SENATE. Feb. 29.

A message was received from the President in response to the resolution asking whether Great Britain had offered to arbitrate concerning the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty.

The correspondence was read.

SENATE. March 3.

The bill authorizing the construction of ten sloops of war was taken up.

Mr. Seward referred to several periods of our history—from the affair of the Caroline to the late dispute in regard to the fisheries—to show that the appearance of a single British vessel had frightened the country into a fear of impending war. He said he was tired of these things and wished the people, especially the merchants of our commercial cities, to discuss questions of national interest without being alarmed, through fear of the inability of our Government to maintain them in their property, rights and interests. He would vote for this increase of the Navy, irrespective of any question in regard to our foreign relations, simply because he thought it wrong to leave the seaboard exposed, and because there never had been a time so propitious as the present, when, without any alteration of our revenue system, we, receiving an immense surplus revenue, could do so.

Mr. Hale thought it absurd to undertake to put our Navy on a footing to compete with those of other countries. It reminded him of a legacy of ten pounds bequeathed by an Englishman to pay the national debt. If there was any apprehension of war it originated in Congressional speeches. It was time to economize expenditures.

Mr. Bell of Tennessee said the bill was unanimously recommended by the Naval Committee, and not founded on any existing alarm on the subject of war. The object was to supply a class of vessels really necessary for the protection of commerce.

Mr. Hunter believed that the matters of difference between Great Britain and the United States were but such as ought to be settled, if common discretion is exercised. The passage of the bill should not create a war alarm. We increase the chances of peace by preparing for war—thus diminishing the opportunity for foreign powers to speculate on our weakness, real or supposed.

The bill was passed. [The estimated cost of each vessel is $507,000, including equipment and steam machinery. Two millions are now appropriated.]

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

House adjourned before concluding the discussion on the Deficiency Appropriation bill.

SENATE. March 4.

The Senate passed the bill appropriating $80,000 for new fortifications at Galveston.

Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Senate bill for the construction of ten sloops of war, was referred to the Naval Committee. Adjourned.

SENATE. March 5.

Mr. Butler, (dem.) of S. C., reported a bill making appropriatious for fortifications and other works of defence, and the repair of barracks and quarters.

The bill establishing the collection districts in the United States passed.

After debate, the Senate confirmed Mr. Lyman Trumbull in his seat for six years from the 4th of March last.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVE.

The Kansas contested election case was the only subject before the House. No decision—subject adjourned till to-morrow.

TELEGRAPHIC.

Central Bank of Tennessee.

LOUISVILLE, Feb. 19, 1856.

THE notes of the Central Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, are refused by the other Nashville banks. The bank is said to be owned in New York. The Attorney-General of the State has been directed to examine into its condition. Their recent issues are payable at Danbridge, Jefferson county, Tennessee.

Assault upon an Editor.

CHICAGO, Feb. 29, 1856.

THOMAS HAYNE, U. S. District Attorney, attacked Charles L. Wilson, editor of the Chicago Journal, in the streets yesterday, striking him a severe blow in the face. Mr. Wilson returned the blow, knocking Hayne through the window of the State Bank. The difficulty was occasioned by the comments in the Journal on the political course of Hayne.

Ship Telegraph Destroyed by Fire.

BALTIMORE, March 1, 1856.

THE ship Telegraph, from Boston, reported on fire at Savannah, was totally destroyed. She had five thousand barrels of flour on board, part of which was burned and the remainder badly damaged.

Marine Disasters.

BOSTON, March 1, 1856.

THE schooner Gen. Clinch, from Boston for New York, put into Stonington yesterday, leaking badly, having struck on Watch Hill.

PORTLAND, March 3, 1856.

THE bark David Nickles, Capt. Sweet, from Cardenas, was sunk in our harbor this morning by floating ice from Penobscot river. The crew were saved by the revenue cutter, but Capt. Sweet was drowned.

BOSTON, March 3, 1856.

THE schr. Lonsdale, from Providence for Philadelphia, was sunk by ice near Nyat Point on Saturday night last. She had a valuable cargo of dry goods on board.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 1, 1856.

THE United States Treasurer reports that the amount subject to draft in the various treasuries, on the 25th ult., was $22,714,950.

Navigation Resumed.

BALTIMORE, March 2, 1856.

THE Norfolk steamer arrived here at noon to-day, after a passage of eighteen hours. A large number of vessels are beating up the bay. The Wheeling river is clear of ice. No damage done.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2, 1856.

NAVIGATION is resumed on the Delaware.

Navigation of the Ohio.

PITTSBURGH, March 3, 1856.

THE river continues closed by ice from this point to Pomeroy, below Wheeling. The weather is cold.

Severe Gale at South Harwich.

SOUTH HARWICH, Mass., March 3, 1856.

YESTERDAY morning, during a gale of wind from the southeast, Commercial Wharf was completely carried away by ice, and a mackerel and salt store, and a sail loft, destroyed.

Pennsylvania Democratic Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3, 1856.

OVER three hundred persons left this city last night to attend the Democratic State Convention which assembles at Harrisburgh to-morrow. Warm work is anticipated between the friends of Pierce and Buchanan, to secure the election of delegates to the National Convention.

Defalcation of the Treasurer of New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3, 1856.

MUCH excitement was occasioned in this city on Saturday, by the discovery that Colonel Garland, the City Treasurer, is a defaulter to the extent of $200,000, Mr. Garland attempted to escape on board an outward bound schooner, but was caught at the Balize and brought back to the city.

The Treasury Office is closed in consequence of the defalcation.

Destruction of the Bark Messenger Bird.

BOSTON, March 4; 1846.

THE bark Messenger Bird, Capt. Hawson, from Boston for Valparaiso, before reported as having put into Bermuda in distress, is stated in a telegraphic dispatch to have been destroyed by fire at Bermuda, on the 7th of February. No particulars.

Nominations for Regents of the University.

ALBANY, March 4, 1856.

THE following nominations have been made for Regents of the State University, the election for which takes place on Thursday next. By the Democrats, Geo. W. Clinton of Buffalo, and Robert Kelly of New York; by the "Americans," Stephen R. Kirby, M. D., of New York, and Moses Crow of Geneva; by the "Republicans," E. W. Leavenworth of Syracuse and Joseph Julien of Chenango.

Proposition to Divide Minnesota.

CHICAGO, March 5, 1856.

A MEMORIAL has been introduced into the Minnesota Legislature desiring Congress to divide that Territory on the line of 45 deg. 10 min., from St. Croix to the Missouri river.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 5, 1856.

THE Baltic brought no dispatches from Mr. Buchanan to the Government.

Weather Westward.

BUFFALO, March 5, 1856.

YESTERDAY we were visited by the most severe snow storm that we have had this season. The snow has badly drifted, and all railroads leading into the city are blocked up. No Eastern or Western mail has been received since yesterday noon.

Cold Weather.

OF course nothing like the late cold weather ever was known before, and this is pronounced the most remarkable winter in the history of the world. But how are the facts? We have consulted one whose memory is good, and who should know what cold weather is, inasmuch as he can remember a winter in the State of New York in which sleighing lasted five months and a half, and one morning in that winter, when going to school, with the mercury at 35 degrees below zero, the blood spirted from his nose by a blow from Jack Frost. From his wallet, our friend dug out a piece of old newspaper which proves that cold weather is not peculiar to this winter. It is as follows:

OLD TIME WINTERS.

In 1664 the cold was so intense that the Thames was covered with ice sixty-one inches thick. Almost all the birds perished.

In 1691 the cold was so excessive that the famished wolves entered Vienna and attacked beasts and even men.

Many people in Germany were frozen to death in 1695, and the winters of 1698 and 1699 were nearly as bad.

In 1709 occurred that famous winter known as the "cold winter," by distinction. All the rivers and lakes were frozen, and even the sea for several miles from the shore. The ground was frozen nine feet deep. Birds and beasts were struck dead in the fields, and men perished by thousands in their houses. In the south of France the wine plantations were almost all destroyed; nor have they yet recovered that fatal disaster. The Arabic Sea was frozen over and even the Mediterranean.

In 1716 the winter was so intense that people traveled across the straits from Copenhagen to the province of Senia, in Sweden.

In 1720, in Scotland, multitudes of cattle and sheep were buried in the snow.

In 1740 the winter was scarcely inferior to that of 1709. The snow lay ten feet deep in Spain and Portugal. The Zuyder Zee was frozen over, and thousands of people went over it. And the lakes in England froze.

In 1744 the winter was very cold. Snow fell in Portugal to the depth of twenty-three feet on a level.

In 1754 and 1755 the winters were very severe and cold. In England the strongest ale, exposed to the air in a glass, was covered in fifteen minutes with ice one-eigth of an inch thick.

In 1771 the Elbe was frozen to the bottom.

In 1776 the Danube bore an ice five feet deep below Vienna. Vast numbers of the feathered and finny tribes perished.

The winters of 1785–6 were uncommonly severe. The Little Belt was entirely frozen over.

From 1800 to 1812 also, the winters were remarkably cold, particularly the latter, in Russia, which proved so disastrous to the French army."—[Cleveland Herald.

"WIFE," said a man looking at the telegraph wires, "I don't see for my part, how they send letters on them telegraph wires, without tearin' 'em all to bits." "Oh, you stupid!" exclaimed his intellectual spouse, "why they don't send the paper; they just send the writin' in a fluid state."

MEN doat on this world as though it were never to have an end, and neglect the other as if it were never to have a beginning.

LIKE colored bottles in a chemist's window, rouge on the cheeks of a maiden attracts passers-by, but nobody is taken in by it.

LIST of passengers shipped by F. D. Richards, 36 Islington, Liverpool, on board the ship "Caravan," A. Sands, Master, for New York, Feb. 15, 1856.

Adults.	Children.	Adults.	Children.
Wm. and Louisa Bedingfield.		David Lewis.
Jas. and Mary Thurston,	1	John Lewis.
Henry and Mary Seamons,	4	Thomas Williams.
Rachel Hancey.		Peter Williams.
Lucy Reynolds.		Elizabeth Williams.
James Hancey.		Maria Williams.
John H. Reynolds.		Charles and Eliz'h Harred.
George Bird.		Ellen Harred.
Elizabeth Thutle.		Ellen Close.
John Hall.		Ann Booth,	1
Elizabeth Mallows.		Adelaide Gyde.
Wm. and Mary Williams,	2	David Roberts,	1
Joseph Master.		Eliza Wilkes,	2
Wm. Pickard.		Joseph Alpin.
Abra'm & Hannah Hillam,	2	Frederick Yates.
Sarah Hill,	2	Charles Sharp.
Robert Tyror.		David Adams.
James Hart.		Samuel Perkins.
Thomas Entwistle.		Jesse Tye.
John Moore,	2	Isaac and M. Campkin,	5
Lewis and Sarah Stephens,	2	Thomas Young.
Wm. Stephens.		Elizabeth Smith.
Thomas Owen.		Wm. George Griffin.
Wm. and Martha Dowding.		Isaac and Pethuna Cole.
James Dowding.		Chas. and Anna Clifton,	2
Dan'l and Marg't Williams,	5	William Thompson.
Jas. and Sarah Dudman,	2	John and Hannah Bates,	5
Agnes Paterson,	4	John and Hannah Watson,	1
Rich'd & Mary A. Hughes,	1	Elias Crain.
Dan'l & Gwenlliare Evans,	1	Catherine Woodward.
Josiah Barker.		Eliza Woodward.
Rob't and Sarah Howlett.		Wm. and Harriet Aderley,	2
John R. Manning.		Mary Thompson.
Emma Williams.		George Jenkins.
Mary Cantle.		William Cooper.
Cornelius Collard.		Chas. and Phebe Gibson,	2
Alexander Glen.		Geo. and Martha Vane,	1
William Booth.		Wm. and Susan Shefford,	1
John and Eliza Hancock.		Mary Marmoy.
Samuel Hancock.		John Wilson.
Benj. and Phebe Isaac,	4	Wm. and Jane Knopp.
Rich'd and Sarah Walker.		Eliza Knopp.
Dan'l and Martha Garside.		John Holden.
Wm. Henry Hansen.		Dan'l and Lucy Brown.
Joseph Orton.		Edwin Stratford.
James McCormick.		Mariame Crabbe.
Rich'd and Agnes Grant,	1	James Brown.
John and Eliz'h Robertson,	2	Jas. and Rachel Wilson,	3
Helen McIndoe.		John Hymas.
Alex. and Marg't Steel.		Ambrose Little.
Thos. and Agnes Gallop.		Geo and Rebecca Scales,	2
John and Eliz'h Jenkins,	7	Elizabeth Scales.
Rachel Nicholas.		Thomas Honour.
Daniel Nicholas.		Fred'k and Marg't Smith.
William Bath.		Margaret Hardy.
Anna Bath.		Emily Smith.
Benjamin Harman.		Jannett Wood.
William Longhurst.		Francis Wood.
Jane Reece.		Thomas Smith.
Reece R. Reece.		John Wood,	2
David Griffiths.		Mary Ann Quiney.
Jacob Beechan.		Rich'd and Eliz'h Coleman,	2
John Parcha.		Ann Grey.
David Davies.		Thos and Ellen Cornell.
Richard Davies.		David and Ann Leaker.
John Williams,	3	Frederick Houghton.
John and Sarah Williams,	3	Susan Baster.
Geo. and Sarah Thomas.		Jabez Dangerfield.
Emmanuel Thomas.		George Waylett.
John and Marg't Thomas,	1	Henry and C. Simons,	3
Theo. and Mary Williams.		Geo. and Eliz'h Sermon,	4
Thomas Bartlett.		John Manning.
William Harris,	2	Samuel Manning.
George Bennett.		Chas. D. and Ann Juchau,	3
Wm. and Joan Richardson,	1	Wm. and Sarah Bell,	1
Math. and Marg't Sinclair,	1	Wm. and Ann Beasley,	2
James and Mary Aitken,	2	Edw'd and Lucinda Cox,	3
James Archibald.		George Allen.
Chas. H. and Mary Crew.		James Crick.
Wm. and Hannah Jones,	2	Thomas Jenkins.
Mary Barnes.		Wm. O. and Sarah Loyd.
Alice Lyddall.		Thos. and Eliz'h Parker,	4
Robert Allen.		Esther Stocks.
Hannah Barnes.		Thomas Howell.
Jos. and Sarah Cochrane.		Francis Cook.
Edward Peters.		Hannah Adams.
John and Jane Butler,	1	Jochia Holland.
Geo. and C. Shelton,	1	Eliza Ann Holland.
Edw'd and Harriet Lunt,	4	John and Rachel Isaac.
Caroline Renolds.		Dan'l and Eliza Dunmore,	6
William Tonks.		Sarah Williams.
Geo. and Mary A. Moore,	2	Thos. and Esther Williams,	3
Joseph Slater.		Joseph Dickerson.
William Dixon.		Benjamin Perry.
Stephen Mandsley.		Lot Darney.
George Watts.		George Stone,	1
John Harris.		John Truscott.
Mark Surridge.		Esther Worthington.
Lewis Jenkins.		William Walker.
William Latery.		John and Mary Kynaston,	1
Henry L. Latery.		Thomas Morleys.
John H. Latery.		Edward Bunker.
William J. Hancock.		Leonard J. Smith.
Chas. and Elizabeth Fox.		Ann Lloyd.
Samuel Orten.		Jas. and Mary Fisher,	2
Alexander Orten.		Donald Douglas.
Sarah Plumb.	4	William Walker.
Wm. and Harriet Knight.		Soren and G. Sorensen,	1
Wm. and Eliza Saddler,	1	N. C. and Karen Nielsen,	5
David and Jane Evans,	1	Eliza Reed.
Morgan and Mary Lewis,	1	Sam'l and Mary A. House.
John Lewis,	1	John Edmunds.
J. and Mary Jeremiah,	1	Martha Derrecott.
Miles and Jane Williams.		William Harrison,	2

RECAPITULATION.

Adults	365
Children	69
Infants	19
	453
Charles Caldwell, John Whittaker, } Cooks	2
James Airsee, Steward	1
Elder Daniel Tyler, President of the Company	1
Total	457

DANIEL TYLER, President.
EDWARD BUNKER, }
LEONARD J. SMITH, } Counsellors.
WILLIAM WALKER, }

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

JULY, 1855.

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb.	$0 35
do clarified "	30
do brown "	30
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	35
Tea, Young Hyson "	1 50
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	1 50
Tea, black, per lb	1 50
Apples, dried, per lb	30
Peaches " "	30
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb	75
Allspice "	40
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	40
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	25
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	40
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	60
Brimstone "	30
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	50
Candy "	66
Candles, 6 to the lb	50
Figs, per lb	60
Cloves, per oz	10
Nutmegs "	15
Oysters, per can	1 50
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	1 50
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 25
do pints "	75
Lemon Syrup "	1 25
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	18¾
do 10x12 "	20
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	20
Pepper "	15
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb	$0 30
Glue "	60
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	30
Copperas "	30
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	50
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	30
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $2 pr lb. or pr oz	15
Gum Camphor, per oz	15
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	10
Turkey Opium "	75
Golden Seal "	10
Liquorice, per lb	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal.	6 00
Linseed Oil "	6 00
Copal Varnish "	8 00
Whale Oil "	6 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	75
do do do	40
Mustang Liniment, p bot	40
Rope, sea grass, per lb.	50
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	20
do 2d do	40
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$2 25
do boys', handled	2 00
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	2 00
Shovels	2 10
do steel plated	3 00
Grain Scythes	2 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 50
Two prong Hay Forks	1 50
Three do do	1 75
Four do dung do	2 50
Hoes	1 25
Concave Augers, per ¼	25
Bitts "	25
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	3 00
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb	1 00
Flat Irons "	20

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	30
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	80
Sand Paper, pr 2 sheets	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb	25
SCREWS. Size.	Gross.
¼ inch	50
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 00
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	2
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1½	20
1¾	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	20
10 do	25
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box.
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Hat, 250	1 00
Powder, per lb	70
Lead "	30
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	7 00
Fine do	9 50
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 00
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 25
do do Low	2 25
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 20
Kacks	45
Sole Leather, per lb	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to	1 75
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz	75
Oil Cassia "	75
Oil Peppermint "	75
Oil Lemon "	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 18¾ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	46
Ticking	30
Blue Drilling	20
Denims	25
Cotton Batten, per roll	20
do Yarn, per 5 lb	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb	25
Eggs, per doz	25
Cheese, per lb	25
Bacon, smoked. per lb.	30
Shoulder "	25
Ham "	30
Middle "	40
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 00
Oats "	1 70
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	3 00
Sugar cured Beef, pr lb.	20
Beef, fresh, per lb	9
Mutton "	10
Tongues, each	40
Tallow, per lb	20
Lard "	32
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $5 to	7 00
Adobies, per 100	[illegible]
Stone, per cord	12 00
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $80 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	12 00

AT a recent trial in Paris, between a steel pen dealer of that city and Messrs. Hincks & Wells, the manufacturers, of Birmingham, it was stated that in the whole world there are but fourteen manufactories of steel pens, and that nine of them are at Birmingham, four at Boulogne-sur-Mer, and one at Paris.

CONSUMPTION OF COAL IN LONDON.—London, it is said, consumes every year not less than three millions of tons of coal. More than a thousand vessels, averaging four hundred tons burden, are employed in carrying this article of commerce to the great heart of the central metropolis of the world.

MARRIED,

On January 21, 1856, by Elder James H. Hart, HENRY WILLIAM ATTLEY and CHRISTINA STEWART, both of St. Louis.

BIRTH.

IN San Francisco, Jan. 29th, the only lady of the Mormon Elder, Geo. Q. Cannon, of a son.—[California paper.

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

Stars.

WE have on hand a number of the present volume of the MILLENIAL STAR, from the 1st to the 28th No

Price for the year $2 25
" " half year 1 12½

Also, a few numbers of the JOURNAL OF DISCOURSES, from No. 1 to 13; each No., 10 cents.

We have paid the American, as well as foreign, postage on the above, which is 2 cents each number, extra, for the volume. $1 04.

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to March 7, 1856.

ASHES—Pot ... per 100 lb.	6 25	a — —
Pearl	7 75	a 8 —
CANDIES—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted ... per lb.	—	a —
Ordinary	—	a —
CANDLES—Sperm ... per lb.	38	a 40
Adamantine	26	a 32
Mould, yellow	15	a 17
COFFEE—Java, white	14	a 14½
Mocha	—	a 15
Laguayra	11	a 13
Maracaibo	11	a 13
St. Domingo (cash)	—	a 10½
DRUGS AND DYES—Alcohol. pr. gal.	— 66	a — 72
Alum ... per lb.	— 2½	a — 2¾
Arrowroot	— 50	a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— —	a — 2½
Asafœtida	— 5	a — 25
Borax, refined	— 28	a — 28½
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2½	a — —
do crude ... per ton.	30 —	a 32 —
Camphor, crude ... per lb.	— 24	a — 24½
do refined	— 35	a — —
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 80	a 1 88
Chlorate Potash	— 40	a — 45
Cochineal	1 05	a 1 20
Copper—sheathing ... per lb.	— 23	a — 27
Copperas ... per 100 lb.	1 25	a — —
Cream Tartar ... per lb.	— 30½	a — 31
Gum Arabic, picked	— 18	a — 37½
Gum Copal	— 40	a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 25	a — 30
Iodine, resublamized	5 10	a — —
Ipecacuanha	2 12½	a 2 25
Madder	— 10	a — 11½
Magnesia	— 15	a — 17½
Do calcined	— 30	a — 35
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 18	a — 20
Oil Anis	— —	a 5 —
Oil Bergamot	2 —	a 2 12½
Oil Cassia	— —	a 3 50
Oil Lemon	2 —	a 2 12½
Oil Peppermint	2 75	a 3 —
Opium, Turkey	4 50	a — —
Otto Rose ... per oz.	3 50	a 6 50
Oxalic Acid ... per lb.	— 33	a — 34
Phosphorus	1 —	a 1 —
Quicksilver	— 43	a — —
Rhubarb, China	2 —	a 2 25
Salæratus	— 5¼	a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10	a — 11
Senna	— —	a — 15
Shellac	— 11	a — 13
Sugar Lead, white	— 15	a — 16
do brown	— 9½	a — 10
Sulphate Quinine	2 55	a 2 65
Tartaric Acid	— 44	a — 45
Verdigris	— 37	a — 40
Vitriol, blue	— 10	a — 10½
DYE WOODS—Camwood ... per ton.	— —	a 80 —
Fustic	17 —	a 30 —
Logwood	19 —	a 30 —
FLOUR—State, common ... per bbl.	6 62½	a 6 68
Michigan and Indiana	6 87½	a 7 12½
Genesee, extra	7 50	a 8 —
Rye Flour	5 50	a 6 —
Corn Meal	4 —	a 4 12½
FRUIT—Raisins ... per box.	2 75	a 3 —
Raisins, layers	— —	a 3 25
Currants ... per lb.	— 15	a — 25
GLASS (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10 ... per 50 feet.	3 25	a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75	a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 —	a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50	a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 —	a 7 50
GRAIN—Wheat ... per bush.	1 45	a 2 05
Corn, round yellow	— 76	a 77 —
Barley	1 12	a 1 22
Oats, Western	— 43	a — 46
Beans	2 25	a — —
GUNPOWDER ... per 25 lbs	3 50	a 6 50
INDIGO ... per lb.	— 90	a 1 30
IRON—Pig, Eng., Scot ... per ton.	35 —	a 36 —
Bar, Eng. refined	65 —	a — —
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality .. per lb.	— 15	a — 23
Sheet, Eng	— 3½	a — 4
LEAD—Galena ... per 100 lbs.	7 —	a 7 25
Sheet and Pipe	— 8½	a — —
LEATHER ... per lb.	20	a 31
MOLASSES ... per gal.	33	a 44
NAILS—Cut, 4d and 6d ... per lb.	4½	a —
Wrought, 6d and 20d	6	a 7½
OILS—Olive .. per bskt., 12 bottles	3 50	a — —
Olive, in casks ... per gallon.	1 15	a 1 22½
Linseed	— 85	a — —
Whale	— 80	a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95	a 1 —
PAINTS—Lead, red, Am ... per lb.	— 7½	a — 8
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— 8½	a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8½	a — —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	1 —	a 1 62½
Ochre, in oil	— 4	a — 6
Spanish Brown, dry ... per cwt.	— 60	a — 75
Litharge ... per lb.	— 7½	a — 8½
Vermillion, Chinese	1 65	a — —
Venetian Red ... per cwt.	2 —	a 2 37½
RICE ... per 100 lbs.	4 50	a 5 25
SALTPETRE ... per lb.	9	a 20
SEEDS—Clover ... per lb.	— —	a — 13½
Flax, American, rough .. per bush.	2 —	a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	2 25	a — —
SOAP—New York ... per lb.	4½	a 7
Castile	11	a 11½
SPICES—Ginger, Race ... per lb.	5	a 5½
Mace	82½	a 87½
Nutmegs	91	a 95
Pepper	10	a 11½
Pimento	12	a 12½
Cloves (cash)	13	a 13½
SUGAR—New Orleans ... per lb.	7½	a 9
Havana, white	9	a 9½
do brown	7½	a 8½
Stuart's crushed	—	a 10½
SUMAC, Sicily ... per ton.	72 50	a 82 50
TEAS—Gunpowder and Imperial .. per lb.	35	a 75
Hyson	30	a 80
Young Hyson	23	a 70
Hyson Skin	20	a 35
Black	23	a 50
TIN—Banca ... per lb.	—	a 31½
Straits	28	a 29
Plates ... per box.	9 —	a 10 50
TOBACCO	7	a 43½
TURPENTINE ... per 280 lbs.	3 62½	a — —
TAR ... per bbl.	3 —	a 3 25
SPIRITS TURPENTINE ... per gallon.	— 41	a — 43

Mormon Books.

WE have received, and have for sale, the following Books, and at the annexed prices:

Book of Mormon, roan	1 25
Doctrines and Covenants	1 00
Spencer's Letters, cloth bound—O. Spencer	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
Voice of Warning—P. P. Pratt	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
do do calf gilt, do	1 25
Government of God—J. Taylor	0 50
Pearl of Great Price—F. D. Richards	0 37½
Livre de Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Das Buch Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Zion's Panier—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Etoile du Deseret—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Route to Salt Lake, Illustrated—Piercy & Linforth—per No.	0 40

St. Louis Book Agency.

J. S. CANTWELL, southwest corner of Washington avenue and Sixth street, St. Louis, Mo., has for sale, at the usual prices, the following books and pamphlets:

Book of Mormon, German; Voice of Warning, German; Voice of Warning, French; Martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and expulsion from Nauvoo; Route to Salt Lake Illustrated, in 14 monthly parts; Book of Mormon; Book of Doctrine and Covenants; Voice of Warning; Spencer's Letters; Hymn Books; Government of God, by J. Taylor; New Jerusalem, or the Fulfilment of Modern Prophecy; Divine Authority of Joseph Smith; Remarkable Visions; Only Way to be Saved; Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, by O. Pratt, 6 parts; Polygamy, by a Lady in Utah; The Seer, by O. Pratt, Vol. I., to which is added 6 parts of Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and Polygamy, by a Lady of Utah, elegantly bound, in one vol.; Orson Pratt's Works, bound; Times and Seasons, Vols. IV., V., and VI., well bound; Portraits of the First Presidency; Journal of Discourses, well bound; Millennial Star, Vol. XVII.

Mormon Publications.

THE DESERET NEWS is a weekly paper, the official organ of the Church in Utah, and is published in Salt Lake City; it is ably edited by Albert Carrington. It is circulated extensively in Utah Territory; how much abroad we are not prepared to say.

Price of subscription, $5 in advance.

THE MILLENNIEL STAR.—A weekly publication of 16 pages, adapted for binding; of which there are 16 volumes now bound. It is printed on good paper, clear type, and is devoted principally to the progress of the work in Europe. It is very ably edited by F. D. Richards, one of the Twelve Apostles, and President of the European Church.

Price in England, one penny, or two cents. The law of postage between England and the United States is, that two cents on each paper shall be prepaid in each country, and two cents after the arrival.

Price of subscription, including foreign postage, $2.25, in advance, sent to the address of subscribers. Elder Richards has requested us to act as agent, but has not given us the terms. The above is the nearest approximate that we can arrive at without instructions.

The subscriptions can be sent to us, and we will immediately forward the names and address.

Published at 36 Islington, Liverpool, and at 35 Jewin street, City, London.

Besides the above, there is a paper published in Australia, another in Bombay, one in Switzerland, one commencing on the Sandwich Islands, one in California, and one in Cincinnati; besides a host of minor publications.

C. D. ELLIS. J. S. CAVENDER. JAS. SMITH, JR.

ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8–4m

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,
in packages, prepared for Shipping.
Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee, Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8–1y

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!
CHARLES ROGERS,
IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,
No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,

Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.

Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.

mh8–1y CHARLES ROGERS.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,

ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted, stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.

The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind, which will insure satisfaction.

Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.

Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.

HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,

Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendence himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.

Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.

E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.

Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 103 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,

HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.

MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that, when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commençant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours!

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés!" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit!" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence. ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets.
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines, Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city.
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sizes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
150 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis.
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26:tf

NOW IS YOUR TIME TO BUY GROCERIES CHEAP.
CALL AND BE CONVINCED.
"HONEST COMPETITION IS THE LIFE OF TRADE."
FRANCIS LEPERE,
WHOLESALE & RETAIL GROCER,
South-east corner Seventh st. and Franklin Av.
On hand for the Holidays,
Currants, Citron, and Raisins, at the lowest prices, by F. LEPERE.

Fresh Family Flour, of best favorite country brands, constantly on hand, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.

CHEESE—W. R. and English dairy—Sap Sago, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.

ENGLISH SPLIT PEAS—10 bbls. just received, for sale low, by F. LEPERE.

SPICES—Cinnamon, Cloves, Ginger, Nutmegs, Mace, and Caraway Seeds, 1,500 lbs., whole and ground, in store, for sale low, by d22 1m F. LEPERE.

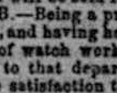
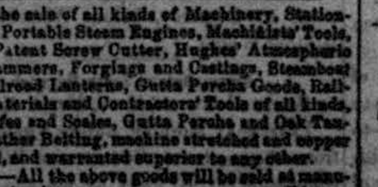
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22–1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.



A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10–6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29–6m



ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29–6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment o WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12–1y

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22–6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVICE,
GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

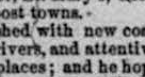
M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

For the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. 126 1y

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article. Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread.
mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22



W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29–tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.
Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
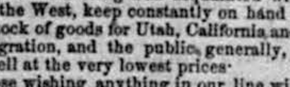
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.



TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Buzby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public, generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

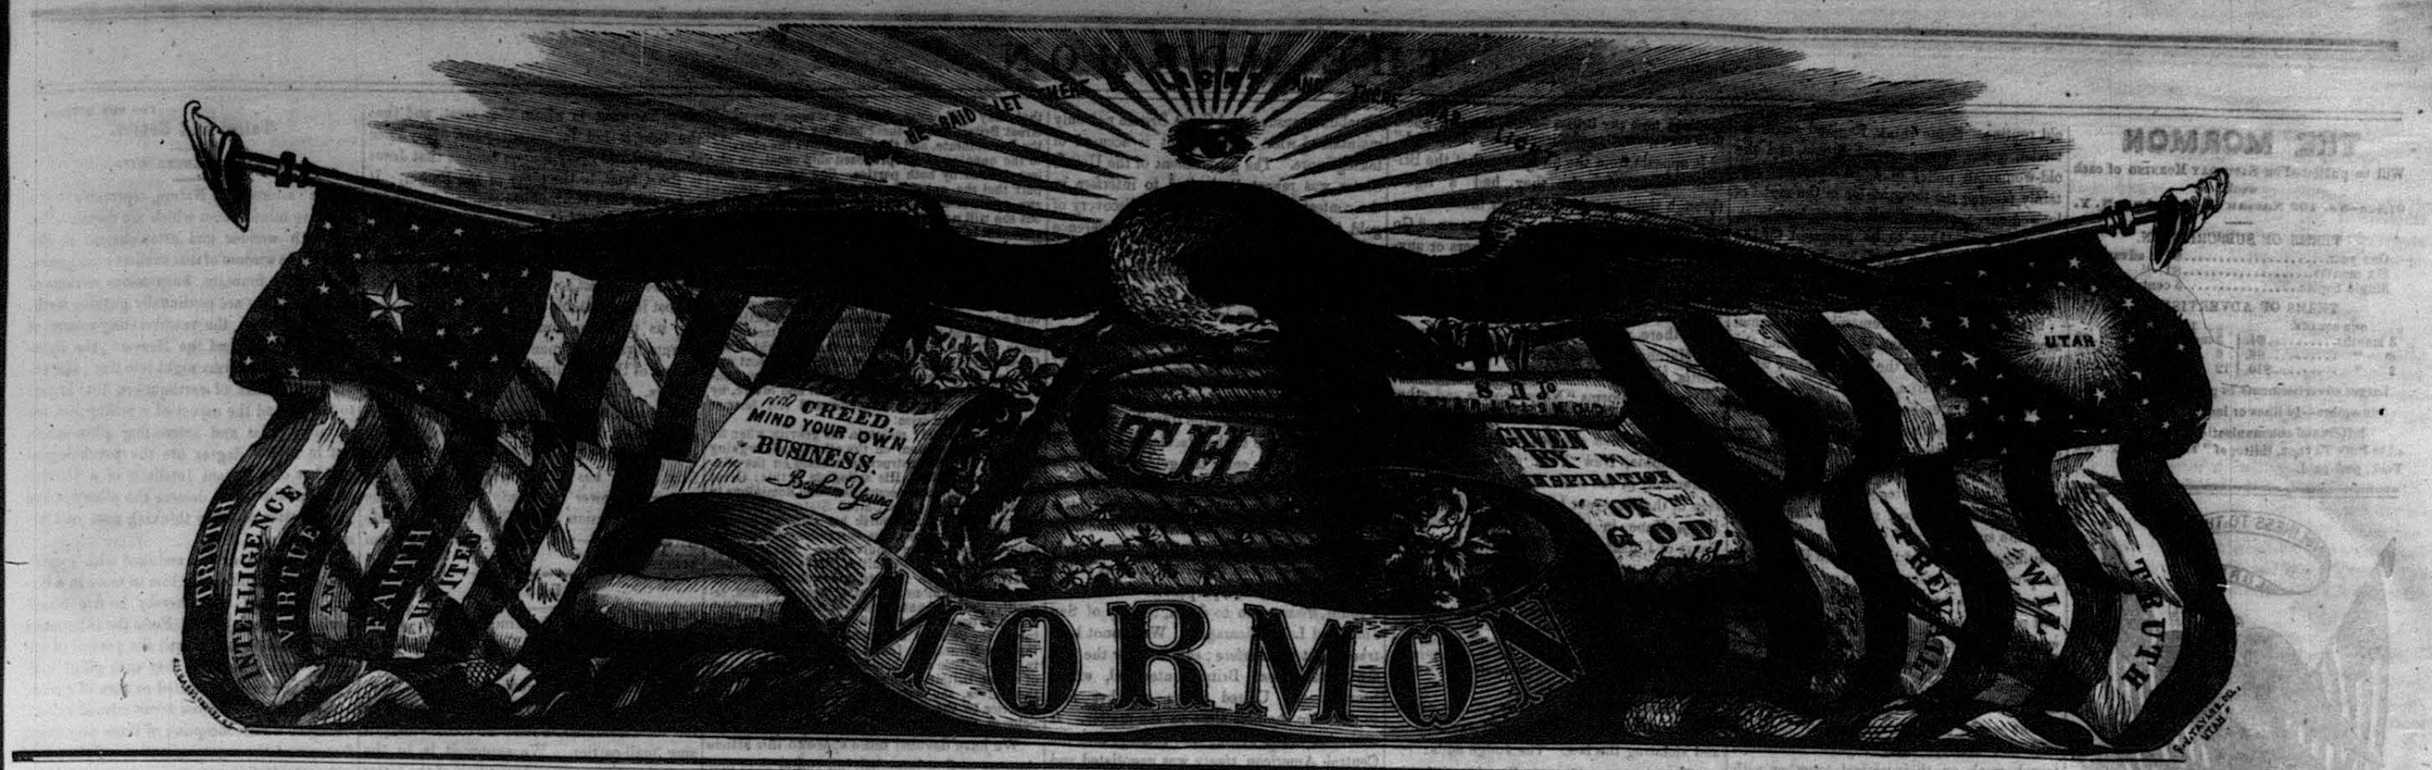
PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)

WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!

Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.

N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.

We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.



We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.

Please call and examine for yourselves, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je3–

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS. fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 4. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Fortune and Love.

BY ELIZA COOK.

Let me live without fortune, if Providence will it,
For joy can be found where small treasure is shed;
Those who bear a full cup are most fearful to spill it,
And oftentimes walk with the narrowest tread.
I care not, though Fate may deny me profusion,
If earth will but show me some rays from above;
Tell me not that God's light is a dreamy illusion,
I could live without Fortune, but not without Love.

Oh! 'tis pleasant to know there are beings about us,
Who tune the most exquisite strings in our heart;
To feel that they would not be happy without us,
And that we, in our loneliness, sigh when we part.
Oh! there's something divine in the thought that we cherish,
A star-beam within us, that shines from above;
To know that if all the world gives us should perish,
The greatest of Fortune still dwells in our Love.

Oh! 'tis glory to feel that we live for some others,
That self is not all we depend on below—
That affection yet links us to sisters and brothers,
Whose faith will be constant, come weal or come woe.
Though the vultures of trouble may harrass our bosoms,
N'er fear while our spirit is fed by the dove;
Let the desert of Life give Eternity's blossoms,
And we'll live without Fortune while favored by Love.

Forgiveness.

Dedicated to Those That Love Me Not.

BY CORA WILBURN.

Wherefore the bitter enmity, the unavailing hatred that scorns the angel attribute forgiveness? Unavailing, because the deadly feuds—the fostered enmity, can never inspire the detested foe's felicity beyond the narrow confines of earth: and, even here, among the good and the true, the wronged and unjustly assailed can find a refuge, when assaulted by malignant tongue and unrelenting enmity. Truth, the never daunted supporter of many an injured breast, will not fail successfully to resist the machinations of inventive calumny, the hostilities of an untiring malice, that seeks a fellow-being's downfall, with a zeal worthy of a far better cause. There can be no just reason assigned for the dominion of hatred within the human breast, how sweet it is to forgive the hastily spoken word, the unreflected expression, gently to reprove, but not to hate inexorably; for perhaps, but one impulsive word or action, thus magnified by the distorted vision of lurking animosity, renders the slightest fault a grievous sin; and a thoughtlessly spoken word an unpardonable offence. And, even where there is cause—just and all-sufficient cause, will the nursing of wrath and hatred better thyself, or reform thy foe? When calumny assails and malice threatens, and envy darts her snake like glances, is it not better, by the even tenor of a spotless life—a life devoted to the fulfilment of duty, to reprove the slanderer's tale with conscious innocence and integrity, to smile serenely when trials threaten and a foe's influence strives for dominion? To take no heed of envy's whisperings, and "evil eye," but to pursue steadily, cheerfully, hopelessly, the path of right on earth, that leads to heaven above. Oh, this is better then repining, when evil tongues assail thy truth, and unstable friendships waver. Better than the unavailing tears shed over deceit and treachery is the calmness earned by sincerity of motive, and the prayer that strengthens—even when friends doubt and foes rejoice triumphantly. And, can it be, that woman's heart can give admittance to the demon form of hatred, to an evil influence that will change her melodious accents of kindness to ringing sounds of discord? The voice that is laden with the accents of gentleness and forgiveness, would fall like angel melody. Woman, in whose spiritual nature, the heart's chords respond to heavenly lessons of mercy and forbearance, can she cherish this demon within the breast that should be dedicated to its opposing angel? In the world's history we find the noblest hearts of patriots and heroes alive to the enobling sentiment's of forgiveness of injuries; intolerance and hatred; the distinguishing traits of tyrants; falsehood and deceit; the revealed attributes of despot traitors. And with the stigma of moral cowardice ever attached to the traducer's name, can there yet be hearts—even womanly hearts, so lost to sympathy, to truth to fellow-feeling, as to pursue with the two edged sword of calumny and misrepresentation, those who have never injured them, repeating some imaginary offence, some fancied tyranny? And the consequences if successful, have they reflected upon them?—That they would place obstacles in the path of honest endeavors to aspiring toil, place the barriers of unjust accusation between friendly hearts, and insinuations detrimental to truth and honor, that might cause tears of anguish and nights of sleepless pain? But all this may not be. The good and the confiding will not fail with time to discover the slanderer's hidden motive; though at first giving heed to their honeyed words, and serpent twinings of pretended disinterestedness. Time, the consoler, is also the discourser of horrible things, and He who ordains the final triumph of truth and justice, will not fail to lighten of its burden of woe and care the wronged one's path, and inflict on hearts that cherish the implacable enmity, the inevitable punishment that deeds and thoughts of revenge must bring the accusing conscience and sleepless pillow. Better it were, in place of religious profession and outward sanctity, to purify the heart from evil guests, and remembering the divine precept of "Doing unto others, as ye would be done by," believe that

"To err is human; to forgive, divine."

Philadelphia. Feb. 26. 1856.

[Woman's Advocate.

A Glance at the History of Fire-Arms.

It is not certainly known when gunpowder was invented. The Chinese and other nations of the East. among whom most of the arts originated, were probably acquainted with its properties long before they were known in Europe. Bartholdus Schwarz is generally thought to have discovered the secret of its manufacture, and introduced it throughout Europe in about the year 1320. The honor of the invention is also attributed by some to a monk named Constantine Anelzen, and by others to Roger Bacon. The explosive forces of this simple combination of nitre, sulphur and charcoal, once being fully understood, it was soon applied to the purposes of war, and we hear of cannon having been used by the Moors as early as the year 1342, at the siege of Algesiras, and also by the English in 1346, at the battle of Cressy.

The first experiments in the manufacture of cannon naturally resulted in the production of awkward and unwieldy instruments. They were of enormous size, often throwing balls of one hundred pounds weight, and could only be dragged before the walls of a besieged town at a very great expense of money and labor. After a while some fertile imagination conceived the idea of lessening the bulk of this wonderful engine, so as to apply it as a weapon far the hand; and in 1364 five hundred small barrels, of a span only in length, were manufactured in an Italian town. These were found to be inconvenient, however, and soon the barrels were lengthened, and the old fashioned arquebus began to be used throughout Europe, and substituted for the crossbow, which until then, had maintained an unquestionable superiority. The arquebus was at first short, thick, and very heavy, carrying a four ounce ball, and fired by a match in the hand. In the fifteenth century a cock or dragon was attached to the right side of the barrel, between the lips of which the burning match was fixed, and by means of a trigger and spring, pressed upon the priming. The operation of loading and firing with so heavy an instrument was necessarily very slow notwithstanding each arquebuser was attended by a shield bearer, behind whose shield he took shelter during battle.

Toward the latter part of the fifteenth century the cavalry were gradually provided with fire-arms, the French being among the first to introduce mounted marksmen armed with pieces two and a half feet long. Fire-arms had by this time come to be regarded as a most terrible weapon, and much attention was devoted to the subject of improving them. In 1517, the wheel-lock was invented by a mechanic of Nuremburg. This was a simple contrivance, consisting of a small, sharply-notched wheel of steel, projecting upward through the center of the pan, and cocked by means of a strong spring. The pan being filled with priming powder, and the cock, furnished with a piece of brimstone, being let down upon the wheel, the pulling of the trigger would cause the wheel to revolve rapidly several times, producing sparks from the brimstone and exploding the weapon. The cavalry alone made use of these wheel-locks, and the infantry of all the European powers remained armed with matchlocks up to the middle of the seventeenth century.

In the sixteenth century the bore of the arquebus was diminished from that of a four-ounce ball to that of a two-ounce ball, and then was introduced into use the double arquebus, whose barrel was four feet long, and carried an eight-ounce ball. This of course, was fired with a rest. There was also used by soldiers, a musquetoon, with a barrel one foot and a half long, having a caliber of two inches and designed to carry twelve or fifteen small bullets. Target shooting was generally practiced in this country. At about this time was also introduced the musket proper, whose barrel was considerably longer than that of the arquebus, and threw a ball of four ounces. This weapon was fired from a rest, and was first used with deadly effect in the armies of Charles V of Spain.

At the commencement of the seventeenth century, the arquebus had entirely disappeared, and the troops of the various European companies were divided into musketeers and pikeman. Carbines also, three and a half feet long, were introduced among the cavalry, and each rider was provided with two pistols. The carbineer loaded his piece with prepared wood-in cartridges.

In the early part of the seventeenth century it was found that the caliber of the pieces might be reduced without diminishing their utility, and the French accordingly set the fashion of using muskets carrying as many as fourteen bullets to the pound. This century was noted for many great improvements in fire-arms and other weapons of war. The most important of these changes was the substitution of the flint lock for the wheel and match locks. By the year 1670 the match locks were entirely out of use. About this time, too, the bayonet was introduced, consisting of a two-edged blade twelve inches long by one in width fitted like a plug in the barrel of the musket, by means of a wooden handle. This method of fastening the bayonet to the gun was very inconvenient, inasmuch as it was necessary to remove the blade at each discharge of the piece. The invention of the screw to the bayonet, however, in 1678, by which its advantages could be retained even while firing, decided all minds in its favor, but it was not generally adopted until a much later period of the century. It is said that the Swedes were the first who fired with bayonets fixed.

In the commencement of the eighteenth century Gottfried Hausch of Nuremburg introduced the method of making the touch-holes funnel shaped, so that the powder upon being rammed into the barrel would itself prime the piece, and thus increase the speed of loading. At this period also the grooved, or rifle barrel, began to come generally into use.

In 1807 two explosive mediums were discovered, the one being chlorate of potash and the other detonating quick-silver. Forsyth took advantage of these discoveries, and obtained in England a patent for percussion fire-locks, by which he produced the ignition of little detonating balls, composed of potash, brimstone and lycopodium, by means of a smart stroke from a hammer. This percussion lock, however, owing to its somewhat complicated structure and to the too great affinity of the chlorate to damp, proved incapable of appliance to the arms of war until the invention of the percussion cap in 1818 by Debboubert. The cap, as first used, was a somewhat clumsy and awkward instrument. Many years elapsed before it acquired its present neat and convenient shape, and it was not until after 1840 that they were introduced generally among the European troops.

Of late years much more attention has been devoted to the subject of fire-arms than ever before. The result is visible in the compact and elegant fowling pieces, rifles and revolving pistols, which are displayed in our shop windows, as well as in the many marvelous engines of destruction which have been brought into use since the commencement of the present European war. It is to be hoped that as man's knowledge and skill in the manufacture of deadly weapons becomes more perfect our necessity for their use as an offensive weapon will grow less and less.

Remember that custom in infancy becomes nature in old age.

The Navy of England.

A compilation made from the official Navy List, published yesterday, shows a number amounting to 456 ships and vessels of every denomination comprising the British fleet. Of this force 301 ships and vessels are in commission, and employed in various ways, as 131 gun line-of-battle ships down to the one gun, mortar, or gun-boat, and the steam yacht mounting no armament at all. Ten years ago we only had 233 vessels as a grand total of all classes in commission, and nearly all those were sailing vessels; now the character of the service is so thoroughly changed, that nearly all are steamers, and such few sailing vessels as are yet doing duty are being set aside as fast as their terms of commission expire. Thus, this week, we have that noble three-decker, the Neptune, 120, Capt. Hutton, laid up in ordinary, to make room for the more modern steam bulwark, the Marlboro', 131; and so the work of change will progress, until a sailing man-of-war will become as great a novelty in the British fleet at sea as was the steamer at the time of the "venture" of the little Comet. The staff of the fleet has also changed with the growth of its metamorphosis, as will at once be perceived by the following statistics, showing the division and subdivision of the grades since the termination of the war in 1816, in which year there were:

1816.
Flag officers	343
Captains and retired Captains	883
Commanders and retired Commanders	894
Lieutenants	3776
Marine officers	3336
Masters	693
Medical officers	1537
Pursers	957
Naval Instructors	—
Chaplains	63
Mates	—
Second Masters	—
Acting Assistant Surgeons	—
1856.
Flag officers (22 in commission)	319
Captains (active)	396
Captains (retired)	164
Captains on reserved list	50
Captains of Greenwich	4
Commanders	569
Commanders on reserved list	205
Captains on retired list	349
Lieutenants of Greenwich and Naval Knights of Windsor	44
Lieutenants	1178
Lieutenants on reserved list	784
Marine officers	435
Masters	322
Masters on reserved list	144
Inspectors of machinery	3
Chief engineers	125
Mates	198
Second masters	116
Chaplains	159
Naval instructors	90
Medical officers	592
Medical officers (retired)	308
Paymasters	511
Assistant Paymasters	178

It is estimated that we may count upon having this summer, available for the purposes of war, forty or more line-of-battle ships and heavy frigates of the right class, upwards of twenty corvettes and heavily armed sloops, and upwards of 170 gun and mortar boats and batteries. The Baltic alone, it is inferred, will have a fleet of nearly 250 pennants over steam, and it is rumored that Sir Edmund Lyons will be the grand Commander-in-Chief. In glancing at the before given figures, it will strike the reader probably as curious, that whereas at the close of hostilities in 1816 there were 3775 Lieutenants on the Navy List, we have now, when in the midst of another war, but a total of 1976; of this number, 1778 only are represented as on the active list.—[London Times, Jan. 2.

The Days of Queen Mary.

The following description of the idea and manners of the age of Queen Mary, of England, we take from Blackwood. Read it, and say if you can, that the world has not advanced in morals and intelligence:

"To give only one or two instances of the manners and ideas of the age in which Queen Mary's lot was cast. It is generally known that Henry VIII. put seventy-two thousand persons, of all religious persuasions, to death on the scaffold, during his single reign; but is it not equally well known his daughter Elizabeth had an array of three hundred heads of persons, convicted of high treason, placed on London Bridge, including those of her cousin and friend Norfolk and her favorite romantic lover Essex; and so far from being shocked at the ghastly array, she took the foreign ambassador to see it, in order to show "how we serve traitors in England." Protestant historians have recountered with just indignation, that the bloody Mary cast two hundred and forty men, women and children into the flames during her brief and atrocious reign; but they have not equally prominently brought forward, that a greater number of Catholic priests and partizans were, by her Protestant successor, secretly racked to the utmost limits which human frame can endure, in that awful scene of human agony, the Tower of London.

"After the massacre of St. Bartholomew, the ladies of the Court of Paris went out to examine the long rows of the bodies of the Hugenot cavaliers who had been slain during the tumult, and curiously turned them over when half stripped of their garments, said to each other—'This must have been a charming lover; that was not worth looking at.'

"And when the fantastic assassin Ravillie was brought out into the Square of the Louvre, to undergo during four hours the most frightful tortures which human ingenuity or malignity could devise, or humanity could endure, the whole ladies of the Court of Paris assembled to witness the spectacle, and as high prices were given for the best places on the street leading to St. Paul's on the approaching occasion as when the first and noblest of Britain attended her greatest hero to his last resting place.

"It is perhaps the most difficult thing in surveying the annals of the past, to bring ourselves to conceive how human beings could, in any age, under any circumstances, have been brought to lend themselves to such barbarities. But nothing is more certain than the greatest and best did so; they deemed that they were doing God' service when so engaged. Witness Sir Thomas Moor flogging a prisoner with his own hands in his garden, to convert him from heresy. If we are wise and just, we will judge of those who lived in those savage times according to the measure of the ideas with which they were surrounded, and not our own; and reflect with deeper thankfulness on our happier lot, when subjects are not called to undergo such sacrifices in their duty to their sovereign, and the Queen on the throne can exhibit the spirit of her Plantagenet forefathers, and the graces of her Stuart ancestors, without being exposed to the terrible trials which either underwent.

Cultivation of Fishes.

In a paper from the Patent Office, published in the National Intelligencer, it is suggested that the fishes of many varieties not now known to them, might be introduced into the waters of this country, by means of transferring the spawn from one locality to another. The mullett of the Garonne would be valuable in the Potomac, and also the sardine. The trout and salmon of the Rhine and its waters would answer further north,—turbot and sole for the Jersey waters,—and trout, carp and salmon for north of the Delaware. The carp it is known was introduced into the waters of the Hudson. The golden carp was introduced into a pond near the same river. The breaking of a dam caused these fish to be swept into the Hudson, where they now exist in tolerable abundance. The smelt, now abundant in Jamaica pond, near Boston, did not originally exist there, but was carefully transported, either from Europe or from some section of this country. Salmon and shad were formerly found in the Merrimac, and the latter in the lake Winnipiseogee, and its tributaries—but, since the establishment of manufactories at Lowell, and the consequent damming of the river, these fishes, have disappeared from all the upper waters, while on the other hand, the opening of communication between Lake Erie and the Hudson has introduced to that lake and its accessories eels and perhaps other fish not previously found there. The same result has also been experienced in Lake Ontario, since its connection with Lake Erie by means of the Welland canal. The officers of the navy on foreign service could have assigned them the duty of collecting varieties of fish not known to the waters of the United States Mr. Peel, of Saugerties, N. Y., has shad, carp, tench, gold-fish, &c., in the ponds on his estate, and so well are they protected from molestation of every kind, that upon the appearance of persons at the margin of the waters, they approach to receive food from their hands. This gentleman, it is said, has a sturgeon seven feet long, and when he wants a sail on his pond, he harnesses his sturgeon, attaching a line and cork float to the traces. The sturgeon will swim with the utmost speed around the pond several times, keeping near the shore. Then he will suddenly stop, rise to the surface of the water, and turn up its back, thus indicating its exhausted condition.

The Scientific Value of Snow.

The snow was proverbially the "poor man's manure" before scientific analysis had shown that it contained a larger per centage of ammonia than rain. The snow serves as a protecting mantle to the tender herbage and the roots of all plants against the fierce blasts and cold winter. An examination of snow in Siberia showed that when the temperature of the air was seventy-two degrees below zero the temperature of the snow a little below the surface was twenty-nine degrees above zero—over one hundred degrees difference. The snow keeps the earth just below its surface in a condition to take on chemical changes which would not happen if the earth were bare and frozen to a great depth.

The snow prevents exhalations from the earth and it is a powerful absorbent, retaining and returning to the earth gases arising from vegetable and animal decomposition. The snow, though it falls heavily at the door of the poor and brings death and starvation to the fowls of the air and beasts of the field, is yet of incalculable benefit in a climate like ours, and especially at this time, when the deep springs of the earth were falling, and the mill streams were refusing their motive powers to the craving appetite of man. If, during the last month, the clouds had dropped rain instead of snow we might have pumped and bored the earth in vain for water; but, with a foot of snow upon the earth and many feet upon the mountains, the hum of the mill stones and the harsh notes of the saw, will soon and long testify to its benificence. Bridges, earth-works and the fruits of engineering skill and toil may be swept away, and man will still rejoice in the general good and adore the benevolence of Him who orders all things aright.

The snow is a great purifier of the atmosphere. The absorbent power or capillary action of snow is like that of a sponge or charcoal. Immediately after snow has fallen, melt it in a clean vessel and taste it and you will find immediately evidences of impurity. Try some a day or two old and it becomes nauseous, especially in cities. Snow water makes the mouth harsh and dry. It has the same effect on the skin, and on the hands and feet produces the painful malady of chilblains. In Alpine countries, snow water has been thought to be productive of the disease called goitre. The following easy experiment illustrates beautifully the absorbent property of snow: Take a lump of snow (a piece of snow crust answers well) of three or four inches in length and hold it in the flame of a lamp; not a drop of water will fall from the snow, but the water as fast as formed, will penetrate or be drawn up into the mass of snow by capillary attraction. It is by virtue of this attraction that the snow purifies the atmosphere by absorbing and retaining its noxious and noisome gases and odors.—[National Intelligencer.

Woman and Pictures.

If, indeed, woman were mere outside, form and face only, and if mind made up no part of her composition, it would follow that a ball-room was quite as appropriate a place for choosing a wife, as an exhibition-room for choosing a picture. But, inasmuch as women are not mere portraits, their value not being determinable by a glance of the eye, it follows that a different mode of appreciating their value, and a different place for viewing them antecedent to their being individually selected, is desirable. The two cases differ, also, in this, that if a man select a picture for himself from among all exhibited competitors, and bring it to his own house, the picture being passive, he is able to fix it there,—while the wife, picked up at a public place, and accustomed to incessant display, will not, it is probable, when brought home, stick so quietly to the spot where he fixes her, but will escape to the exhibition-room again, and continue to be displayed at every public exhibition, just as if she were not become private property, and had never been definitely disposed of.—[Hannah More.

The Decimal System.

Congress, it is expected, will do something this session toward the adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures, similar to that which forms the basis of our coinage. Other countries are moving in the same direction, and it is quite probable that in a few years all the commercial and civilized countries will have adopted a similar system, which would greatly facilitate the operations of trade and commerce. A gentleman of New York, Mr. Felton, we see, has started the subject at this time by a lecture upon it, in which he proposed to supersede all the present tables of weights and measures by a graduated series, in which each denomination shall be exactly ten times greater than its next inferior. For instance: In the scale of weights he would have ten scruples one drachm, ten drachms one ounce, ten ounces one pound, ten pounds one stone, ten stones one cwt., ten cwts. one ton. Apply to such tables the decimal currency as to prices, and the parts of a pound would exactly correspond with the parts of a dollar. An article at $1 per pound would be one dime per ounce, one cent per drachm, and one mill per scruple. The same principle applies to all the departments of weights and measures. Mr. F. contends that the introduction of this system would greatly simplify commercial transactions of all kinds and do away with most of the difficulties which beset the study of numbers.

A Reverend Know Nothing Drumming up his Debtors.

The Rev. Know Nothing Brownlow has lifted up his voice in a midnight cry to his debtors to pay up! Hear him:

As many of you as will inclose to us what you owe us justly, we will credit you on our books, and write opposite your names that you are gentlemen and Christians! Those of you who can't pay, and will write to us, acknowledge your indebtedness, we will record as clever fellows, and those of you who will not do neither, we will publish this spring, in an extra sheet, as a set of graceless rascals, willing to have a poor man labor for you for years for nothing, and pay for paper, ink, and the hire of hands to serve you, without pay.

Come to Knoxville, you lousy rascals, on a pilgrimage, and see our little ones, "chips of the old block," looking daggers at us, and crying for bread. Come and see us, with our elbows out, and the officers of the law leading us about for debts created to furnish you a paper, and you will fork over at once!

And you hypocrites, who are members of different churches, owing us for our paper, how dare you, around your family altars, night and morning pray to God, "pay us this day our debts, as we pay to others?" He knows you owe us, and won't pay, and until you do pay, you may pray yourselves out of breath, and you will never be heard! Yes, you saintly villains, you have been owing us long enough to make us "poor, halt, miserable, blind and naked," and yourselves ride at our expense. You get to Heaven without paying us up!—never!

W. G. Brownlow,
Editor of the Whig.

The Laugh of Woman.

A woman has no natural grace more bewitching than a sweet laugh. It is like the sound of flutes on the water. It leaps from her heart in a clear, sparkling rill; and the heart that hears it feels as if bathed in the cool, exhilarating spring. Have you ever pursued an unseen fugitive through trees, led on by her fairy laugh, now here, now there, now lost, now found? We have. And we are pursuing that wandering voice to this day. Sometimes it comes to us in the midst of care, or sorrow, or irksome business; and then we turn away and listen, and hear it ringing through the room like a silver bell, with power to scare away the ill spirits of the mind. How much we owe to that sweet laugh! It turns the prose of our life into poetry, it flings showers of sunshine over the darksome wood in which we are travelling, it touches with light even our sleep, which is no more the image of death, but is consumed with dreams that are the shadows of immortality.

Fear of Evil.—In the commission of evil fear no man so much as thine own self. Another is but one witness against thee; thou art a thousand. Another thou mayest avoid, but thyself thou canst not. Wickedness is its own punishment.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 103 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
2 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1856.

Great Britain and the United States.

THE inhabitants of Great Britain and the United States though geographically widely separated by the rolling waters of the Atlantic, are almost one and the same. There are certainly differences in their social and political positions, but that is all, and which is to be envied or which pitied is not our subject. We need not recapitulate history here, to show origin and relationship, who was father and who was son, relationship is not disputed. John Bull calls Jonathan cousin and in turn Jonathan acknowledges the relationship of the old gentleman. It is a broad and near cousinship—one that embraces father, mother, sister brother, for it is almost impossible to find a family in Great Britain and Ireland of which one member is not to be found hunting fortune in the diggings of California—seeking the broad lands of the West, or trying to improve his condition in the populous cities of the East. From the day that the Pilgrim Fathers crossed the mighty deep to the present moment, Great Britain has been steadily contributing sons and daughters, and amongst them no mean share of talent and enterprise. Enterprising men, men of eminence, men of genius and talent from nearly all the nations of the earth, have likewise linked their fortune and their future with the Republic, still the United States are Anglo-Saxon. We have not seized our pen this morning to proclaim that the United States is now equal, vastly superior or still inferior to Great Britain in any particular: our subject is the war excitement in the two nations.

For some weeks past, scarcely a steamer has arrived here from Great Britain, without creating considerable excitement, and we daresay the same has been experienced by the Britishers on the arrival of our steamers on their shores. Our papers have always been expecting something important, more decisive on the war question "by the next mail," and the English papers reveal that they have had the same expectations from America. For our own part we have said little about the war, as we scarcely think either the Court of St. James or the Cabinet at Washington is prepared to take upon their heads the awful responsibility of consequences did either decide to go into it "tooth and nail." There is doubtless no great affection between the monarchical and republican Cabinets, but there is, as we have shown, sufficient relationship—close ties of consanguinity, and commercial interests likewise, between the two peoples to cause a Premier or President to stop and breathe before he casts the dreadful die that would cause kin to raise arm against kin.

The present difficulties between the United States and Great Britain arise from the non-fulfilment, on the part of the latter power, of what is generally called the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, or, geographically and politically, the Central American treaty, together with the violation of the United States municipal laws by Great Britain, in endeavoring to enlist men in the United States to serve in the Crimea. Such are the charges: the first of years' standing, the latter only of a few months.

Great Britain having been on peaceable relations with the nations of Europe for nearly forty years previous to the present war, had but little occupation for her army beyond that which Caffres and Sikhs created in her foreign possessions. Listening to the cry of political reformers—beset with a constant flood of petitions from the Peace Society, English governments have, one after another, for a series of years, been reducing her military and naval force with the view of reducing the enormous "National Debt"—and possibly cherishing some hope that the "World's Industrial Exhibition," in Hyde Park, had ushered in a new era in the world's history—a millennium. Poesy, however, had not effaced history from the memories of some. Now and again a cry might be heard throughout the British realm about revenge lurking in the bosom of the great "Napoleon's nephew" for the treatment of the Emperor on the Island of St. Helena. A little bustle in dockyards, extra labor on fortifications approximate to the French coast, would generally follow for a few months, and then affairs would fall back into the arms of old routine. Some think England never intended going to war against Russia, and the old-womanish policy of Lord Aberdeen certainly favored the thought, for in the midst of long dreary months of talk about hostilities, no steps were taken to be prepared for the "tug of war." In a word, England was totally unprepared, so far as her army was concerned, to enter on a war with Russia.

Our readers no doubt remember the dismal accounts that came from the East about the outbreak of cholera in the English army while encamped near Varna, on the shores of the Euxine, prior to embarkation for the Crimea. The ravages of this awful plague, long and arduous labors in the trenches before Sebastopol, severe suffering from insufficient clothing, shelter, and rations, together with Cossack spear and Russian ball made terrible havoc with the small army of Queen Victoria. Recruiting sergeants did their best in England to keep up the efficiency of the army in the Crimea, and were pretty successful in finding men and boys ready to "take the shilling." This was, however, not enough. Swearing fidelity to the throne, and donning the red coat, were but small affairs in the process of soldier-making. Relay after relay was dispatched for the seat of war, but being chiefly from the mill and factory, their voyage, immediate trench work on their arrival, together with the change of climate, rendered them of but little service to Lord Raglan. He soon complained of the raw recruits that were sent him, and, possibly, suggested a Foreign Legion. Be that as it may, the English Cabinet soon perceived that as the citizens of Great Britain were unaccustomed to military labor, they would have to apply to the citizens of other nations who were already prepared for the field. A British Foreign Legion Bill was therefore hurriedly passed through both Houses of Lords and Commons, and the recruiting machinery set to work.

The European governments (with the exception of Sardinia) having decided upon observing a strict neutrality in the war, of course, could not permit recruiting in their domains. England consequently chose the small Island of Heligoland for a grand recruiting depot on account of its contiguity to the German States. Great numbers were likewise expected from the German émigration passing through England en route for America. The labors of English agents were in a measure successful, both at Heligoland and in her own seaports; still the demand was greater than the supply.

It was believed in England that there were many foreigners in this country who would gladly join the "British Foreign Legion" for the pleasure of having a brush with the Russians and squaring old accounts. The neutrality of the United States required England to pursue a similar policy to that observed towards European neutral nations. Halifax was accordingly to the United States what Heligoland was to the northern nations of Europe—a grand recruiting depot.

As soon as this determination on the part of Great Britain was known to the public, certain persons residing in the United States immediately presented themselves to the British consuls and the British ambassador in this country, offering their services to carry out the enlistment scheme. In the course of time, those agents were apprehended on the charge of violating the municipal law of the United States, based on the non-interference principle—which provides:

"That if any person shall, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, enlist or enter himself, or hire or retain another person to enlist or enter himself, or go beyond the limits or jurisdiction of the United States with intent to be enlisted or entered in the service of any foreign prince, State, colony, district, or people, as a soldier, as a marine or seaman, on board of any vessel of war, letter of marque, or privateer, every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not exceeding three years, &c."

At the trial of those agents in the District Court of Pennsylvania, some of them turned States' evidence, and reported conversations that, they allege, transpired between themselves and the English officials, which, if true, go far to establish that the latter were not ignorant of the above law. However, the fact that the agent Hertz had dunned the English officials time and again for more funds, and the latter essential not coming in such abundance as to satisfy him, makes his subsequent evidence against the English consuls a matter of question. Whatever may be said of the course of the agents, the consuls, or the ambassador, Lord Clarendon's letter to Mr. Buchanan, the U. S. Minister at London, shows that the English cabinet had no intention of violating the American law, however wrongly they may have interpreted it. He says:

"The undersigned must, in the first instance, express the regret of her Majesty's government if the law of the United States has been in any way infringed by persons acting with or without any authority from them; and it is hardly necessary for the undersigned to assure Mr. Buchanan that any such infringement of the law of the United States is entirely contrary to the wishes and to the positive instructions of her Majesty's government.

"The undersigned, however, thinks it right to state to Mr. Buchanan that some months ago her Majesty's government were informed from various sources, that in the British North American possessions, as well as in the United States, there were many subjects of the Queen, who, from sentiments of loyalty, and many foreigners who, from political feeling, were anxious to enter her Majesty's service and to take part in the war. Her Majesty's government, desirous of availing themselves of the offers of these volunteers, adopted the measures necessary for making generally known that her Majesty's government were ready to do so, and for receiving such persons as should present themselves at an appointed place in one of the British possessions. The right of her Majesty's government to act in this way was incontestable; but at the same time they issued stringent instructions to guard against any violation of the United States law of neutrality; the importance and sound policy of which law has been so well expounded by Mr. Buchanan, in whose remarks upon it, as well as upon the foreign enlistment bill of this country, her Majesty's government entirely concur.

"It can scarcely be matter of surprise that when it became known that her Majesty's government was prepared to accept these voluntary offers, many persons in various quarters should give themselves out as agents employed by the British government, in the hope of earning reward by promoting, though on their own responsibility, an object which they were aware was favorably looked upon by the British government. Her Majesty's government do not deny that the acts and advertisements of these self-constituted and unauthorized agents were in many instances undoubted violations of the law of the United States; but such persons had no authority whatever for their proceedings from any British agents, by all of whom they were promptly and unequivocally disavowed."

It appears from the foregoing, that the British cabinet thought they had a right, through their agents, to whisper into the ears of those panting for revenge or renown, "Go to Halifax in the quality of laborers or anything else but that of recruit, and there you will have opportunity of joining the British Legion; and if you have not the wherewithal to go there, we shall aid you." Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, is charged with issuing a proclamation, wherein he informs "Nova Scotian and other ship-masters" his willingness to pay the passage of poor men shipped from the ports of Philadelphia, New York or Boston. Lord Clarendon, in the same dispatch, justifies this step of the Governor by citing the decision of Judge Kane in the United States Circuit Court of Philadelphia. The Judge says:

"I do not think that the payment of the passage from this country of a man who desires to enlist in a foreign port comes within the act—(the neutrality act of 1818.] In the terms of the printed proclamation there is nothing conflicting with the laws of the United States. A person may go abroad, provided the enlistment be in a foreign place, not having accepted and exercised a commission."

At the trial alluded to, some of the agents were accused of surpassing their instructions and violating the law. The Judge adds:

"There is some evidence in Hertz's case that he did hire and retain, and therefore his case would have to be submitted to a jury. In Perkine's case there was testimony upon which a jury might convict. In Bucknell's case it appears that there was a conversation at which he was present, but there was no enlistment or hiring or retaining. The conversation related as to the practicability of persons going to Nova Scotia to enlist. If the rule I have laid down be correct, then the evidence does not connect him with the misdemeanor. Mr. Bucknell is, therefore, discharged, and Messrs. Perkins and Hertz are remanded to take their trial."

The British cabinet, in acknowledging the error of the agents, declared that they had no intention of insulting the United States or violating their laws; stopped the enlistment, and promised the thing should not occur again. The cabinet at Washington have demanded of the British cabinet the recall of Mr. Crampton, the ambassador at Washington, and the British consuls at Cincinnati, Philadelphia and New York, for taking part in the business. This is, therefore, the present phase of the trouble between the two governments on this subject. If England recall Mr. Crampton and these consuls, the cabinet at Washington will be satisfied; if not, it is rumored and generally believed that President Pierce will send Mr. C. his papers, with the polite notice that he cannot be received longer at Washington as the representative of England. The English cabinet consider their explanation and apology ought to satisfy the cabinet at Washington, particularly as it is alleged, on behalf of England, that her agents were led to that violation by snares set for them by American citizens. Lord Palmerston, in a late debate in the House of Commons, says:

"That it was the desire and the instruction of her Majesty's government that nothing should be done which should be at variance with the laws of the United States. The honorable and learned gentleman says that giving information to persons who might be willing to go to our provinces, that they would there be enlisted if found fit, that the offering any inducement to leave the United States was a violation of their municipal law. The United States is not the empire of Russia. Civitas non carcer est. The United States is a free country like our own, and would not impose upon any man the slightest restraint to prevent his quitting its boundaries for his advantage. I will not now argue a question which will be more properly examined when the papers, without which it would be unbecoming to enter upon it, are before the House; but this I will say, that during these transactions offers were repeatedly made to her Majesty's officers in the United States by persons whose sole object was to entrap them into something which might afterwards be construed into a violation of the municipal law of the States. A conspiracy was got up for the purpose of entrapping and misleading them, and inducing them to do that which might afterwards be fastened upon them as a violation of the national laws."

England says, we have done enough; America replies, you have not—and there they stand.

Central America, the other subject of contention between Great Britain and the United States, is situated on the isthmus which unites the continents of North and South America. That country having been discovered by Columbus, was, "by right of discovery," claimed by the Spanish monarchy. No time was lost by that government in dispatching adventurers and the usual train of men and arms to conquer and possess. We need not speak here of their brutality to the natives of the newly acquired dominions, nor of the subsequent iron rule of Spain which marks the history of Central America.

At the same time that Spain held possession of that country, the United States of North America were British colonies. In this position of neighbors, England acquired from Spain, by treaty, certain privileges in a defined portion of Central America: chiefly the right of cutting and carrying away logwood. The territory being acquired for this specific purpose became inhabited only by persons engaged in the wood business, and British officials established there for their protection, and such persons as found occupation or commerce growing out from their presence. Whatever claim England may now set up in support of other possessions in or contiguous to Central America, it is certain that she owed her presence in the latter country, in the first place, entirely to treaty with Spain.

The revolution that proclaimed the first French republic and that which successfully established our own giant republic, had their influence on Central America. Effort after effort was made to throw off the Spanish yoke, which at last resulted in the establishment of the Federal Republic of Central America in 1823. This republic had but a short existence. In 1839 the States of Nicaragua, Guatemala, San Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica, dissolved their union, and each assumed absolute independence.

The Republic having sent Spanish authorities out of the country, maintained that Great Britain, holding possessions in Central America solely by treaties made with the over-thrown power, had no longer rights there. Squabbling ensued, and Great Britain not only maintained what she had, but is accused of taking more. The government of the United States was repeatedly invited to interfere in the contest, but not till after the discovery of gold in California was there any interference on its part.

As the diggings have drawn great numbers to the West, and are likely to continue to do so, Central America has become of more importance than before. Instead of passing months on the blue wave in rounding Cape Horn, or as many months in traversing dreary plains and rugged mountains, a few hours by rail suffice to transport the traveller or digger from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and in a few days more he can enter the golden State. To facilitate commercial intercourse as well, several inter-oceanic passages through Central America, New Mexico and New Granada have been talked of. The State of Nicaragua made propositions in 1849 to certain citizens of the United States for the purpose of establishing a route from ocean to ocean, by way of San Juan and Lake Nicaragua. We cannot here trace right to interfere; sufficient for the present, that Great Britain interfered, which brought the United States and her face to face for the first time on the matter. It was, after much writing and talking, that the Central American treaty was negotiated and concluded.

The treaty was fully ratified on the 4th of July, 1850, but took effect from its date, April 9, 1850. It recites the purpose of the parties, namely, to consolidate amicable relations, by setting forth and fixing their mutual views and intentions concerning any inter-oceanic canal that may be constructed by the way of the river San Juan and either one or both of the lakes of Nicaragua or Managua. The stipulations which come most directly under review on the present occasion are:

ART. 1. Neither party will ever obtain or maintain for itself any exclusive control over the contemplated canal.

Neither will ever erect or maintain any fortification commanding the same or the vicinity thereof.

Neither will occupy, or fortify, or colonize, or assume or exercise any dominion over Nicaragua, Costa Rica, the Mosquito Coast, or any part of Central America.

Neither will use any protection which either affords or may afford, or any alliance which either has or may have, to or with any State or people, for the purpose of erecting or maintaining any such fortifications, or of occupying or colonizing Nicaragua, Costa Rica, the Mosquito Coast, or any part of Central America, or of assuming or exercising any dominion over the same.

Neither will take advantage of any intimacy or use any alliance, connection or influence that either may possess with any State or people through whose territory the canal may pass, for the purpose of acquiring or holding, directly or indirectly, for its own citizens or subjects, any unequal rights or advantages of commerce or navigation.

ART. 4. The parties will use their influence with any State or States, or Governments, possessing or claiming jurisdiction or right over the territory through which the canal shall pass, to induce them to favor its construction, and to use their good offices, whenever or however it may be most expedient, to procure the establishment of two free ports, one at each end of the canal.

ART. 5. The parties engage to invite every State in friendly intercourse with both or either of them to enter into stipulations similar to those contained in this treaty, so that all other States may share in the honor and advantages of having contributed to the construction of the contemplated canal. And each of the contracting parties shall enter into treaty stipulations with such of the Central American States as they may deem advisable, for the purpose of carrying out the object of the treaty, namely, the construction and maintenance of the canal as a ship canal between the two oceans, for the benefit of mankind.

ART. 7. The parties determine to give their support and encouragement to the persons or company who shall first offer to build the canal with the necessary capital and the consent of the local authorities and to any such company, already existing, as may have a contract which is justly unobjectionable to the parties.

ART. 8. The parties declare that, besides the particular purpose of the treaty before stated, they have the farther and broader object to establish a general principle; and so they agree to extend their protection, by treaty stipulations, to any other practicable communications, whether by canal or railway, across the Isthmus, and especially to those contemplated to be made by the ways of Tehuantepec and Panama.

The above is plain enough and to the uninitiated would seem to have excluded the possibility of any misunderstanding ever to have arisen between the high contracting parties. As the treaty accords neither Territory or privileges to one or the other, there of course could not arise any dissatisfaction about who had the largest and richest share. Notwithstanding its clearness, both governments have wasted a vast amount of words, pens, ink and paper, in disputation about its meaning. Politicians of other schools from those to which Messrs. Clayton and Bulwer belong, represent each of these gentlemen to have been outwitted by the other. The opposition in the House of Commons contend that Great Britain according to the treaty has no longer any right there whatever right she may have previously possessed. Here, Mr. Clayton's negotiation is represented as being an acknowledgment of the legality of Great Britain's previous claims, which is a violation of the Munroe doctrine, announced to the world in 1823:

The American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintained are henceforth not to be considered subjects for future colonization by any European Power.

The Hon. Mr. H. Seward, lately in the Senate delivered a lengthy and pithy review of the question. From him we quote the following:

The United States take their stand on the fair and natural effect of the language contained in the treaty. Its stipulations are, that Great Britain shall not obtain or maintain any colony or occupation, or exercise any dominion over Nicaragua, Costa Rica, the Mosquito Coast or any part of Central America. Great Britain asserts that the stipulations are only prospective, and do not take hold upon and terminate any occupation or colony or dominion of hers which is existing at the time when the treaty is concluded. She argues that such an effect is merely inferential; whereas, if it had been intended, it would have been embodied in the form of an express renunciation.

It seems to me that the renunciation does not rest in an inference only, but is explicitly expressed. The treaty is very brief. It grasps many great interests of the United States, of Great Britain, of the Mosquito nation, Belize Colony, of Nicaragua, Honduras, Costa Rica and the two other Central American States, of Mexico and New Granada, and of all friendly Nations, and necessarily disposes of them in language which is comprehensive, while it is abrupt and terse. Great Britain stipulates that she will not ever (that is to say, after this time henceforward) maintain any colony or occupancy, or exercise any dominion over the Mosquito Coast. This stipulation cannot be fully executed, unless Great Britain shall, from this time, relinquish, discontinue, give up, retire from, and abandon whatever colony, occupation, or domain, of whatever form or nature, she now maintains or exercises on the Mosquito Coast. A doubt may arise whether the colony, occupation, and dominion, indirectly maintained and exercised in the form of a protectorate over the Mosquito nation, is included in the renunciation. To remove this doubt, Great Britain repeats and specifies that she will not (from this time henceforward) "make use of any protection which she now affords to any State or people, for the purpose of maintaining any colony, or occupation, or exercising any dominion whatever, on the Mosquito Coast." I turn the argument of Great Britain against herself. If she is not to relinquish and discontinue her Mosquito colony, occupation and dominion, now maintained and exercised in the form of a protectorate, why does she not expressly reserve and save them?

I submit, in the next place, that if the American construction is not the true one, then the treaty is destitute of that mutuality which is inherent in all conventions, and avowed with peculiar earnestness and solemnity in this one. The United States have not, either on the Mosquito Coast or in any other part of Central America, any colony, occupation, or dominion of any form whatever. They stipulate that they will never obtain or assume any such. Great Britain has all these existing in the form of the Protectorate, and that constitutes the obstacle to the opening of the proposed ship canal, an object desired by both parties. She agrees on her part that she not only will not obtain or assume any new colony, occupation or dominion there, but she will not hereafter maintain or exercise any such that is now existing. As she has heretofore "made use" of her protectorate for the purpose of maintaining and exercising such occupancy and dominion, she agrees that she will make use of that machinery for those purposes no longer. But if the machinery is preserved at all, it must constitute now, as heretofore, a colony, an occupation, a dominion, and therefore the machinery itself must cease. If the British construction is right, then Great Britain has conceded nothing present and nothing future, while the United States have conceded every thing, equally present and future, by excluding themselves henceforward and forever from Central America.

One can scarcely maintain his gravity when he finds Lord Clarendon, on the other hand, arguing that the British construction is based on the principle of mutuality. His syllogism is this: Great Britain has colonies, occupations and dominions in Central America; the United States have none. If Great Britain relinquish her colonies, occupations and dominions, she surrenders advantages without receiving any equivalents. But it is to be remembered that the United States denied absolutely the British title to their colonies, occupations and dominions in Central America; and, secondly, they had antagonistical rights to establish colonies, occupations and dominions there, by virtue of the contract and two treaties extended to them by Nicaragua, [canal route we have referred to,] whose title they held to be paramount to that of Great Britain. To avoid this conflict between themselves, the parties agree to abandon Central America to the States existing there, to whom it belongs.

We have devoted more space to this article than we at first intended, but rather than present the disputed subjects imperfectly, or recur to it a second time, we concluded to give it, though it might be rather lengthy. We cannot conclude without remarking that the Press in both countries have considerably inflamed the passions of the partizans on both sides. Being somewhat acquainted with journalism in both countries, it has sometimes amused us to see extracts from certain journals taken as indications of the state of things in the one nation or in the other as the case might be, while in reality the journals alluded to had influence with no one and represented nothing. Some great men also have delivered themselves of war-like speeches and wished success for their respective countries, right or wrong. We have given a general view of the dispute, and every one can judge or take sides for themselves. All we can say, both nations have something on hand to fix it up comfortably. England offers to arbitrate, but the United States objects—first, the treaty is clear, and requires no arbitration; secondly, if arbitration was decided on, every reigning power is unfavorable to the Republic, and therefore partial.

New York Daily Times on Emigration.

THE Mormon emigration still continues. From a statement recently published, it appears that the number of Mormons from Great Britain and Ireland lacks only fifty-three of being three thousand in five months. Last Saturday week, more than five hundred came in a single ship. The Church Review, in some very able comments on this aspect of the subject, justly observes that "Mormonism, though existing, we are sorry to say, on American soil, is yet essentially rather an English than an American institution.—[N. Y. Times.

How "essentially" verdant the conclusion, that "Mormonism is essentially rather an English than an American institution," and that, too, after "some very able comments on this aspect of the subject" by the Church Review. We have not seen these very able comments perpetrated by the Church Review, but we cannot but be surprised at the Times, who, after having pawed (pardon the term, but it is so expressive) over Mormonism, reviewed and re-reviewed it, slandered, abused and misrepresented it in every way, and fairly exhausted all his vituperative abilities, yet, notwithstanding all this, "emigration continues, and Mormonism holds its way steadily onward; so, with the Church Review, he sagely concludes that Mormonism, after all, "isn't American anyhow." For the want of better arguments, we have no doubt the Times and Church Review will get up "some very able comments" to show that Joseph Smith, Jr., Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, or J. M. Grant, "are yet essentially rather English than American." Do these able commentators think to do our country honor, by classing Mormonism as "essentially an English institution?" or, like certain ancients, do they think that "nothing good can come out of Nazareth?" For certainly Calvanism, Presbyterianism, Methodism, Episcopalianism, though embraced by Americans, are not essentially American institutions. Do these commentators hope to find favor with the Know-Nothings? they certainly approximate. It looks, indeed, like the last thrust at Mormonism, ere it's beyond their reach—the last charge of ammunition, and just enough to flash the pan. Suppose Mormonism to be either English or American, what then? If it be truth, (and all its opponents have failed to prove it false,) it is none the less valuable. Truth, whether English, Dutch, Scandinavian, or Hindostanee, notwithstanding all the artillery of the Times and Church Review, is truth still, and "truth is mighty and will prevail;" and those who attempt to uproot and destroy it, only display their own weakness, short-sightedness and corruption. There are none so ignorant, but know well that Mormonism makes no pretension to exclusive nationality, nor to patents of nobility from any power save that of heaven itself. It owns the living and true God—"He who made of one blood all the nations of the earth, and appointed the bounds of their habitation." They teach the true gospel of Jesus and his apostles—not an English, Romish, American, or Greek—but a gospel of glad tidings of great joy unto all men. It is neither Hebrew, Syriac, Phœnician, Egyptian, Ante-diluvian, or Diluvian, but the only plan devised for the salvation of man from before the foundation of the world—the same through which faith was exercised that saved a Noah from the impending flood, a Daniel from the lions' jaws, the three Hebrew children from the flames—by which Abraham obtained promises and Israel prevailed—by which the sick were healed, the dead raised—and for which Jesus and the apostles suffered and died.

The Mormons have no creed save the plain, simple truths of the gospel. They go forth to the ends of the earth, without purse or scrip, knowing in whom they trust, and that the time is not far distant when every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Jesus is the Christ, to the glory of the Father. It is for this that Mormonism gathers her thousands and tens of thousands from among all nations. He who fights against it, fights against God and his purposes, and his folly shall be manifest to all, whilst he endures the almost insupportable mortification of witnessing its triumphs, amidst the decaying and corrupt systems of men and the confusion and shame of their adulterous advocates and supporters. Mormonism is green and vigorous; it is truth, and will prevail, though the regions below vomit forth their power, with all their attendant hirelings on earth. The edict from above has already gone forth, and its withering power is already manifest in the existing confusion of all Christendom. Hide it, Mr. Times—you cannot—not even from yourself.

Utah.

AFTER a lapse of three months, we are again favored with news from Utah: for which distinguished privilege we suppose we ought to return thanks to our venerable, well-beloved and much esteemed Uncle Sam, as well as to our most assiduous, indefaticable and enterprising mail-carrier. We supposeit is to the excessive dilligence and attention of the latter that we are indebted for an answer to a letter that we mailed September 16th, 1855, on the 12th of March, 1856. This said letter was mailed September 16th, arrived at Salt Lake the 26th of November; the reply was posted Dec. 1, 1855, and the return letter received 12th of March, 1856. The whole of the above important transaction was done in the unparalleled short time of five months and twenty-seven days. Now this, notwithstanding we live in an age of steamboats, railroads and telegraphs, is a feat that we presume none but our aforesaid Uncle and the said indefaticable contractor are capable of accomplishing. Only think, five months and twenty-seven days! And as the aforesaid letter is only a sample of thousands of others, our merchants and business men especially must be enchanted at the rapidity of communication and the brilliant prospects that such unprecedented activity holds out for their commercial enterprises.

By this unusual arrival we are enabled to put our readers in possession of news from Utah as late as November 30, 1855. We are thus particular in putting in the year as well as month, lest it should be supposed that it was 1854 instead of 1855.

At that time all was peace and prosperity, and a good degree of health prevailed. There had been some sickness.

The crops had been quite as good as anticipated, although some late corn and buckwheat had been injured by the frost.

Governor Young was in the enjoyment of good health; he and the members of the Legislature from Salt Lake were on the eve of leaving for Fillmore city, the present seat of government.

We make the following extracts from a letter of Joseph Taylor's:

"To-day we received the melancholy news of Bro. Orson Spencer's death; the announcement caused a great sensation, as he was much respected.

"The crops, that the editors in the States wrote so much about, have turned out much better than were expected. We shan't starve yet. We had some of the best potatoes this year that we ever had; I weighed one, and found it to be two pounds and three quarters. Our corn is also very good.

"Willlams & Hooper's last train was detained at Fort Bridger in consequence of snow, and will have to stay there during the winter.

"Thomas Williams arrived last night (Nov. 28.) The Big Cotton-wood canal is progressing fast; it will be three feet deep and eight miles long. They calculate bringing granite for the Temple on it, and use the water to irrigate with.

"They are talking of holding a convention for the purpose of forming a State Constitution, which it is designed to present to Congress for admission into the Union as a State."

For other particulars we refer to our Utah correspondence in another column.

Europe.

THE Peace Conferences were opened at Paris on the 25th ultimo. Count Walewiski, the French minister presiding. The armistice between the belligerents, to last till the end of March was agreed on. Official information was immediately telegraphed to the commanders in the Crimea. This armistice does not effect the blockade of the Russian ports. Preparations for carrying on a vigorous war in the spring are more active than before—on all sides. A written guarantee was signed by the envoys not to divulge the proceedings of the conference during its session. Notwithstanding this the stock exchange has been greatly agitated by speculators who of course knew everything. The London papers indicate that there was considerable fever and excitement in the editoral corps arising from their credence of these rumors.

On the 29th ultimo, the Lord Mayor of London, assembled a distinguished party at the Mansion House to meet Mr. Buchanan previous to his return to this country. Unfortunately Mr. Buchanan was invited to dine with Her Majesty the same day, which obliged him to dispoint the Lord Mayor's company. The most friendly sentiments towards America were expressed by the speakers at the city dinner party.

Later from California.

BY a steamer just arrived, we have news from the Pacific and Japan to the 20th of February. The most important item of intelligence is an account of a severe earthquake that had occurred at the ancient city of Jeddo, engulphing in its destruction 100,000 houses, fifty-four temples, and some 80,000 inhabitants. Shocks had also been felt in San Francisco and other parts of California.

A terrible explosion occurred on board the steamer Belle, by which the lives of several persons were sacrificed, and others dangerously wounded.

FOR THE MORMON.

Talent and Genius.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

THE vast arena of Nature, represents to the reflective mind scenes which are calculated to call forth wonder and astonishment at the marvellous wisdom of that sublime intelligence, from whose fountain, harmonious streams of life and beauty are continually gushing forth.

The thunder, the reverberating echoes of which seem to rend the Heavens; the lightning, that transforms night into day; the undulatory shocks of earthquakes, that impart to the ground the aspect of a rolling sea, are certainly great and interesting phenomena, but in no less degree are the psychological wonders of the giant intellects of a Hershel or Humboldt; they deserve the attention and investigation of every thinking man and woman.

Man is more or less endowed with capacities, or gifts that enable him to move in a certain sphere of life, whereby he can benefit himself and humanity. From the intercourse with our fellow-beings and the perusal of scientific works, we learn that such gifted individuals are called talented or men of genius, but very often are those terms misunderstood, owing to a misconception of those prominent features of the mental creation. Talent is a gift, capacitating man to acquire a knowledge of certain things, to follow a certain avocation in life. There is a variety of talents or gifts; some people being fitted to indulge in literary pursuits, others to prepare for the bar, others for the ministry, others for practising medicine, and others to engage in mechanical or manual operations. A talented man may by self-tuition or the assistance of a mental guide, get acquirements of the highest order; he may by labor and patience clear and smooth the uneven, steep and rugged path leading to intellectual eminence; he may luxuriate amid the sumptuous provisions of literature; the world may pass its plaudits upon him, so that his name gets associated with illustrious individuals, but his fame will never be more than the soft effulgence of the moon, or the gently sparkling of the stars in the lofty canopy of Heaven; he will never be equal to Genius, that power that got its knowledge from the fountain of immortality.

Talent is like an automaton, it will only go through those physical and mental performances, that have been taught, till Genius opens a new field of intelligence.

Genius occupies a most prominent and lofty place in the physical and mental creation; it is bathed in the light that streams from the meridian sun of Godliness; it does not imitate or follow the foot-prints of others; it leaves common-place topics behind, and soars, like the eagle, free, bold and independent, relying upon its own resources, to Mount Parnassus, where the Muses store up the subjects of immortal fame; it traverses the amptitudes of the immesurable universe; the bounds of its explorations are marked with the circle of eternity.

Talent learns, Genius knows; the former imitates, the latter creates; talent is the shadow of Genius, Genius the reflex of Godliness; the one is the bashful novice, the other the wise experienced Mentor; Genius is the key to inexhaustible mental treasures; Talent nothing but the receptacle for the same. From this train of illustration we infer, that Talent is always of secondary consideration, that it is nothing but the foot-stool on which Genius stands in the temple of Fame.

To Genius the whole world is an immense book full of types and symbols concerning the unseen agents of higher spheres; it will retire within itself, ponder over them and try to bring new principles to light, that were hidden in Lethe's stream. Zephyr's gentle whisperings; the filament or blade of a plant; the flower empearling dew will be objects of great attraction and interest to Genius, new thoughts will be suggested; it will discover laws, the wonderful bearings and consequences of which will astonish the World, and give rise to new arts and sciences, it is a way-mark to a knowledge of the elements and their usefulness for the human family; thus Genius is like a brilliant luminary, whose dazzling rays will dispel the mists of darkness, superstition and ignorance. But Talent like the gently blushing violet, always maintains its sphere, and often it wastes its sweetness in an obscure corner of the World, and is buried in oblivion. It waits for Genius, to which it clings for support like a parasitical vine to a tree.

In every station of life man is required to have some talents, consequently we see, as before remarked, that bountiful Nature has bestowed upon every one more or, less gifts, but very seldom we meet with Geniuses such as Michel Angelo, Caracci etc. The question may suggest itself here to the reflective reader, what is the reason of there being so few Geniuses? To which I reply, we find in the different departments of God's creation an endless variety of blessings, that are in strict accordance with the station, importance and systems of all organic and unorganic bodies. If the Sun, Moon, Stars, the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms were all treated alike and received but One blessing, there would be a monotonous uniformity; the equilibrium of the great, intellectual machinery of the Universe, would be disturbed; error, ignorance and weariness of life would be the lamentable results. Would it be wisdom for God to have our planetary systems constituted of nothing but Suns! Certainly not, because our eyes could not endure the dazzling light, we would get blind. Would it be well for the great World-maker to have every orb as pale as the Moon? No, because we would be deprived of the blessing of day, and thus be an entire stranger to the principle of light. Could we form a correct idea of virtue, if everybody was good? No, because it is by a disparity or dissimilitude of objects, by contrasting one with another, that we can tell the difference and thus learn principles. Hence we find that on account of the endless variety of blessings, everything is in a scale of progression and moving on harmoniously in its own sphere. And so it is in reference to the mental creation, every one of us has more or less Talents, but it is seldom that God suffers the sun of Genius to rise above the horizon of the literary world; such a remakable, mental phenomenon is gazed at by the common mind with wonder and astonishment.

Virgil, Horace, Sophocles etc., would not have been able to write their imperishable lines; Raphael, Murillo and Michel Angelo would not have embodied their grand ideas in those beautiful and magnificent al fresco and oil paintings, that claim the admiring gaze and tribute of every connoisseur; Mozart, Hayden and Beethoven, the great masters of Music, would not have made those wonderful compositions, the fountain of which is to be traced in celestial spheres; Cassanova and Thorwaldsen, would not have finished those splendid master-pieces of statuary, that deserve the greatest admiration of every amateur of fine arts; Pitt, Canning and Washington would not rank among the greatest and most prominent statesmen, history speaks of, if it had not been for the extraordinary, intellectual powers of Genius. Such giant intellect are like brilliant meteors illuminating every dark spot in their sphere, and shining through the vista of centuries.

The wheels of time may roll on fast in the ocean of eternity; the bodies of those great stars of intelligence may lay in the dust, and be nothing but the memory of their former-selves, yet although their earthly career is closed, they are not forgotten. Their works are the eloquent monuments of their greatness; they speak from the grave; they still throw the light of their intellectual powers from the sepulchre; although their sun has set hundreds or thousands of years ago, his influence is still felt. While engaged in the perusal of those master-pieces of literature, the reflective mind cannot help being absorbed in meditation, it retires from the physical world, and conversing with the illustrious dead, the inanimate letters seem as if by some powerful spell to get life, and convey to it the ideas of their authors. The traveller on entering St. Peters Church in Rome, is by the stupendous dimensions of the building, struck with awe and reverence, while the ingenuity, symmetry, beauty and taste displayed everywhere, but particularly in the el-fresco paintings of the plafond, representing the judgement day, attract and fascinate the eye, and involuntarily the bewildered mind reverts to Raphael and Michel Angelo; we fancy we see those great men in the attitude of deep study, while embodying their immortal ideas in figures; the praise that is lisped by the enraptured gazer, is a requiem that will secure them a prominent place in the Museum of intellectual excellence. Genius is holding communion with the unseen messengers of celestial spheres; it is listening to the whisperings of those beings, whom God in his infinite mercy suffers to hover round man; it gets its ideas by the principle of revelation from the fountain of eternal truth; it is found in every station of life, but more so in the pure atmosphere of a poor, honest, and intelligent family. The records of history show that the greatest number of those Geniuses, have been moving in very humble spheres; sometimes destitute of the necessaries of life, they had to go through a variety of privations and difficulties, till they had passed the Rubicon and became stars of first magnitude in the literary world. But centuries have to roll down Lethe's stream, before history can speak of a Genius such as Joseph Smith, who was so much favored by the Heavens, that he had open visions of celestial glory, and saw many of those descending shapes in which Gods and Angles visit the earth. He was not a Genius of an ordinary kind, whose mind gets illuminated by some scattered ideas at long intervals. A stream of revelation like a continual flash of lightning was poured out upon that great man, who has done so much for the salvation of a fallen world. On his grave the lotus-tree of immortality is growing, whose beautiful green will cover the earth, as the lovely Liano of the Tropics covers the ground; under its shade the righteous will enjoy the happiness, that is promised to the faithful.

In reference to the ethic character of Genius and Talent, I have to observe that men of true Genius are generally unassuming, modest and reserved, they realize more than the multitude—their own littleness and insignificance. Socrates' reply to some eulogistic remaks concerning his great mental powers and knowledge is a beautiful illustration of the above; he answered, "I know so much that I know nothing." Sir Isaac Newton being one day in a select circle of friends, remarked, "The field of intelligence lying before me is so vast, that I am like a child on the shore of the ocean, playing with its pebbles, but nothing more." Men of far inferior intellects and knowledge however, are often self-conceited and forward in playing the rattle of their puny mental capacities, believing they know a great deal more than their fellow beings; such individuals remind one forcibly of Shakespeare's "Much ado about nothing."

Correspondence.

Letter from Elder Wm. H. Kimball.

NEW YORK, March 2, 1856.

PRESIDENT TAYLOR—Dear Sir: Thinking a brief sketch of my mission to Europe might not be uninteresting to you, I embrace the opportunity which a few moments' leisure afford me of writing. When set apart for my mission, you laid your hands upon my head, in connection with other highly esteemed brethren, blessed me, and predicted I should have health and strength to accomplish the task assigned me, and return rejoicing in the fruits of my labor. I am happy to testify that your words have been fulfilled, and I gratefully thank God, yourself, the Presidency of the Church, and all my brethren.

I left my much-loved mountain home for Europe on the 29th March, 1854, in company with President F. D. Richards, Elders G. D. Grant, J. A. Young, William G. Young, J. A. Little, Edmund Ellswood. We crossed the plains with the late Judge L. Read, Elders Kesler, Halliday, and Levi Steward. We travelled by the Mormon mail as far as Fort Laramie. We expected to find relays en route, but the wolves and severe winter had destroyed them. Notwithstanding this—rough, snowy, and stormy weather likewise—we had an expeditious and agreeable journey. From Fort Laramie to the States we had a change of weather and circumstances. We had frequent relays of grain-fed animals, who were well whipped and loudly cursed by drivers whose conduct was a disgrace to their race, and with it all, less expedition. One day, which was so strikingly marked, Judge Read, after having sat pensively for some time, raised his head, and asked our company: "Why don't you pray to God to bless these animals as you prayed for those possessed by the Mormons who brought us to Laramie?" Some one answered: "Judge, how can we ask God to bless them when the owners are cursing them every moment?" "True, true," replied the Judge; "but we are the majority—let us pray at any rate for greater progress."

We parted with his Honor, and the brethren who were on business to the States, at St. Louis. We had many proofs of the Judge's attachment to us, but the last is worthy of mention. Notwithstanding he had been absent a considerable time from his family and home, he paid them but a short visit, and came to New York to see us before we started.

We visited the Hon. J. M. Bernhisel, at Washington, and procured passports for Europe. After visiting several Eastern cities, we left New York by the Canada for Europe. In eleven days we landed in Liverpool, where we were cordially received by Elder S. W. Richards, President of the British Churches.

By appointment, I left Liverpool on the 7th of June of the same year, to labor in the pastorate of Elder Daniel Tyler. Elder T. received and treated me with the kindness of a father. I had scarcely gone through the conferences, under his charge, before he was appointed to succeed Elder T. B. H. Stenhouse in the Presidency of the Swiss and Italian missions. I was appointed to succeed him in the pastoral charge of the London, Kent, Reading and Essex Conferences. This charge was unlooked for by both of us. I felt as an Elder once did, who, being similarly situated, went into the woods to pray, and said, "O Lord, I have come here to do your will, and you have promised to help me; I will do my best, and if you don't help me I'll be damned if I don't go home." I witnessed the helping hand of the Almighty, and labored with much satisfaction—the results I leave for others to speak of.

I had the honor of accompanying President F. D. Richards last year on a tour through France, Switzerland, Italy and Germany. In the latter place numbers were baptized and a church organized during our visit. Being released from my labors, in the beginning of the year I left Liverpool in company with Gen. G. D. Grant, and arrived in this place on the 23d ult. in the Atlantic, after a rough passage of 18 days. I now report myself ready to execute your orders in the Kingdom of God, and hope to make myself a useful spoke in the great wheel.

I remain, yours, &c.,
WILLIAM H. KIMBALL.

Iowa Correspondence.

BURLINGTON, March 1, 1856.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

DEAR SIR: you will see by the above that I am at Burlington, terminus of the railroad by which a portion (one hundred and nineteen adults, and a number of "bairns,") of the Mormon immigrant passengers, per ship J. J. Boyd, have, with one exception arrived in safety.

I left New York on Saturday, the 23d ult, one week ago to-day, for the West, two days after the J. J. Boyd's company had left for the same destination, by the New York and Erie Railroad. By travelling on the express train, I overtook the company at White Pigeon. After settling up some arrearages, according to your instructions, and making arrangements with Capt. Peterson as to the course to be pursued in Chicago in separating the company, &c., I again took the express train, arriving in Chicago the same evening, (26th.) Owing to a heavy gale that came on from the north that evening, the snow was banked up along the track to the depth of one or two feet, preventing the immigrant train and two others from coming in until they had fought through snow for about thirty-six hours, within eleven miles of Chicago. During the detention of the train one man Jens Johnson, somewhat aged and infirm, died, and was buried near the place. On the 28th, the emigration train having arrived in the morning, we separated the passengers and baggage, some two hundred adults taking the cars for St. Louis, with Bro. Peterson, and one hundred and eighteen for Burlington which I have placed in charge of Bro. Christian Christianson.

Bro. Christianson has been very efficient and assiduous in getting places to make his countrymen and brethren comfortable, and has succeeded well, and I think those who have come here will soon do well. Work is going to be abundant here this Spring, and these are just the kind of men that can do it. They seem to have a natural aversion to idleness, a constant desire to be actively engaged at something. They are hale and robust and, if they continue so, are bound to make their mark along these Western prairies somewhere, if not all the way, between the Missisippi river and Nevada Mountains of California.

I wish to refer briefly to the manner of treatment our people have received along the road. On the whole, it has been pretty good, and in some instances better than could have been expected, taking into consideration the prejudices of people generally with regard, to Mormons and Mormonism. I think my experience for the last year or two in the States, will warrant my saying that there is nothing like the amount of prejudice now existing in the public mind towards that people that existed a few years ago, notwithstanding their advocacy of that "horrible old primitive doctrine of plurality of wives." When the train, containing our people, arrived at Dunkirk, (I was afterwards informed,) a circumstance occurred rather to disturb the equanimity of the Danes, just at the time, but their anxiety soon subsided. I learned of Mr. Cornell, Mr. Weed's Railroad agent, who was there present, that the Captain of a ship, now lying at New York, (a Dane,) hearing that his sister whom he had not seen for eighteen years, had passed on to the West in this company from Denmark, proceeded immediately to overtake her, by taking the express train to Dunkirk. He got there before his sister and made arrangements to take her forcibly from the train so soon as it should arrive. This he did, I am informed by those on the train, very much against her will; by others, however, I have been told that so soon as she was sure it was her brother, she was willing to return with him to New York. If the latter is correct, and it was her free will and choice to go with her brother, it is perfectly right that she should; if, however, she was forced to that alternative against her own will by an infatuated person, though he may have been her brother, and I believe he was,) her friends in the company had good reason to be indignant. With the girl was taken also an adopted child of the girl's parents. The mother of the girl died on the ship while crossing the sea.

I called at Mr. Burr's office in Buffalo and received many attentions from him and all connected with the agency of the South Shore Railroad. Mr. B. was courteous and kind, rendering me every information and assistance in the prosecution by my business. I am likewise under obligations to Mr. Ritchie of the Erie Railroad, for his interest and attention while journeying from New York to Buffalo. Mr. Darling, Superintendant of the St. Louis Railroad, at Chicago, and Col. Hammond, Superintendant of the Burlington Railroad, were equally attentive, and I am happy to inform you, did every thing to facilitate and render comfortable this emigration.

I shall leave here for St. Louis via Chicago, on the 3d instant., from which place I hope to communicate with you. Respectfully,

ALEX. ROBBINS, JR.

From Our Utah Correspondent.

HISTORIAN'S OFFICE,
G. S. L. City, Nov. 30, 1855.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

A few stray numbers of THE MORMON have, by the extreme politeness and excessive energy of the U. S. Mail Conductors, reached this office on the 26th, bringing letters from the Hon. J. M. Bernhisel, at Fort Laramie, dated Sept. 14. We heard by private individuals, at several times, who were passing, that the mail was en route, but could not believe it, until the 26th, when, to our great surprise, it made its appearance.

Gov. Young is enjoying excellent health; he expects to leave next Monday for Fillmore City. The members of the Legislature leave about the same time.

The weather has been cold and stormy for some three weeks, making a heavy demand upon the standing wood-piles of some of our citizens. The late corn crops have come in better than was anticipated, although a great quantity was destroyed by the frost.

The Deseret News Office is removed into the upper room of the Council House. The Indians in every direction, so far as we can learn, are quiet. Judge Drummond is holding a Session of Court, at Fillmore.

GEO. A. SMITH.

Utah Correspondence.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 1, 1855.

DEAR FATHER—I take the opportunity of writing you a few lines, I have not time to write much, but will do the best I can. We received your letters of August and Sept. 14th, on the 26th of last month. The last mail that we received previous to this, was in August last, a long time indeed to wait, from August to the last of November. The August September and October mails came together, in the charge of Mr. Hockaday. The Nov. mail is expected in to-day—M. H. Peck and Son are with it. T. S. Williams came in advance, having left it at Fort Bridger, he is well. He brought the sad intelligence of the death of Bro. Orson Spencer, every body appeared to regret his loss. Bro. E. R. Fuller arrived about a month ago; he brought fourteen New York Journals, which I find very interesting. We received three of Harpers Magazine, July, August and September—also some Salem Observer's, and "The Mormon." The mail consisted of some forty odd mail bags. * * * * * * *

They have got the North side of the Temple Block wall capped and plastered, and half of the East side plastered; the capping stones are on the North and East and part of the South sides. E. Smith has built a fine large house on the West of Father Smith's lot, it is not quite finished. The walls of the Music Hall are all up, but not yet finished inside; also the walls of the Court House is up. The Governor and Suite are going to Fillmore. The Theatre has been opened several times. The first play was "Leap Year," next Wednesday a part of Othello, concluding with "All is not Gold that Glitters," on Saturday evening the play of "Love's Sacrifice" followed by Songs and a Fancy Dance. The next; "Honey Moon," the last is to be Damon and Pythias, B. Snow, as Damon, and a Mr. Wilson as Pythias, followed by a new piece—"The Two Bonney Castles." They will open again on the return of the Legislative Members. The returned Missionaries had a party at the Social Hall, last night, Nov. 29.

Brigham Young Jr., was married to Miss Catherine Spencer, I believe, on the 16th; the same evening, Mr. Wm. S. Godle, to Miss Annie Thompsom, and F. A. H. F. Mitchell, to Miss Margaret Thompson; on the 23d of Nov. Heber P. Kimball, to Miss Phebe Judd, all of this city. * * * * * * * * *

Business is very dull. I have not time to write more to-night, and as the Irishman wrote, "if you do not receive this, write and let me know," for the mails are so uncertain.

Yours &c., JOSEPH HENRY FELT.

Immense Destruction.

Breaking up of the ice Twenty-three Boats Wrecked.

ANOTHER great disaster has befallen our city. The long-dreaded event of the breaking up of the ice which for two months gorged the Mississippi and all its tributary streams has come at last, and brought with it a destruction of our marine interests far transcending anything that was anticipated. Twenty hours since our levee was crowded with steamers—now not a perfect hull remains. All have been swept down that lay opposite the central part of the city—crushed into a common ruin by the overwhelming masses of accumulated ice. Broken cables, chains with their links drawn to threads, a few shattered spars, alone remain to tell the story of stately vessels that were justly esteemed the pride of the Western waters.

At a few moments afier 2 o'clock on yesterday the alarm was given that the gorge had commenced to break, and slowly, at first, and majestically the floating fields began to move, then, gathering force and rushing in upon the boats, it lifted some out upon the bank, while thirteen others were carried below and stranded upon the bars, where they were rapidly cut into ribbons. A few of them that drifted into the bend of the river, although strained in every timber, fortunately escaped further damage. For some time the ice continued to float off, but after a few hours again gorged, causiug additional destruction to those steamers that still lay at the shore. Anxious suspense then ensued. The Mississippi was rising rapidly, and it was well known that the next break-up would be even more terrific than the preceding one.

At 7 o-4 o'clock, the tolling of the bells and the confused shouts that burst upon the stillness of the night, told that the ice was again in motion. Ten vessels, including among them two wharf boats that had been sheltered from the first violence, were torn from their fastening, hurled one upon another, and sent crashing and drifting along the front of the levee. The scene was truly appalling to those who were merely spectators, while the heroic exertions of the commanders and officers who stood to their decks amid the falling of timbers and the sinking of vessels, doing all that men could do to save them, was a thrilling exhibition of most true courage in the moment of extreme peril.

A dark night and a beating rain that ensued added dismalness and dreariness to the occasion, and left those who might struggle with the elements almost a hopeless task before them. The additional boats that were thus wrested from the shore, and jammed amid the heaped up flakes that hurried them along, met a like fate with the steamers that had been carried off in the afternoon. At present we cannot give a detailed account of the losses.

Frequently as St. Louis has experienced great reverses of fortune, by fire, and flood, and pestilence, and marvelous as has been its rise after each reverse, we must yet consider this as one of the most disastrous that has befallen it. All the business interests of the city were looking forward to the opening of navigation, with a confidence and cheer rarely felt before; and now, just at the moment when all our rivers would have been covered with merchandise, a large part of the vessels that were to have freighted it have been blotted out in a single day. To our Insurance Companies also the disaster will prove a heavy blow, and detract much from their means, although we do not fear that it will impair their credit. The losses will be very large, but what they will amount to in the aggregate, or upon whom they will fall, cannot yet be ascertained.—[St. Louis Democrat, Feb. 27.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 6

MR BROWN introduced a bill for the construction of a railroad and telegraphic line from a point on Mississippi River south of lat. 37° to the Pacific at San Francisco. The bill grants about 40,000,000 acres of land, for which the Company are to pay 50 cents an acre before obtaining title, and are to be required to deposit $500,000 as security that the work shall be faithfully performed.

According to the provisions of the bill, within eighteen months one hundred miles of the road must be completed—the Government to pay $600 per mile for carrying the mail until the road is finished, and for ten years thereafter, and such reasonable sum as the Secretary of War may determine for carrying troops, munitions of war, etc. The road is to be forfeited if not completed within ten years, and all lands, excepting those paid, to revert to the United States. The bill grants the right of way, 400 yards wide—gives no exclusive privilege, but allows any company to construct roads when and where they please, and obtain such favors from Government as they can. Referred to the Committee on the Pacific Railroad.

Mr. Weller said the Committee would endeavor to report next week.

The Fortification bill was then considdered.

The Senate passed the usual fortification bill.

The bill providing for new fortifications was postponed.

Mr. Sumner's resolution directing the Committee on Foreign Relations to consider the expediency of some act of legislation to effectively abrogate the treaty with Denmark, and repudiate the payment of the Sound Dues was then considered. The bill to be reported is to be concurred in both Houses.

Mr. Summer argued that the notice given by the President, by direction of the Senate in Executive Session, for the termination of the treaty was defective, inasmuch as treaties are part of the supreme law of the land, and can only be abrogated by the action of both houses of Congress, approved by the President.

Messrs. Seward, Fessenden, Collamer, Crittenden and Stewart sustained Mr. Sumner's views, and Messrs. Mason, Toucey and Cass opposed them.

The resolution then passed, and the Senate adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

March 8.

The request of the Committee on Elections; for power to send for persons and papers in the Kansas contested election case was considered.

Mr. Boyce contended that the Act under which Gen. Whitefield was elected was legal. The office of Delegate to Congress was created by the Kansas Nebraska Act, and whoever claimed it should show that he was elected under the original law, which is not the case with Mr. Reeder, who was a traitor if he gave members of the Legislature certificates of election when he did not believe them entitled to seats.

Mr. Bingham said the Committee, in asking for powers to send for persons and appers desired only to elicit the truth, which can wrong no man. It is evident from the memorial, that either Mr. Whitefield or Mr. Reeder claims the seat in violation of law. The simplest and most credulous man in the House cannot belive it was legal to hold two elections within the same mouth, and that the legal voters would go through the farce of voting for Mr. Reeder if they had already voted for Mr. Whitefield. It struck Mr. Bingham that, in one of those elections, the organic law was wantonly trampled on and disgraced, and, if this is true, it concerns all the people in the land to know it.

The question is, have the people of Kansas chosen Whitfield, or have they been interfered with by invading armies, and is Mr. Whifield here in violation of the law and by the acts of lawless invaders?

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

March 7.

Mr. Oliver, of Missouri, addressed the House in opposition to the request of the Committee on Elections to send for persons and papers.

He maintained that the responsibility for all the strife and bloodshed rests upon the head of Mr. Reeder, and other persons who have joined extraordinary movements in aid of sending Sharp's rifles to Kansas, and getting up emigrant aid societies, their single object being to defeat what they term the infamous Kansas Nebraska bill. He trusted the House would refuse the request, made at the instance of a man (Mr. Reeder) who has smeared his hands with the blood of his butchered fellow-citizens, and who is the foundation of treason which only needs the overt act to justify his being hanged as high as Haman.

Mr. Cumback, of Ind., admitted, as charged by Mr. Oliver, that the design of the Emigrant Aid Societies was to make Kansas a free State. The doctrine proclaimed by Northern democrats before the passage of the Nebraska Kansas act, was that the act was intended not only to make those Territories free, but also to establish a cordon of free States to the Pacific. He (Mr. Cumback) never had any desire or intention to go to Kansas until he saw an effort made to force slavery there. He submitted to Messrs. Oliver and Phelps, who had addressed the House on the subject—has it come to this, that we must ask them how many men may emigrate to Kansas, and at what time they can go there to become citizens? Has it come to this, that if men entertaining sentiments favorable to freedom, go thither, it is to be considered as warring on Missouri?

Mr. Cullen said this Kansas question should be considered with calmness, and settled according to the principles which regulate courts of justice. He maintained that the House cannot impugn the acts of the Legislature under which Mr. Whitfield was elected. Mr. Reeder himself decided that the members were duly chosen—having commissioned them and sent to them, after their organization, messages recognizing their acts as legal. The House has no right to open that investigation, because they cannot go beyond the record.

Mr. Walker concurred in the views expressed by Mr. Cullen. Adjourned till Monday.

SENATE. March 10.

The Senate considered the bill appropriating three millions of dollars for increasing the armaments and munitions of war, and for the manufacture and alteration of small arms, in accordance with the recent recommendation of the President.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading by a vote of 22 against 12.

Mr. Crittenden wished to know how recent improvements are to be applied to arms in the States.

Mr. Weller replied that it is proposed to call them in. There are about 300,000 muskets in the States which are to be rifled, supplied with new locks and Maynard's primers, which alterations will make them most efficient weapons.

This alteration will cost three dollars each.

Mr. Hunter spoke in favor of increasing the National defences so as to be prepared for attacks from every quarter.

Mr. Cass said England has suffered so much in the war with Russia that it is not at all unlikely she may try to retrieve her reputation by a war on the Western Hemisphere. Mr. Cass addressed the Senate relative to the aggressions and audacity of the English government, quoting from the London Times a recent article against this country, and making thereon a sarcastic running commentary. He did not see how the Central American controversy could be referred to arbitration.

Mr. Hale in objecting to the increase of the efficiency of the Army alluded to Mr. Cass' quotations from the London Times, he said little dependence was to be placed in foreign newspapers. He read an extract from the London Telegraph which represented Mr. Seward and Mr. Foote as being extremely belligerent, and another from La Patrie, Louis Napoleon's organ, which represented Mr. Banks, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, as a black man, saying that in the double capacity of a colored man and abolitionist, he had inspired profound disgust in the minds of the Southern members. [The reading of these extracts occasioned excessive laughter.]

Mr. Iverson defended the bill, and thought there was eminenent danger of a war with England. He did not believe the administration or the American people were in favor of arbitration on the Central American question. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Wheeler offered a resolution, which was adopted, instructing the Post-office Committee to inquire into the expediency of erecting public buildings in Boston, Philadelphia, Charleston and New York, suitable for post-offices, and for United States Court rooms, in accordance with the suggestions in the President's message.

Mr. Crawford addressed the House against sending for persons and papers in the Kansas case, which was the commencement of the usual charges and recriminations attending the discussion of this subject. One day's report serves for another. It is the same ball.

SENATE. March 11.

Mr. Bell, (nat.) of Tenn., by direction of the Naval Committee, reported an order that the Committee be empowered to send for persons and papers, to enable them to investigate matters relative to the memorials of officers complaining of the action of the Naval Retiring Board in their cases.

Mr. Stuart, (dem.) of Mich., said it seemed to him the opening a door which was never to be closed. He did not perceive how the granting of this power could lead to beneficial results.

Mr. Bell replied that every individual who feels that his character has suffered under unjust imputations, and who demands investigation, has a right to it.

The subject was then laid aside.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill to appropriate $300,000,000 for altering and manufacturing small arms, and providing the sea coast and garrisons with guns, accoutrements, munitions of war, &c.

Mr. Brown, (dem.) of Miss., spoke, supporting the views of the government, relative to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion of Mr. Tyson, of Pa., the Library Committee was instructed to inquire into the character of the work about to be issued by Dr. Kane, on the Polar regions, with the view of ordering copies for members.

Twenty thousand copies of the reports of the majority and minority of the Committee on Elections in the contested Kansas seat, were ordered to be printed.

KANSAS AFFAIR.

Nothing worth reporting—discussion—adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

Destructive Fire.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., March 7, 1856.

THE Essex cotton mill, in this city, was destroyed by fire last night. Loss $90,000. Insured between fifty and sixty thousand, principally in Boston offices.

Cotton and Woolen Mills Destroyed by Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7, 1856.

KELLY'S cotton mill at Darby, Delaware county, Virginia, was destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is over $150,000; insured for $60,000. Nearly four hundred persons are thrown out of employment by the disaster. The woolen factory of Dobson, Lee & Shaw, at Manayunk, near this city, was likewise burned this morning. Loss $10,000; insured for $2,000.

Propeller Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7, 1856.

THE propeller Henry G. Gau, of the Baltimore Canal Line, took fire at the Chestnut street wharf this morning, and the wood work was nearly destroyed. She had a large amount of freight on board, having been loaded in anticipation of running her trips to Baltimore on Monday. The boat was nine months old. No insurance.

Steamboat Collision.

LOUISVILLE, March 8, 1856.

ON Saturday morning the steamer E. Howard came in collision near Troy, Indiana, with the steamer Henry Lewis, from Cincinnati for New Orleans. The latter boat sunk and several lives were lost. The Howard was but slightly damaged.

All the cabin passengers of the Lewis were saved through her hurricane deck, but twenty of the hands and deck passengers were drowned. The boat and cargo are supposed to be a total loss. Insured.

The weather here is very cold; one inch of snow fell yesterday.

Heavy Robberies.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8, 1856.

THE store of D. & B. Curtis & Co., in this city, was robbed last night of silks, amounting to $10,000 in value.

The store of Shuff & Wernwa was also robbed of $2,000 worth of bonnet silks, satins and velvets.

Railroad Bridge Destroyed.

BRISTOL, R. I., March 8, 1856.

THE drawbridge of the Providence and Bristol Railroad, at Warren, was carried away by the ice last night.

Fire in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, March 9, 1856.

MR. PHILLER'S sash factory, on Christian street, was destroyed by fire last night, together with ten or twelve small dwellings contiguous. Loss about $12,000.

The Weather, &c.

ALBANY, March 10, 1856.

THE thermometer in this city ranged from zero to 7 deg. below zero this morning.

BOSTON, March 10, 1856.

AT sunrise this morning the thermometer in this city stood at zero.

At White River Junction, Vermont, the mercury was 26 deg. below zero.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10, 1856.

THE mercury, at daylight this morning, has fallen to zero.

MONTREAL, March 10, 1856.

THE mercury stood at 12 degrees below zero in this city this morning. Railroad travel is much interrupted.

Weather Westward.

BUFFALO, March 10, 1856.

YESTERDAY and to-day were the coldest days of the season that we have had here. The thermometer this morning stood at 15 degrees below zero—at Cleveland it was 10 degrees below.

Railroad Accident—Three Persons Killed and Several Injured.

NORFOLK, March 10, 1856.

THE Express train from here to-day for Weldon went through a curve in the bridge near Marsuretville, killing Messrs. Adams & Co's express messenger, Mr. Dougherty, mail agent, and Charles Neal, a boy. The engineer and several of the passengers were severely injured. The train, after the accident, took fire and was entirely destroyed.

Hon. Edward Everett and Dr. Kane.

RICHMOND, March 10, 1856.

THE Hon. Edward Everett and Dr. Kane, arrived here to-day. The City Government have tendered the hospitalities of the city to both. President Pierce is expected here to-morrow to attend Mr. Everett's oration.

Travel from Washington South.

WASHINGTON, March 10, 1856.

THE boats on the Potomac, connecting Washington with the Southern Railroad, now run regularly two trips per day. The boats leave immediately after the arrival of the northern trains, morning and evening.

Bangor Me., Municipal Election.

BANGOR, March 10, 1856.

AT the municipal election in this city today Mr. H. Bowman, the "Republican" candidate for Mayor, received 1,144 votes, and Leonard March, Opposition, 1,121. The "Republican" ticket was elected in five of the seven Wards.

Strike of Laborers in Boston.

BOSTON, March 10, 1856.

THE stevedores in this city, numbering about 1,200 men, mostly Irish, are on a strike, refusing to assist in unloading vessels where steam or horse power is employed. The movement causes great inconvenience to consignees and ship owners.

Mormonism in New York.

THE LATTER DAY SAINTS intend holding Meetings in this City every Sunday, at the Broadway House, entrance 116 Grand street, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., 3 P. M., and 7 in the evening.

All who wish to become acquainted with the principles of Salvation, as taught by Apostles and Prophets, ancient and modern, are respectfully invited to attend.

DIED,

At St. Louis, Feb. 21, 1856, after a long illness, ELEANOR CLEGAS, late from the Isle of Man, aged 55 years.

MAHALA HEADON DARTON, departed this life the first of the present month, at Toms River, Ocean Co., New Jersey, aged 38 years and 6 months; also SAMUEL HEBER DARTON, her infant son, three days later.

We deeply sympathize with Bro. Darton in his bereavement, and though it is a moment of grief and mourning with all men, we are happy to learn from the pen of Bro. Barton, that his soul is comforted with the hopes of a glorious resurrection for his partner in life. Sister Darton was a good faithful woman; in life, rich in good works, and at death, strong in faith. At the moment of leaving earthly friends, she bore a strong testimony in favor of the work of God. Star please copy.

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

HO! FOR SALT LAKE.

"In Time of Peace Prepare for War."

At the GREAT GUN EMPORIUM of P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON, No. 25 Main street, (Sign of the Gilt Gun,) east side, St. Louis, Mo.,

Will be found the largest and most complete stock of FIRE ARMS in the Western country.

Emigrants and Trains crossing the plains will find it to their advantage to give us a hearing, as from an experience of twenty-six years in this trade we are enabled to offer inducements which no other house can possibly offer. We know the wants of the people, and are able to supply them to almost any extent. We can offer 10 per cent. inducements to cash buyers. Our stock consists of every variety of Double and Single Guns, Minié Rifles, U. S. Yaugers and Muskets, Sharp's and other breech-loading Rifles, Colt's Revolvers and other Pistols of every description and size. Also, Caps, Ammunition, Swords, Hunting Apparatus, and in fact everything necessary to a complete outfit.

Call and examine before purchasing.

Remember the No—25 Main street, east side.

mh15-6m P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON.

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,

Manufacturers and Dealers in

GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,

in packages, prepared for Shipping.

Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee, Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8-1y

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!

CHARLES ROGERS,

IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,

No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,

Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.

Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.

mh8-1y CHARLES ROGERS.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,

UTAH TERRITORY.

HOOPER & WILLIAMS,

ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.

The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind which will insure satisfaction.

Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.

Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.

HOOPER & WILLIAMS.

G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,

Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,

Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS, Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.

Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.

E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.

REFERENCES—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

UTAH TERRITORY.

LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,

DEALERS IN

General and Assorted Merchandise,

Great Salt Lake City,

Utah Territory.

Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh26

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

WE believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recheache de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverous que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui rè gle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaitraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenente que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là. dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoilleront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés!" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés!" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit!" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ!" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection!" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ!" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.!" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.!" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous avons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophèties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu, révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaitre Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres e la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systémes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence. ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les ecès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lascivetè, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel" et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES. FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT.* WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS, 18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally.
fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets.
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines,
Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city,
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
150 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS.
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

S. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26:tf

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE.
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

C. D. ELLIS. J. S. CAVENDER. JAS. SMITH, JR.
ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
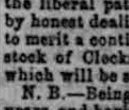
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8-4m

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22-1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.



A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10-6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
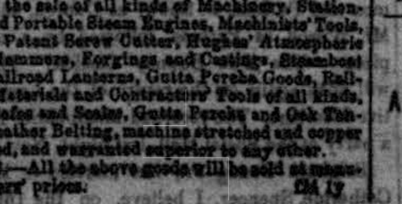
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29-6m



ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29-6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment o WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12-1y

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22-6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVIS,
GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

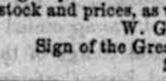
M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

FOR the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. f24 1y

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article. Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread. mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22



W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29-tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.
Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Buzby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
Please call and examine for yourseles, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. ja9-

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS. fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 5. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Cheer Up.

BY MARTIN F. TUPPER.

Never go gloomily, man with a mind,
Hope is a better companion than fear;
Providence, ever benignant and kind,
Gives with a smile what you take with a tear;
All will be right,
Look to the light;
Morning was ever the daughter of night;
All that was black will be all that is bright,
Cheerily, cheerily, then! cheer up.

Many a foe is a friend in disguise,
Many a trouble a blessing most true,
Helping the heart to be happy and wise,
With love ever precious, and joys ever new!
Stand in the van,
Strive like a man!
This is the bravest and cleverest plan;
Trusting in God while you do what you can.
Cheerily, cheerily, then! cheer up.

Porcupine Gazette.

A friend placed in our hands a relict of "times gone by," bearing the above significant title, published by the celebrated William Cobbett, in Philadelphia, dated March 30th, 1797.

We have perused its columns with some considerable degree of interest, expressing, as it does, in part at least, the tone of public feeling in regard to men and measures at that early period of our national existence. Some of the persons there alluded to were men whose memory is now embalmed in the heart of every true American, and their names enshrined in the bright halo of our country's glory as opponents of the oppressor, advocates of human rights, and defenders of our national freedom. It also touches upon the relations of the European governments who are prominently before the public in a belligerent attitude at the present time. There are some sharp thrusts at royalty, and at men also who stood high and figured largely in the diplomatic circles of Europe during those exciting times. Mr. Cobbett once served in the ranks of the British army in Canada, and rose by energy and perseverance to a seat in the British parliament, and to some degree of eminence and notoriety in the literary world as a severe and caustic writer, ever ready to throw down the "glove" upon almost every subject, whether political, scientific, or philosophical, and as an eccentric, his writings have been largely quoted from, far and wide. We make the following extracts, as a curiosity, and probably interesting to some of our readers at the present time:

ON THE EFFECTS OF GOLD.

FROM AN ENGLISH PAPER.

Would you silence a patriot committee,
Touch their lips with this magical wand,
Through country and senate and city,
'Tis the lock and key of the land.
Take a piece of this same from your coffer,
Display to the voter your pelf,
And the wretch having nothing to offer,
Will frugally sell you—himself.
'Tis a shot for the fowl of all feather,
A bait for the gust of all fish;
To this ev'ry gudgeon will gather,
And plump, ready drest is your dish.
If the booby, your pupil, so dull is,
He scarce can remember his name;
Yet his mouth, it shall open like Tully's,
When fed with a spoon of this same.
To a rascal, a bear and a blockhead,
Unconscious of mood or of tense,
This plastic receipt in his pocket,
Gives grace, figure, virtue and sense.
Old saints will for this sell their manuals;
O'er this at your sovereign nod,
Old judges will skip like young spaniels,
And cardinals kiss you this rod.
To study ought else is but nonsense;
From hence all philosophy springs—
'Tis the crown, beauty, cause and good conscience,
Of—Priests, Ladies, Patriots and Kings.

FOR PORCUPINE'S GAZETTE.

Mr. Cobbett,—I have often heard it asked, what will our Democrats do, if this country, in spite of her pacific disposition and measures, should be driven into a war with France, by the fraternal fondness she has contracted for American seamen and property? For our seamen she provides boarding and lodging, and our property she uses as her own. Can she more strongly show her attachment to both? But, if our seamen preferring to live at home with their families, and our merchants to dispose of their own cargoes, and an obstinate perseverance on the part of the French, in their superintending, affectionate guardianship, should create a difference between us (ungrateful, no doubt, on our part and grossly unreasonable) and if that difference should impel our good friends, under a distressing but necessary duty, to apply the rod of correction to a perverse and froward child—and if this correction should irritate our passions, and excite resistance, however ungrateful and unreasonable, and the consequence of this resistance should be a war, a horrid, unnatural, paricidious war, the question is asked what will our Democrats do? Those of them who have gone with the gang from misguided, erroneous principle, from ignorance and mistake, deceived by the intrigues of French emissaries and the falsehoods of American printers, will no doubt be startled from this delirium, when the din of war shall thunder in their ears, and they behold the heads of their countrymen and brothers perched on the points of French bayonets—their eyes will be opened by these metallic points—the love of their country awakened from its disgraceful slumbers, and they will unite to repel the robber and assassin, whether he be an Englishman, a Frenchman or a devil. The Democrats that would remain may be classed as follows: 1. Hired traitors—2. Poor villains panting for plunder—3. Foreigners who have run their course at home, and have emigrated to America to elude the search of their own government and destroy the peace of ours.

I dislike to read or write long pieces, and shall therefore stop for the present. If you think the continuance of my observations of any importance, I propose to consider what will be the probable conduct of these several classes of Democrats, in the event of a war with France: and then to be more particular in my conjectures of the conduct and fate of certain prominent individuals, such as G-ll-n, D-ll-s, G-l-s, &c., &c., and perhaps I shall descend with a remark or two to the smaller fry, such as Bache, Dr. L—b and a few others, who although they will not take their place in my first class, may deserve some more especial notice. I have my eye too on a certain pock-marked, Irish emigrant doctor who ranks in my third class, but may possibly claim a word or two to his private account.

Anticipation.

COMMUNICATIONS.

After all that has been said about crowned heads, as being monsters and tyrants en masse, (a favorite expression with certain classes of men on the surface of the globe) it must be confessed, that the general practice of all governments, however organized, of rendering congratulations to every crowned head with whom they have any, the least connexion, on his succession to the tyrant's cap; conveys a pretty strong proof of the congenial opinion, that the happiness of man is compatible with every known form of government, conducted on the settled principles of those forms and confined to the limits of its own territory.

"For forms of government let fools contest;
That which is best administer'd, is best."

Citizen Munroe in his address to the citizen Directors, on handing to the President his letter of recal, says, "I have been the eye-witness of a great revolution in my own country. The principles of this revolution, which are those of yours, have penetrated my heart, and will only perish with it." Base apostate! lying apostate! every genuine patriot on the American soil, must reject with horror the whole of the above aspersion, and almost call up a wish, that the heart which dictated it, had perished the moment it was made. The American patriot believes, that the revolution in France commenced in principles, somewhat similar to our revolution. We, to repel oppression; they, to shake off oppression, and intolerable abuses and burdens. La Fayette was seen in its first stages. He also believes, that perhaps from the expulsion of this honorable character every principle relative to true liberty has been made subservient, in France, to views of the most unlimited ambition; that everything there tends to the formation of another Roman military Republic; hostile to all the world and in which liberty cannot exist. Liberty is unknown to the soldier. A free people attacked, will part with their liberty for a while, and become soldiers, to secure it and their independence for the future, and hand these down unimpaired to their posterity. American Patriots will certainly do this.

Citizen Munroe also harps upon the hackneyed theme of the gratitude due to France from this country. The American Patriot denies this.

He acknowledges the aid, countenance and assistance derived from the late Court of France, and knows their own interest induced them to afford it. But observe, it was from the Court of France; and of all the persons in any way influential with this court, and who were known to excite their influence in our favor, perhaps there is but one remaining alive. To this person, at this day, should our whole gratitude be confined. The good citizens who patronize the Aurora, will doubtless wish to know who this person is, in order that they may offer up, in future, their unmixed, unadulterated incense at the shrine of the goddess. Now, know ye, that a pretty French woman, to whose arms the Viscount Vergennes was accustomed to retire to forget the storms of politics; to drown in oblivious rapture, the cares attendant on his elevated situation, is the person meant. This pretty girl is well known by many persons in this country, in this city, was most assiduously courted by our grave negociators, and even by the sage and philosopher Franklin; and this could have been for none other (at least in the sage) than political purposes.

COMMUNICATION.

The western spy of our allies.

The public are under a partial mistake at present, with respect to the French Emissary, sent to delude our fellow citizens of the Western country; my information, which is directly by a gentleman from Pittsburgh, is, that a French general, by the name of Lachese, has been apprehended in Kentucky, and imprisoned. That the better to cover his designs he travelled on foot, carrying his fiddle on his back, at the music of which he is remarkably expert; that he has been detected in exploring the country with a military aspect, and in his conversation and condnct, endeavoring to alienate the affections of the people from their brethren of the Atlantic States, and to persuade them to join the French in forming a Republic with Louisiana, &c., &c., that he is the same general who was concerned some years ago in raising the army against the dominions of Spain.

But, fellow citizens, he is not directly the general to whom on a former occasion I alluded. The prisoner is a subordinate agent in the villany. But the principal has made his tour, and returned to Philadelphia, where he, very probably, like other traitors of his country and ours, is basking in the sun-shine of presidential favor. He being more circumspect than his Colleague, the prisoner, made his way good through the Western Territory, without imprisonment, though not without a discovery of his insidious embassy from Mr. Adet.

He very freely and warmly advocated the election of Mr. Jefferson, and agreeably to his instruction, endeavored to dismember the United States by alienating the attachment of the western country from the people of the Atlantic States. In short, by a variety of contingencies, which will sometimes occur to favor vaillany, the principal has as yet escaped with impunity, whilst the subaltern has been brought to an end. I have a violent suspicion, that a certain French philosopher, who has had the late President's passport to explore the winds, has had a commission from the Directory to explore the most plausible way to our throats.

I forbear, however, to enlarge at present upon this subject, holding up for a little further developement of time. Wm. Willcocks.

March 28.

DOCTORS COMMONS.

At a court of admiralty, lately held at Doctors Commons, for the trial of prize causes, the case of an American vessel, which had been captured by an English ship-of-war, as property belonging to the enemies of this country, came on to be heard.

It appeared that this ship had carried on a covered trade from Brest to Bourdeaux. It was formerly a British captured ship, sold as a prize to an American, who was stated to have purchased it for 1600 livres, which he had paid partly in notes, and partly in cash.

The principal claimants were the master (an American) who claimed the eighth as his private property, and a Mr. Burleigh, who put in his claim for the remainder.

It appeared, that, at the time the ship was captured, her destination was covered, and that she was in the course of being employed in the French coasting trade from Brest to Bourdeaux, under American colours.

After the ship's papers were read in evidence, the counsel heard on both sides, the learned judge took a review of all the circumstances pertaining to this case, and was clearly of opinion that the property in the ship, so far as concerned Mr. Burleigh, out to be condemned as lawful prize to the captors. Sir James observed, that it appeared to be the practice of certain Americans to lend their ships to the French to enable the French to carry on their coasting trade with success. This practice was doubtless founded on a system of a fraternization. Ships thus lent by the Americans were to be considered as the property of resident Frenchmen, consequently as belonging to the enemies of this country. Sir James then observed, that the master of the ship then in question did not stand in the character of a neutral master claiming his private adventure, but as the proprietor of one eighth of the ship employed in the French trade. Besides he had concealed some letters on board. After many other remarks, the learned judge allowed the master further time for proof respecting the justice of his claim, but condemned the remainder of the vessel as property belonging to the enemies of this country.

The Education of Girls.

No one will dispute the assertion that the object of education is to prepare pupils for the efficient discharge of the duties of life. The first question is, what are the duties which the girls of an expensive or fashionable school will be called upon to discharge when they have taken their places as members of society? Let us see. They are the children of wealthy parents, and in all probability they will be called upon to sustain the following relations:

First. They will be wives. A wife is the intimate friend, and constant, life-long companion of man.

Secondly. They will be mothers, and as such the natural guides, instructors and exemplars of children.

Thirdly. They will be mistresses of households, in which capacity they will be directors of the industry of others, purchasers of the numberless commodities and guardians of the health, comfort and happiness of many persons.

Fourthly. They will be ladies, and as such, the leaders of society, the law-givers of manners—as such, they ought to be agreeable, instructive in conversation, accomplished in the arts of entertainment, self-possessed and superior to fashion and affectation.

Fifthly. They will be more likely than not to experience at some time in their lives a reverse of fortune; and then they should be able to do something for their own subsistence.

Finally. They will have the honor to be members of the illustrious human family; to be worthy of which high rank in the universe, they ought to be high-minded, honorable and just; incapable of hatred, jealousy and fear; abounding in love and charity to all who share with them the glory of being human; beautiful in their persons and lovely in their lives.

These are some of the relations they will sustain; these are some of the duties they will be called upon to perform.

Now the great question occurs: What is the education that will prepare them for these various relations and duties? We attempt to answer the question.

A strong and healthy constitution is, of course, a woman's first necessity. She needs it, if possible, more than man. To the development of her physical system everything else must be accounted subordinate, the greatest possible intellectual advantage being too dearly purchased by the smallest possible detriment. To secure the healthy development of a growing treasure, it is only necessary to let nature have her way, giving free opportunity for the enjoyment of that boisterous sport which the young naturally delight in, and which is absolutely necessary for their growth. Girls, therefore, should be confined to the desk not more than three hours a day, and as they grow older the laws of health should be one of their studies.

But young ladies need more than a healthy body; they need an educated body—they should be graceful as well as strong. To secure this, the most unwearied exertions are made in the schools of Europe. One hour a day at least should be spent in grace-promoting exercises, such as calisthenics, dancing, riding on horseback, skating, swimming, and drilling of various kinds. One hour a day would give six hours in the week, and the exercises might be so arranged that each day would have its own: dancing on Monday, calisthenics on Tuesday, &c. The effect of these daily exercises would astonish every one—so strikingly do they improve the form, the air, the carriage of those who enjoy them. We know a gentleman who, in his twelfth year, ran away from school and joined an English regiment as a drummer boy. He remained with the regiment about ten months, during which time he was daily drilled in the art of walking erect and stepping gracefully. To this day we can pick him out from a crowd in Broadway as far as we can see him by the erectness of his figure and the beauty of his walk. European ladies of high rank can be easily detected by the same peculiarities.

We remark, further, that young ladies need educated fingers. A large portion of their work in after life will be done by those wonderful and beautiful instruments. Completely educated, they can glide over the ivory keys, and evoke music to cheer the heart; they can record events of life and travel in dainty writing, and illustrate them with beautiful pictures; they can make every garment worn by women from the imperceptible bonnet that does not cover the head, to the pretty slipper that reveals the tiny foot; they can blend together the various ingredients of the delicious, and spread the table with viands that charm the eye as well as delight the palate; under their gentle touch gardens smile, and apartments become museums of beautiful ingenuity. Oh, wonderful are ladies fingers! They should be educated to the very utmost; all their latent capabilities should be evolved by the most assiduous and skillful culture. How unwisely how shamefully is the education of the fingers neglected in our female seminaries!

Then there is the education of the mind. The word education literally means nourishment; that which nourishes the mind is knowledge; and the act of procuring knowledge gives the mind the exercise which is needful for its digestion. It is with the mind as it is with the body; the labor required to procure food is the exercise which enables the system to appropriate it. To extol such studies therefore, as logic, rhetoric, mental philosophy and algebra, because they exercise the mind, is absurd; they exercise it very little, and yield scarcely any knowledge for its nourishment, whereas, there are branches of study which exercise the mind in the most vigorous manner, and yield an immense and exhaustible revenue of instruction. Take, for example, the Italian language. The complete acquisition of that one language would convert an uneducated mind into an educated one. In learning the language the pupil would necessarily become acquainted with Italian literature, Italian history, Italian manners and customs; the whole internal and external life of an important and interesting branch of the human family would be gradually revealed to the pupil's mind.

Dante would educate her; Tasso would educate her; all the great minds of Italy would contribute to her enlargement; and, in gaining an insight into the structure of a foreign language, she would, for the first time, begin to understand the peculiarities of her own. The same remarks apply to any language which has a great and healthy literature. They do not apply to the French language, which is worth learning only for purposes of society and travel.

Science, also, is an invaluable means of education. The first few books of Euclid applied to astronomy would flood the youthful soul with light and joy. The natural sciences can all be made to tell powerfully on the education of the young. History and biography are exhaustless fountains of instruction. And daughters of ours, if we had any, should range at will among the novelists, who are, after all, the only schoolmasters now "abroad" in the world who earn their wages. We could spare Oxford, but not Dickens; Cambridge, but not Thackeray.

Finally—but most important of all, there is the education of the soul, the heart, the moral nature; the conquest of self, the supremacy of principle, the habit of magnanimity. Words are of little avail on this branch of the subject. Moral excellence is the result of many circumstances; there is no royal road or beaten track that leads to it; if, like nuns and monks, we devote ourselves to its exclusive acquisition, it eludes our grasp; it often exists where nothing has appeared to foster its growth; it is often wanting where every circumstance seems to have conspired to produce it; the sons of saints go astray; the children of sinners become ornaments of the race. Goodness is catching; its sole source is the human heart. Teachers who own souls are noble can ennoble the souls of their pupils; every lesson recited becomes, in their hands, a lesson of fidelity, honesty and truth. Virtue goes out from them continually. And, to tell the truth, this is all the moral philosophy we are able to believe in; and we know no "means of grace" except truth exemplified in the conduct of a human being. "See how these Christians love one another." It was that which touched hearts and made converts.

These are imperfect hints. But we believe that girls educated in the spirit of our remarks, would be likely to become intelligent and companionable wives, judicious mothers, agreeable members of society, and noble-minded women.—[Life Illustrated.

The Slanderer.

Have you ever been struck by the poisoned talons of this voracious cormorant, whose prey is human character, who gluts his insatiate craw with the dearest treasures of life—a good name, a spotless reputation! who, as a broad winged angel of darkness, hovers over society, glooming and shadowing all that is bright and lovely in youth and innocence, by its dreadful and dreaded presence! If so you can fully appreciate the pitiable condition of thousands, whose wounds are still festering from the presence of the venom infused, and from the sad consequences of which, they are hopelessly lost. Oh! pity the fallen one, whose reputation, spotless as the driven snow; whose life, pure as the blushing rose; whose lofty aspiration and whose bright anticipations were first smitten by the machinations of the heartless, soulless, slanderer. What degree of contempt is too intense, what feelings of scorn too concentrated, to be shown towards the cowardly wretch who could deliberately plot the ruin, even of a rival—an enemy, by secretly and dastardly stabbing his reputation; but how much more inconceivably wicked is it, when youth, beauty, innocence, are all emolated on the bloody shrine of scandal for the purpose of attaining sensuous and selfish ends! Can such baseness be realized? Is the heart so hopelessly depraved? Yes, however, humiliating the admission may be to our better feelings, such is our humanity. The brothels, the alms-houses, the prisons, and grave-yards, could give up their hundreds if not thousands, whose lives of innocence and virtue were first blackened by the polluting breath of scandal, and who with wounded self-pride and lost self-respect, chagrined, mortified, and maddened, have in the frenzy of despair, dashed to the brink, and plunged headlong into the gulph of irreparable ruin. And many a young man with high hopes and glowing prospects, ambitious of literary, political or social position, has fallen before the secret wiles of this pest—this plague-spot upon the escutcheon of society, the slimy, sneaking, slanderer, and rushed madly to the vortex of intemperance, that terrible abyss.

"That has swallowed up its millions,
And upon the brink of which, myriads more are tottering to their fall."

Oh! pity the victim of this incarnated demon, who with suavity and gentleness ingratiates himself into the confidence of society, who unsuspecting and obscured, spies his victim and smiling while he stabs, under the mask of friendship, secretly but maliciously plots and executes his vile purposes. Reports infamous and disgraceful, are put in circulation, the injured one feels the withering scorn, the cold neglect of former friends and companions, and knows not why the change; he inquires the cause, and is informed of the groundless rumors. Who, and where is the author? No one knows. The base wretch by smiles and blandishments retains his position in society, while his victim is cast off. If, however, the latter by a life of rectitude, has acquired a reputation, invulnerable to such an assault, some vile and irresponsible newspaper is invoked, the columns of which will contain anonymous communications, or perhaps paid editorials, detailing the base calumny, and the innocent victim of scandel is maliciously and wickedly held up to public gaze, (and to the extent of the influence of the miserable instrument used) an object of scorn and contempt, his reputation ruined and his good name destroyed. Who, and where is the author of this? No one knows. He mingles in society, is admired for his intelligence and urbanity—he is emphatically a "wolf in sheep's clothing," he is "an angel of darkness, clothed in the livery of Heaven." An arch hypocrite, whose real character, if known, would cause him to be purged from decent society as a thing too vile and poluting to be tolerated.

The wretch, who at midnight, would stealthily approach the couch of sleeping innocence, and redden the bright steel with the warm life current of his unconscious victim, and with his hands all wreaking with human gore, turn from his work of death, to expiate his crime upon the scaffold, or he who would openly meet his foe, amid the broad glare of day, and drive the deadly ball whistlings to his heart, and turn to meet the murderer's fate, is a being less to be dreaded, than the false-hearted and unscrupulous slanderer, for reputation is dearer than life, and the loss of one often results in the deststruction of the other.

Though during the ardor and impetuosity of youth, the effects of slander, in crushing the hopes and blasting the prospects, are often overwhelming in their tendencies, nipping in the bud and utterly destroying the elements of future greatness, they may be contracted to a very great extent, and perhaps render migratory by a correct course of conduct. A high-minded person, with proper self-respect, cannot condescend, even to make a public contradiction of a groundless fabrication, unsupported by authority, however base and destructive it may be.

Slanders are better met by that supreme contempt that is loudest expressed by silence.

[Woman's Advocate.

Keep Your Eye on Your Neighbors.

Take care of them. Don't let them stir without careful watching. They may do something wrong if you do. To be sure you never knew them to do anything very bad, but it may be on your account they have not. Perhaps, if it had not been for your kind care they might have disgraced themselves and families a long time ago. Therefore don't relax any effort to keep them where they ought to be; never mind your own business, that will take care of itself. There is a man passing along—there he is looking over the fence into his neighbor's garden—be suspicious of him, perhaps he contemplates stealing something some of these dark nights: there is no knowing what queer fancies he may have got into his head. If you see any symptoms of any one passing out of the path of rectitude, don't say anything to the erring individual about it, but tell every one else you can see, and be particular to see a great many.

It is a good way to circulate such things, and though it may not benefit yourself, or any one else particular, it will be something equally important about some one else. Do keep something going—silence is a dreadful thing, though it is said there was silence in the Courts of Heaven for the space of half an hour, don't let any such thing occur on earth; it would be too much like Heaven for the inhabitants of this mundane sphere. If, after all your watchful care, you can't see anything out of the way in any one, you may be sure it is not because they have not done anything bad; perhaps, in an unguarded moment, you lost sight of them—throw out hints they are no better than they should be—that you should not wonder if people found out what they were after a while, and that they may not carry their heads so high. Keep it a going, and some one will take the hint, and begin to help you after a while—then there will be music, and everything will work to a charm.

According to the English journals, the Minie weapon must soon be superseded. Lancaster's elliptically bored carbines having been subjected to various proofs in the arsenals at Woolwich, her Majesty's corps of sappers and miners are now being armed with them. These muskets have several qualities which have caused them to be pronounced superior in precision and power to the Minie rifle, and have a range of upwards of 1,000 yards.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
12 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1856.

A New Missionary Enterprise.

MORMON industry is proverbial. We don't think Mormons are differently organized from other beings; circumstances, we opine, have had considerable to do in forming their character. They have always had plenty of work on hand. We never knew the time when we had nothing to do; but have often found ourselves over head and ears in business, so that we scarcely knew what to do first. Big business is peculiar to Mormonism. We don't think the Lord, whom we serve, a hard taskmaster, though He keeps rolling on to our shoulders quite as much as we can waggle under. When a ship is leaky at sea, it is all hands to the pump: safety first, think of rest after. The work of restitution has begun, and ancient prophets have said the Lord would accomplish it in a hurry—cut it short in righteousness. 'Tis thus we have consoled ourselves for many years. Our friends are aware of all this; and when we don't seem to notice every compliment, they know well it's all right. But lest some "outsiders," who are not so well "posted" on our business, should think us wanting in courtesy to the interest they sometimes manifest in our behalf, we thought it not amiss to make these prefatory observations to the brief notice we are about to take of the kindness proffered to us by the New York Observer.

The arrival of the John J. Boyd in this port, about three weeks ago, with something near 500 Saints from different nations of Europe, seems to have aroused the speculative genius of the editor of the Observer. He says:

"In the short period of five months, between November 27th, 1854, and April 26th, 1855, there left Liverpool for this country, no less than 3,926 Mormons. Of these 2,231 were from England! and 401 from Scotland! Of the remainder there were of Danes, 409; Welsh, 287; French, 75; Swedes, 71; Norwegians, 53; Irish, 18; Swiss, 15; Piedmontese, 15; Germans, 13; Prussians, 1. From this statement it appears the number of Mormons from Great Britain and Ireland lacks only fifty three of being 3,000, in five months, and we have no reason to suppose the immigration was any greater during those five months, than it has been since. Last Saturday more than 500 came in a single ship. The Church Review, in a very able article on the subject, justly observes that Mormonism, though existing we are sorry to say on American soil, is yet essentially, rather an English than an American institution.

"But the evil is ours: to be regulated and remedied as soon as possible. 'Sharpe's Rifles' are pronounced by the Brooklyn pastor of Plymouth Church a great moral agent for Kansas, and yet we would not recommend the indiscriminate use of this agency to reform the Mormons or promote morals in Utah. But while yet Utah is a Territory of the United States, and before she becomes even an applicant for admission into the Union, we would have measures adopted to promote the moral improvement of that people. Our benevolent and missionary societies have not turned their attention, as they ought, to Utah as a field of labor. The Constitution of the United States forbids Congress to make any law prohibiting the free exercise of religion, and the Territory may not enact any law in conflict with the U. S. Constitution. It is therefore plain that missionaries and colporteurs may be sent there with the Gospel, with Bibles and Tracts, and if the far-off pagan tribes are to be visited with such agencies of mercy, why will not our missionary spirit and patriotism suggest such efforts for these wretched polygamists and fanatics, on our own soil?

"Here is a noble object to employ the minds and means of American Christians. Is not Utah worth saving for virtue and for heaven? Or is Kansas everything and Utah nothing?"

How happy we would feel if the Observer could prevail upon "Missionaries and Colporteurs" to go to Utah. Oh! dear me, how we should rejoice to record that importation into the valleys of Utah. We hasten to speak words of consolation to the editor. He seems to have misgivings about the Mormons receiving the "Missionaries and Colporteurs with Bibles and Tracts," but concludes that "while yet Utah is a Territory of the United States, and before she becomes even an applicant for admission into the Union, we would have measures adopted to promote the moral improvement of that people." Now, Mr. Editor, don't fret yourself about the possibility of Utah being a State before you have "measures adopted." If the Territory of Utah was the State of Deseret to-morrow, no law will be adopted "prohibiting the free exercise of religion." The Mormons met in Great Salt Lake City and framed a constitution, in which religious toleration was granted to every man, about two years or more before Congress made Utah a Territory.

For fear the Editor should think that there is no sincerity in all that, that it was merely a profession, we might say that we have felt considerably anxious to see your missionaries amongst us. While Professor Orson Pratt was at Washington, publishing the Seer, he gave quite a pressing invitation to the gentlemen in black to go to Utah. We did the same in this paper some time ago. Lest your heart, Mr. Editor, be still unbelieving and faint, we will say something more for your encouragement: your missionaries will be listened to in Utah once at least—yes, once at least—we can promise that much. Our folks always listen till they are satisfied, but no longer. We feel zealous—we will do more. Tell your missionaries to call upon us when they are ready, and we will give them a letter of introduction to the inhabitants of Utah. We should think by this time the Editor is satisfied. We have been inviting and promising; it is now our turn to ask a favor. Will the Editor please send men with brains—men who know the Bible, and will live or die by it? Now don't fall into a mistake, and send us the missionaries and colporteurs that visit the death-beds of harlots and debauchees to torment them with the horrors of hell. You should know, Mr. Editor, that the people in Utah have heard all the granny tales that these missionaries and colporteurs retail—they are stereotyped in every country where your bastard Christianity has been introduced. Should you send us such men as Mr. Allen of the Calcutta mission—men with some degree of conscience and brains—what will become of them. If Mr. A., from rubbing against benighted Hindoos, got his eyes opened to perceive that polygamy was not only a Jewish but a Primitive Christian doctrine and practice, we expect that a missionary expedition to Utah would make him cry out in all sincerity, "Surely our monogamic fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things in which there is no profit."

We had some misgivings on the editor's zeal for our salvation when we first read that dark sentence of his, "We do not recommend the indiscriminate use of this agency (Sharpe's Rifles) to reform the Mormons or promote the morals in Utah," but charity led us to conclude he might be unhappy in the choice of words to express his meaning, or perhaps the first dawn of a new missionary enterprise might have so augmented his love for souls, that he forgot what he was saying about the body; we therefore glanced a second time over the Observer to see if we could meet with anything to encourage our charitable interpretation; but what could we think when we read, "there are scores of ministers standing in the market-place idle, and when you ask them 'why,' they answer, 'because no church has hired us.'" Should the East India missionaries, that have lately been converted to polygamy, be called home, the market will be terribly overstocked. Had the editor in view a regiment of these idle ministers with Sharpe's Rifles, attended by missionaries and colporteurs with Bibles and tracts, marching to Utah? We must, however, quit this subject; we can only add—send your missionaries, and if they don't know now their calibre, a trip to Utah will quicken their perceptive faculties.

Utah.

WE have received the Deseret News for the 4th and 12th of December and the 2d of January. Gov. Young opened the Legislative Assembly on the 10th of December. To the Governor we are indebted for an early copy of his annual message to that honorable body, which will be found in another column. We cannot resist the temptation of drawing particular attention to that document. While other territories and States are in commotion and brushing up arms, Utah's Governor can say with honest pride, "Peace, quiet, gentle peace and a due degree of prosperity, have thus far crowned our efforts." Read it through, and be wise, ye who cannot hear the name of Utah without conjuring up in your minds misery and anarchy rampant. Legislators who are seized with "the nightmare" in plain day, when Utah asks admission into the Union as a sovereign State, read it and be awake to the solemn realities of life, and hear Brigham Young, whom ye have branded with every name but that of gentleman, address the Legislature of despised Utah:

"Be it our aim so to direct our political affairs, as to promote union, integrity, prosperity and independence to the Territory, industry, knowledge and truth to the people; thus shall we secure to ourselves peace and freedom, and transmit to our children those free institutions which we received as a rich legacy from our fathers."

As we have not received our full file of the Deseret News, we refer our readers for general information on Utah affairs to the Governor's message and the letters of our faithful correspondent and friend, G. A. Smith.

Summary.

THE steamship Persia arrived here on Thursday morning, bringing intelligence from England up to the 8th inst. European papers are, in the absence of official information, well filled with everybody's surmisings about the Peace Conference: what England and France demanded: what the Russian Plenipotentiaries replied: what one and the other said—who talked and who sat particularly silent; whose countenance was serene on leaving the Conference, and who bespoke thunder and lightning and twenty-five years more blood and carnage. The Plenipotentiaries have really kept their promise, and not a word has escaped from one of them. However, editors of daily papers must say something when the people are expecting so much, and if they can do no better they can fill columns one day to fill the same columns the next day in contradicting their own inventions.

The session of the Senate of France for the year 1856 was opened by the Emperor in person, on Monday, the 3d of March. The Emperor delivered a short address on the occasion, congratulating the Senators on the happy union of France with her allies, the glory that covered the Imperial army, the blessings of abundance that was the portion of the inhabitants of the Empire, and the prospects of an honorable and satisfactory peace.

The efforts of the Allies are not relaxed in preparations for the spring campaign in the Crimea and the cruise in the Baltic. Twelve thousand French troops are embarking for the Crimea to replace those who returned a short time ago; and the Moniteur publishes an imperial decree, calling out for active service the young soldiers of the class of 1855. The English command of the Baltic fleet has again changed hands. This year, Admiral Watson has command, and on the 6th of March had left Kiel to meet the fleet and resume the blockade of the Russian ports.

The Royal Italian Opera House, Covent Garden, London, was totally destroyed by fire on the morning of the 5th of March. The fire broke out at five o'clock, just at the termination of a bal masqué got up by Professor Anderson, the Wizard of the North, who has occupied the theatre during the winter. The orchestra was playing the usual finale, "God save the Queen," when they had to bolt, and many had to leave behind them their favorite instruments. No lives were lost, but many of the ballet girls and others connected with the establishment were only saved by the "skin of their teeth." This fire has created great excitement in the English metropolis. The Queen and Prince Albert visited the ruins, and are said to have poured consolation of the right description into the ears of the lessee, Mr. Gye.

Mr. Ingram, proprietor of the Illustrated London News, has been elected Member of Parliament for Boston, Lincolnshire.

The steamship Arctic, which has been out for some time in search of the Pacific, was spoken Thursday morning, off the Highlands, by the steamtug Leviathan. Mr. Hall, the boatswain of the Arctic, was put on board the tug in consequence of ill-health; he is said to be the bearer of dispatches to the Government and to Mr. Collins respecting the researches for the missing steamer. The Arctic will cruise till about the first of April. The Leviathan took in tow the bark Ilva in the afternoon, and in about twenty minutes afterwards was a burning mass from stem to stern. The crew had barely time to launch the lifeboats when the promenade deck fell with a crash. In two hours the Leviathan was burned to the water's edge. All hands got on board the bark and were brought to the city by the steamtug Hector.

FOR THE MORMON.

Power of Impressions.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

IT is a psychological fact, that the human mind is more or less capable of receiving impressions, whether they emanate from concrete or abstract objects. The metaphysician understands by concrete objects, every thing, that is visible to the optical power of man, a table, a house, &c., by abstract objects, anything that is perceptible to the mental eye, such as kindness, goodness etc. An impression may be termed the reflex of anything physical or mental. As soon as something has been brought under the immediate cognizance of the senses, it is then conveyed through those channels to the mind, where it is retained in the receptacle for mental objects, in proportion to the power with which it has impressed itself upon the soul, as the following will illustrate. When the eye has caught a glimpse of a house, the impression will then be left on the inner man, that it is the abode of some human being. On hearing of a noble action, the impression or idea will be, that it was done by the impulse of virtue.

Regarding the capability of receiving impressions, a great deal depends upon the character of persons by whom a man has been raised; the society in which he moves; the education he has received, and lastly the country in which he is living. If parents take particular care to teach their children good principles, to call their attention to everything noble and beautiful, and avoid carefully the introduction of anything, that might hurt the tender feelings of their offspring, then the mental harmony will not be disturbed, the child will learn to sympathize with the unfortunate, to scorn and abhor the outlaws of society; if the atmosphere of his social sphere is pure and healthy, and well calculated to refine taste and feeling for everything virtuous; if he is educated on true, systematic and logical principles, that have a tendency to develop the noble characteristics of the soul; then man is prepared for the reception of impressions, and at the same time strong enough to control them.

In order that man may not get enthralled in mental vassalage, but maintain an independence of mind, it is necessary for him to cling with an unyieling tenacity to every principle of truth; to have his investigations of things and matters guided by reason and commonsense, and then he will not become the victim of the phantoms of a foul imagination; he will not be crushed by impressions of an impure or inconsistent character.

If we continue our metaphysical researches, we find that men born in romantic, mountainous countries, who are continually surrounded by the grand and lovely scenery of Nature's beautiful Garden, are generally more apt to receive impressions than the inhabitants of flat and dreary regions. History tells us that the Greeks and Romans whose countries abound in great physical charms, yielded to romantic fancies; the impressions, they received from their places of abode, that appeared to them as marked with the impress of divinity, assumed vivid forms, with which they peopled every brook, every grove and every lake; their imaginary powers conjured up those beautiful mythological tales, as recorded by Ovidius Naso, Virgil, Homer, etc. Likewise the Scandinavians, especially the Norwegians and Swedes; the Germans, Swiss French etc., whose countries have all the characteristic features of a wild, romantic mountain scenery; where the thundering avalanches; the wonderful echoes in the ravines; the rising vapors in the deep vallies; the wild, fantastically shaped rocks helped their fruitful fancy to produce an immense number of fables and tales concerning fairies and nymphs, who were supposed to have intercourse with man.

The mind when under the spell of impression gets aroused and enkindled by the fire of God Phantasus; all dificiencies in Nature's grand panorama disappear; it looks upon everything through a kaleidoscope; it sees nothing but beauty, harmony and loveliness; but when in that state, man needs more than ever the guidance of reason, else he might share the fate of Icarus of whom mythology relates, that he having waxen wings soared in the clouds and getting too near Phœbus, viz. the Sun, his waxen appendages melted and he perished.

It is not only the scenery that strikes the mind, but also the ideas that come from the lips of eloquent men, or the works of eminent, literary characters. In our daily intercourse with men, we ought to be very careful not to throw out inconsistent or sub rosa impure ideas; the inexperienced mind is but too willing to receive and cherish them. It is like bad seed sown in the field, it brings forth weeds, thorns and thistles, that destroy the tender grain. Even the best principles, or moral lessons make when misconstrued or misconceived sometimes a bad or fatal impression upon the mind; the least blast of unhallowed principles will perhaps forever ruin a being, that was basking itself in the sunshine of virtue and happiness.

Nothing is so mysterious to us, as the wonderful mechanism of the mind or soul; have we fathomed all its depths? Do we know all its meanderings? Some people may be familiar with Anthropology, that science that gives the general outlines of the human character, and teaches the theory of discovering spirits, but still it is a very uncertain guide, it wants practice. Like the physician that understands theoretically the diagnosis of diseases, he will remain a tyro, till he has moved for some time in the field of empiricism. Experience when united with scientific theories may initiate us into the mysteries of the human heart, but very few are so highly gifted and favored as to tell with accuracy one mind from another.

We meet sometimes individuals, who under the outward appearance of gaiety and merriment, are people of deep feelings, whose mind is willing to receive any impressions, but especially those emanating from persons whom they have been taught to respect and revere; consequently the greatest responsibility rests upon those men or women not to advance principles or ideas that might overthrow the frail building of virtue, or make them in any way deviate from the path of their duty.

History is replete with accounts, concerning men that understood so well to throw the cloak of hypocricy and sham austerity round their shoulders, that they had introduced themselves in society under the pretence of being their mentor, and exercised such a moral influence over the inexpert, that they blighted the domestic happiness of many a family, by the fatal impressions which their teachings made upon the youthful mind. Every person has a certain influence in his sphere, therefore it is incumbent upon all to do what is possible to promote the happiness of our fellow-beings, to cherish in their bosom the best possible feelings, and to remove everything that might mar their felicity. If we are possessed of the Spirit of God, and of virtuous principles, our intercourse with men will have a tendency to leave good impressions upon them; the mists of darkness will be dispelled.

As our mind is capable of receiving impressions, and we are more or less liable to err, it will be wisdom for us, not to expose ourselves to the impure atmosphere of bad society; because by being in a moral miasma we cannot help partaking of the same, and getting our system in feeling with its blasting influence; therefore it will be well to prepare ourselves not to listen to the sweet flatteries of hypocrites, but to ward them off like a deadly poison. Ulysses, King of Ithaia, while passing the Faro de Messina near the Island of Sicily and fearing the fatal impressions of the Siren's singing upon his mind, had himself tied to a mast, with the instructions to the crew, that should he desire them to be loosened, to tie him tighter; on coming within the reach of the voices of those bewitching sea-monsters, he could not help beseeching fervently the sailors to let him loose, but his faithful friends whose ears were stopped, replied by putting new ropes round him and thus he was saved.

People of a poetic or romantic turn whose mind is drawn out in the contemplation of Nature's lofty works; that read in them as in a book; to whom everything is suggestive of a thought, are the most capable of receiving impressions. The solemn peals of the evening bells striking upon the ear, remind them of the time, when the powers of reflection first dawned upon them; of the never to be forgotten hours of childhood, when joy, innocence and purity of mind were harmoniously blended and the world appeared to them as an Eden. The enraptured hearer of one of Mozart's grand masses, gets as it were, translated into the Elysian fields of eternal happiness; the impressions he receives from those immortal melodies, the hieroglyphics of our feelings, elevate him beyond the common sphere of life; he thinks of Time, as it stalks with giant strides over centuries, and from one eternity to another. The impressions Music makes upon the mind are the most powerful. Eminent physicians have in some difficult cases of mental derangement, that seemed to baffle all medical skill, taken this last resort to the magic sounds of that science, and the invalids recovered. When listening to the stream of eloquence that is poured forth by a great orator, the impression made upon our mind is often so lasting as to effect our whole mortal career.

It is the power of impressions that makes man and woman pay their homage at Hymen's shrine; it is by the power of impressions that the appalled mind shrinks back from a threatening danger, and causes us to mourn over the loss of a friend or relation.

If by favorable circumstances we have access to the different classes of society, and we are mentally and physically capacitated for the task, then let us exercise our moral sway over the multitude in such a way, that the impressions left upon their minds may be a soothing memory in their trials and bring forth the fruits of an eternal salvation.

Correspondence.

St. Louis Correspondence.

ST. LOUIS, March 11, 1856.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

DEAR SIR—I now, to redeem my promise, seat myself to write a few lines for THE MORMON, from this, the Empire City of the West.

To say that the thermometer stood yesterday at zero, and snow fall last night to the depth of three or four inches, will perhaps be a sufficient commentary on the weather for an introduction, as it is only of a piece with that experienced in New York during the past winter; the only novelty about it being, that when we had expected a cessation both here and there of these boreal demonstrations, lo! and behold, "there is a few more left." We have, however, this to console us, that dog days will soon be here, biting the heels of Old Boreas to that extent that it would be an anomaly for him longer to remain in low and middle latitudes.

I find the St. Louis Stake of Zion, with Bro. J. H. Hart as its presiding officer, getting along well, and a good feeling among the Saints generally prevailing. Frequent inquiry is made by our old friends here after the health and well-being of Bros. J. Taylor, N. H. Felt, T. B. H. Stenhouse, and others in New York, which gives me an assurance that the Elders engaged there, in superintending the Emigration and publishing THE MORMON, are not forgotten in their labors, which, to my certain knowledge, are arduous and incessant.

Report says the Missouri River is open as high up as Council Bluffs, and boats are daily leaving this port for St. Joseph, Mo., and all intermediate ports. Freights have fallen in consequence of the number of boats in the Missouri River trade, and the non-arrival of the merchants from the upper country to buy their spring supplies; a few days will, no doubt, alter the face of things in that particular.

The latest news received from Salt Lake is December 1st, informing us of the arrival at that place of T. S. Williams on the 28th November, a portion of whose wagons, some twenty-seven, will be obliged to winter over at Fort Bridger on account of the lateness of the season. Money is reported to be scarce; flour, grain, and vegetables at the usual prices. The mails across the plains are three months behind time, and no prospect of another at present. Such delinquencies operate very unfavorable to our merchants who have remitted drafts per mail to anxious creditors.

Last night St. Louis was on stilts, and Know Nothingism rampant. Torchlight processions crowded the streets, and eager politicians the rotunda. It is said to be the largest gathering for a long time at this place. The resolutions passed show, compared with previous ones, a constant tendency to so modify their former platform, that it may be said to be equivalent to a change of party. The fact is, their extreme exclusiveness, and ostracism of everything foreign, has justly merited that which it has received—the condemnation of all sensible and honorable men. Hence the continual modification of the obnoxious features of that party, and gradual assimilation into national othodoxy. Now, instead of making a man's religious tenets a test of eligibility to office, as at first, resolutions are passed repudiating such a test, and upholding and sustaining, in all men, the free exercise of their religious prerogatives. Instead of a prohibition of all or any naturalization of foreigners during life, they have reduced the term of naturalization to twenty-one years, and touch very lightly on that. These, with other similar changes, have modified that great fiery party (K. N.) what we now see under the head of American party, with Millard Fillmore as its regular constituted and acknowledged candidate for the Presidential campaign now approaching. We have now three prominent parties in the field, to say nothing of the smaller ones: the National Democrats, the K. N.'s or American party, and the Republican or Abolition party. Which of these three fleet-footed nags will get over the turf first remains to be seen.

The election in Chicago last week for Mayor, on the Nebraska and anti-Nebraska issue, resulting in the election of Dyer, the Nebraska or Douglas candidate, so contrary to the expectation of the Republicans, has made the latter much crest-fallen, as it presages the rise and progress of the Little Giant in his native State, but little expected and much less desired by his political opponents. Who knows but this early triumph may be a prestige that shall work like leaven on the masses, elevating the Little Giant upon the surface, and with a mighty upheaving, deposite him safely in the White House at Washington! These, however, are questions in politics, a kind of tic little better than wood-tics, and much more harrassing; so I will leave them for a bed-tic, which will be to me much more congenial until I have had a few hours' rest.

Yours, &c., ALEXANDER ROBBINS, JR.

From Our St. Louis Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, March 12, 1856.

PRESIDENT TAYLOR—Dear Sir: I have been waiting some time to get something new or novel to communicate, but finding so very little new under the winter sun, I must necessarily content myself with writing a few common-place matters, which, in absence of the brilliant and marvellous, may find a place in your interesting MORMON. The good people of St. Louis have been frozen up for two or three months, as you are already aware. The weather has been more severe during the past winter than for many years previous; very many have been thrown out of work through the inclement season, but the more favored citizens have liberally donated of their means to the poor, and upon the whole I think there has been as little suffering in the city of St. Louis as in any city in the country with the same amount of population, with the exception of Utah; and I presume the Saints have had less suffering in the whole Territory than what has been experienced in the most favored hamlet in the nation. There was a great deal said and written last fall about a famine in Utah, and some of our editorial philanthropists prophesied that the "Mormons in Utah" would be reduced to the condition of the "digger Indians," and saw them in prospective living upon roots and grasshoppers. These writers evidently thought so, for when the mails arrive, and they hear that none are yet starved to death, nor reduced to the condition of "Digger Indians," they send disconsolately to each other the doleful tidings—"No news of importance from Utah." It would appear from the dispatches of His Excellency Governor Young that they have not only enough to supply the demand in the Territory, but to supply the P. E. Fund Emigration with all they may need next season from Fort Laramie to the Valley. The last dispatches from Salt Lake quote flour at $6.00 per hundred pounds; wheat at $2.00 per bushel; corn at $1.50 per bushel; which are certainly not to be considered as starving prices.

During the winter the Eastern mails have been very irregular, and the Western mails have been entirely out of the question. THE MORMON has come to hand pretty regular, and has been a welcome visitor; but the Star, of England, has not dawned upon us since the dark and dreary days of December. About two weeks ago Elder Preston Thomas, by a desperate effort, effected an entrance into our city from sunny Texas by way of Orleans, since which time the elements have become less frigid, the Mississippi, as though impatient of restraint, has burst its icy fetters; and after a few days' dashing and crashing, raging and foaming, has opened our port for navigation, which has caused our capitalists, merchants, steamboat men, and laborers in general, to smile again with hope and satisfaction. This breaking up of the ice was caused by the sudden rising of the Missouri River, which, emptying itself into the Mississippi, heaved up the consolidated mass, and bore it forward in its resistless current, dashing its huge icebergs against boats, barges, and steamers, sinking some, shattering others, and spreading general devastation around. Our levee presented a most melancholy and impressing scene; the entire line of steamers were either badly injured or borne down the river. Eleven were sunk, and a great number were destroyed. But a few days have elapsed, and we have a fleet of steamboats at our levee from various places, and all is again bustle and activity.

The Danish and Italian Saints, in charge of Elder Peterson, arrived here on Saturday, the 1st inst. They were soon scattered in various parts of the city, and are generally healthy and strong, and rejoicing in the ministrations of their brethren.

Elder Thomas left us on the 4th inst., after a very agreeable visit of sixteen days. He took with him a small company of brethren and sisters to assist the Texas emigration in the capacity of teamsters, herdsmen, cooks, dairywomen, &c. The Judge's bland and agreeable manners so won upon the people here that he might easily have gathered as large a company from St. Louis as he has got in Texas.

We have a general time of health among the brethren throughout this Stake. I expect there will be a general moving of the waters about the time of emigration by the St. Louis Saints. The spirit of gathering is dominant with all the faithful, who are willing to adopt any means of transit that may be prescribed for their translation. But there are some who have prayed a thousand times for the wings of a dove, to flee to Zion and be at rest; who elevate their nasal organ with disdain at the idea of engaging in the "Hand-cart Locomotive." There are others, however, who regard it in prospective as the most eligible and independent mode of travelling, and aspire to an association with this company as the most honorable undertaking. And some of the sisters, too, have volunteered as operatives in this new order, which must necessarily make this means of travelling both desirable and popular. It may be presumed from this that the peculiar institution of the people of Utah is not so particularly objectionable to the ladies as might be imagined. If they will thus undertake a journey across the plains, risk themselves among wolves and hostile Indians, with this modest means of transit, and on arriving at their place of destination be ready to say—even seven to one man—"We will eat our own bread, wear our own apparel, only let us be called by thy name to take away our reproach," it certainly speaks in favor of the Deseretians and the patriarchal order of marriage, and correspondingly deprecates the monogamic and adulterous systems of the Gentiles, from whose blighting and pestiferous association they are thus emancipated.

The weather is still extremely cold. Frost and snow are the order of the day, with but very little variation. We hope to have your company at the St. Louis Conference on the 6th of April.

Hoping you are well, I remain yours, truly,

JAMES H. HART.

From Our Utah Correspondent.

FILLMORE CITY Dec. 24, 1855.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

SIR:—The California Mail arrived here on its way to Great Salt Lake City, at 10 o'clock this morning; one of the carriers had his feet frozen night before last. The weather for the last day or two has been exceedingly cold, the snow is about a foot deep. The mail brings no news that we have yet heard of except the return of Dr. Kane from his Arctic Expedition.

The Legislature opened its session on the 10th inst, and the Governor delivered his message on the 11th, all the members of the Assembly being present. During that day a joint committee was appointed to report a Bill for an Act authorizing the calling of a Convention for the formation of a State Constitution, and to apply for admission into the Union. Also an act to provide for taking a Census of the Territory. The Bills passed on Monday the 17th inst, and Leonard W. Hardy has been appointed Census Agent by joint vote of the Assembly.

We have established a weekly express from this place to Nephi, a distance of 65 miles, which is supported by the contributions of the Members. The only mail which passes Fillmore is the monthly mail to and from California, which will pass but once during the session of the Legislature. This is consequently a dry place for news.

The Secretary of the Territory has not had time to furnish the Legislative Assembly with the necessary conveniences, but it is expected he will be here before the Session closes.

The citizens of Fillmore afford the Members comfortable quarters. The room in which the Representatives meet is very spacious and well finished, and beautifully lighted; and when furnished will be a most convenient room for Legislative business. The building is of red sand-stone of an excellent quality; a great portion of the clear lumber was brought from Cedar Creek in Iron County, a hundred and twenty miles distant, where a superior quality of pine is obtained. About $35,000 has been expended on this wing $20,000 of which was appropriated by Congress; and it will probably cost $10,000 more to finish this the south wing. When the design of Governor Young is carried out, the four wings, with the rotunda in the centre, will form one of the most splendid buildings to be found in any State or Capital. The quality of building stone will be a great advantage in building up this place. A large tannery built by Mr. Hoyt of stone, shows its adaptation to promote buildings.

There are numbers of mercantile establishments in this place, Judge Kinney, Joseph Kelsting, David Candland, Levi Abraham, Gabriel Huntsman, Sam'l. P. Hoyt, and James Brown sen., are doing a stiring business in dry goods, groceries, and hardware. There are two saw mills, a grist mill, and two lathe mills here; also a gunsmith's shop; not to mention blacksmiths, cabinet makers, carpenters, joiners shoemakers, tailors, barbers, and other mechanical establishments suited for the wants of a town of 1500 inhabitants.

There is an adobie fort erected at the Cedar Springs, about nine miles north of this, principally for the protection of stock.

Three miles below the city there are a few acres of white chalk, and ten miles south west there is a hot salt spring, and four miles northeast there is a spring of clear cold salt water. The valley also contains the remains of several mountains, which have been, at some period of the world's history, burnt up.

I send you a copy of the acts relating to the Convention and Census.

Yours. faithfully, GEO. A. SMITH, Church Historian.

JANUARY 3. 1856.

I forward you this copy of my letter sent by the Eastern Mail, thinking perhaps you may get it a little sooner than you otherwise would. The Eastern mail having become not only doubtful, but exceedingly uncertain.

FILLMORE CITY, Jan. 5th, 1856.

To the Editor of the Mormon,

SIR:—The California Mail is expected to pass here to-morrow and I seize the opportunity of sending you a few items.

The Legislature have formed eight new counties, and provided for the organization of six of them by the appointment of Probate Judges. The names of the Counties are Beaver (formed from the north of Iron County) Cedar (formed from Utah County lying west of Utah Lake) Box Elder, Malad and Cache Counties (from Weber) Humbold, St. Mary's and Greasewood Counties (west of the Great Salt Lake). The immense emigration of the past season, a great portion of which went north, made the sub-division of Weber and other Counties necessary.

The weather has been steady cold, sometimes very severe, ever since the opening of the Legislative session.

The Judge of the Supreme Court, the U.S. Marshall with several distinguished members of the bar arrived in this city this evening.

Elder John C. L. Smith, President of the Stake at Parowan, died in that place on the 30th, Dec. last. He has been three years President in that County, and his loss will be severely felt, as he was generally beloved and respected.

From the number of applications made to the Legislative Assembly for grants of herd grounds we are led to the conclusion that stock raising is decidedly in the ascendency in the mountains.

The Legislative Assembly will adjourn on the 18th inst.

The Militia Laws of the Territory are undergoing a thorough revision.

L. W. Hardy Esq has arrived here to commence taking the census. GEO. A. SMITH.

DIED,

AT Adamsville, near Perth, U. C., on the 1st of March, 1856, Elizabeth Chapman, in the 71st year of her age, relict of Joshua Adams, Esq., Justice of the Peace. Deseret News, please copy.

WE deeply regret being obliged to place on our obituary list this week the name of Nathaniel Preston, son of Nathaniel H. and Eliza Ann Felt, who died at Great Salt Lake City, on Monday, Dec. 3, aged 9 years and 6 months. We sincerely sympathize with the parents in their bereavement, for Preston was truly a fine and well-beloved boy. The absence from home of Elder Felt, for the gospel's sake, renders the position of himself and partner more afflicting. May the soothing influence of the Holy Ghost be a balm to their hearts. They will meet again.

BY HIS TEACHER.

Mourn not for your cherished Preston,
Tho' he's left your arms of love;
Though your home seems sad and lonely,
Know ye that he dwells above:
Though 'twas hard for you to lose him—
To your heart he was so dear—
He is spared the bitter sorrow
All must feel who linger here.

Massachusetts papers please copy.

THE MORMON.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE,

TO THE

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF THE TERRITORY OF UTAH,

Delivered in the Capitol, Fillmore City, Millard County, Dec. 11th, A. D., 1855.

GENTLEMEN OF THE COUNCIL AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

In accordance with the adjournment of the last Legislative Assembly, we have met for the first time in the Capitol, in rooms erected for Legislative purposes at the seat of Government. This part of the contemplated State House, being the south wing only, though it may answer for the present, has not those conveniences and that spaciousness and beauty which will be connected with the building, when finished in accordance with the original design. How far this may be accomplished through the aid of the General Government I do not know, but presume that it will make still further appropriations for that object, as the present investment is upwards of $12,000 in excess of the amount appropriated. Until further aid is extended by Congress, this excess should be assumed and paid by the Territory, since it is manifestly unjust that the contractors, and others who have expended their means and labor for this purpose, should be obliged to wait the uncertain period of further appropriations, though the Territory would, probably, be reimbursed at some future time.

We are assembled for the purpose of considering the affairs of our young and thriving Territory, and of framing such laws, rules and regulations as may, in our united wisdom, be considered most salutary and beneficial to the interest of the public weal.

With a tribute of praise and thanksgiving unto that Allwise Being who controls and governs the nations as he will, we invoke the spirit of wisdom to guide us in our deliberations. And while we render the full emotions of greateful hearts, for past mercies and blessings which have been extended unto us, we are thankful to Him who has preserved us from the bitter rancor and hatred of infuriated enemies, and given us a peaceful inheritance in these sequestered vales. Our hearts swell with gratitude for the privilege we enjoy of seeking and obtaining light and intelligence, that we may at all times, and in all places, be inspired by that spirit of wisdom and truth which emanates from Him who sits enthroned in sacred majesty, and dwells in the midst of his kingdoms. Though his chastening hand has been upon us, still it has been for our good, and we acknowledge it as the kind dealing of a tender parent who seeks the best interests of his children.

I have, in my former communications to this body, suggested that laws should be plain, easy to be understood, and few in number. I am as yet unacquainted with any reason for changing my views upon this subject, on the contrary, as life gives me experience, and as experience furnishes knowledge and understanding, I find myself more fully confirmed therein. Neither should laws be too frequently changed, if we would enjoy a permanent and peaceful government. I am fully aware that matters of local and personal interest require alterations, and that, in a new country like this, where enterpise, development and progress so eminently characterize the people, legislation should keep even pace therewith, and not be bound down by contracted and selfish views, old and exploded policy, or traditional errors. Let a spirit of freedom and liberality pervade all our acts, and an enlightened and highly practical course of legislation will surely be the result of our deliberations.

We have a very good volume of laws, and I would recommend, so far as they remain applicable to our wants, and are sufficient for probable emergencies, that we do not disturb them. No law, passed by the Legislative Assembly of this Territory, has been annulled by Congress, although, by a most odious and anti-republican feature in the "Organic Act," it retains the power so to do; a power so utterly repugnant to and subversive of the principles of our free institutions that it should be rarely, if ever, exercised.

In order, however, to avoid this, as well as many other questions which might unfortunately arise only to perplex and entangle the relations so unreasonably, yet peacefully, existing in the present form of a dependent State, and to place ourselves, beyond cavil, upon the platform of equal rights, constitutional sovereignty, and free government, based upon the principles sacred to every lover of American liberty as emanating from the people, I recommend that you take the initiatory steps towards our obtaining admission into the Union. Preparatory thereto, it will be necessary to have the census of the Territory taken, and to hold a convention for the formation and adoption of a constitution. I would respectfully suggest that this matter be taken into prompt consideration, that, in case you deem it wisdom to make an effort for our admission as a State, the incipient laws may be passed at an early day.

We trust that the present Congress will have wisdom to so far recognise the principle of self-government, and the genius of our free institutions, as to abolish in her Territories that odious, tyrannical, and absurb system of colonial government which emanated from the British throne, and place them upon that equality of constitutional rights enjoyed by the States in their internal regulations, election of officers and representation.

In accordance with a law passed by the Assembly in 1854–5, the Hon. Orson Hyde repaired to Carson county, accompanied by the Hon. Judge Stiles and Marshal Heywood, and in connection with authorized persons from California approximately established the boundary line between this Territory and that State, in the region of Carson Valley, and fully organized the county. The reports in relation thereto have been received, and will be laid before you at an early date. The compensation asked for service in determining a portion of our western boundary I trust will not be withheld, although it more properly, belongs to the General Government to defray such expenses, since it is more particularly its province to attend to the establishment of the boundary lines of the Territories.

The northern line of Utah has also been established, during the present season, by Professors Orson Pratt and Albert Carrington, and the Territorial Surveyor General, Jesse W. Fox, where it crosses the Malade, and, by Prof. Pratt and Surveyor General Fox, where it crosses Green river and the emigrant road east of the last named stream. There was no accompanying party from Oregon, in either of the above cases, as the information was mainly desirable for determining the jurisdiction of this Territory at points where Oregon had no settlements within hundreds of miles.

The revenue, as appears from the Auditor's Report, which, with the Territorial Treasurer's Report, I herewith take great pleasure in submitting, for the current fiscal year amounts to $17,348,87, showing an increase, over last year, of $10,962,56.

This arises from an increase of property, and a higher per cent, assessed by the last Legislative Assembly. The total amount of increase, as assessed, is $915,205, being over a third more than during years previous. There appears to have been Auditor's warrants in circulation amounting to $23,401,28 of which $11,223,57 has been redeemed at the treasury, leaving as balance still in circulation $12,177,71. Of the current year's assessment $6,279,10 has been received, leaving a delinquency of $11,069,77. Which shows, if it were all collected, an indebtedness of $1,107,94 depending on future assessments for payment.

By the foregoing statement, it appears that the Territory is running a trifle in debt, still I do not presume that it will be necessary to increase the assessment of last year. I deem this situation of the finances attributable to the light assessment of the previous year, it being, for the whole Territory, only $6,386,31, at one half the present rate.

The effects of this small assessment were not felt at the time, as the reports show $2,118,28 more collected during that year than in this. Of last year's assessment $3,-004,81 have been paid during this, it is therefore obvious that almost the entire amount of the receipts at the treasury, for the year 1854, came from former assessments, hence it follows that if the assessment of that year had been kept good, there would now have been no falling off.

Payments for the suppression of Indian hostillities have been made at the Tithing Office which accounts for the entries of issues to that office in the Auditor's report.

It will also be seen that a large portion of these issues have been redeemed at the treasury; the unadjusted accounts and warrants on hand will liquidate the balance.

Since it is not to the payment of fees and salaries that the revenue of the Territory is devoted, but to public improvements and the development of the country, the people should feel willing to promptly pay their taxes, inasmuch as they directly, and almost immediately, receive the benefits thereof.

It has been proposed to open new channels of communication with this Territory from the east through the tributaries of the Missouri, and from the south by way of the Colorado. Doubtless boats, built expressly for the purpose, will be able to approach our settlements many hundred miles nearer than at present. Should it be in your power, by chartering companies or rendering other encouragement, to further any such enterprise, you will meet with my most hearty co-operation; I certainly deem it a subject worthy of your consideration.

Educational interests have flourished hitherto, with but little aid or encouragement from the Legislature Assembly. Should not this subject be taken under advisement by this Legislature, and some well organized system be adopted, which will confer the blessings of at least a common education upon every child, rich or poor, bond or free, in the Territory, and which will establish and keep in operation at least one school where the higher branches are taught?

I am aware that much has already been done and great good effected, by private enterprize throughout the settlements generally. Though I am sanguine that no Territory, so young as this, can boast of so many or so good school houses and schools, still there is a lack, much remains to be done. The Legislature has appropriated comparatively nothing for this object, and the appropriations of land by the General Government are at present, and a great share always will be, entirely unavailable.

None are so much interested in this matter as ourselves, it would therefore seem to be almost imperative upon this Assembly to extend their most reliable aid and influence for the promotion of learning. And now, while we have peace and quietness in all our borders, is an opportune time to lay a foundation for the instruction of our children, which shall grow with our growth and strengthen with our strength and extend its influence around the children of the poorest and humblest citizen, as well as the more opulent and wealthy.

Peace, quiet, gentle peace and a due degree of prosperity have thus far crowned our efforts.

The Indians, notwithstanding an occasional outbreak, are generally peaceful and friendly disposed.

On the 23d day of Sept. last, three of our people were killed by the Yampah Utahs near Elk mountain, at the settlement on the left bank of Grand river. A party of the Shoshonees also exhibited signs of hostility at Forts Bridger and Supply, in Green river county.

Upon learning these facts, I issued a proclamation to the Nauvoo Legion, the militia of the Territory, to hold themselves in readiness and to send out such force as might be considered necessary to preserve peace, and to protect the settlements and immigration upon the roads. A party, under the command of Major R. T. Burton, proceeded to the Forts above named and remained in the vicinity, until the immigrating companies had all passed and the Indians had left for their usual hunt among the buffalo. We call on the military, more to preserve peace with the native tribes than to fight them, as it is well known that a substantial, alert force in their immediate neighborhood rarely fails to check their depredations, prevent their abuse and, generally, very suddenly disposes them to seek for peace.

In this connection permit me to observe that the signal success which has attended the peaceful policy uniformly pursued towards the Indians, since our settlement in these valleys should be satisfactory evidence of its value over every other.

To retaliate for every outbreak by taking their lives, either through civil or military power, and severely chastising them for every depredation, is actually descending to their grade of conduct, and still more excites them to acts of savage barbarity.

We witness, in the surrounding Territories, the effects of the war policy in an almost constant scene of mutual carnage and bloodshed, while our experience confirms the opinion of many eminent statesman, that the conciliatory course is far the most humane and successful as well as the most economical.

I therefore appeal to you, Gentlemen, to use your influence throughout the Territory to preserve the policy of feeding and clothing the natives, of giving them employment, teaching them to obtain a living by their labor, and exercising patience, perseverance and forbearance towards them, as well as care and watchfulness.

Let this policy be strictly adhered to in all our settlements, and the chances are that we shall hear of no Indian massacres and depredations, at least not to any great extent.

Fortifications have progressed quite satisfactorily in most of the settlements during the past year, the people being materially aided and benefited in their endeavors by the Fortification Act passed at the last Session. It has had a very salutary effect, and through its influence I trust that the defences will be energetically prosecuted to their completion.

I deem it needless to reiterate my views and feelings in relation to home manufactures, for a commendable zeal for their promotion, I am happy in believing, pervades the entire community. Although but few manufacturing establishments, of any considerable importance, are in successful operation, yet a large amount of cloth, leather, hats, pottery, brushes and other articles of import, of a very good quality have been manufactured. The humble artizan, without capital, makes a beginning and grows into the business, as facilities and means increase around him.

Some very good iron has been made at the works in Iron county, and the present prospect is very fair for the most eminent success. I recommend a continuance of the liberal policy heretofore extended to this branch of domestic manufacture. Other industrial pursuits should also meet with encouragement and aid, so far as compatible with the public interest. Much may be done to promote and encourage the productions of domestic industry, by the adoption of annual exhibitions, and by giving suitable premiums for the best specified articles produced from the native elements.

While we are pursuing the even tenor of our way, in these far distant and peaceful vales, we are not insensible to the scenes and influences passing and operating outside our borders. We quietly observe, in our country, the chicanery, political jarrings, strife for place and power, disregard for law and order, jealousies and sectional divisions and disunions which embitter life, leading on to distress, perplexity and often sanguinary war, in place of peace, confidence, union and devotion to the best interests of our common country. What remains? Naught, naught but to apply the torch, and witness the terrible conflagration. To attain this ignoble consummation, hundreds, yea, thousands are stretching forth with frenzied, maddened zeal to be foremost in bringing to pass the direful tragedy.

Abroad the struggle for freedom is hushed by the loud roar of magnificent war. Nations are contending for a gory bed, suggesting, at least, to the quiet observer to keep aloof from the distracting questions and controversies of the day, which so agitate communities and subvert the peace and quietude of neighborhoods, let whatsoever political demagogue seek to embroil him threin.

Be it our aim so to direct our political affairs as to promote union, integrity, prosperity and independence to the Territory, industry knowledge and truth to the people, thus shall we secure to ourselves peace and freedom, and transmit to our children those free institutions which we received as a rich legacy from our fathers.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

Executive Department, U. T.
Fillmore City, Dec. 11, 1855.

ACTS

Passed by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, at the Session begun and held at Fillmore City, December 10, 1855.

AN ACT—Providing for holding a Convention, with a view to the admission of Utah into the Union as a State.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Governor and Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, That an election shall be held in each precinct in the several counties, at the usual places of holding the general election, on Saturday, the 16th day of February, A. D. 1856, at which time and places the electors may vote for or against holding a Convention to take the preparatory steps for the admission of this Territory into the Union as a State, and for such persons as they may wish to elect as Delegates thereto, according to the following apportionment:

Great Salt Lake and Summit Counties	Sixteen.
Weber and Desert	Four.
Iron and Washington	Three.
Davis county	Three.
Green River	One.
Tooele	One.
Utah	Five.
Juab	One.
San Pete	Two.
Millard	Two.
Carson	One.

SEC. 2. The election shall be conducted in accordance with the "Act regulating Elections," approved Jan. 3, 1853, so far as applicable; and so soon as the general abstract of the names voted for as delegates is made out, the county clerk shall furnish an official notification of each person found elected, which notification, upon presentation at the office of the Secretary of the Territory, shall entitle the person holding it to a certificate from the Secretary, or to a seat in the Convention in case that officer, from any unforeseen cause, should be prevented from giving such certificate.

SEC. 3. The Delegates shall meet in the Council House, in Great Salt Lake City, on the third Monday in March, A. D. 1856; shall qualify by taking the customary oath, which may be administered by any person authorized to administer oaths, and shall proceed to organize by choosing a President, Secretary, and such other officers as they may deem proper.

SEC. 4. The Convention is authorized to form a Constitution for the now Territory of Utah, with a view to its admission into the Union as a State on an equal footing with the original States; to define the boundaries by which the new State shall be limited, and designate the name by which it shall be known; to memorialize the President and Congress of the United States for its admission; to take such other lawful and prudent measures as they may deem necessary for the accomplishment of so desirable an object; and to elect and authorize Delegates, whose duty it shall be to present the Constitution, Memorial, and other appropriate Convention documents to the President and Congress of the United States, and to use their best efforts towards procuring a favorable action thereon.

SEC. 5. The Convention shall submit the Constitution which they form and adopt, the names of the Delegates they elect, and their other public documents, designed by them to be entrusted to said Delegates, to the people for their approval at such time and places and in such manner as it may prescribe, and if approved by the people, the Delegates thus elected shall repair to Washington, District of Columbia, to perform the duties herein specified, and such other duties as the Convention may with propriety devolve upon them.

SEC. 6. In event that the electors in Carson county do not receive timely notice of the election to be held on Saturday, the 16th day of February next, as herein before specified, the Probate Judge of that county is hereby empowered and required to hold such election on any subsequent day, Sundays excepted, that will leave sufficient time for the Delegate to reach the Convention, and until he shall appear to take his seat, the present Representative from that county, the Hon. Enoch Reese, is authorized to act in his stead.

Approved Dec. 17, 1855.

AN ACT—Providing for the enumeration of the inhabitants of the Territory of Utah.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Governor and Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, That a Census Agent shall be elected by the joint vote of this Legislative Assembly, who shall be sworn to discharge the duties of his office.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of the Census Agent to ascertain the number of inhabitants in this Territory, distinguishing males and females and number in each county, and make a report thereof to the Governor, on or before the first Monday in March next.

SEC. 3. The Census Agent is authorized to appoint such number of assistants as he may deem proper, who shall qualify as the Agent, and act under his direction.

Approved Dec. 17, 1855.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 12, 1856.

MR. DOUGLAS, from the Committee on Territories, made a report on Kansas matters and proceeded to read it.

Mr. Douglas' majority report on the Kansas inquiry, reviews all the affairs of the Territory, recognizing the legality of the Kansas Legislature, recommending that the views of the President's Special Message be carried out, and giving notice that the Committee shall ask an appropriation for maintaining peace and executing the laws. Three hours were occupied in reading the report.

Mr. Collamer presented a minority report, attributing the troubles to the abrogation of the Missouri restriction, and asking for the repeal of the Kansas-Nebraska act, the re-organization of the Territories on free principles, and the annulling of the acts of the spurious Kansas Legislature.

Messrs. Sumner and Seward sharply attacked the majority report, and Mr. Douglas replied.

The reading of the report occupied more than three hours.

On motion of Mr. Douglas, the reports were ordered to be printed. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Speaker announced, as the Select Committee of Seven, to which was referred the bill of Mr. Dunn, to enable States bordering on the Ohio to improve the navigation of the same, the following gentlemen: Messrs. Dunn, Stanton, Allen, Ritchie, Cox, Taylor and Carlisle.

Mr. Whitney introduced a bill to establish a uniform rule of naturalization—repealing the present laws. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Herbert introduced a bill providing for an overland mail from some point on the Mississippi to San Francisco. Referred to Post Office Committee.

The House then resumed the consideration of the resolution to empower the Committee on Elections to send for persons and papers in the Kansas case. Adjourned.

SENATE. March 13.

Mr. Seward presented resolutions of the Legislature of New York in favor of the modification of the laws granting pensions and bounty lands to revolutionary soldiers.

Mr. Bigler's resolution for the purchase of copies of Dr. Kane's narrative of the Arctic expedition was discussed.

Mr. Hunter presented resolutions of the Virginia Legislature in favor of a law giving retired and disrated naval officers opportunity to vindicate their tarnished honor.

The Senate passed the bill to amend the act establishing the Court of Claims; also, the bill to authorize two judges to hold court as a quorum, and providing for the appointment of an Assistant Solicitor, and a Clerk for the Solicitor. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Ready introduced a bill to remit and refund duties on railroad iron. Referred to Committee of Ways and Means.

Messrs. Purviance, Taylor and Todd spoke on Kansas affairs.

Mr. Washburn, of Maine, Chairman of Committee on Elections, gave notice of his intention to press a vote on the resolution to-morrow.

Messrs. Harris and Litcher spoke on the subject. Adjourned.

SENATE. March 14.

Petitions were presented from merchants and importers of Boston, New York and Philadelphia, asking for a revision of the tariff.

Mr. Johnson reported in favor of printing 31,000 copies of the majority and minority reports of the Territorial Committee on Kansas affairs—being 500 copies for each member.

Mr. Trumbull opposed the motion; he thought the minority report presented the slavery question in a masterly manner, its positions being unanswerable; but it was not written as a reply to the details of the majority report, and he was unwilling to send out, with the endorsement of the Senate, a document containing so many unwarrantable assumptions, erroneous deductions and inconsistencies.

Mr. Wade asked Mr. Trumbull to yield the floor for adjournment.

Mr. Douglas—I hope not; the courtesies of the Senate have been taken advantage of on account of my known absence to make an assault on me.

Mr. Trumbull—No, sir; I knew not whether you were present or absent when I was commenting on the report. I did not introduce the subject, nor did I know it would come up to-day.

Mr. Douglas charged Mr. Trumbull with unfairness in attacking the report while he (Mr. D.) was detained by ill-health from the Senate. An animated discussion, more personal than public, ensued, in which back-handed compliments were exchanged between Messrs. Trumbull, Crittenden, Douglas, Sumner and Seward.

Mr. Johnson's motion was then adopted, and the Senate adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Kansas election case. Nothing to report.

SENATE. March 17.

Mr. Douglas, from the Committee on Territories, reported a bill authorizing the people of Kansas to form a Constitution and State government—preparatory to her admission into the Union—when she shall have a requisite population.

Mr. Clayton spoke in relation to the construction of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and Central American affairs generally. He was gratified at the extraordinary degree of unanimity shown during the discussions in the Senate with regard to the construction of that treaty, and denounced the British Cabinet's interpretation of the treaty.

Mr. Clayton alluded to the great importance of an inter-oceanic canal. He had looked at the reports of explorations for the Pacific Railroad, and while he was sorry to dispel an illusion so pleasant, he believes no railroad to the Pacific will be built for many years to come. If such a road should be made it would not give the facilities which we desire and which we should obtain by a passage through the Isthmus. Unless this country be blessed more than any other, we shall, before this road could be built, be involved in a war with some of the greatest Powers of the earth. He approved the whole conduct of the Administration relative to the difficulties with England, and highly eulogized the state papers of Messrs. Marcy and Buchanan. He was also gratified at the energy with which the Administration had put down filibustering schemes, and he denounced Mr. Walker as a ruffian, buccaneer and pirate.

Mr. Clayton was no partisan of the President, but when our foreign relations are conducted with signal ability he was willing to give the Administration due credit.

Mr. Clayton having alluded to Walker's seizure of the vessels of the Transit Company—

Mr. Seward inquired whether that Company had not connived at Walker's proceedings in Central America.

Mr. Clayton had seen no such statement, but did not know whether it was true or not; if it was true, though, even-handed Justice was likely to restore the poisoned chalice to their own lips.

Mr. Weller gave notice that he should have something to say, for he differed very widely from the Senator of Delaware relative to the character of Mr. Walker.

The Senate considered and passed bills for the improvement of the St. Clair and St. Mary rivers, in Michigan, for the removal of obstructions at the mouth of the Mississippi, and for the improvement of the harbor of San Diego, California. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Kansas election case.

SENATE. March 18.

Mr. Iverson, (dem.) of Ga., gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to increase the compensation of members of Congress, and to fix the time for the annual meeting.

Mr. Hamlin, (dem.) of Me., introduced a bill to regulate the appraisement of imported merchandize.

Mr. Houston, (K. N.) of Texas, presented a memorial signed by members of the Legislature of Maryland, endorsing the resolutions of the Virginia Legislature condemnatory of the action of the Naval Board. Mr. Houston spoke more than three hours.

Mr. Clayton gave notice that he would reply to Mr. Houston to-morrow. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Kansas contested election case.

TELEGRAPHIC.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 15, 1856.

Information from official sources confirm the statement that an alliance has been formed between San Salvador, Costi Rica, Guatemala and Honduras. It is said that the alliance is complete, and that those States are now prepared to defend their own territory as well as to assist their brethren in Nicaragua against Walker's government. It is supposed that hostilities have already commenced. It is also true that instructions have been issued by several of the European Governments to their squadrons in the Atlantic and Pacific, with reference to events in Central America.

Meeting at Charleston to Promote Emigration to Kansas.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 15, 1856.

A large meeting was held in this city last night to promote emigration to Kansas. An address and resolutions were adopted, declaring slavery to be a political element of the confederacy, inseparable with the present system of government; and claiming the right to promote emigration to Kansas as private individuals, but disclaiming any State attempt at armed intervention in the affairs of Kansas. Committees were appointed to collect funds, &c.

"American" State Organ.

ALBANY, March 15, 1856.

The State officers have to-day purchased the Albany Morning Express, and will enlarge and publish it as the "American" State paper in place of the Register.

Destructive Fires.

CINCINNATI, March 17, 1856.

The lard oil store and candle factory of N. G. Ropes & Co., in this city, was entirely destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. The estimated loss is $50,000; insurance, $30,500, in Eastern offices.

At the same hour a fire occurred in Covington, Ky., destroying the planing mill of Lindsay, Smith & Mayor. Loss, $25,000—no insurance. The fire, it is supposed, was caused by an incendiary.

Marine Disasters.

BOSTON, March 17, 1856.

The ship Potomac, Capt. Sweeny, from New York for Australia, sprang aleak and was abandoned at sea, January 15th, in lat. 14 S., long. 32 W.

The captain and eleven men reached the coast of Brazil, five days after; the mate and five men took a boat and have not since been heard of.

Explosion and Loss of Life.

CINCINNATI, March 17, 1856.

The boiler of a steam saw mill in Oakdale, Indiana, exploded on Friday last, killing four persons and wounding three others—names not known. The building was shattered to pieces.

Murder in Madison County.

UTICA, March 17, 1856.

A farmer named Buck was murdered at his residence, near Morrisville, Madison county, on Friday night last. His body was found on Saturday morning, horribly mangled, with a bloody axe near by. A man who worked for deceased, and who had had some difficulty with him, has been arrested on suspicion.

Railroad Accident.

BALTIMORE, March 17, 1856.

The 11 o'clock A. M. train for Philadelphia today, ran over two cows near Magnolia, shattering two passenger cars and throwing the train off the track. No one was injured. The down express train was detained till 7 o'clock.

Destructive Fire in Boston.

BOSTON, March 18, 1856.

A large brick building, in Commeres street, was destroyed by fire this morning, involving the following losses: A. & A. Jacobs, provision dealers, $11,000; Dorr, Proctor & Co., West India goods, $25,000; Yates & Drake, segars, $12,000; Norcross, Mellen & Co., crockery, $5,000; Bridge, Guild & Co., teas, $3,000. Other tenants suffered to a considerable extent. The losses are mostly insured in State street.

Additional from Mexico.

BALTIMORE, March 18, 1856.

The New Orleans mail of Tuesday and Wednesday has arrived. The papers contain the details of the news—already telegraphed—from Vera Cruz to the 8th inst. They give nothing later from the city of Mexico—the telegraphic communication having been interrupted by the revolutionists at Puebla. Gen. Comonfort left the capital on the 29th ult., to put himself at the head of the troops to besiege Puebla. He would have 12,000 troops and 48 pieces of artillery. The officers who led the revolt at the castle of San Juan de Ulloa had been sentenced to be shot.

The departure of Nicaragua filibusters from New Orleans is openly proclaimed in the papers.

Great Calamity on the Delaware.

THE inhabitants of Philadelphia and Camden were thrown into a terrible excitement late on Saturday evening last. The ferry boat, New Jersey, while on its passage across the Delaware from Philadelphia to Camden took fire which resulted in the total destruction of the vessel and the death of about sixty persons. We subjoin the statement of Mr. Wm. F. Agnew a passenger on board, as it embraces a clear account of this sad accident which has cast a gloom over the two cities not be effaced for sometime.

STATEMENT BY MR. AGNEW.

I am in the employ of Messrs. Burns & Piers, proprietors of the Philadelphia Local Express, and reside in Camden. Returning home from business on Saturday evening, I took the steamboat New Jersey at 8 1-4 o'clock from Walnut street wharf, and was an eye witness of the most serious disaster that has ever happened on the Delaware. When the boat started she attempted to reach Camden by way of the channel which divides windmill island but finding the eastern and much blocked with ice, she backed out and headed up the stream with a view to circumnavigate the island. When opposite Market street, I observed flames bursting out around the smoke stack, and raised the cry of "fire." An unusually large number of passengers were on board, many of them women and children. The fire originated in the fireroom during the absence of the fireman, and spread with fearful rapidity. It soon wrapped the entire after part of the boat in flames and drove the passengers forward. The strong ebb tide setting up the river convinced me it was impossible to run the boat aground upon the northern part of the island, and I was glad to see the pilot head for the Philadelphia shore. The captain at this time was in the pilot house giving orders. I was upon the bow of the boat in the midst of a wild heart-rending scene of terror. A crowd of at least one hundred persons, including twenty or twenty-five ladies, were clustered together in the smallest possible space to avoid the intense heat of the flames—some clinging to the guards, others frantically endeavoring to wrench loose the stanchions which were yet free from the devouring element, while some stood horror-stricken, gazing upon the fast approaching flames behind, or the icy current before them. There was nothing on board save a bench or two that could be made available as a float or life-preserver. As the volume of the flames increased it caught the dresses of the women, whose shieks for assistance were appalling. Not until their clothing was burnt from their persons did the passengers seem willing to seek a chance of safety in the bosom of the other element. One by one, sometimes five or six at a time, they made the fearful leap from the burning deck. The boat had been forced to a distance of not more than ten feet from the wharf when the pilot house fell—the government of the helm was lost, and the vessel sheered off again into the river. Some on the upper deck, however had a chance to leap ashore; others fell short, and were crushed by the paddlewheels. Every hope of running into the wharves was now dashed, and I turned to Mr. Muschamp, late a conductor on the Camden and Amboy Railroad, and asked him if he could swim. He replied that he could not. I advised him to take a bench which was near him, and jump overboard with me. The engine was still going, and I took care to jump clear of the wheels. I believe my friend followed me, but I fear he did not take the like precaution. I swam about one hundred yards when I providentially reached the bow of a clipper ship, and was rescued by the promptness of those on board.

WM. F. AGNEW.

London (Eng.) Correspondence.

DEAN PLACE, West India Dock Road,
London, Feb. 28th, 1856.

DEAR BRO. TAYOR: I am about finishing my labors for the present in this land. I expect that I shall in a few weeks set sail for my native land—Zion—the land of Joseph.

As for the Church in these lands, it is decidedly on the improvement; it is taking deep root and extending its already wide-spreading branches and leaves to the elements, and gains in proportion to its means of obtaining nutrition.

There is a general feeling among the Saints here and throughout England to renew their covenants by baptism and to take fresh hold of the great work.

Among the many interesting things of this vast city, nothing has afforded so much food for reflection as the thousands of my fellow beings that are ever on the move here, all active in the drama of life—to say nothing of the busy populations of the cities of other nations. A contemplation of their motives, their origin and their destiny, is fraught with surpassing interest to me. As I beheld many with, what I believed, honest faces, the spirit of God said to me—here are thousands who shall soon swell the population of Zion. "Many people shall go and say, Come let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways and we will walk in his paths." Isaiah ii. 3. "And the sons of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee, and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet, and they shall call thee the city of the Lord, the Zion of the Holy One of Israel"—Is. lxi. 14. "And the Gentiles shall come unto thee, and say our fathers have inherited lies and vanities and things wherein there is no profit"—Jer. And as our hymn says:

"And millions shall turn to the Lord and rejoice
That they have made Jesus their Saviour, their choice;
And Israel shall flourish and spread far abroad,
Till the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of God."

As for the war and peace news, it is at present shut up in the breasts of the great diplomatists now attending the peace or war (I do not know which to call it) conference in Paris. All that is known of the result thus far, is by interpreting the physiognomical faces of the men intrusted with this business when they come without the stone walls. The news is, that an armstice has been signed, to last till the end of March. But beside "war and rumors of war" with Russia, there are rumors of war here with America—evidence somewhat of those signs of the times spoken by Jesus Christ and recorded in holy writ.

In a theatrical play now being performed are seven women taking hold of one man—a soldier from the Crimea with seven women reaching out to take hold of the skirts of his garments. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is also being played here, in order to raise a breeze to fan the world into a blaze, for even the slave here forgets his own bonds, and, as you can judge, is very susceptible of fine sympathies for poor Uncle Tom when he is so finely painted up; they feel as though they could rise up in a body and drub Brother Jonathan for such bad conduct.

I went yesterday to see the (to be) great leviathan iron steamship, 680 feet long, that was commenced on the banks of the Thames some time since, but found that operations had been suspended, in consequence of one of the share-holders (Mr. Russell) having failed.

The next ship of emigrating Saints is expected to sail from Liverpool in about three weeks.

Please remember me in kindness to Elder Felt; may God bless you and him, and make you powerful in pulling down the strongholds of error, bigotry and superstition.

JOHN OAKLEY.

Conference Notice.

THERE will be a Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints held at St. Louis, Mo., commencing on the 6th of April next. All that can, conveniently, are respectfully invited to attend.

Per order,
J. H. HART, Presiding Elder.

A Conference will likewise be held at Philadelphia the same day. The Presiding Elders of branches in this district of country are requested to attend, bringing with them a report of their several branches.

Mormonism in New York.

THE LATTER DAY SAINTS intend holding Meetings in this City every Sunday, at the Broadway House, entrance 116 Grand street, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., 3 P. M., and 7 in the evening.

All who wish to become acquainted with the principles of Salvation, as taught by Apostles and Prophets, ancient and modern, are respectfully invited to attend.

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

McMULLAN & MAXWELL'S
STEAM BAKERY MANUFACTORY,
No. 186 South Fourth Street.
Sale Office and Depot, N. W. cor. Vine and Commerce Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Every variety of LOAF AND PILOT BREAD, Boston, Butter, Soda, Sugar, Water and Wine Crackers, manufactured and kept constantly on hand.

Particular attention paid to Steamboats, Hotels and Merchants' orders. mh22-3m

McBRIDE & BOWEN,
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA.,
EMIGRANTS' STORE,
Corner Broadway and Pearl St., opposite Pacific Hotel.
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware, Family Groceries, Provisions, Queensware, Boots and Shoes, Drugs, &c. &c.

ALL GOODS necessary for EMIGRANTS crossing the Plains, or WESTWARD BOUND, at WHOLESALE prices, put up with care, neatness and despatch, at as LOW or LOWER prices than can be bought in Council Bluff City.

☞ Agricultural Implements, Grass and Garden Seeds. All Goods warranted as represented. mh22-3m McB. & B.

HO! FOR SALT LAKE.
"In Time of Peace Prepare for War."
At the GREAT GUN EMPORIUM of
P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON, No. 25 Main street, (Sign of the Gilt Gun,) east side, St. Louis, Mo.,
Will be found the largest and most complete stock of FIRE ARMS in the Western country.

Emigrants and Trains crossing the plains will find it to their advantage to give us a hearing, as from an experience of twenty-six years in this trade we are enabled to offer inducements which no other house can possibly offer. We know the wants of the people, and are able to supply them to almost any extent. We can offer 10 per cent. inducements to cash buyers. Our stock consists of every variety of Double and Single Guns, Minié Rifles, U. S. Yaugers and Muskets, Sharp's and other breech-loading Rifles, Colt's Revolvers and other Pistols of every description and size. Also, Caps, Ammunition, Swords, Hunting Apparatus, and in fact everything necessary to a complete outfit.

Call and examine before purchasing.
Remember the No—25 Main street, east side.
mh15-6m P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON.

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,
in packages, prepared for Shipping.
Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee, Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8-1y

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!
CHARLES ROGERS,
IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,
No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,
Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.

Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.
mh8-1y CHARLES ROGERS.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,
ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.

The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind which will insure satisfaction.

Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.

Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HENSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.

HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.

Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandize. mh24

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fulness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaitraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés?" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ!" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaitre Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systêmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lascivité, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

John Taylor.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "The Mormon." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. corner of Fourth and Market Streets,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

Edwin R. Violett. William Dean.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS, 18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
St. Louis.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally.
fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 Market Street,
North side, between Second and Third streets,
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 Market St., between Fifth and Sixth, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
St. Louis, Mo.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines,
Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.
Jos. A. Eddy, A. M. Bissell,
J. A. Jameson, A. Cotting, Jr.,
J. P. Eddy, Chas. C. Hellmers.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,.
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city,
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
North St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

John Leach. James G. Goodrich.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 120 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

Stephen Hoyt. G. C. Greene.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. Wall. J. Widen.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. Hooper & Williams, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11. 1855. 26:tf

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
Have always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
Mrs. G. Vincent wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

C. D. Ellis. J. B. Cavender. Jas. Smith, Jr.
ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8–4m

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22–1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.

A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
Has constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10–6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29–6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
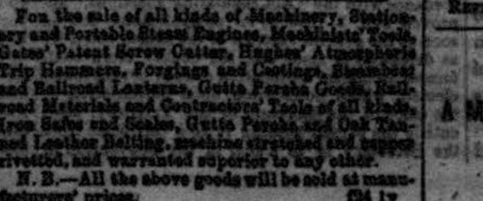
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29–6m



SCHÉER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment o WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12–1y

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side.
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 Market St., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22–6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVIS,
GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

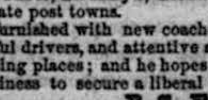
For the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. f24 1y

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article. Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread.
mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
The undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22

W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12



Wm. O. Gibson. J. A. Gibson.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29–tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.
Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—Ed. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
HIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
St. Joseph, Mo. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Buzby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St. Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
North Side Public Square,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
Council Bluff City, Iowa,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
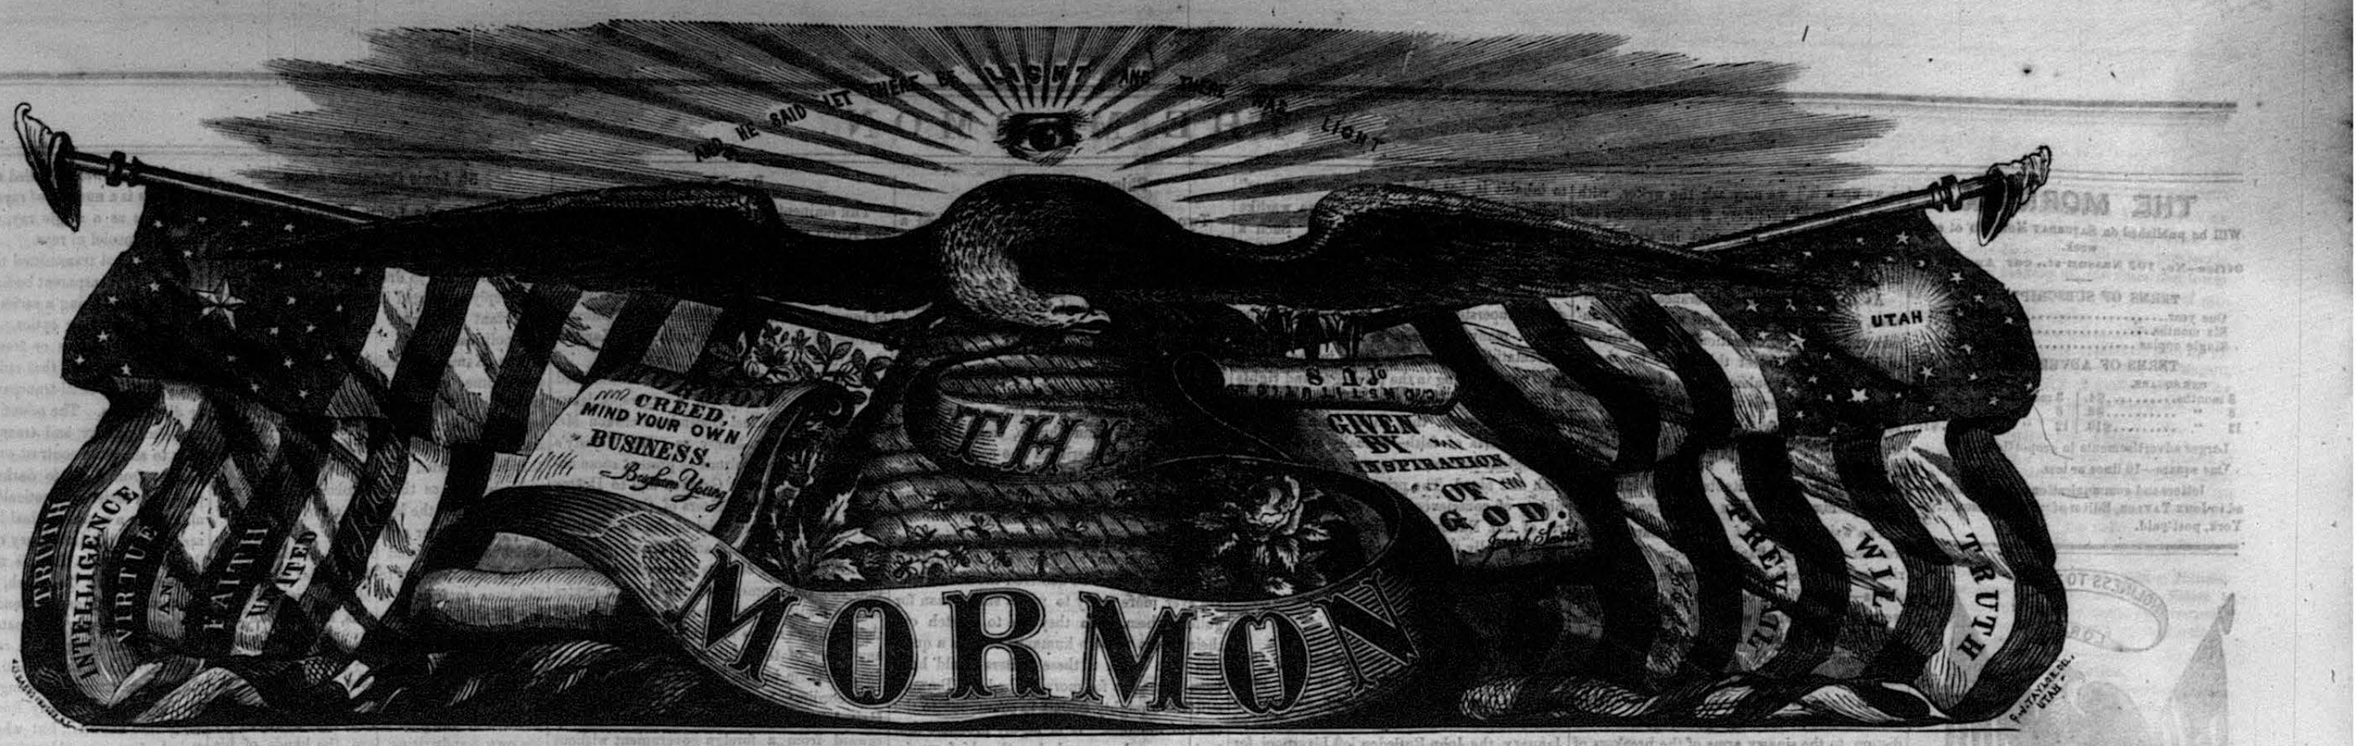
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1



N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
We are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the largest and most complete assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any house in the Western Country!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 Double and Single Shot Guns; 2,500 Muskets and United States Rifles, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; Colt's Revolvers, of all sizes, always on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at Eastern Prices. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: Fire Arms, Fixed Ammunition, Provisions and Groceries, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of Eastern Hunting Parties, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) Target, Hunting, and Minnie Rifles, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
We also keep constantly on hand the CELEBRATED SHARP'S PATENT RIFLE, which is the safest and most destructive weapon ever invented, for sale at the Manufacturer's prices, for cash.
Please call and examine for yourselves, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. Rouse.

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
Reference—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je9–

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS. fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 6. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Hope.

BY SCHILLER.

We speak with the lip, and we dream in the soul
Of some better and fairer day;
And our days, the meanwhile, to that golden goal
Are gliding and sliding away.
Now the word becomes old, now again it is young,
But "The Better's" forever the word on the tongue.

At the threshold of life Hope leads us in—
Hope plays around the mirthful boy;
Though the best of its charms may with youth begin
Yet for age it reserves its toy.
When we sink at the grave, why the grave has scope,
And over the coffin man planteth—HOPE!

And it is not a dream of fancy proud,
With a fool for its dull begetter;
There's a voice at the heart that proclaims aloud,
"We are born for something better!"
And that voice of the heart, oh, ye may believe,
Will never the hope of the soul deceive!"

Health for the People.

The American Woman's Educational Association is an organization of Ladies (with an incorporated board of gentlemen co-operating with them) to promote improved modes of education, especially in reference to their own sex. They aim to direct more attention to the distinctive duties of woman as the educator of the mind, the guardian of early health, and the conservator of domestic economy and the family state. They have been led to their undertaking by a conviction that the customs of domestic life and the modes of education during the present century have induced a universal debility of constitution, and in consequence a decay of national health, especially among women. They believe that these evils can be remedied, and that the first step must be to set forth to all the people these evils and the remedy. In order to effect their benevolent object they have had prepared by one of the ladies of the Association four short articles which we propse to insert in our paper as convenience will permit. The facts on which these deductions and recommendations are founded may not exist in an equal degree in all parts of our wide spread country, but they do so sufficiently to render the remedies suggested every where valuable.—[National Intelligencer.

Causes of the Decay of National Health.

Two things are generally conceded, viz. that the American women are not as healthy as the European; and that the present generation, especially the women, are not as healthy and vigorous as former ones.

What are the causes? Not our climate, for that is the same as it was when the women of this country were as healthy as the English, Scotch, and Irish, and when both sexes were as vigorous as their ancestors or any other people. The change, then, must be owing to changes in our domestic habits and modes of education. Some of these will now be indicated.

Nothing so certainly deteriorates and undermines the body as habitually breathing impure air. The open fire-places in kitchens, parlors, bed-rooms, and workshops secured to our ancestors pure and cool air. But at the present day close stoves and close sleeping-rooms, with no proper ventilation, are debilitating perhaps nine-tenths of the people, while children are crowded into schools heated with stoves and almost never properly ventilated.

Four-fifths of all the food and drink taken are thrown off through the lungs and skin Every pair of lungs vitiates one pint of air at every respiration. That is equal to one hogshead of air each hour for every pair of lungs.

No room, then, can be properly ventilated that does not receive from without at least one hogshead of air for every pair of lungs. This is always secured by open fire-places, but by a stove almost never. Thus it is that the greater part of this generation have had every bodily tissue nourished by imperfected blood thus inducing a delicate or feeble constitution.

A second cause of debility is the want of vigorous exercise, especially to the muscles of the arms and trunk. In former days the children worked with their parents in pure and cool air for several hours a day, and thus exercised the muscles most important to health, especially to female health.

But in these days, school children, especially the youngest girls, have little vigorous exercise; and, where exercise is demanded, a walk of a mile or two is deemed sufficient, while the exercise of the muscles most important to health is entirely neglected. Thus both sexes, but especially that on whom depends the constitution of the children, are every year becoming more delicate and sickly.

The third cause of national debility is a change from a simple to a stimulating and luxurious diet. Stimulating food provokes an unnatural appetite. A great variety tempts to excess. Both combine to overload the organs of nutrition, and the whole organism is strained and overworked to throw off the excess.

The more food we eat and the richer it is the more exercise is needed; but, instead of this, the people constantly are eating more and exercising less. Meat is the most stimulating food there is, and there is no other nation on earth where all classes devour such quantities of meat, fat, butter, sugar, molasses, hot cakes, and hot tea and coffee; and no nation on earth have such bad teeth and every other indication of a debilitated constitution.

A fourth cause of national debility is excess in stimulating the brain unbalanced by exercise and recreations. Fifty years ago to read, write, and cipher were all that was expected out of a college course. No daily drilling in hot school-rooms in all manner of sciences, with evening lessons at home; no Sunday lessons, no books for children at every turn, both Sundays and week days. There is fifty times as much intellectual stimulus of the brain in childhood as was ever known in former generations. Then the cares, business, and excitements of all kinds, for both men and women, have increased at an equal ratio. Every thing is going on at high steam-pressure. Now, the more the brain is thus stimulated the greater the need for pure air, exercise, and seasons of relaxation; but, contrary to this, the more the brains of children and adults are stimulated the less pure air and exercise are secured. And so the nervous system is exhausted and the whole organism becomes delicate or diseased. To use the words of a medical writer, "the constant exercise of the brain takes up the chief strength of the system and consumes it in feeling and thinking."

Another cause of general debility is the fashions of female dress. The stays of our ancestors were trifles compared with the accumulated enormities that have been practised on the female form during the last twenty-years. The thin covering for the upper portion of the spine and the vital organs in cold weather, the accumulation of clothing on the lower portion, the pressure of tight dresses around the waist, the pressure of whalebones in pointed waists, and the weight as well as the heat of the enormous mass of clothing resting on the hips, all these, combining with delicate constitutions, have produced and are increasingly producing terrific results that are but little known or understood.

Scarlet Fever—How Cured.

As most really valuable suggestions in medicine come from those who have not made physic a business—old and experienced women or those who, by accident, have discovered a valuable remedy—we give the following, obtained, no doubt, from some such scource. It is a season when much scarlet fever will undoubtedly prevail, and it can do no harm, but may do much good, to try one of these remedies. When the disease first commences, rub the entire body with a piece of fat pork. It softens the skin, opens the pores, allows free perspiration, soothes the heated surface, and gives relief. Another plan is to dissolve some saleratus in warm water—say 1-4 of an ounce to a quart of water—and bathe the whole body with the solution. Bathe as rapidly as possible in a room comfortably warm, and when done, put the patient in bed. This alkaline solution removes the scurf from the skin, softens it, and promotes perspiration.

Now, we have no doubt but either of these remedies are good in scarlet fever; and we will tell you why. We all know that the skin in this disease is excessively hot, and that all perspiration has ceased. The pores are closed and this of itself is enough to produce dangerous disease. No person can enjoy health unless there exudes from the surface of the body an insensible perspiration. The fat pork, or the alkaline solution, would tend to open the pores, and impart an agreeable feeling to the body. But we should remember that the bowels should also be opened as soon as possible when the disease appears as they, too, are obstructed. The feverish symptoms will not abate while the intestinal canal is loaded with deleterious matter, nor while the pores of the skin are closed. A mild but efficient cathartic, and the external remedies we have mentioned, or any other application externally that will open the pores, will in almost every case cure scarlet fever, if used early in the disease.

Prince Pashkiewitch.

Prince Pashkiewitch, late Viceroy of Poland and Commander of the Russian army, who recently died at Warsaw, was descended from an ancient noble family of Little Russia, probably of Cossack origin. He was born at Pultowa on the 8th of May, 1782. Placed at an early age, by the Empress Catharine, in the corps of pages, he distinguished himself as a student. From this institution the Emperor Paul took him to the Court as the page of the chamber, and soon after, in 1800, made him his Aid-de-camp and Lieutenant in the Prebajenski, a regiment always under the command of the reigning Emperor. Pashkiewitch first saw active service in 1805, having been sent by Alexander to the assistance of Austria against the French. He had at that time attained the rank of captain. In 1806 he was with the army in Turkey, and at the storming of Brailoff, in 1809, he was so badly wounded that his life was in danger. He fought with distinction at Smolensko, at Borodino, at Wiasma, and at Krasnoe. He took part in the battle of Leipsic, was active in the blockading of Magdeburg and Hamburg, went with his division to France, fought at Montmartre, and entered Paris with his grenadiers. He was sent on several missions to Constantinople. On his last diplomatic journey to that capital, learning that the Turks intended to assassinate him as a spy, he forced two men to row him along the shore of the Black Sea in an open boat to Varna, where he succeeded in persuading the Governor that peace had been concluded, and thus escaped death.

In 1816, he travelled in England as tutor to the Grand Dukes Nicholas and Michael. In 1820, he married a sister of the Russian poet Griboiedoff, and the Emperor gave him a division of the Imperial Guard, creating him Aid-de-camp General.

In 1826, he was appointed to the command in the Caucasus, being so poor at the time, that he was forced to borrow a furred cloak from one of his subalterns for the long journey. With an army of 24,000 men, he destroyed a much larger force of the enemy at Elisavetopol. For this service the Emperor presented to him a golden sword richly set in diamonds, with the inscription: "To the conqueror of the Persians at Elisavetopol." The next year he conquered Persian Armenia, and was created Count of Erivan, receiving $200,000 as a gift from the Czar. At the storming of Erivan, one of his best generals, Borozdin, was killed, leaving a wife and family in very reduced circumstances. Pashkiewitch sent $20,000 from his own pocket to the widow, with a letter stating that the money was found among the papers of the deceased.

Pashkiewitch was next employed against the Turks. In the course of the campaign, at the head of 20,000 men, he was surrounded by two Pashas with about 80,000. He dispersed them in three days, one after the other, winning the decisive battle of Kars, after which he took the fortress of Ahaltzik and the fortress of Erzeroum. He was now raised to the dignity of Field-Marshal, and remained in the command of the Caucasus and the newly-conquered provinces. In 1830, he subjugated several tribes of the Caucasian mountaineers.

In 1831, the war with Poland breaking out, Pashkiewitch was appointed to supersede Diebitch in the command of the army. The issue of the campaign is well known. Pashkiewitch was now created a Prince of Warsaw, and was named Viceroy of Poland. He covered the kingdom with paved roads, introduced steam navigation on the Vistula, and constructed a railroad between Warsaw and Cracow. He retained his vice-royalty until his death. In spite of his advanced age and his bodily infirmities, he joined the army after it had crossed the Danube, in the summer of 1854, and commanded in person the bloody but unsuccessful attack on Silistria.

Pashkiewitch leaves one son, now a general and aid-de-camp of the Emperor Alexander, and three married daughters. They inherit a colossal fortune. He made a generous use of his riches. During the past winter, besides contributing largely to numerous charities, he fed, at his own expense, a thousand persons among the destitute population of Warsaw.

Railroads in England.

Mr. Robert Stephenson, who has just been elected President of the College of Civil Engineers in London, delivered on the occasion of his installation, a speech on railroad matters, which embraces much interesting information as to the development and organization of railroads in Great Britain.

The net work of English railroads is 8,954 miles in length—longer than the united length of the ten largest rivers in Europe, and the rails, if placed end to end, would form an iron girdle around the earth. The total cost of these lines is two hundred and sixty-six millions of pounds sterling, or about one-third of the national debt.

The embankments on which the rails rest, if united, would form a mass containing five hundred and fifty millions cubic metres of earth. (The metre is a little more than a yard in length.) In comparison with this gigantic tumulus, St. Paul's would look like a pigmy, for the pyramid thus formed would be one mile and a half high, and its base would be larger than James's Park.

The cars travel every year an aggregate distance of eighty millions of miles; those cars are 150,000 in number, and are drawn by 5,000 engines.

The engines, placed one before the other, would reach from London to Chatham. The cars, placed in the same manner, would reach from London to Aberdeen. The engines annually consume two million tons of water.

In 1854 the cars transported one hundred and eleven millions passengers, each passenger traveling an average distance of twelve miles. The old mail coaches used to carry ten passengers each, and to have carried 300,000 passengers a day, would have taken 10,000 coaches and 120,000 horses.

The receipts of the railroads for the year 1854 amounted to 20,215,000 pounds sterling, or, about 101,000,000 of dollars.

The wear and tear of English railroads is great; it takes 20,000 tons of iron every year to keep the tracks in repair, and 26,000,000 sleepers, to furnish which requires 3,000,000 trees, covering a space of 5,000 acres.

Without railroads, letter postage never could have been reduced to a penny. The weekly papers alone, published every Saturday, in London, fill fifteen large coaches, and they certainly could not have been delivered, as now, at half-penny a copy.

The electric telegraph furnishes constant employment to 3,000 persons. It stretches a distance of 36,000 miles, and a million despatches are sent over it every year.

Accidents on English railroads are not so numerous as is generally supposed. During the first half of the year 1854, but one accident happened to every 7,195,341 passengers.

About 100,000 men are employed directly and 40,000 indirectly on English railroads; 130,000 men represent a population of half a million, so that it may be said that one-fiftieth part of the English nation depend upon railroads for their subsistence.

Were railroads suppressed, to carry on the same traffic that is now transacted by means of them would cost an annual sum of 6,000,000 pounds sterling. Besides, time is money, especially for the masses, and for every journey of 12 miles, 111,000 passengers gain each an hour, in all, 38,000 years of a man's working life, estimating that he works eight hours a day. If we count his day's labor at three shillings, the English railroads save the nation 2,000,000 sterling a year in the one item of time.

Matrimonial Brosse.

"Arrah, Pat, and why did I marry ye, just tell me that, for its myself that's had to maintain ye ever since the blessed day that Father O'Flannagan sent me home to yer house?"

"Swate jewell," replied Pat, not relishing the charge, "and its myself that hopes I may live to see the day when ye're a widow, wapeing over the coold sod that covers me—then I'll see how ye get along without me, honey."

Nebraska Correspondence.

From the New York Herald, March 22, 1856.

Florence, (Winter Quarters,) N. T., March 7, 1856.

The Old Mormon Settlement—Ruins of the Town—Present Prospects—General News, &c.

The associations of this place—the old Mormon winter quarters, as it is familiarly termed—are, indeed, quite pleasant. But about eight years ago or so there were no less than from 6,000 to 7,000 Mormons living here in comfortable houses, surrounded by well tilled farms. Indeed, Florence, or Winter Quarters, then presented the appearance of a thriving town, whilst it now bears scarce the semblance of a settlement. But about one year ago there was, I think, two claim cabins up on the embryo town. The proprietors call it Florence—the good old name of Winter Quarters was not aristocractic enough. All the old Mormon houses have gone to decay, or have been burned down. The once thriving village of Latter Day Saints, of eight years ago, has entirely passed away, and tall rank weeds grow in plenteous profusion over the ruins, hiding the cellars and wells, and all that remained of Winter Quarters. Just up yonder, on that beautful elevation, was Brigham Young's house, whilst a little to the south you see the outline of an old road. That leads to the old Mormon burying ground, about one mile distant. There sleep hundreds of the Saints who forsook, for religious belief, comfortable homes in Europe to struggle here amid the toils and privations of a frontier life, and brave the inclemency of our severe winters. Side by side they were buried here, upon the prairie, and now a close observer can distinguish the little mounds, stretched along on the prairie, over perhaps nearly a quarter of a mile long. Hundreds of acres the Mormons cultivated here, and their old fields now teem with the fruits of a Gentile community.

The Mormons, when driven from Nauvoo and Missouri, came here, hoping to be free from further molestation—so the old Mormons tell me—but they were ordered off what were then Indian lands, and were constantly molested by the Indians. Many of them then settled and founded the present thriving city of Council Bluffs. From thence and from here, they migrated to Utah, and founded Salt Lake City. Brigham Young was among the first of these sainted pioneers.

The embryo city of Florence is a place of beauty. The landing is good, and a gently sloping bluff relieves the background; in front of this, and extending from the river perhaps half a mile, the prairie is level, and here most of the buildings are erected. A hotel, saw mill, one store and some ten or twelve houses are erected. Its proximity to Omaha City—only about seven miles to the southward—will, it is said by the "blowers" of Omaha City, debar it from ever becoming a large place. Perhaps it will. I am not able to examine the future. This, however, does not detract from its beauty or peculiar interest.

The weather continues pleasant. The ice on the river still remains stationary, but threatens to "let go all hold" very soon.

Fillmore City, Utah Territory, January 1, 1856.

Letter from a New City—Cost of Feed at the Same—Progress of the City—What is Thought About the Future—Women Wanted, &c.

A happy New Year. I have just inked my pen for the sake of writing, without anything to write, or anybody to write to. But for fear of letting a pen of ink dry up, the thought struck me, to drop a line to the Herald thinking, perhaps, the public would like to hear from this far off interior.

First of all, let me say, the Mormons have not yet starved to death, and if they ever do they will have to try harder than they have yet.

Flour is $6 per hundred; beef, $7 to $8 per hundred, on foot; pork, $15 to $18 per hundred; butter, 35c. to 50c. per lb.; potatoes, 75c. to $1 per bushel, and other things in proportion. True, crops were rather short, but old wheat helps to lengthen out the new crop.

The winter thus far is rather severe, some snow and weather very cold for the last ten days.

One wing of the State House in this city is completed, and the Legislature convened here and opened on the 10th December. The wing in which it holds its session is a fine building of stone, two stories, some thirty-six by sixty feet, well finished, and the upper part is a vast hall, arched overhead and serves the double purpose of House of Representatives, and for balls, &c. The probable cost is some thirty to forty thousand dollars.

It stands on an eminence in the midst of a vast plain, open on three sides as far as the eye can reach, and interspersed in the distance with lone mountains. On the east the Great Wahsack mountains loom up several thousand feet, their sides black with timber and their summits crowned with snow.

The vast valley has several streams of water and some good land, while everywhere there seems abudance of cedar fuel and rich grasses.

The principle feature in the message of his Excellency Governor Young is the urgent recommendation of preliminaries on the part of Utah to enter the Union, as a sovereign State.

One of the first acts of the Legislature, at the opening of the present session, was to pass the necessary laws for taking the census and calling a convention to form a constitution, &c.; and it may be fairly presumed there will be a loud knock at the door of Congress during its present session.

As to news, nothing is stiring—no murders little or no stealings, no law suits—a few deaths and a great many marriages. There is not, in fact, the usual amount of parties, balls, feats, &c. This may be owing to the "great revival of religion," which is now everywhere prevailing in the Territory, principally through the instrumentality of the home missionary labors appointed at the October General Conference. In short, great meetings are the order of the day, and there is some tall preaching.

Nearly everybody is religious in these "diggins," even to the Indians. Some thousands of the latter have been baptised during the last two or three years, and have ceased plundering, stealing, &c., and gone to work raising grain, &c.

Myself and a few more, who were never inclined to religion to any great extent, find ourselves almost alone, and we hardly know how to stem the overwhelming influence around us.

If ever religion of any kind had a serious impression on me it is when I see its influence on the savages of these mountains. To see a people who, a few months ago, were nearly naked, and as wild as the wolves, now clothed, and fed, and washed, and combed, and dressed and pursuing the arts of peace, industry and plenty; and to see them bow the knee to Jesus Christ is, indeed, a strange sight. Yet such is the fact with many, and, indeed, with some whole tribes. With few exceptions.

The Indian missions extend in every direction around Great Salt Lake City, for four or five hundred miles. One of these missions, viz.: Elk Mountain, on Grand river, was broken up of late by the Indians, and three men killed. The others are all successful.

The Indians in the Territory are said to be upwards of twenty thousand, and the white population is usually estimated at some fifty to eighty thousand. But let me here say, in all candor, that this is believed by many to be a very low estimate. The fact is, emigration has come flowing in from all parts for several years, California, Australia and the Pacific Isles contributing no small share. The country being healthy, there are but few deaths; and there is one peculiarity which will soon have a great bearing on the population, viz: the utter annihilation of "single blessedness" among this people. Everybody is conscience bound to marry as soon as they are old enough and it is made a strict and conscientious duty in the singular system which prevails here for every family to raise all the children they can. If there was ever a country where an old bachelor would feel ashamed, it is here. I speak from experience; and as to old maids, they are out of the question; there is seldom, if ever, an unmarried female of twenty years old to be found in the Territory.

There is no mistake but what the Mormons, at present rates, will ere long control several of the interior States and Territories. There are three principal levers which constitute Mormon power as a body politic, viz:—First, a unanimity of action; Second, their peculiar institution of marriage and multiplication; Thirdly, their immense and well concerted missionary system, which already wields an influence over the whole globe. You Down Easters may laugh at them; theorists may speculate on Mormon dissolution, &c., &c., but here they are a unit—and the spirit of union is increasing with them every year.

For outward appearance sake, and a decent respect for liberal institutions, they will go through all the forms, and apply in good earnest for an admission into the Union; but their real sentiments are that they do not care a fig whether they are admitted or not. They cannot but be sensible that their path is onward to self-government and eventual independence, by whatever means this finale will be approached. And they are wise enough to "bide their time."

Our business (the mercantile) is more than usually dull this year, owing to short crops, and but little travel through the Territory. We sincerely hope government will send some troops, engineers, surveying parties, railroad agents, or what not, into these "diggins," before long, so as to scatter some dimes here, and make it a little better times for business.

For humanity's sake, and a mutual benefit to the race and to both sections of the country, do, Mr. Editor, earnestly recommend the emigration from Down East of a few thousands of virtuous and industrious young ladies to this section of the Union. If a few thousands should arrive of the right kind, they would all get husbands in a few months. But they must be of the right stripe—real helpmates—who know how to work, and pride themselves on it. None of your fashionable belles or showy butterflies would pass in this market. Industry, economy, frugality and prudence are all the fashion here, Butterflies and fops and loafers would be laughed to scorn.

Punch and Prince Albert.

The following keen satire on Prince Albert is copied from a late number of the London Punch:

AN INVOCATION FROM THE ARMY.

TO AN ILLUSTRIOUS FIELD-MARSHAL.

By the service thou hast seen;
By each hour that thou hast been Under fire in trench or field,
By that sword which thou dost wield
First in breach or upon wall;
By thy daring actions all;
By thy charges and attacks;
By thy halts and bivouacks;
By the nights which thou hast spent
In the cold and dreary tent;
By the hard and scanty fare
Thou hast often had to share;
By the country thou hast saved;
By the nations thou hast braved;
By the Minie bolts of lead
Which have whistled past thy head;
By the countless cannon-shot,
Round, grape, canister, red-hot,
Near thee which have plough'd the ground;
By the bombs that have burst around;
By the rockets that have dropp'd
Right before thy feet—and popp'd;
By each sabre, bay'net, lance,
Which thy breastplate made to glance;
By each gallant charger slain
Under thee upon the plain;
By the mines which thou among,
Oft has been when they were sprung;
By thine honorable scars;
By the wounds in all thy wars;
By thy cut, and by thy thrust,
Which have caused to bite the dust
Many a hero, and to fall
Heads of Legions—by them all;
By the hazards thou hast run;
By the battles thou hast won;
By great armies forced to flee;
By great cities taken by thee;
By all thy strategetic feats,
Bold advances, wild retreats;
By thy sieges and campaigns;
By thy captured ordnance trains;
By thy boots, thy spurs, thy belt;
By the powder thou hast smelt;
By the coat, frock, all the clothes,
Which to thee the soldier owes—
Rest thee Albert, rest thee now,
With thy laurels on thy brow;
Rest thee, warrior, let thy fame
Thou hast earned suffice thy name;
Rest, and, as a man of peace,
Meddling with our army cease;
Martial business leave alone,
Be content to mind thine own.

A man, killing hogs, became vexed, and, venting his spleen, wished they were in h—ll. "Oh, dear me! what can he mean!" exclaimed a little girl, who heard him. "Mean! I suppose the awful wretch wants his provisions sent on beforehand."

A Frenchman being hard up for a dinner, stole a pig. He was caught in the act, taken before a magistrate, and called upon for his defence, when he thus delivered himself:

"Oh mon Dieu! I steal ze pig! No, sar, I never! Aha! you shall see! I tell ze pig, I vill he go wis me! He says, 'Oui! oui!' and zen I take him. Is zat vot you call steal de pig ven he go vis his own consent!"

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
12 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1856.

Utah and Mormonism.

WERE it not for the absorbing interest excited in the public mind by the discussion of the Kansas question, with all its numerous and complicated issues, the contemplated application, by the Mormons of Utah for the admission of that Territory as one of the States of the Union, would doubtless attract general attention, in view of the many unusual features of the internal policy and government of that Territory. Governor Young recommends that a convention be called to take the census of Utah, preparatory to such an application.

While Utah has remained in its embryo territorial condition, it has mattered little to the people of the Union at large what customs or laws the Mormons might adopt, if they should not directly interfere with the rights of others without their Territory; though much indignation has been expressed by some at the toleration allowed to the alleged infamous practices of these people. But, when it is proposed that they shall be admitted to all the privileges of general citizenship, and shall leave their condition of isolation, and bring into our Confederacy their peculiar institutions, a grave difficulty presents itself. Many have considered it a reproach to Christianity, and to the spirit of the age, that no means have been taken to prevent their open disregard of all morality and public law, even during the time when they have been content with the condition of proteges or colonists, and have not asked to be treated as brothers and equals. But as the time for a closer intimacy approaches, and when we are about to be called upon to recognize them as members of our Commonwealth, a greater strictness may be exercised toward them, and they may be required to lay aside all that is so generally objectionable in their manners and local administration, and to conform to the universal public law, before being admitted to enjoy the protection and benefits of that law.

This is not a sectional question. People of all sections, and of all shades of political opinion, doubtless coincide in their views upon it," we may ask the writer, with some degree of propriety, if he considers the seventy or eighty thousand inhabitants of Utah as beyond the pale of "all the world and the rest of mankind?"

As to the question of tolerance or intolerance, every reader acquainted with the "manners and local administration" of the Territory of Utah can interpret this article for themselves. And for public policy, decency and morality, the writer is truly unconscious, if he supposes there is any sufferance "in procuring the bans," except it should be to Utah's "condition of isolation," and the child-like simplicity of its inhabitants in the intrigues and diplomacy of modern civilization.

The writer speaks of the guardians of our frontiers, the bold, hardy pioneers of our territories, as though they were mere children or slaves—and talks of colonists, as though they were to be classed with the subjects of the Mosquito king, and, like Queen Victoria, he was about to receive us under his royal protectorate. How soothing to the venturous Indian hunters of Oregon, Washington and New Mexico! How invigorating, this royal dictum, to the sinewy arms of the breakers of the soil, the first levellers of the forests of Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas. They are not thought worthy to be "brothers and equals" of the high-minded attendants upon our capitol at Washington. And as the time approaches for a closer intimacy with these poor territorial homespuns, with their rough and toil-worn hands, faces bronzed by exposure to summer's heat and winter's cold, with breasts seamed and scared by the wild beasts of the forests or the tomahawks of the relentless savage—"it requires a greater strictness to be exercised," and they must lay aside their uncouth "manners and primitive local administration," and conform to the refined and highly polished society of our more fortunate and unexceptionable moral friends and brothers of the favored atmosphere of our eastern cities. How such intimacy must exalt and dazzle these poor bewildered sons of toil!

Can it be possible that there is any one upon this Continent, pretending to a knowledge of the general affairs of the day, so ignorant, as the Globe would seem to be, of the real state of affairs in Utah, as not to be aware that for pre-eminence in morality, loyalty, peace, unity and good order, the inhabitants of that Territory stand proudly unrivalled, and vastly superior to any State, Territory or District in the Union—aye, the Continent or the wide world!

The good intentions, conscientious and upright proceedure of that people, in all that relates to the interests of our common country, the observance and sustenance of wholesome laws and good order throughout their communities, and the universal kindness bestowed by them upon thousands of homeless strangers who have been thrown upon their borders during seasons of emigration to California and Oregon, are all too well known to the public to need repetition here. To such as view them only in the distance, the evidence to every unprejudiced mind is abundant in the departments at Washington and throughout the land, by the oft-repeated favorable reports of the United States judges, lawyers, and merchants. The well known absence of crime in that Territory, shown by the clear docket sheets of all its District, County and Municipal Courts, and the multitude of letters of praise from correspondents, travellers and sojourners in that far-off country, to their friends at home. Neither are there any, who are conversant with the history of the Mormons, as the Globe must be, but what are convinced, since their unjust expulsion from Missouri, the unholy crusade against them, and forced exodus from Illinois to the barren heights of the Rocky Mountains, that, that people are not such as to quietly bow the head to corrupt, embecile leaders, oppressive and unjust laws at home, nor tamely submit their necks to the unnatural laws and filthy customs of modern society abroad. They are a people who have endured too long and too much for their "strange" faith, to suffer it to be overwhelmed by the innovations of rotten laws, or by besotted, unprincipled demagogues from without; nor allow it to corrode by cherishing evils in their own midst.

As to the calumny embodied by the Globe, under the cover of "Much indignation has been expressed by some at the toleration allowed to the alleged infamous practices of these people," we view it as among the trashy attempts at mock heroics in morals, and that sanctimonious pretensions to purity, commonly expressed by those who most need bolstering by such hypocrisy.

The public do not need such feelers, besides it is premature. When the question of the admission of Utah into the Union comes before the public, the public will be ready to answer for themselves. They are not all canting pretenders, with visions contracted by sectionalism and party hate, but there are millions of American citizens, with cultivated intellects and enlarged minds that reach beyond the narrow limits of sectarianism, or even the broad platform of nationality, and like the floating emblem of our national preeminence, penetrate the four quarters of the earth, wooing all mankind to Freedom, Equal Rights, and Liberty of Conscience.

We consider it an insult to the American people to attempt to forestall the expression of a free people by the narrow prejudices of sects and isms; more especially by thus libelling an industrious, energetic, and law-abiding people, as the Mormons have ever proved themselves to be, ever ready at their country's call, even when homeless and disfranchised, as in the case of the well remembered "Mormon Battalion" in the Mexican war. Their peaceable relinquishment of comfortable homes and farms, for the fierce winter blasts of the Plains, and a home among savages, in the then parched and barren mountain wastes of Utah, a place that the warlike Indians of the Plains would not deign to accept as their hunting grounds, and none to inhabit it, but the few spiritless "digger" Indians, forced there by their more warlike neighbors of the Buffalo country. Such a country have the Mormons located, and it begins to "blossom as the rose." And there are those now ready to stoop and cater to bigotry, superstition and fanaticism, to bar the way of many thousands in that Territory, representatives from every State in the Union, from participating in the privileges and rights of the free people of this great confederacy, because, forsooth, they differ from some in their articles of faith—actually making use of religious faith as a weapon against our own flesh and blood. The principle of all others—liberty of conscience—guaranteed by the spirit of our National institutions, and sought most sacredly to be guarded and preserved to the people by the framers of the Constitution.

Utah and Mormonism.

First. What are some of the many unusual features of internal policy and government of that Territory to which he alludes?

Second. If it mattered little to the people of the Union at large what customs or laws the Mormons might adopt, if they should not directly interfere with others without their territory—why should it matter more to "the people of the Union at large" what custom or laws she might adopt (provided they should not interfere with others without their territory) when she should become a State, and as such, left solely to her own resources, leaving the General Government, or "the people of the Union at large," entirely irresponsible, as to her morality or immorality, so long as the federal compact is adhered to?

Third. What are "the alleged infamous practises of these people?"

Fourth. What grave difficulty are we to anticipate "when it is proposed that they should be admitted to all the privileges of general citizenship, and shall leave their condition of isolation, (certainly not to change their location to nearer and more populous regions,) and bring into our confederacy their peculiar institutions?"

Fifth. What evidence can the writer show that either open or private disregard of all morality or public law, in the slightest degree, has ever been evinced by the inhabitants of that Territory?

Sixth. How long is it supposed to be necessary for native-born citizens of the United States, who have left their homes to settle in that or any other territory, to "remain content to be proteges or colonists," before venturing to "ask to be treated as brothers and equals?"

Seventh. What clause in the Constitution requires a greater strictness to be exercised towards a territory, when applying for admission "as members of our commonwealth;" and when does it require them, "if their customs or laws should not directly interfere with the rights of others without their territory," to lay aside all that is so generally objectionable in their manners and local administration, and to conform to the universal public law, before being admitted to enjoy the protection and benefit of that law?"

Eighth. As this is so "strange a subject," that it is not a sectional question, and as "people of all sections and of all shades of political opinion doubtless coincide in their Phineas T. Barnum.

Two or three weeks ago we published a short extract from another paper on the bankruptcy of the famous P. T. Barnum. His examination took place last week in the Supreme Court of this city. A goodly number of our cotemporaries have fallen heavily upon him with religious cant upon morality—regarding his present embarrassments as a divine visitation for his humbugging the public with the woolly horse, Fejee mermaid, Tom Thumb, &c. Phineas's past career may merit all the condemnation it is now receiving from a certain section of the press and pulpit; but he has no very exalted idea of Divine Providence, who alleges that the Jerome Clock Company were inspired from on high to ruin Barnum by deception, because he deceived thousands who are ever more ready to pay a smart man for gulling them, than they are to stretch out their hands to help humanity. It is a question with some, if these writers would have been as zealous for morality had Mr. Barnum still the almighty dollars to count out to the tune of 500,000. It is highly probable that he is as good a man before the chief magistrate of the Supreme Court as when, perhaps, some of these same moralists sat side by side with him in public places in his brighter days. P. T. Barnum wrote the history of his life and confessed to the world how he had deceived it; many others deceive it as systematically, but leave the world to find it out as best it can.

According to Mr. Barnum's statement in Court, his property last June, one thing and another, was worth $800,000; his personal liabilities something about $300,000, leaving him, what he considered as his own, $500,000. About this time he contracted, upon certain conditions, with the celebrated Jerome Clock Company to endorse and accept their paper to an amount a little over $100,000. Unbusiness-like, he signed blank paper, and to his amazement discovered, in the beginning of the present year, against his name $464,000, and for aught he knew he might yet find his name against $1,000,000.

It seems that those who have instituted proceedings against Mr. B. were under the impression that he had insidiously disposed of some of the large estates which once stood in his name, and were desirous of fastening on him the charge of perjury. He has, however, replied to the searching interrogatories of opposing counsel with frankness. His pride being touched when asked for a detailed statement of all moneys and bonds he had held since last June, he replied:

"I am the poorest kind of a business man, but my late bookkeeper is now preparing a statement which shall be furnished you within twenty-four hours, giving you every item to a dollar; you will find that I have no desire to keep anything back, for I wish you to understand that the standard of morality for showmen is a peg or two higher than that found in the atmosphere of Wall street—(laughter.)"

A few months ago he had the reputation of being a millionaire, and his patronage esteemed no light thing. Of his present position he said in Court:

"I live in a furnished house in Eighth street, of this city, and keep boarders; and that is the only means of present support, except that I am furnished with meat by my son-in-law from Connecticut and vegetables raised last year on my farm in Connecticut. I have also some friends left, who will not let me starve this year. I have received various letters from friends at a distance, offering to send me money."

The Court has appointed Mr. James S. Libby to the office of receiver.

Mr. Barnum has fallen, but he may rise again; he is of the race that get "up and at it again."

Postal Reform Meeting.

IN accordance with a call published in the morning papers, a meeting, comprising many of the most influential and respectable citizens of New York, was held on Monday evening last, at the Chapel of the New York University, for the purpose of "taking into consideration certain reforms in the postal system of the United States, and to take such other measures as they shall consider necessary to accomplish the desired result."

The meeting was called to order by Thos. Tileston, Esq., and upon his motion Hon. Luther Bradish was called to the chair, who made some very able remarks, and was followed by several other speakers.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted; the only objection was that of William Breck, which was loud and decided.

Resolved, That the Address of the Postal Reform Committee, which has just been read, be adopted, and substantially presented to Congress in a suitable memorial.

Resolved, That the reforms in the Postal System which this meeting earnestly urges upon the attention of Congress are as follows:

1. A uniform rate of postage throughout the United States, California and Oregon included, which shall not exceed two cents a half-ounce.
2. The delivery of letters in cities and principal towns by carriers without extra charge.
3. A uniform, simple and equitable system of postage on printed matter, with a marked discrimination in favor of pre-payment.
4. The abolition of franking, or the payment of all government postages out of the Treasury.
5. A uniform and low rate of ocean postage between the United States and foreign countries.
6. A comprehensive system for the transmission of moneys in sums not exceeding $25, by orders from one post office upon another.
7. The abolition of the law of compulsory prepayment, and a double charge on all mail matter not pre-paid.
8. The return of all dead letters to the writers.

Resolved, That the officers of this meeting be a Committee to prepare, sign and transmit to Congress a letter in the name and behalf of this meeting, in favor of the reform specified in the preceding resolutions.

Resolved, That with a grateful sense of our obligations to the Press for their zealous support of the cause of Postal Reform, and a just appreciation of their power in every good work, we earnestly solicit their further co-operation in our efforts.

The Rev. Dr. Osgood followed in some very appropriate remarks illustrating the necessity of a prompt and well regulated Postal System, especially in regard to our social relations, at the conclusion of which the meeting adjourned.

LATEST FROM CALIFORNIA.—The Indians were continuing their depredations in the northern section of the State. On Rogue River, about three hundred of them made an attack upon the settlers and some United States soldiers, who defended themselves as best they could, but, after fighting nearly a whole day, they were overpowered, and an indiscriminate slaughter of men, women and children took place.

SUMMARY.

ON Sunday evening, the packet ship Germania, from Havre, arrived in this port, bringing intelligence of the total destruction of the ship John Rutledge. On the 10th of January, the John Rutledge left Liverpool for New York. The second day at sea, the wind became adverse, and continued so, with occasional storms of rain and snow, till the 18th of February. At this date she found herself in too close proximity to ice. In spite of the best efforts of the captain and crew, she ran into an iceberg on the morning of the 20th. All hands were put to the pumps, and labored incessantly till toward 6 o'clock in the evening. The captain ordered the life-boats to be launched, and immediate preparations for abandoning the ship were taken. The sea was running very high when the passengers and crew took to the boats: this and their fear of being drawn down with the sinking ship, caused them to leave the vessel precipitately, even before the chief mate and carpenter got an opportunity of leaving.

On the 20th February, the Germania picked up one of the seamen, Thomas W. Nye, who had been for nine days exposed to the fury of the waters. There were twelve persons in the boat with Mr. Nye when he left the vessel, and altogether they had only ten pounds of crackers and a gallon of water. He is the only person whose escape is certain—one hundred and nineteen persons are supposed to have met a watery grave, at least no intelligence of them has reached this place. The John Rutledge was a fine staunch ship of 1,060 tons, built four years ago at Baltimore. Her value is $67,000, and she is fully insured in this city. The passengers were English, Irish and Scotch, and were of the better class of emigrants on their way to the United States.

The ship Caravan, which left Liverpool with over 450 Saints, on the 15th February, arrived in this port on Wednesday evening. They have had a good passage for such a stormy season, and had but little sickness.

The Kansas American Settlement Company of this city held a meeting at the Broadway Tabernacle on Tuesday evening. According to the Herald, some big folks shown brilliantly to a thin audience. The time having come for acting instead of saying, a resolution was presented, "that a collection be now taken up for the aid of Council City, Kansas, and a committee of five be appointed to receive and disburse the same." The resolution was adopted, committee appointed, and the meeting concluded with three cheers "for the free State of Kansas."

Kansas affairs occupy the attention of the whole country; every paper has something on Kansas. We have ceased to report in our Congressional columns the despatches from Congress on the subject. They are one continued round of party attacking party—one honorable Senator or member against another honorable Senator or member.

Our thanks are due to Dr. Bernhisel, the honorable Delegate from Utah, for a copy of the "majority and minority reports" on the Kansas Contested Election. The Anti-Slavery majority request the House of Representatives to send for persons and papers from Kansas to prove that Mr. Whitfield has been illegally elected Delegate of that Territory. The minority deny Mr. Reeder's right to contest the election, and oppose the proposition of the majority, but suggest the appointment of a Board of Commissioners to proceed to Kansas to take the required testimony.

We are pleased to learn that the House has at length concluded to send three of their members to Kansas as an "Investigating Committee." We expect something from them to clear away the clouds of darkness that enshroud the contradictory statements in circulation about that unhappy Territory.

No news from Europe. The Canada not yet (Friday) telegraphed. The Emeu, from Liverpool, arrived at Halifax yesterday morning, and brings no news of political importance. Rumor has the whole Russian fleet advancing to meet the advanced squadron of the English fleet in the Baltic. The White Works at Sebastopol were blown up on the 20th February. Selim Pacha is to be tried before a Council of War for treachery and cowardice, in not relieving Kars. Omer Pasha is said to be on his way to Constantinople to render an account of his conduct.

In last week's summary we stated, on the authority of an English paper, that the command of the Baltic fleet had again changed hands. This is not the case. Admiral Watson had command only of the advanced squadron.

The small-pox has, for sometime back, prevailed to an alarming extent in Albany. It appears that several of the members of the State Legislature, now in session, have been attacked by this filthy disease. Nothing will be able to keep the members together when the hundred days have expired.

On our first page will be found an interesting letter from Fillmore City, U. T., and another from our Home that was, "Winter Quarters."

Dr. Kane.

THE eminent services of this gentleman in the North seem to be in a fair way to receive a reward from his country. In the Senate, on the 24th inst., the Library Committee were instructed "to consider the expediency of some legislative recognition of the eminent services of the expedition under Dr. Kane to the Arctic regions."

On the 17th, President Pierce transmitted to Congress the copy of a correspondence which took place last December between Mr. Crampton and Mr. Marcy, as "Her Majesty's Government feel desirous to present some acknowledgment to Mr. Grinnell and to Doctor Kane, and the other officers of the American expedition, as a memorial of the sense which they entertain of their arduous and generous services; and her Majesty's Government trust that the Government of the United States will not withhold their permission to such of those officers as are in their service to accept any token of thankfulness which may be offered to them by the British Government."

According to the Constitution of the United States, no officer can receive any reward from a foreign government without the direct permission of Congress. It is not likely that Congress will offer any obstacle on the present occasion. The British Board of Admiralty have likewise notified our Government that they have adopted Dr. Kane's charts, thus throwing overboard the charts of Captain Inglefield and other Arctic navigators belonging to the British Navy, as well as the works of all of Dr. Kane's predecessors on the coast of Greenland. If anything could add to the value of this compliment, it is the fact that it was awarded almost by acclamation, without hesitancy or dispute.

We find the subjoined merited tribute to Dr. Kane, in the Washington correspondence of the Cincinnati Daily Times:

"I had the pleasure, yesterday, of an introduction to Dr. Kane, whose name is now synonymous with the Arctic regions, and the great open sea of the frigid zone. The Doctor's biography has been widely published, and the American people duly appreciate the noble and unrivaled manner in which he has, at all times, discharged the trusts committed to his care, and gained for himself and his country the merited praise of every civilized nation. Dr. Kane is one of the most remarkable men in America, excelling in all branches of scientific knowledge, and, at the same time, endowed with a tireless energy which no toil can check, no danger retard. Upon an errand of philanthrophy, he penetrates the frozen regions of the North a first and second time. Far beyond other discoverers he pushes his explorations; and for two years, separated from every vestige of civilization, amidst cold and storm, and dreary arctic snows, with death haunting him like a shadow on every side, pursues his researches with a dauntless vigor which the world has witnessed only to admire. Wonderful were the dangers through which he and his brave companions passed. Eighty-four days they journeyed over fields of broken ice in a temperature of cold which no human beings ever endured before. By the wild, unnatural glare of the aurora borealis they plunged through drifted snow, cheered on with the hope that a glorious discovery would reward trial, fatigue, and danger. At length the moment came! In those dismal solitudes appeared a sight which gladdened every heart. It was the open sea, in whose existence Dr. Kane's belief has always been so firm. There it lay, stretching far off into immensity, its dark and icy waves dashing, with mournful, hollow sound, upon a frozen and desolate shore. A great problem was solved; and, although thousands of miles from civilization, with no certainty, and scarcely a probability of again reaching home and friends, it was, to Dr. Kane, the proudest moment of his life! It was a triumph of science, of patience, bravery, and endurance over the most terrible obstacles of nature.

"Dr. Kane is now about to publish the results of his discoveries, adventurers, scientific researches, &c., in two of the most splendid volumes ever issued from the American press. They will be elaborately illustrated with maps, engravings, &c., &c., all in the highest style of art, besides fine steel portraits of Dr. Kane and Mr. Grinnell. The well-known firm of Childs & Peterson, Philadelphia, have the work in charge, which is a sufficient guarantee of its excellence in every respect.

"This will be the only work issued by Dr. Kane upon his Polar voyages, and he will therefore endeavor to make it a standard book. The engravings, of which there will be nearly three hundred, are gotten up under the Doctor's own eye, from drawings taken by himself. They can, of course, be depended on as correct delineations of Arctic life and scenery.

"Congress will undoubtedly order fifteen or twenty thousand copies for distributing to libraries, members, and foreign countries. This would be only an act of justice to Dr. Kane, as he is possessed of no other means than his pay as surgeon in the Navy. A man who has performed such signal services for our country, endured such hardships, certainly deserves from Government this slight mark of appreciation. I hope Congress will not only order the Doctor's book, but grant to each officer and seaman connected with the expedition at least one year's extra pay. I am one of those who believe that Government should promptly and liberally reward all those who perform its hazardous services faithfully.

"Dr. Kane is one of the most modest, retiring gentlemen I ever met, and appears unconscious that he has gained a place in the great heart of America that can never be obliterated. I hope that from the sale of his new work the Doctor will realize such an amount as will enable him to devote more time to those scientific researches that are so congenial to his nature."

NO MAN can solve the mysteries of life, but every man of common sense can perform its duties.

St. Louis Correspondence.

ST. LOUIS, March 15, 1856.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

DEAR SIR—Recent occurrences in this State induce me to drop you a few lines, as I am deeply interested in your paper and every important movement in both the religious and political world.

The Kansas difficulties which have for some time existed, and which some had seemed to think were nearly or quite at an end, have seemed to break out in a new place and in rather different features from anything that has preceded it.

Yesterday, as the steamboat Arabia was on her way up the Missouri river, a passenger dropped a paper on the floor of the saloon, which was found and handed to the captain of the boat, proving to be a letter written by the loser to friends in Massachusetts, revealing his abolition sentiments, and that he had arms on board marked "Carpenters' tools." The little document, too, dealt some rather severe strictures upon the boat's company, calling them both ruffians and devils. The position of the poor fellow, thus betrayed by his own handwriting into the hands of his enemies, can better be imagined than described. I am told that no violence, however, was done to his person, but that a council of the passengers was held over the matter, and on arriving at Lexington, Mo., measures were taken, in real old Missouri style, (mobocratic) to dispossess the Yankee of his carpenters' tools, to the amount of a hundred Sharpe's rifles and two pieces of cannon, destined for the free city of Lawrence.

We are not informed by what authority the arrest was made, but judge it to be on the authority of right (?) that is, right of possession, which tradition says is nine points of the law.

These arms are supposed to be a portion of the proceeds of the late efforts of the Emigrant Aid Society. This premature grounding of arms will be to the abolitionists, no doubt, unexpected, and cause much excitement in their ranks. What the end will be is hard to tell. My own feelings are, that I should be ashamed to be associated with either party, one being governed by gross inconsistency and the other by dishonesty.

The Free Soil portion of the Territory of Kansas have appointed Robinson Governor, and his first message, which is very elaborate, has been delivered and published, a copy of which you will no doubt have seen before this shall reach you. It proscribes the present acknowledged Territorial Government, and calls for the interference of the Federal authority in their (Free Soilers) behalf. It contains many facts in relation to the illegality of the interference of border Missourians with their right of franchise patent only to the citizens of Kansas Territory. It declares a willingness to submit to an investigation by the Federal authority, yet advocates, on the ground of popular sovereignty, the non-right of the General Government to dictate in Territories, as it now claims prerogative to do. It also declares the necessity of an immediate State organization on the basis and in accordance with the popular wish, &c.

I am confident that, owing to the extreme difference with regard to the two parties in Kansas, the interposition of the Federal authority is at this time absolutely necessary for the maintainance of tranquillity and peace, and the safe guarantee of the right of franchise to every citizen of the Territory, whatever his predilections may be. Governor Shannon has gone from Washington to the Territory with such authority, attended with instructions to call out the military only in extreme emergencies.

This is as it should be, and if gone, Shannon is the right stock—determined to do no other than to "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's"—the effect will be salutary, and the people "may not mourn because of wicked rule." Yours, respectfully,

ALEXANDER ROBBINS, JR.

FOR THE MORMON.

Light.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

PREVIOUS to my commencing the subject, I have to remark, that it is not my intention of entering into a minute exegesis; I merely wish to make the reader acquainted with an outline of the phenomena connected with light, as well as I can remember them from the time of my academical studies.

One of the most interesting and important principles in the fabric of the Universe is light; that medium through which kind Providence introduces life and order in the planetary space. A close investigation of that subtle, radiant, imponderable and ethereal matter shows that it is fully adapted to the peculiar construction of the eye. It is a scientific fact, that quite a variety of phenomena are originating in that luminous substance, and that its nature or affection is widely differing. A series of hypotheses have been introduced by eminent astronomers and natural philosophers, for the solution of the difficult and important problem regarding the nature of those phenomena. Huygens, Euler, and Descartes endeavored to prove, that they were owing to a rare, elastic, space-filling medium; Newton however advances the idea, that they come from the emanation of atoms or particles of a very refined matter.

The surrounding objects are brought in the focus of our optical powers through the medium of bodies strictly luminous, such as the Sun, the fixed Stars, etc., and objects reflecting on their surfaces. By the reflection of the Sun's rays during the day, we are enabled to discern everything around us, but as soon as that radiant orb has disappeared beneath the horizon, nature is shrouded in darkness, and our vision is limited to a great extent. The eye, the principle constituents of which are the pupil, iris and retina, receives every affection of light in right lines, and every line drawn from a luminous body to the focus of our optical powers is called a ray of light. A congeries is a number of rays; it has the same properties as a single ray, and is frequently termed a peniel of rays.

Light is not transmitted to opaque or dark, but only to transparent bodies; and as we perceive in every thing a series of adaptations, so there is regarding optics. There is quite a variety of luminous or transcendent bodies; some have more of that radiant matter, some less; some are semi-transparent or translucent or diaphanous. The scientific man speaks of a perfect opacity and transparency, but it is only to show the contrast or the different gradations from light to darkness; such principles only exist theoretically but not in reality; like a mathematical line or point, they are nothing but imaginary or abstract. How do we know, that there is not such a state as perfect opacity? To which, I reply, if opaque substances such as gold and some other metals are sufficiently attenuated, they are capable of receiving light. A ray of light continues moving without deviating from its direction, when conveyed through the same medium, or perpendicularly from one translucent body into another; but when transmitted obliquely from one object into another of a different density, it changes its direction, and then the process of refraction has taken place. Is a ray of light conveyed to a denser object, it is said to be refracted towards the perpendicular, and if conveyed to a rarer or thinner object, from the perpendicular. When the focus of the rays of light is nearest to the line perpendicular to its surface, then the object or medium is said to have the greatest density of refraction.

It is a scientific fact that the air on the surface of the earth is the heaviest, the most dense, and that the floating element of our globe gets rarefied towards the higher strata of the atmosphere. From the above we infer, that when the atmospheric equilibrium is established, the air's greatest power of refraction is on the surface of the earth; but it will decrease, the more we approach the atmospheric limit. If we follow out that principle with a mathematical accuracy we find, that a ray of light if transmitted obliquely from the distant luminaries of planetary spaces through the changeable air of our globe, will be gradually moving through the different strata in a curved line.

The phenomenon of objects appearing bent or distorted when looked at through translucent or transparent media, such as water or glasses, is owing to a deflection or refraction of light; hence, a stick when put in the water, appears to be bent or broken; a piece of money, at the bottom of a basin, appears to be raised when water is poured upon it. In order to illustrate the above, I have to remark, that the objects in these cases are not changing their direction; they never diverge either to the right or left; the plane that contains the eye and the object, is a vertical or upright plane; and a ray when being refracted in the ordinary manner never leaves this plane. From the above the intelligent reader will comprehend the phenomenon of objects, when viewed through refracting media; quitting more or less their real places, or changing their direction either to the right or left; how also the Sun and Stars, on account of the refracting power of the atmosphere, are brought under the focus of the eye, before they actually rise at, and after they have disappeared beneath the horizon.

From the preceding axioms we learn, that on account of the great distance of objects, and the progressive motion of the light, celestial phenomena are not visible till a certain time after they have occurred; and that owing to the great refractive power of the atmosphere, they appear to the eye as thrown out of their real places; stars in the zenith are excepted. The relative position of the surface of the refractor effects or influence the final direction of a refracted ray of light, both at its point of entrance and exit. By the phenomenon of rays being refracted at conver surfaces, they may be conveyed to, or concentrated in a focus, as it is done by a common lens (a glass spherically convex). The rays are in these cases being refracted in a manner as if every one of them fell upon a plane surface tangent to the curve at the point of incidence. There is a certain point, where the angle of refraction comes to an end at which the ray does not rise from a medium, but is entirely reflected without; the light thus reflected is very brilliant. The refractive power is not only influenced or affected by the density or compactness of bodies, but also by their chemical nature, and as we know from chemical and optical observations, combustible or inflammable substances have the greatest power of refraction.

Regarding compounds the power of refraction is not the mean deduced from that of their components, but it is merely found in mixtures, sulphers, phosphorus, hydrogen, diamond, amber, bees-wax, oil of turpentine, &c., have refractive powers from two to seven times greater in regard to their density or compactness than those of most other substances. When a congeries of rays of light has fallen on the surfaces of bodies, a part of them, and sometimes nearly the whole is reflected, and the greater the oblique angle is in which the light is thrown on the surface, the greater is the portion reflected. As soon as that optical phenomenon has taken place, the angle of incidence is equal to the angle of reflection.

One of the most astonishing properties of light is velocity which some had supposed to be instantaneous, but astronomical and optical observations show that it takes eight months and thirteen seconds for a ray of light to move from the sun to the earth. Considering the great enormous distance between our globe and that grand luminary we find that light is traveling at the rate of 102,000 miles in a second. Herschel says, it performs the tour of the world in about the time that it requires to wink with our eyelids, and in much less than a swift runner occupies in taking a single stride. In order to make the reader understand better the marvellous velocity of light, we will compare it with the progress of sound. From Acoustics, the science speaking of the theory of sounds, we know that sound travels at the rate of about 1000 feet in a second, or 760 miles in an hour. The peculiar phenomena connected with a gun being fired off at a distance, make the slow progress of light more distinct. We generally see the flash some time before we hear the report. Regarding electric discharges during thunder storms, we calculate their distance and course by knowing the time that elapses between seeing a flash of lightning and hearing the thunder. Although the sun is a million times larger than our globe, he appears when viewed by us owing to the great distance interveing, of the size of the moon, whose diameter is but 2160, that of our planet 8700, and that of the sun 882,000 miles, so that the proportion of the moon's diameter to that of the earth is like 1:4, and of the earth's to that of the sun like 1,100. It would take a cannon ball, supposing it to be moving at the maximum rate of its speed, twenty years in reaching the sun. In order to illustrate better the enormous velocity of light, I will introduce another instance regarding sound. If an inhabitant of the sun would speak to us, and the atmosphere be a sufficient medium of transmitting sound through the planetary spares of a distance of 95 millions of miles, the sound would not reach us in less than 19 years and 87 days, whereas a flash of lightning emitted from that distant luminary would come within reach of our vision in eight minutes and thirteen seconds. From the above facts we infer that certain astromical phenomena are not seen by us, till a certain time after they occur.

THE MORMON.

There are some other interesting phenomena connected with light such as the polarization, the decomposition of light, the Aurora Borealis, the Prismatic spectran, &c., which I shall take particular pleasure in illustrating before the reader at some other time.

Letter from Eld. Levi Savage, Jr.

NEW YORK, March 17, 1856.

TO ELDER TAYLOR,—Dear Brother: Having lately returned from a mission to the East Indies, I take my pen to relate a few incidents in my travels to, and through a portion of that benighted land. It is not my intention, in this communication, to give a full discription of the country, nor of the customs of the people among whom I travelled. At the conference held in Great Salt Lake City, October 6th, 1852, I was appointed to accompany twelve other Elders to the East Indies. Of this company, Elder Ludington, and myself, on the 22d of the same month, were, I believe, the last to leave our homes. We took the Southern route to California, travelled leasurely through the settlements of the Saints, held meetings and rejoiced with them in the everlasting Gospel, and in the prospects of its being carried to the utmost parts of the earth; and Elders appointed to different parts, joined us, until our company was increased in number to 33. Soon after we left the settlements Elder N. V. Jones was taken dangerously ill, which detained us a few days, but by the power of God through the administration of his servants he was miraculously restored to health. We arrived in San Bernardino, 3d Dec., disposed of our teams to the Saints, and by water proceeded to San Francisco where we arrived 6th of Jan. 1853.

The Saints here contributed liberally to defray the expenses of the Elders to their different places of destination, $6000, I was informed, was given by Bro. John Horner. We, thirteen in number, engaged our passages to Calcutta for $200 each, and sailed on the 29th of Jan. The second day out, Elder Ballantyne, and myself were taken with the smallpox, and closely confined to our room for three weeks, but by the blessings of God, we were restored without much of the effects of that terrible disease being stamped upon our features, except this we had a pleasant passage, and arrived in the famous city, April 26th.

From this place the Elders went to different parts of the country; Elder Ludington, and myself, after many fruitless attempts to engage a passage to Siam, finally engaged one on the Government steamer to Rangoon, Burmah, and sailed on the 15th of June. The second day out we were overtaken by a severe storm, which threatened our destruction; the boat made much water; the pumps choked so that they were nearly useless, and great confusion ensued; the most of her cargo was thrown over board and her course directed for Calcutta again, where we arrived on the 23d, and were obliged to wait the repairs of the steamer until July 30th, when we sailed again and arrived in Rangoon, Aug. 10th, entirely penniless.

Here we met with Elder McCune, who, formerly had raised a small branch here, but some had moved away and others apostatised until none were left but himself. His house was opened for meetings, and we commenced our labors, but the people here were too pious to listen to "the detestable Mormons, and their dogmas;" as they were pleased to say; consequently it was only occasionly that we had hearers. It was now deemed wisdom that I should go to Maulmain another place in possession of the English, where no Elder had been, accordingly, on the 28th of Sept., I left for that place. I put up at an hotel kept by Mr. Jefferson and exerted myself to spread the gospel. I endeavored to obtain a house to hold meetings in, distributed a few tracts, and visited every European house in which I had the least hopes of being received; for my labors and good desires for their well-fare I was treated with the greatest contempt. I called upon Colonel Johnson, requesting of him the privilige of preaching to the soldiers; but his reply was, "no not a bit of it, and if I catch you within my jurisdiction, by God I'll put you under guard." I also visited the American Baptist Missionaries, the President of whom is Mr. Simons, said to me, "any one that goes about preaching the doctrine of Joe Smith ought to be put in jail." Others said our principles were of the blackest kind, and from the lowest regions of hell; and that I was one of the devils imps; and this spirit was even enfused into their children, so much so that they would climb on to the fence, and boot me as I was quietly walking the streets; saying, "there goes a Mormon; you are a Mormon; you look like a monkey," &c.

Perceiving that the Europeans of every class, white or black, (for there are hundreds of the last mentioned hue, both male and female, many of whom live and dress in native stile, who will tell you that their father was a European of rank, captain, squire, magistrate, governor, a missionary or minister of the gospel) rejected my testimony. I turned the most of my attention to the Burmah language, and if possible to introduce the gospel among the natives. I made many fruitless attempts to get a few of our first principles translated; went several trips into the country; visited numerous villages; witnessed many of their festivals, recreations, modes of worship, and funeral processions; and in nearly every capacity have seen the people in their native stile. In consequence of the excessive heat, heavy rains, and swampy situation of the country, infested with wild and ferocious beasts, these journies were attended with some danger, and great exposures; and my fare was of the pure native kind.

My principle home was with Mr. Jefferson, where, during my stay, I was kindly treated by all in the family. September, 1854, Elder N. V. Jones came from Calcutta, and with him I returned to Rangoon, where during the past year a small branch had been raised. From here Elder Jones, and myself, went a tour of three or four days into the country, after which he returned to Calcutta leaving me again without the society of any of the American Elders.

Here I baptised a few, taught school four months, and obtained a sufficient knowledge of the language to enable me to converse tolerably well in common conversation, and to translate short sentences. I also obtained a tolerably correct knowledge of the religious notions of the Burmese, and their ideas of the pre-existence and future of man, and the formation of the earth. Their morals are generally good, they are hospitable to strangers, but very tenacious to their religion, believing none to be right, except their own; I could make numerous friends among them, but not one had the least inclination to believe a word of my message to them; consequently I decided upon returning home. In June, 1855, I embarked for Calcutta, where I remained until Oct. 12th, during which time I baptised one, when I embarked for Boston. We had a pleasent passage, except an extremely heavy gale of the Cape of Goodhope, and some severe weather on this coast, and landed Feb. 28th, 1856.

I am truly thankful to my Heavenly Father for his kind protection, and for safely landing me in good health on my native shores, where I can again enjoy the sweet society of the Saints, whom I so dearly love.

With pleasure I subscribe myself your servant and brother in the new and Everlasting Covenant. ELDER L. SAVAGE, JR.

The Explosion of Fort Nicholas.

General Codrington sends the following dispatch:

"SEBASTOPOL, Feb. 4, 1856.

"TO THE LORD PANMURE—My Lord: Marshal Pellissier informed me a few days ago that this day Fort Nicholas would be destroyed; and he sent again to say that at 1 o'clock, P. M., the mines for this purpose would be fired.

"The view over the whole harbor is well obtained from the interior slope of the Redan Hill, and from other points within the Russian lines.

"The day was magnificently clear; every sentry on the opposite side could be seen; every working party watched every soldier that was seen lounging in the sun; occasional shot and shell were sent from the enemy to the Karabelnaia and the town, but otherwise nothing disturbed the usual appearance of quiet, almost of desolation.

"On our (the south) side, we looked down on the large ruined barracks in front, on the inner creek of the dock-yard, the quay and the remains of Fort Paul, the spacious inlet from the harbor on our left, beyond which stand the roofless buildings of Sebastopol itself. There is also the well remembered long line of pointed arches, the casemates of the interior of Fort Nicholas, of which the embrasures in double tier pointed to seaward and away from us.

"It juts into the harbor, built on an inner tongue of land; Fort Constantine forming a similar but more outward defense for the sea approach on the north."

"The scene and feeling of expectation were of great interest, for another tangible proof of power and success was to take place, and 106,000 pounds of powder were in the several mines.

"At the hour named a burst of smoke, dark and thick, rolled from the left of our building; it was followed by an other; the heavy sound arrived the stones were shot into the air and to the sea; the explosions of the extreme right and the centre mingled at little intervals into one drifting cloud which vailed the destruction below.

"The light of the sun played beautifully on the mass of smoke, of which the lower part lay long and heavily on its victim. The breeze passing it away over the remains of the town showed that a low line of ruin was all that remained of the pride of Fort Nicholas, and one standing menace of the harbor lay buried under its waters.

"The state of the docks has been given in detail in my letters. They are all destroyed while the earth surrounding them is shaken into cracks; basin, docks, masses of broken granite, capstans, beams of iron and of timber are tumbled into one mass of destruction.

"I am, &c., W. J. CODRINGTON, Gen'l Commanding."

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 19, 1856.

The Senate passed the Military Academy Appropriation Bill.

Mr. Clayton concluded his remarks on Central American affairs. He stated, on the authority of Mr. Vanderbilt, the President of the Transit Company, that there never was any act on the part of that Company which in any manner encouraged Walker's invasion to Nicaragua.

He referred to Walkers seizure of the Company's property, amounting to nearly $1,000,000, and read letters from Mr. Vanderbilt to Secretary Marcy, in which the former asks for the interposition of the United States Government for redress.

The seizure was made on the ground that the Company was indebted to Nicaragua. He (Mr. Vanderbilt) denied such alleged indebtedness, and refused to submit to the award of arbitrators, as the charges were utterly false.

Mr. Clayton spoke against arbitrating the Central American question with Great Britain. Did not think the present moment opportune for giving notice to Great Britain to recall her Central American Possessions, thought she might be brought to honest action by argument, meanwhile he recommended fortifying the coast and should the United States be driven to the alternative disgraceful submission or war—of course fighting must be done.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Kansas affairs were up again and Mr. Dunn's proposition, which provides that the Speaker appoint a Committee of three of the members of the House to proceed to Kansas to take testimony; appropriating $10,000 to pay their expenses, and requesting the President to give them military protection if necessary, was adopted, by 101 against 92.

Adjourned.

SENATE. March 20.

Mr. Douglas replied to Mr. Trumbull. The Senate Chamber was densely crowded.

Ladies came in and took possession of the reporters' seats, rendering note taking impossible.

Mr. Douglas took the floor in reply to Mr. Trumbull, and said he regarded his collegue's opening the debate the other day as a violation of that parliamentary courtesy which gives the chairman of a committee the privilege.

Mr. Douglas spoke on Kansas affairs, and spoke to Mr. Trumbull. The latter replied and hoped he should never be drawn to petty squables again.

Mr. Seward submitted a substitute for Mr. Douglas's bill, to provide for the admission of Kansas as a State.

Mr. James, of Rhode Island, reported a bill for the prevention of frauds in the collection of the revenue, and for other purposes.

Mr. James, in explanation of the bill, avowed himself an advocate of free trade as far as can be carried out in conformity with the legitimate laws of trade, and consistently with the common interests of the country. Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Cambell (Ohio), from the committee of ways and means, reported the navy appropriation bill.

Mr. Benson, from the committee on naval affairs reported the Senate bill for the construction of 10 sloops of war, with amendment providing that the Secretary of the Navy may, in his discretion, cause two of them to be built with side wheels, with a view to the greatest attainable speed.

Mr. Brenton spoke against the extension of slavery, and at 2 P. M. the House adjourned till Monday.

SENATE. March 24.

On motion of Mr. Seward, of N. Y., the President was called upon to communicate all the information in possession of the Executive relative to revolutionary proceedings in Nicaragua, especially concerning the seizure of the property of the Nicaragua Transit Company.

On motion of Mr. Seward, the Library Committee were instructed to consider the expediency of some legislative recognition of the eminent services of the expedition under Dr. Kane to the Arctic regions.

On motion of Mr. Weller, the Pacific Railroad bill was made the special order for April 14.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Speaker announced the Kansas investigating Committee: Messrs. Campbell, of Ohio; Howard, of Michigan; and Oliver, of Missouri.

The joint resolution to give the new members of Congress books equal in value to those which members of former Congress have received, after debate was passed. The value of the books for each member is about one thousand dollars.

Adjourned.

SENATE. March 25.

Mr. Mason of Va. gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to amend the act remodeling the diplomatic and consular system.

Mr. Hunter of Va. reported a bill to provide for the reception at the United States offices of Spanish milled and Mexican quarters, eighths and sixteenths of a dollar, at 20, 10 and 5 cents, and making such coin, at these rates, legal tender for all sums not exceeding five dollars. The bill also provides for the recoining of these pieces as fast as they come into possession of the government. It also authorizes the President to issue a proclamation legalizing a new cent piece, to be formed by an alloy of copper with some other metal.

Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion of Mr. Walker, of Ala., the Judiciary Committee was instructed to inquire whether the Kansas Investigating Committee have power to coerce the attendance of witnesses, and punish for contempt.

Mr. Campbell of Ohio, asked the House to excuse him from serving at the head of the Commission to proceed to Kansas. He found that this new position would involve very arduous and important services entirely incompatible with the duties assigned him as chairman of the Committee of Ways and means. Mr. C. was excused, and Mr. Sherman appointed to fill the vacancy.

SENATE. March 26.

On motion of Mr. Butler, of S. C., the Post Office Committee was instructed to inquire into the expediency of discontinuing to members of Congress the franking privilege, and in lieu thereof of allowing money for the payment of postage. Also, authorizing the Committee, if it see fit, to report a bill regulating the postage on letters and packages that members may transmit.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House debated the Senate's bill removing the restriction on the federal courts, to confine persons guilty of violation of the laws of the United States in penitentiaries within the judicial district where convicted.

Mr. Humphrey Marshall offered an amendment, as follows: "Where the use of the penitentiary is denied by any State, it shall be the duty of the Marshal to confine the criminal in the nearest penitentiary granted for that purpose."

Mr. Barbour proposed, as an amendment to the above, that no proceeding other than the act of the Legislature should be construed into a refusal of the State to allow the use of her prisons for such purposes.

The former amendment was rejected by 24, and the latter by 10 majority. Adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

Accident on the Baltimore and Philadelphia Railroad.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19, 1856.

A collision occurred between two freight trains on the Baltimore and Philadelphia Railroad last near Havre de Grace. George Godwin, the conductor, and Wm. Todd, brakeman, were killed. A drover named Flynn was injured. The deceased have each left a family to mourn their loss.

Accident on the Hudson River Railroad.

ALBANY, March 19, 1856.

The train which left New York at 12 o'clock today on the Hudson River Railroad, was thrown from the track when about 3 miles below this city, by the breaking of some of the running gear of the first passenger car. The first and second passenger cars were pitched down an embankment into a field landing bottom up.

George B. Woodbridge, Seargeant-at-Arms of the Legislature, had both legs broken; Joseph Ranney of Greenbush, one leg broken; Reuben Ellis of New York, injured internally; a Mr. Ellis, from Fair Haven, N. Y., ankle broken; a lady (name unknown) was severely burned by the stove. Many others were slightly injured.

Marine Disasters.

BOSTON, March 19, 1856.

A letter dated Coast of Africa, Feb. 5, reports the loss of the whaling schooner Mountain Spring of Provincetown, which was capsized in Cintra Bay, January 8. Her master, Capt. Young, a boatsteerer named Center, and a cabin boy named Miller, were saved; all the rest on board perished.

HALIFAX, March 19, 1856.

The brig Peerless, Hilton, seventy days from Cardiff, bound to New York, put in here yesterday short of provisions. Spoke brig Erie on the 17th, twenty miles south of Sambro, sixty days from St. Domingo, bound to Berlin, short of provisions. She had lost all her crew with the exception of three, and intended putting into Liverpool, N. S.

Ship Cape Cod—Fire at Yarmouth, Me.

BOSTON, March 20, 1856.

The ship Cape Cod, reported as abandoned at sea by the Persia, was insured in State street, this city for over $100,000.

The Cotton mill in Yarmouth, Maine, was destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss, $65,000. Insured $25,000.

The Ohio River.

WHEELING, March 20 1856.

The ice in the river is entirely broken up and is rapidly clearing away. Steamers are leaving for Cincinnati and carrying off the large accumulations of freight. Between here and Pittsburgh the river is still closed.

Mr. Everett at Richmond.

BALTIMORE, March 20, 1856.

Mr Everett's lecture at Richmond last night attracted a very large audience. At the close of it he was complimented by speeches from Governor Wise and ex-President Tyler.

Death of Commodore Conner.

PHILADELPHIA, March 21, 1856.

Commodore David Conner died here yesterday.

Governorship of Wisconsin.

MILWAUKIE, March 22, 1856.

Mr. Barstow sent a message to the Assembly this morning, resigning the office of Governor.

Pending the solution of a constitutional question which has been raised as to the remainder of the term, the Lieut. Governor is acting as Governor of the State.

Launch of the Minnehaha.

BOSTON, March 22, 1856.

The new three deck ship, of 1,800 tons, named Minnehaha, was successfully launched from the yard of her builder, Donald McKay, Esq., at noon to-day. A collation followed the launch, at which were present General John S. Tyler, professor Lonfellow, and others, who made short addresses. Mrs. Barrow also repeated passages from "Hiawatha." The whole affair passed off very pleasantly and agreeably.

Murder at Camden, New Jersey.

PHILADELPHIA, March 23, 1856.

Mr. William J. Hatch, a member of the Camden Common Council, was shot, this morning, by a party of gunners, whom he had ordered to leave his premises, at Cooper's Point. The murderers were arrested and committed.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24, 1856.

The version of the murder at Camden, yesterday, is quite different to the first representation. Those who were gunning at Cooper's Point were Frenchmen, and not Germans, and are represented to be quiet, harmless men; but Hatch, the man who owned the ground where the Frenchmen were amusing themselves, is reported to have attacked the strangers, and by force wanted to deprive them of their guns, instead of explaining to them the law, which is rather stringent in Jersey, and in wresting the gun from the trespasser it went off and killed Hatch. It is said that Mr. Hatch has been rather arbitrary in his manners, and very unpopular in his neighborhood.

Four Children Murdered.

SYRACUSE, March 25, 1856.

A woman named Ward residing near Bridgeport, Madison County, yesterday murdered her four children by cutting their throats with an axe. She then made an unsuccessful attempt to cut her own throat. The cause of the act is said to be the neglect and brutality of her husband.

The Ohio River.

PITTSBURGH, March 24, 1856.

Navigation is now open. There is ten feet of water in the river at a stand. The ice commenced moving on Saturday night, and did no injury to the shipping. The weather is clear and cool.

Nomination for Mayor of Albany.

ALBANY, March 24, 1856.

The Democrats have nominated Judge Parker as the Democratic candidate for Mayor.

The Governorship of Wisconsin.

MILWAUKIE, March 25, 1856.

The Supreme Court yesterday issued a writ of ouster against Mr. Barstow, and established Mr. Bashford's claim to the Governorship.

Mr. Bashford took possession of the Executive Chamber this morning, and sent a message to the Senate, the Assembly having previously adjourned, to prevent its reception. Mr. McArthur, the Lieutenant Governor, (who assumed the duties of Governor upon the resignation of Mr. Barstow,) refused to give way to Mr. Bashford, and asked the latter if force would be used. Mr. Bashford replied, "Yes, if necessary."

MILWAUKIE, March 26, 1856.

The Lower House of the Legislature re-assembled this morning, and by a vote of 38 to 34 refused to recieve Mr. Bashford's message.

Renouncing Spiritualism.

J. F. WHITNEY, the editor of the New York Pathfinder, who has been a leading Spiritualist, renounces the doctrine. The following is an extract from his article:—

"Seeing as we have, the gradual progress it makes with its believers—particularly its mediums—from a life of morality to that of sensuality and immorality, gradually and cautiously undermining the fountain of good principles, we look with amazement to the radical changes which a few months bring about in individuals, for its tendencies are to approve and endorse each individual act and character, however good or bad those acts may be.

"We desire to send forth our warning voice, and if our humble position as the head of a public journal, our known advocacy of Spiritualism, our experience and the conspicuous part we have played among its believers, the honesty and fearlessness with which we have defended the subject, will weigh anything in our favor, we desire that our opinion may be received, and those who are moving passively down the rushing rapids to destruction, should pause ere it be too late, and save themselves from the blasting influence which these manifestations are causing."

Loss of Life in Steamboats.

The Post, in giving some statistics on this point, says:

Two hundred and twenty-nine accidents have occurred to steamers subject to the law of 1852, (requiring inspection, &c.,) between the 31st of May, 1853, when it went into operation, and 30th September, 1855. Of these, two hundred and twenty-nine accidents, forty-two occurred on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and contiguous bays, and one hundred and seventy-seven on the inland lakes and rivers.

The causes of accidents in eighty-six cases were ascertained, and thirty-six of these were traceable either to direct mismanagement or neglect of rules on the part of vessels coming into collision with them. As a result of these accidents, six hundred and ninety-six passengers and two hundred and ninety-one of the crews lost their lives.

From other sources, we obtain the results of the loss of thirteen international steamships, which, at the time of their accidents, had an aggregate of upwards of seven thousand passengers, and property to the amount of eleven millions of dollars, on board. Four of these—the North Carolina, San Francisco, City of Glasgow and Arctic—were lost at sea, and produced a profound impression at the time of their respective losses. The remaining nine were stranded under circumstances which, in most instances, appear to have been avoidable.

There has been an immense struggle for speed, and in this competition, in which the shortest route across the Atlantic, regardless of its dangers, was taken, the Collins line has been successful; but at how great a sacrifice!

Slaves for Kansas.

THE Highflyer, in this morning from Louisville, brought between fifty and sixty slaves, belonging to families who are on their way from Kentucky to Kansas. The slaves who came in the Highflyer consisted of persons of all ages, sexes and shades of color, and were a good looking, well dressed and apparently well fed party, and came as cabin passengers. Since the opening of the river full five hundred slaves have arrived from the Ohio river, on their way to Kansas. The J. H. Lucus took up nearly 100, the Star of the West 100, the Chambers 50 to 75, and almost every boat that has started up the Missouri river since the opening of the river, has taken up a larger or smaller number. The slaves are in almost every case taken in the cabin, while poor white families, going to the same place, take passage below or on deck. One gentleman from South Carolina, who, with his family, went up in the Star of the West last week, had fifty slaves in the cabin, and another thirty, and still another had twenty.—[St. Louis News, March 21.

Statistics of English and French Agriculture.

SOME interesting statistics relative to the agriculture of France and England were given in a lecture delivered a few days since in Cornwall, by M. R. de la Trehonnais. In England, out of 50,000,000 acres cultivated, 10,000,000 are sown to wheat or other cereal crops, while in France 50,000,000 were cultivated for that purpose. The average growth of wheat per acre in England is 4 quarters, and in France only 1 3-5 quarters; while the produce of English land is about £3 4s. per acre, and that of France £1 12s. per acre. The number of sheep grown in each country is about 35,000,000, and the wool produced 60,000 tons; but owing to the difference in the acreage, there is something less than 1½ sheep per acre in England, and only about ⅓ of a sheep per acre in France. In France there are annually slaughtered 4,000,000 of cattle, the average weight of each being 2 cwt.; while in England there is not half the number slaughtered, but the average weight is 5 cwt.

HORRIBLE MURDER.—We have to record, says the Norfolk Argus, of the 24th instant, one of the most ferocious and diabolical murders ever perpetrated. On Monday night last, Mr. Edward Harwood, an estimable citizen and merchant, residing near Charles City, C. H., was murdered by a negro man belonging to Mr. James H. Christian. He deliberately entered Mr. H.'s store, and beat his brains out with a bar of iron. He then made an attack on a negro woman, at whom he shot with a pistol. A Mr. Gregory, who was passing at the time, hearing of the affair, succeeded in having the villain arrested. After the murder he stole about $30 from the drawer of the murdered man.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

Nov. 29, 1855.

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb.	$0 40
do clarified "	40
do brown "	40
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	40
Tea, Young Hyson "	2 00
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	2 00
Tea, black, per lb.	2 00
Apples, dried, per lb.	40
Peaches " "	50
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb.	75
Allspice "	50
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	50
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	40
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	50
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	75
Brimstone "	40
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	75
Candy "	1 00
Candles, 6 to the lb.	50
Figs, per lb.	75
Cloves, per oz.	15
Nutmegs "	20
Oysters, per can	2 00
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	2 00
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 50
do pints "	1 00
Lemon Syrup "	1 50
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	20
do 10x12 "	30
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	20
Pepper "	20
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb.	$0 30
Glue "	75
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	25
Copperas "	30
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	75
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	40
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $4 pr lb. or pr oz	20
Gum Camphor, per oz.	15
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	15
Turkey Opium "	1 00
Golden Seal "	15
Liquorice, per lb.	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal.	6 00
Linseed Oil "	8 00
Copal Varnish "	10 00
Whale Oil "	8 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	1 00
do do do	50
Mustang Liniment, p bot	50
Rope, sea grass, per lb.	50
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGaffy's 1st Reader	25
do 2d do	40
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$3 10
do boys', handled	2 50
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	3 00
Shovels	3 25
do steel plated	3 00
Grain Scythes	3 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 00
Two prong Hay Forks	2 00
Three do do	2 50
Four do dung do	3 50
Hoes	1 25
Concave Augers, per ¼	25
Bitts "	25
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 50
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb.	1 00
Flat Irons "	30
Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	30
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	85
Sand Paper, pr 3 sheets.	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb.	35
SCREWS. Size.	Gross
¼ inch	1 00
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 50
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	20
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1¼	20
1½	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	50
10 do	20
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box.
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Hat, 250	1 00
Powder, per lb.	80
Lead "	40
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	8 00
Fine do	10 10
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 00
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 50
do do Low	2 75
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to.	2 20
Kacks	50
Sole Leather, per lb.	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to.	2 50
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz.	75
Oil Cassia "	1 00
Oil Peppermint "	1 00
Oil Lemon "	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 16¾ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	50
Ticking	40
Blue Drilling	25
Denims	30
Cotton Batten, per roll	20
do Yarn, per 5 lb.	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb.	35
Eggs, per doz.	30
Cheese, per lb.	25
Bacon, smoked. per lb.	35
Shoulder "	30
Ham "	35
Middle "	40
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 05
Oats "	1 50
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar-cured Beef, pr lb.	30
Beef, fresh, per lb.	9
Mutton "	12½
Tongues, each	50
Tallow, per lb.	20
Lard "	30
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $4 to	5 00
Adobies, per 100	30
Stone, per cord	12 00
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	8 00

Mormonism in New York.

THE LATTER DAY SAINTS intend holding Meetings in this City every Sunday, at the Broadway House, entrance 116 Grand street, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., 3 P. M., and 7 in the evening.

All who wish to become acquainted with the principles of Salvation, as taught by Apostles and Prophets, ancient and modern, are respectfully invited to attend.

Mormon Books.

WE have received, and have for sale, the following Books, and at the annexed prices:

Book of Mormon, roan	1 25
Doctrines and Covenants	1 00
Spencer's Letters, cloth bound—O. Spencer	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
Voice of Warning—P. P. Pratt	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
do do calf gilt, do	1 25
Government of God—J. Taylor	0 50
Pearl of Great Price—F. D. Richards	0 37½
Livre de Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Das Buch Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Zion's Panier—J. Taylor—per No	0 12½
Etoile du Deseret—J. Taylor—per No	0 12½
Route to Salt Lake, illustrated—Piercy & Linforth—per No	0 40

St. Louis Book Agency.

J. S. CANTWELL, southwest corner of Washington avenue and Sixth street, St. Louis, Mo., has for sale, at the usual prices, the following books and pamphlets:

Book of Mormon, German; Voice of Warning, German; Voice of Warning, French; Martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and expulsion from Nauvoo; Route to Salt Lake Illustrated, in 14 monthly parts; Book of Mormon; Book of Doctrine and Covenants; Voice of Warning; Spencer's Letters; Hymn Books; Government of God, by J. Taylor; New Jerusalem, or the Fulfilment of Modern Prophecy; Divine Authority of Joseph Smith; Remarkable Visions; Only Way to be Saved; Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, by O. Pratt, 6 parts; Polygamy, by a Lady in Utah; The Seer, by O. Pratt, Vol. I., to which is added 6 parts of Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and Polygamy, by a Lady of Utah, elegantly bound, in one vol.; Orson Pratt's Works, bound; Times and Seasons, Vols. IV., V., and VI., well bound; Portraits of the First Presidency; Journal of Discourses, well bound; Millennial Star, Vol. XVII.

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to March 28, 1856.

ASHES—Pot per 100 lb.	6 25 a — —
Pearl	7 75 a 8 —
CANDIES—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted per lb.	— a —
Ordinary	— a —
CANDLES—Sperm per lb.	38 a 40
Adamantine	24 a 29
Mould, yellow	13½ a 14
COFFEE—Java, white	14 a 14½
Mocha	— a 16
Laguayra	11 a 12½
Maracaibo	11 a 13
St. Domingo (cash)	— a 10½
DRUGS AND DYES—Alcohol pr. gal.	— 62 a — 68
Alum per lb.	— 2¼ a — 2½
Arrowroot	— 50 a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— — a — 2½
Asafœtida	— 5 a — 25
Borax, refined	— 28 a — 28½
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2¼ a — —
do crude per ton.	30 — a 32 —
Camphor, crude per lb.	— 24 a — 24½
do refined	— 35 a — —
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 75 a 1 80
Chlorate Potash	— 37½ a — 40
Cochineal	— 80 a 1 20
Copper—sheathing per lb.	— 23 a — 27
Copperas per 100 lb.	1 25 a — —
Cream Tartar per lb.	— 30½ a — 31
Gum Arabic, picked	— 18 a — 37½
Gum Copal	— 40 a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 25 a — 30
Iodine, resublimized	5 10 a — —
Ipecacuanha	2 12½ a 2 25
Madder	— 11 a — 12
Magnesia	— 14 a — 16
Do calcined	— 30 a — 35
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 18 a — 19
Oil Anis	7 50 a 8 —
Oil Bergamot	2 — a 2 25
Oil Cassia	— — a 3 50
Oil Lemon	2 — a 2 25
Oil Peppermint	2 75 a 3 —
Opium, Turkey	4 25 a 4 37½
Otto Rose per oz.	3 50 a 6 50
Oxalic Acid per lb.	— 33 a — 34
Phosphorus	1 — a 1 —
Quicksilver	— 43 a — —
Rhubarb, China	1 55 a 1 60
Saleratus	— 5¼ a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10 a — 11
Senna	— 11 a — 14
Shellac	— 11 a — 14
Sugar Lead, white	— 14 a — 16
do brown	— 9¼ a — 10
Sulphate Quinine	2 55 a 2 65
Tartaric Acid	— 44 a — 45
Verdigris	— 41 a — 42
Vitriol, blue	— 10 a — 10½
DYE WOODS—Camwood per ton.	100 — a 110 —
Fustic	17 — a 30 —
Logwood	21 — a 28 —
FLOUR—State, common per bbl.	6 62½ a 6 68
Michigan and Indiana	7 — a 7 25
Genesee, extra	8 50 a 10 50
Rye Flour	4 25 a 5 —
Corn Meal	3 37½ a 4 —
FRUIT—Raisins per box.	2 25 a 3 37½
Raisins, layers	— — a 3 50
Currants per lb.	— 15 a — 23
GLASS (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10 per 50 feet.	3 25 a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75 a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 — a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50 a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 — a 7 50
GRAIN—Wheat per bush.	1 65 a 2 —
Corn, round yellow	— 64 a — 70
Barley	1 20 a 1 30
Oats, Western	— 43 a — 46
Beans	2 25 a — —
GUNPOWDER per 25 lbs.	3 50 a 6 50
INDIGO per lb.	— 90 a 1 30
IRON—Pig, Eng., Scot per ton.	35 — a 36 —
Bar, Eng. refined	67 50 a 70 —
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality per lb.	— 18 a — 18½
Sheet, Eng.	— 3¼ a — 4½
LEAD—Galena per 100 lbs.	7 — a 7 12½
Sheet and Pipe	— 8¼ a — —
LEATHER per lb.	20 a 31
MOLASSES per gal.	33 a 44
NAILS—Cut, 4d and 6d per lb.	4½ a —
Wrought, 6d and 20d	6 a 7½
OILS—Olive per bskt., 12 bottles.	3 62½ a 3 75
Olive, in casks per gallon.	1 20 a 1 25
Linseed	— 85 a — —
Whale	— 80 a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95 a 1 —
PAINTS—Lead, red, Am. per lb.	— 7½ a — 8
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— 8½ a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8¼ a — —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	1 — a 1 62½
Ochre, in oil	— 4 a — 6
Spanish Brown, dry per cwt.	— 60 a — 75
Litharge per lb.	— 7½ a — 8½
Vermilion, Chinese	— 90 a — —
Venetian Red per cwt.	2 — a 2 37½
RICE per 100 lbs.	4 — a 4 75
SALTPETRE per lb.	8 a 18
SEEDS—Clover per lb.	— — a — 13½
Flax, American, rough per bush.	2 — a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	2 25 a — —
SOAP—New York per lb.	4½ a 7
Castile	11 a 11½
SPICES—Ginger, Race per lb.	5 a 5½
Mace	85 a 90
Nutmegs	91 a 95
Pepper	10 a 11½
Pimento	12 a 12½
Cloves (cash)	13 a 13½
SUGAR—New Orleans per lb.	7½ a 9
Havana, white	9 a 9½
do brown	7½ a 8½
Stuart's crushed	— a 10½
SUMAC, Sicily per ton.	72 50 a 82 50
TEAS—Gunpowder and Imperial per lb.	35 a 75
Hyson	30 a 80
Young Hyson	32 a 70
Hyson Skin	20 a 35
Black	22 a 50
TIN—Banca per lb.	— a 31½
Straits	29 a 29
Plates per box.	9 — a 10 50
TOBACCO	7 a 43½
TURPENTINE per 280 lbs.	2 62½ a — —
TAR per bbl.	3 — a 3 25
SPIRITS TURPENTINE per gallon.	— 41 a — 42

INDEMNITY FOR PROPERTY DESTROYED BY MOBS.—The Kentucky Legislature, which adjourned sine die on the 10th inst., previously passed a law making all the cities and towns of the State responsible to the owners of property destroyed by mobs.

NOTICE.—Any person acquainted with the address of MR. STYPHER or STYPHUS, from Nothinghill, London, will oblige G. F. A. Spiller by forwarding the same to him, at Box 333, St. Louis, Mo.

Conference Notice.

THERE will be a Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints held at St. Louis, Mo., commencing on the 6th of April next. All that can, conveniently, are respectfully invited to attend.

Per order,
J. H. HART, Presiding Elder.

A Conference will likewise be held at Philadelphia the same day. The Presiding Elders of branches in this district of country are requested to attend, bringing with them a report of their several branches.

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

WILLIAM N. WHITE & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,
CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, MATTINGS, &c.,
120 Verandah Row, Fourth Street,
ST. LOUIS, MO. mh29–3m

ARTHUR LEITCH,
APOTHECARY AND CHEMIST,
Corner of Fifth and Market Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
American, English and French Drugs, Perfumeries, Brushes, and all articles appertaining to the Toilet. mh29–3m

McMULLAN & MAXWELL'S
STEAM BAKERY MANUFACTORY,
No. 186 South Fourth Street.
Sale Office and Depot, N. W. cor. Vine and Commerce Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Every variety of LOAF AND PILOT BREAD, Boston, Butter, Soda, Sugar, Water and Wine Crackers, manufactured and kept constantly on hand.
Particular attention paid to Steamboats, Hotels and Merchants' orders. mh22–3m

McBRIDE & BOWEN,
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA.,
EMIGRANTS' STORE,
Corner Broadway and Pearl St., opposite Pacific Hotel.
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware, Family Groceries, Provisions, Queensware, Boots and Shoes, Drugs, &c. &c.
ALL GOODS necessary for EMIGRANTS crossing the Plains, or WESTWARD BOUND, at WHOLESALE prices, put up with care, neatness and despatch, at as LOW or LOWER prices than can be bought in Council Bluff City.
Agricultural Implements, Grass and Garden Seeds. All Goods warranted as represented.
mh22–3m McB. & B.

HO! FOR SALT LAKE.
"In Time of Peace Prepare for War."
At the GREAT GUN EMPORIUM of
P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON, No. 25 Main street, (Sign of the Gilt Gun,) east side, St. Louis, Mo.,
Will be found the largest and most complete stock of FIRE ARMS in the Western country.
Emigrants and Trains crossing the plains will find it to their advantage to give us a hearing, as from an experience of twenty-six years in this trade we are enabled to offer inducements which no other house can possibly offer. We know the wants of the people, and are able to supply them to almost any extent. We can offer 10 per cent. inducements to cash buyers. Our stock consists of every variety of Double and Single Guns, Minié Rifles, U. S. Yaugers and Muskets, Sharp's and other breech-loading Rifles, Colt's Revolvers and other Pistols of every description and size. Also, Caps, Ammunition, Swords, Hunting Apparatus, and in fact everything necessary to a complete outfit.
Call and examine before purchasing.
Remember the No—25 Main street, east side.
mh15–6m P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON.

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,
in packages, prepared for Shipping.
Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee, Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8–1y

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!
CHARLES ROGERS,
IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,
No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,
Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.
Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.
mh8–1y CHARLES ROGERS.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,
ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.
The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind which will insure satisfaction.
Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.
Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.
Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven; in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés!" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état stagnant, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système. Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS, St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets,
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines,
Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city.
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
600 bgs. Rio coffee; 60 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
150 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

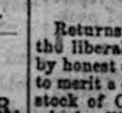
N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26:tf

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

C. D. ELLIS. J. S. CAVENDER. JAS. SMITH, JR.
ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8–4m

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22–1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.



A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10–6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29–6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29–6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment o WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12–1y

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22–6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVIS,
GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

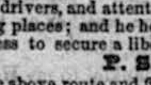
M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

FOR the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. f24 1y

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article. Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread. mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged. d22



W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29–tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.
Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
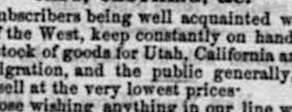
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.



TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Buzby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
We also keep constantly on hand the CELEBRATED SHARP'S PATENT RIFLE, which is the safest and most destructive weapon ever invented, for sale at the Manufacturer's prices, for cash.
Please call and examine for yourselves, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods.
Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S.T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor.
ja9–

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS.
fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 7. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 5, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Happier Days to Come.

BY ELDER JAMES BOND.

'Tis said that the world is progressing
In wisdom and science and light;
That we now the day are possessing,
While our ancestors lived in the night.
We're told of the great rising glory
Of this grand, new, and golden age;
But who shall record the bright story
In the future on history's page?

The march of our civilization
Leaves the traces of tears and of blood;
Its fruit, throughout every nation,
Is evil opposing the good.
The poor are now feeling the anguish
Of woe that's abounding at home;
And millions are sighing, and languish
For the happier days yet to come.

The wise are their wisdom abusing,
In selfishness grounding each plan;
And men all their science are using
In crushing their weak fellow man.
And hope cometh not with the morrow,
To banish the dark clouds of gloom;
But death sings the chorus of sorrow—
Are there happier days yet to come?

But lo! from the mountains is sounding
Glad Freedom's enlivening call;
And anarchy, in its confounding,
With all its proud workers, shall fall!
The world for the struggle is ready,
The time of the conflict is nigh;
Truth comes, and its progress is steady,
And darkness before it shall fall.

The honest in heart, now awaking,
Shall seek unto Zion for light;
The wicked, in fearfulness quaking,
Will see that in right there is might.
For evil shall not rule for ever,
Its triumph will soon all be past;
There is a strong arm to deliver;
It comes, and will save us at last.

Yes! God from the heavens has spoken,
The day of salvation's at hand;
When tyranny's yoke shall be broken,
And liberty bless every land.
Thus science with peace will soon flourish,
Wrong to right shall be made to succumb;
All men shall have rights they will cherish,
Then the happier days will have come!

Influence of the Gulf Stream upon Climates.

Lieutenant Maury, in his "Physical Geography of the Sea," devotes a chapter to the discussion of this interesting subject, and clearly explains the reasons why the climate of Great Britain, Western Europe and the North Atlantic Ocean is so much more genial than that of the same latitudes upon the American continent. He says that the Gulf Stream is nothing more than the conducting pipe of an immense heating apparatus, of which the torrid zone is the furnace and the Mexican Gulf and Caribbean Sea are the caldrons. The maximum temperature of the waters in the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico is ninety degrees. That of the Gulf Stream when it leaves the Gulf is eighty-six, or about nine degrees above that of the ocean in the same latitude. Increasing its latitude ten degrees, it loses but two degrees of temperature and after having run three thousand miles towards the north, it still preserves, even in winter, the heat of summer. With this temperature it crosses the fortieth degree of north latitude, and then, overflowing its liquid banks, spreads itself out for thousands of square leagues over the cold waters around, and covers the ocean with a mantle of warmth. Moving more slowly but dispensing its genial influences more freely, it finally reaches the British Islands, and dividing, one part goes into the polar basin of Spitzbergen, and the other enters the Bay of Biscay, each with a warmth considerably above the ocean temperature.

Such an immense volume of heated water must inevitably carry with it beyond the seas a mild and moist climate. Every west wind that blows across the stream, on its way to Europe, carries with it a part of its heat to temper there the Northern winds of winter. It is the influence of this stream upon climate, that makes Erin the emerald island of the sea, and clothes the shores of Albion in evergreen robes. The gulf stream carries drift wood from the West Indies to the Orkney islands, and its genial influence among those islands, at a latitude of sixty degrees, is said to be such that the ponds in them are seldom frozen in winter. Liverpool, which is two degrees north of the harbor of St. John's, in Newfoundland, is comparatively warm and pleasant. Lieutenant Maury estimates that if the temperature and velocity of the gulf stream are the same, at a depth of two hundred fathoms, as they are at the surface, the quantity of heat discharged over the Atlantic, from its waters, in a winter's day, would be sufficient to raise the whole column of atmosphere that rests upon France and the British islands, from the freezing point to summer heat.

But the beneficial effects of the Gulf Stream are not confined to the diffusion of warmth in those parts of the surface of the earth which it traverses; an all-wise Providence has made it a vehicle for conveying away the surplus heat of Central America and Mexico, which would otherwise make the lowlands of those countries the hottest and perhaps the most pestilential regions in the world. The heated waters of the Carribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico are carried off by the Gulf Stream, and their place supplied by a constant flow of cooler water from the ocean depths. A calculation based upon the difference in the temperatures of the waters which enter the Gulf of Mexico and those which flow from it in the Gulf Stream, show that the quantities of specific heat daily carried off by this huge river, and discharged over the Atlantic, is sufficient to raise mountains of iron from zero to the melting point, and to keep in flow from them a molten stream of metal, greater in volume than the waters discharged from the mouth of the Mississippi river. Who can calculate the benign influence of this wonderful current upon the climate of the South?

Lieutenant Maury says that the Gulf stream is also the great weather breeder of the North Atlantic ocean. The most furious gales sweep along it, and doubtless the fogs of Newfoundland, which endanger navigation in winter, owe their existence to the presence of its volumes of warm water. Inquiries which were set on foot some years ago by the British Admiralty as to the cause of disastrous storms in certain parts of the Atlantic, resulted in the conclusion that they are occasioned by the difference between the temperature of the Gulf stream and that of the neighboring regions. The course of many gales has been traced from the place of their origin directly to the Gulf stream. They have been known to take their rise upon the coast of Africa as far down as the parallel of ten or fifteen degrees north latitude, and crossing the ocean to the Gulf stream, turn about, and travelling along its course, recross the Atlantic, and so reach the shores of Europe. The tracks of storms have been traced out and followed in this way for a week or ten days, and their paths are marked by shipwreck and disaster. Philosophers have never been able to satisfactorily explain why these storms almost always travel towards the Gulf stream, and then joining it, sweep along its current. Even Maury attempts to offer no solution of the mystery.—[Boston Weekly Journal.

Niagara Falls in Winter.

One who has never seen Niagara Falls as they appear in the winter season has yet to look upon one of the grandest scenes the eye can possibly rest upon. During the present winter the appearance of the falls and vicinity has been unusually attractive. The long continued extreme cold began its work in January, and labored diligently in decking all nature near the cataract with its frosty decorations. Huge mounds of frozen spray soon began to tower up here and there; trees and twigs were covered in icy vestments; the rocks were covered with the trace work of frost; while the river itself was choaked in its progress below the falls, with a firm unyielding barricade of ice. During the most severe days of the cold cycle, the display was beyond description. The mild weather which has visited us during the past week has had its effect and has destroyed some of the more delicate of the ice embellishments, still the more substantial and grand decorations remain and afford to the visiter a sight rarely to be looked upon, and we notice that quite a number of strangers arrive daily on their way thither. At present the trees upon Goat Island, during the day time, are divested of their icy armor, the warm rays of the sun proving too much for it. Still, at night, every particle of spray which may touch becomes a very jewel glittering in the moonlight, and the air is filled with dancing sparkles. Then there shoots forth from the trunks of some of the larger trees, upon whose sides have formed heavy masses of frozen spray, all the colors of the prism, and the odd shapes in which the ice has formed, in the gray light, remind one of the fairy grottoes of which we read in our childhood days.

The Horse Shoe fall has not received so finished an embellishment as the American, though a huge conical mound formed of frozen spray comes looming up from the base of the fall, immediately beneath the tower, its top reaching half way to the surface of the bank. From the banks on either side huge stalactites of ice jut out from the crevices in the rocks, and hang glittering in the moonlight.

Up to about ten days since most of the islands which cluster about Goat Island have been visited, and some of them, upon which mortal foot has rarely trod, have been reached. Just below Chapin's Island, on the brink of the falls, and jutting out beyond its edge, there has formed a mound which has been reached by two or three daring persons, and by one party who drove up to its northern side with a horse and cutter. Upon Chapin's Island are displayed various embellishments in the shape of flags, red flannel, weather-cocks, &c., upon which guides will expatiate in glowing terms, during the coming season, to enthusiastic tourists.

In vicinity of the ferry stairs on the American side the view at night is grand in the extreme. At the foot of the stairs, rising up from the river, and quite a distance from the main shore, is a conical mound, similar to the one near the tower, but vastly larger, being over one hundred feet in height—its top round and as symmetrical as though the work of man, and its sides smooth and glittering with the particles of spray congealing as they touch. Standing in some positions, one can see a lunar rainbow, all the colors perfect and distinct, encircling the huge mound, lending addtional charms to it. On the bank at the head of the ferry stairs there has accumlated such a mass of snow and ice as we have never before looked upon. The staircases have been pretty thoroughly blocked up at the lower end and the passage down the steps is rather precarious, at the same excitement. The cars down the staircase have not been run during the winter until day before yesterday, and then only part way down. We notice that the proprietors of the staircases have made quite an improvement in substituting, in place of the heavy rope cables with which the cars are run, cables made entirely of wire. These are in no possible danger of breaking, and are, we are told, much better for the working of the machinery.

From the foot of the staircase one scrambles over hummucks of ice and snow, and by a rather exciting tour of walking, slipping and running, lands upon the solid ice bridge which is formed between the two shores. From the middle of this bridge is presented a view of the whole scene, than which none can be more grand, especially by moonlight. The falls and vicinity have scarcely ever presented so fine an appearance in winter as during this season, and whether we shall ever have an opportunity of witnessing so grand a scene as at present, we wot not, and would therefore recommend to all to improve the present opportunity of visiting them, lest they may never have a like opportunity.—[Buffalo Advertiser, March 22.

I Have no Time to Read.

The idea about the want of time is a mere phantom. Franklin found time in the midst of his labors to dive into the hidden recesses of all his philosophy, and explore the untrodden path of science. The great Frederick, with an empire at his direction, in the midst of war, on the eve of battles which were to decide the fate of his kingdom, found time to revel in the charms of philosophy and intellectual pleasures. Bonaparte, with all Europe at his disposal, with kings in his ante-chamber begging for vacant thrones with thousands of men whose destinies were suspended by the brittle thread of his arbitary pleasure, had time to converse with books. Cæsar, when he had curbed the spirits of the Roman people, and was thronged with visitors from the remotest kingdoms, found time for intellectual conversation. Every man has time,—if he is careful to improve it as well as he might he can reap a three-fold reward. Let mechanics make use of the hours at their disposal, if they want to obtain a proper influence in society. They can, if they please, hold in their hands the destinies of our Republic,—they are numerous, respectable and powerful,—and they have only to be educated half as well as other professions to make laws for the nation.

[Woman's Advocate.

From the New York Evangelist, February 28, 1856.

How to get Good Preaching.

There is a vast deal of preaching done in these United States, and not a little of it is very well done too. Last Sunday some 30,000 preachers delivered some 60,000 sermons in the hearing, as we may safely calculate, of at least 6,000,000 of people. Next Sunday the experiment will be repeated, and again repeated from Sunday to Sunday, till the year runs round, and its solemn account of preaching and hearing is closed up for eternity. It is an immense business therefore, this of preaching, looked at merely upon the surface of it. Even as so much volume of human voice poured forth upon human ears, it is imposing to think of. But, when we consider the sacred, helpful surroundings, the peculiar topics and the proper aim of preaching, the vision of such multitudes concerned in it, and affected by it, becomes one of positive moral grandeur. Such opportunities are without a parallel. The American pulpit, we feel, ought to be a battery of spiritual power overmatched by no other single instrumentality, in all the land. So it ought to be, we say, and so, we believe it is. Not the quantity of preaching alone, but also the quality, is somewhat remarkable. Amongst no other 25,000,000 of people anywhere in the world is there so much of really good preaching, instructive, well-reasoned and elaborate, as here with us. Sermon-making with a large majority of our clergymen, is a definite, sober, settled business, most conscientiously, most dilligently and most ardently pursued from week to week, and from month to month, year in and year out. Sermon-hearing is also a very serious business with our people. They are most decidedly in earnest about it, making great account of their Sunday opportunities. And so it comes about, that we hear a vast deal of able preaching, and get a vast deal of good from it.

And yet the feeling is gaining ground, that somehow or other, this great business of preaching and hearing is far less effective and fruitful than it ought to be, less so perhaps than it used to be. Congregations are respectably large, and are held measurably well attentive and interested but revivals are seldom reported, conversions are few, and our churches at a stand-still. Sermons carefully prepared, and earnestly delivered, seem to miss of their highest end; they do not tell, as gospel sermons ought to, upon the public mind.

In discussing the causes of this hindered and crippled power of the pulpit, much account has been made of the altered habits of our people, the swifter whirl of life in these days of railroads and telegraphs; the increased intelligence of the masses by means of cheapened books, and above all, the sharper competition of newspapers and lyceums, flooding the country with their printed and spoken syllables from one end of it to the other. The preaching itself is also criticised. Theological Seminaries catch no small part of the censure for having, as it alleged, turned out into the ministery monkish theologians and scholars, rather than wide-awake, rousing evangelists and preachers. Exegesis and dogma, homiletics and history, we are told, have smothered the fire, and paralyzed the force, of a genuine, sacred eloquence. Sermons, it is complained have either subsided meekly into tame essays, or been bloated and blown up into proud orations; congregations are entertained, instructed, perhaps, after a certain sort, but not profoundly moved, or truly edified, to the saving and sanctifying of the soul. Such is the complaint. And much is charged upon the defective training of the schools; a training, which, it is said, has mistaken the age, and is far behind it. The remedy proposed is accordingly obvious enough. We must look away behind the pulpit into the Theological Seminary. Young men preparing for the ministry must be more wisely trained, must be exercised more dilligently in the great art of ready, masculine debate, must be taught to deliver sermons fluently and effectively, as lawyers do their arguments to juries, without a manuscript. In short, extempore preaching so called, is confidently recommended as the grand catholicon we need; or at least as the exponant of what we need, namely, a more athletic and rousing ministration of the word.

But there is quite another view of this whole subject, which has engaged our own thoughts not a little of late, to which we beg leave to call the attention of our readers, both lay and clerical.

First of all, we acknowledge, what we suppose is hardly to be denied by any one, that the power of the pulpit, as measured by its actual achievements, by the positive and palpable effects of its teaching, has somewhat, perhaps we may say, has considerably, declined. Preaching, on Sunday does not appear to accomplish what it once did; less comes of it than used to. Even though it be more learned and polished, it is certainly less effective. Its results, as anybody can see, are fewer and feebler. This we believe to be the fact in the case. As to the causes of it, while something, doubtless must be attributed to the altered habits of our age, something to the newspaper press, something to books, something to the modern system of lecturing, something, if you please, to the Theological Seminary and the learned dulness of written sermons, none of these things, in our judgment, take us down to the root of the matter, or anywhere near it.

It is not our land only, it is in all Christian lands, that the gospel appears to be checked and straitened. Now here in Protestant Christendom is the office of preaching what it has been. In Europe, as here with us, sermons well charged with what is thought to be gospel truth, and well directed in their aim deliver themselves with comparatively small effect upon the popular mind. Somehow, our modern "sons of thunder" seem to be dispensing a sort of summer evening lightning, which never strikes. Such, in England, not many months ago, was the testimony, and the lamentation, of one of the veterans of the pulpit there, whose preaching, as all admit, is quite as rich with the very marrow of the gospel as ever it was, and quite as admirable in every respect, but, as he himself confesses, strangely robbed of its former power. Souls are not given him as the seal of his ministry. What means it? Have mankind outgrown Christianity? Is its power spent? Or is it only our preachers who are in fault? And would another style of ministration reverse the declension which we now deplore, and surround our pulpits again with the trophies of renewing grace? If it takes an infidel to say the former it takes a man of some rashness and arrogance to say the latter. In the case of our English brother, as in scores and hundreds of cases like it on both sides of the Atlantic, we think it wholly safe, and simply charitable, to say that the fault is not in the preacher. The former soundness of doctrine, the former ability of statement and reasoning the former fidelity and unction, are all present; but the former signal and precious results are not realized. As in Europe, so here, the fault we are confident, cannot be primarily in the pulpits and the Seminaries. Where, then, is it?

As for ourselves, we do but utter a conviction, which is growing upon us day by day, when we declare, that, in our judgment, the present weakness of the pulpit is first of all and mainly in the pews. Christianity, as embodied in the writings of the Evangelists and Apostles, is precisely what it was in the beginning; just as divine in itself, and just as indispensable to guilty men. But the Christianity of Christendom is an enfeebled and faded thing. Its heart of fire is chilled, its arm of victory is palsied. Its vital force, which came throbbing out of the first Pentecost, which came throbbing out of imperial persecutions, is greatly subdued. We have fallen upon a busy, whirling, commerical age, an age of toil and traffic, of wealth and luxury, such as were never known in history till now. It is a new trial to our religion, as severe in its way as the splendid favor of Constantine and Theodosius. Christianity, we know, is not a failure, is not dead; but is certainly asleep in the lap of its Delilah, soothed, lulled, dreaming. What shall awaken it? Will able, off-hand, extempore sermons do it? Not so, good friend. No nostrum of this sort, no gymnastics of any sort, will help our case. The secret of real power in the pulpit, vigorous and trenchant enough to break up this lethargy, is not in the keeping of any seminary or any system of training. It lies in no forms, whether of logic or rhetoric. It comes of no discipline, whether this or that. But the root of it is spiritual, and in the pews. Let the pews be filled and swept by new currents of life, let the Church of our day embrace the gospel with beating heart and glowing arms, as the Church in Antioch embraced it, and the pulpit will quickly get voice and power as it did of old. Mere pulpit eloquence, as these words are commonly understood, can no more start society from its selfish and worldly courses than Archimedes could heave the earth from its orbit without a fulcrum for his lever.

The preaching of our day, doubtless, is faulty enough, and feeble enough, as those of us whose vocation it is to preach would be the last to deny. But schools of sacred learning are not the places, and Professors of homiletics are not the mechanics, to mend and energize it. Talent and study may put learning into sermons, put fire, put the gripe of a coerceive logic, but only the prayers and piety of God's people can put converting power into them. We are no fanatics. We do not say that Christendom is on its last legs. We do not say that the Church is corrupt and apostate and good for nothing. But we do say, that there is not, amongst Christians at large, that vivid and joyous sense of personal union with Christ, and devotion to the interests of his kingdom, which were the very life of Christendom in the beginning, and without which its promised Millennium can never come. The thing needed is a genuine revival of true religion, after the Apostolic type in Judea and Asia Minor, which shall search our churches as the light of morning searches a forest, as the breath of spring searches the ground. Then we shall get the preaching; get more out of what is already in it; get more into it to be gotten out. Meanwhile, we must do what we can. The thing to be aimed at, is a quickened Church, alive in all its members, sympathizing with its Lord, and ardently about his work. Then the very presence of the Church in the world shall be a power in it, as was the shadow of Peter in the streets of Jerusalem. And the first step towards realizing this grand ideal, is to entertain it. The more faith we have in God, and the less we have in brilliant preaching, the better. One experiment we certainly might try, and ought to; and that is, a more direct, simple and earnest proclamation of what is distinctively evangelical. Christianity is not a Philosophy, but a Life. It rests on certain great Facts; it centers in one radiant Person; it contemplates the establishment of a glorious Kingdom. And the best preaching is that which is fullest of these Facts, this Person, this Kingdom.

War in the United States.

It is a common remark that the United States are at peace. Clergymen are in the habit of felicitating the country on the exemption we enjoy from the devastating effects of war. A distinction must be drawn here. If by war we understand such a life and death struggle as has lately been waged in the Crimea—if to constitute a war, a nation must be drained of her resources, driven to suspend the usual political guarantees in order to concentrate her strength, and forced to fight, tooth and nail, for her hearths and her homes, her fame and her national existence—then, certainly, the United States are happily preserved from the curse of war. But if wholesale butchery of human beings, if campaigns in the field, if sieges, rapid marches, countermarches, pitched battles and treacherous ambuscades; if these cannot exist in the absence of a state of war, then the United States are at war, not on one side, but on four at least.

Our last accounts from Florida announce that the Indian war has broken out there again. There being no Seminole organs to give us the Indian version of the story, we are reduced to rely on the newspapers published by the white men; and they concur in imputing the outbreak of hostilities to the commission of new atrocities by the Seminoles. At all events, we hear of houses being burned, and individuals scalped; and before long we shall certainly hear of the troops taking the field, and battles being fought.

Then, on the borders of Texas, war is the formal condition of the country. There are flashes of peace, truces of a few weeks or months at a time; and then the war breaks out again, and there is warm work. In Nebraska Colonel Harney is hard at work killing off the Indians; in Washington Territory there is also a terrible Indian war, which has already cost a million of dollars; and the Oregonians, on their side, have managed to get up a very pretty war, in which somehow an impression is getting abroad that they are in the wrong. All these wars are very serious affairs. The plans of operations are the same as those which Pelissier and Gortschakoff pursue; and in proportion to the numbers engaged, the number of persons killed is probably greater.

These are quite independent of the civil war in Kansas, and the proposed war with England. So the less we say about our happy condition of peace, the better.—[New York Herald, March 28.

Paddy and the Lovers;
Or, an Unsociable Bedfellow.

A few months since a son of Erin, about eight o'clock one evening, called at a country inn in the western part of Pennsylvania, and demanded lodgings for the night. It was evident from his appearance and actions that he and liquor had been quite jolly companions throughout the day. The landlord was a lazy, good-natured soul, and had imbibed rather freely that day himself.

"If I give you a light and tell you where the room is, you can find the place," said the landlord.

"Och and it's meself that can do that most illigantly. Just show me the way, an' I'll find it as aisy as the Holy Virgin showers down blessings upon the sinful," rejoined the Irishman.

The directions were given him and also a candle. He was directed to go to a room on the second floor in the house. By the time he had reached the top of the stairs, his light had become extinguished and he had forgotten in what direction he was to go. Seeing rays of light issuing from a room, the door of which stood slightly ajar, he reconnoitered the inside of the room, and found it to contain a bed in which lay a man, and a stand with a small lighted lamp upon it. Feeling disinclined to make any further search for the room to which he had been directed, he divested himself of his clothing and quietly crept into bed. He had been in but a few moments, when a young lady and gentleman entered the room. The Irishman eyed them closely. They seated themselves on the chairs, in close proximity to each other, and after chatting merrily for a short time, the young man threw his arm around her waist in a very cousinly manner, and imprinted a kiss upon her tempting lips. There was a witchery in it which demanded a repetition. The scene amused the Irishman vastly, and being free from selfishness, he concluded that his sleeping companion should be a participant with him in the enjoyment of the scene, nudged him, but his companion stirred not. He put his hand upon him, and found that he was tightly locked in the embrace of death. Synonymous with this discovery, he bounded out of the bed, exclaiming:

"Murther! murther! Howly Saints of Hiven protect me!"

He had scarcely touched the floor with his feet before the young lady and gentleman were making rapid strides towards the stairway, terror being depicted on their countenances. They had just reached the top of the stairs when the Irishman came lashing along, as though the fiends of Erebus were closing at his heels, intent on making him their prey, and the whole three went tumbling down the stairs, and it is hard to determine which of the three reached the foot of the stairs first.

The landlord stood aghast as the Irishman rushed into the bar-room, with nothing between him and nudity but a garment vulgarly styled a shirt, the hair on his head standing upon end, his eyeballs ready to leap from their sockets, and he gasping for breath. It was a sight that would have made a man laugh who had worn a vinegar face from the day of his birth. Nothing could induce him to seek a bed that night again. When the young lady and gentleman found that it was not the corpse that had so unceremoniously bounded from the bed, they returned to the room, (they being the watchers for the night,) and doubtless commenced their courting at the point where it had been so suddenly and unexpectedly broken off.

It is heaven upon earth to have a man's mind move in charity, rest in Providence and turn upon the poles of truth.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
12 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 5, 1856.

Utah and the Union.

WE perceive by the remarks of many of our cotemporaries that the late moves of the Governor and Legislature of the people of Utah, in regard to seeking admission into the Union, have created no little interest in the United States, if we may judge from their remarks. We clip the following from the Chicago Weekly Democrat:

New States Knocking for Admission into the Union.

"The Legislature of Oregon, which closed its session on the 30th of January, passed a bill providing for submitting to the people of the Territory, at a special election for the purpose next month, the question of asking admission into the Union. The population of the Territory, so far as we remember, is now somewhere between sixty and seventy thousand, which by another session of Congress will no doubt be amply sufficient to constitute a State. We can hardly doubt that the decision of the people will be in the affirmative. In the present state of the Territory with respect to the Indians, it would perhaps be wiser than to wait two or three years longer, as a State Government at best involves heavy expenses, and if the Indian war should continue, the expenses would be largely increased. This prospect, however, will not probably prevent the vote for admission into the Union. Territories, like boys, are ambitious. The latter are impatient to be men, and the former eager to assume the dignity of States.

"The people of Utah were to vote on the same question last month, at the recommendation of Brigham Young, the Prophet-Governor. The population of Utah is about the same as that of Oregon, and we presume that the vote on the question of asking for admission into the Union has been all but unanimous in the affirmative the Saints regarding the recommendation of their Prophet as equivalent to a command from Heaven. Brigham Young and other high dignitaries of the Mormon Church who share his counsels have strong motives for wishing to obtain admission into the Union as soon as possible. It would relieve them from all surveillance of the General Government, and enable them to establish the Mormon delusion upon a perfectly independent basis; for though the outward form of government would be republican it would of course be administered in the Mormon spirit. The mass of the people of Utah no more govern themselves than do the serfs of Russia, and would be quite as little self-governing if the Territory were changed into a State as they are now.

"In recommending the measure to the Legislature, the Prophet took very high grounds. His object was to place the people of Utah 'beyond cavil, upon the platform of equal rights, constitutional sovereignty and free government, based upon the principles sacred to every lover of American liberty as emanating from the people.' The most sacred principle of all in the Prophet's mind is that under which polygamy rests. The discussion of this principle will bring up the whole question of 'popular sovereignty,' in a new and anomalous form, probably at the next session of Congress. How shall it be decided? Many persons will perhaps be disposed to reply, 'Ark Mr. Douglas,' he having set himself up as a great doctor upon the general subject of 'popular sovereignty.' He did, if our memory serves us, give a sort of non-committal opinion upon the question some time since, but he will be called upon more clearly to define his position. It is so new and nice a State question that we do not feel ourselves competent to decide upon its strictly legal and constitutional merit. A great deal can be said upon both sides. But, on moral grounds, there are very decided reasons why the Mormons should be excluded from the Union until they shall have purged themselves of their abomination. These reasons will, we imagine, operate strongly against them when the question comes up in Congress.

"A proposition was introduced into the late Legislature of Minnesota providing for the calling of a convention to form a State Constitution, with the view of asking admission into the Union some two years hence, but we believe it was not adopted.

"Kansas comes last in the list, but her claims excite more interest than those of all the other Territories above named. The people have formed a State Constitution, elected a Representative to the House of Reps., and only the two U.S. Senators were chosen by the Legislature in session at Topeka. They now ask admission into the Union. This, with other questions relating to Kansas, must be decided by Congress, whose righteous action we hope to record before the close of the session."

That the admission of several new States into the Union is matter of grave interest no one will attempt to deny; and in this land of freedom and equal rights they are subjects that are open to, and may be canvassed by all. We are at all times in favor of the most full, free, and rigid criticism and investigation of all matters that concern the public weal; but whilst we claim this privilege ourselves, and allow it with equal freedom unto others, we submit that all such discussions ought to be conducted in fairness, and divested of all foreign issues. It is very common, in speaking of Utah, to connect religion with it. Now, according to our political professions nationally, we know no religion. Why then drag in religion eternally as an appenage to our political affairs? If editors turn parsons, as such, we will discuss theology with them; as politicians we cannot; because religion is not in the category of American politics. The State knows no religion, and when men talk of "Prophet-Governors," "Mormon delusions," &c., we think that if the writers themselves are not deluded prophets they are deluded politicians. Nor are we acquainted with the cabalistic science that would explain the following enigma.

"For though the outward form of government would be republican, it would of course be administered in the Mormon spirit." The Constitution provides that a republican form of government shall be given, by Congress, to Territories seeking admission into the Union. Our political inquisitor, however, would drag in the intent, à la mode Catholique, and become our ghostly political father confessor; we should have to whisper into his ears, or some of his appointees, what are our inmost thoughts, and then, peradventure, his holiness, disputing our intent, might try us for lack of outward evidence by the same rule, and make us pass through the same ordeal that some of his venerable predecessors subjected the Salem witches; for it would be a terrible heresy for a man who kept the laws of his country outwardly to neglect to do so inwardly. However, as we have never dealt with laws psycologically, and have always been in the habit of thinking, with the vulgar, that if a law was kept outwardly it would do tolerably well, we must leave this spiritual interpretation with our more enlightened metaphysical, theological and very reverend ghostly, political fathers.

But, seriously, as we have said before, if the Mormons have done any wrong it is easy to show it; if they have been troublesome, turbulent, or disloyal, it is easy to point to facts; if they have transgressed the laws of the United States, violated the Constitution, or interfered with other's rights, why not tell us wherein? We neither need constructive guilt nor spiritual evidence to make out filibustering in Cuba, California, or Nicaragua. The Cuban expeditions, Col. Kinney's moves, Walker's acts in California and Nicaragua, and the Kansas imbroglio need no ghostly aid to develope them. What, then, do men mean when they talk of "administering a republican form of government in the Mormon spirit?" Our opinion is that if peace, quietness, protection for all, equal rights, good morals, order, and patriotism are of any avail and any real blessing to community, there is not so much anywhere as in Utah; and it would be a little better for these United States, North and South, East and West, if they had a little more of the Mormon spirit, for we are, at the defiance of the world, to show a better example of the capabilities of self-government than have been exhibited by the Mormons, and nowhere in these United States is there the amount of sincere, sterling patriotism and conscientious adherence to the Constitution and institutions of the United States as is found in Utah.

Men are generally egregiously ignorant of Mormonism and its designs; they draw upon their imagination instead of facts, and consequently come to false conclusions. We are very gravely told "that the people of Utah were to vote on the same question (admission into the Union) last month at the recommendation of their Prophet-Governor." Now, Oregon, Minnesota, and Kansas do just the same thing, but not by Prophet-Governors. Why then drag religion into the arena of politics? and why all this tweedle de and tweedle dum about a thing that we have nothing to do with Constitutionally? and why interfere with other people's rights and consciences? Do the Mormons ever complain that some Methodist, Baptist, Universalist, Catholic, or other religious professor is appointed President or Governor of State or Territory? Yet we have as little faith in their religion as they can have in ours; but we consider it is none of our affair. When politicians prate about religion we would respectfully remind them of an article in our creed: "Mind your own business," attend to your own religious affairs, go to any church you please, stay at home and rock the baby, or smoke cigars.

Have the Mormons been more troublesome to the General Government than any other Territory? If so, we should like to be referred to the fact, for we are entirely ignorant of it; and when men gratuitously inform us, as the above writer does, that they are incapable of self-government, and that "the mass of the people of Utah no more govern themselves then do the serfs of Russia," they only exhibit their ignorance of the subject upon which they write; and we would respectfully suggest that they try to solve the very enlightened proceedings of the very quiet, peaceable, orderly, intelligent men of both North and South, and settle the Kansas troubles; control their filibusteros and regulate their own internal turmoils, before they talk about Utah's incapacities. Gentlemen, take the beam out of your own eye; and as to this eternal cant about polygamy, we say, as we have said a thousand times before, it ill becomes men who are wallowing in licentiousness and degraded by debauchery, whose cities and villages, streets, saloons, hotels, and hamlets abound with prostitution, to crawl from their dens of infamy yet reeking with their loathsome debauch, and turn up their hypocritical eyes and prate about Mormon polygamy. We solemnly protest that if there was one hundredth part of these filthy abominations in Utah that we are obliged to witness here we would abjure it for ever.

All we want is equal rights, and we opine that notwithstanding many of these quixotical attacks, that there is sufficient virtue and patriotism in the nation to award to Utah that which is her due, and we ask no more.

Modern Christianity on the Decline.

ON the way to school one morning, "long, long ago," our attention was attracted to a crowd of persons who seemed to be more merry than sad. Those were days when we would stop to see anything "funny," as we innocently would say, though it might be at the risk of a growl from Domine for being too late. On that occasion we thought ourselves particularly entitled to know the cause of merriment, as the assemblage gazed with mirthful eyes at the shop door of a "respectable" merchant whose sons were our schoolmates. Threading our way to the front, our eyes soon caught glimpse of a large placard on the door, bearing "Honesty is the best policy." We saw nothing in that to excite laughter, it was nothing new, our good mother had breathed the sentiment into our ears from the first dawn of our association with other boys on the playground, and probably all present had had a similar schooling. Why the folks laughed and jeered, we could not guess. The elderly portion of this promiscuous assembly had, however, business notions in their heads—the merchant's name was entered, the previous day, on the bankrupt's list. Rejoicing at misfortune is, to say the least, a display of bad taste, but at times serious things will tempt a smile from the soundest of hearts. The merchant had been a "big man," boastful and proud, and in the morning of his humiliation his vanity was still vigorous. Rather than the public should think that unsound business principles and inferior merchandize had gradually weaned customers from his door, till he was forced to acknowledge his insolvency, he wanted to inspire the passer-by with the idea that he and his merchandize had not been appreciated as they ought to have been—in short that he was too honest for this generation—that he mixed no chalk with his flour nor sand with his sugar before he attended to evening prayers. He was, nevertheless, unsuccessful. Some of the old school may have heaved a sigh, but in general the passer-by bedewed not the pavement with tears of sympathy, offered no prayer for better days, but laughed heartily at his folly.

Early impressions are lasting. The reading of the lengthy article on our first page—"How to Get Good Preaching," or, as it might have been, The Bankruptcy or Decline of Modern Christianity—recalls to our recollection our old acquaintance, Mr. Honesty, as the merchant was afterwards called—the placard on the door, his fruitless attempt to veil the truth and gammon the multitude into the belief that himself, principles and merchandize were all right, but it was the people that could not appreciate them. The writer in the Evangelist, evidently a minister, is forced to acknowledge the insolvency of the profession—the business; but, like Mr. Honesty, he wants to blame the people. He says:

"We think it wholly safe, and simply charitable, to say that the fault is not in the preacher. The former soundness of doctrine, the former ability of statement and reasoning, the former fidelity and unction, are all present; but the former signal and precious results are not realized. As in Europe, so here, the fault, we are confident, cannot be primarily in the pulpits and the seminaries. Where, then, is it?

"As for ourselves, we do but utter a conviction, which is growing upon us day by day, when we declare, that, in our judgment, the present weakness of the pulpit is first of all and mainly in the pews."

To save the craft, it may be very convenient to blame the pews, and doubtless the manœuvre will meet with some degree of success in drawing the attention of the "sermon-hearing" folks from the real fact that mankind has outgrown christian-isms, that their power is spent; they have had their day. Christian-isms had their origin with man, and by man have been sustained. The first apostate from the primitive church claimed to be a reformer, and from his day to the present moment reformer after reformer has taken the field. Martin Luther would probably have lived and died in monkish obscurity if he had not discovered the corruptions of the Catholic church. He enquired how this! was looked upon with jealousy, and harshly treated. His feelings thus wounded, he became bitter, and spoke out. Persecution followed—made him new friends—the disaffected gathered round him—he became a leader—and as he grew in bitterness, he grew into a Reformer. Well, call him so, and John Calvin the same, and call the long string that have followed them, and the voluptuous Henry the Eighth, all Reformers or Protestors—and what then? What have they done? They have cried against the corruptions of the churches or systems they left or from which they were expelled, and have existed by railing against others, and the unthinking have credited their pretensions. The intelligent, thinking man sees there never was anything like divinity about the isms that have sprung out of Catholicism. The Protestants call the Romish church the mother of harlots, and she may be all that; but certain it is, if the old lady is corrupt, her noisy sons and daughters have neither reformed her nor established their divine authority for attempting such a task. The people have got well acquainted with all that these gentlemen have to say, and in the days of ignorance each has passed for somebody; but steam-presses, steamboats, railways and telegraphs have come along to the aid of man—have increased the intelligence of the masses: and men, who before only listened, have added to their obligations that of thinking, and this explains the present cause of groaning and moaning among the clergy.

In the Madrid Chambers, on the 23d of February, M. Batles, one of the deputies, demanded why the government of Spain, upon the request of the ecclesiastical vicar, had prohibited the circulation of a Bible recently printed at Madrid, the text of which conformed to the approved text. M. Batles prefaced his query by a profession of Catholic faith, which bears out our remarks, and may be regarded as a sensible view of Protestantism:

"I was born a Catholic, he said, and I hope to die in that belief; but if Protestantism consists in protesting energetically against the numerous vices, the unparalleled excesses, the culpable egotism, the scandalous frauds, the notorious bad faith, the audacious resistance to the laws, the deadly influence of the Court of Rome upon Christianity, the abuse of power, the unjust and illegal intrusion of that Court in the rights and privileges of nations and monarchs—if Protestantism consists in denouncing the shameless and criminal disobedience to the constituted authorities, preached without ceasing, and to-day with more scandal than ever, by a great number of ecclesiastics—I declare boldly that I am a Protestant, and I am certain that my opinion is shared by all good Catholics who desire the triumph of the cross, and the propagation of the doctrines of Christ throughout the nations of the earth."

Protestant influence is withered, dried up. The people see she has performed her mission, if she ever had any, and we expect to hear pretty frequently the language of the Evangelist:

"Congregations are respectably large, and are held measurably well attentive and interested, but revivals are seldom reported, conversations are few, and our Churches at a stand-still. Sermons carefully prepared, and earnestly delivered, seem to miss of their highest end; they do not tell, as gospel sermons ought to, upon the public mind.

"It is not our land only, it is in all Christian lands, that the gospel appears to be checked and straitened. Nowhere in Protestant Christendom is the office of preaching what it has been. In Europe, as here with us, sermons well charged with what is thought to be gospel truth, and well directed in their aim, deliver themselves with comparatively small effect upon the popular mind. Somehow, our modern "sons of thunder" seem to be dispensing a sort of summer evening lightning, which never strikes. Such, in England, not many months ago, was the testimony, and the lamentation, of one of the veterans of the pulpit there, whose preaching, as all admit, is quite as rich with the very marrow of the gospel as ever it was, and quite as admirable in every respect, but, as he himself confesses, strangely robbed of its former power. Souls are not given him as the seal of his ministry."

When we first read the article in the Evangelist we thought in spite of his fixing the charge on the pews that the writer was deserving of some credit for his boldness in avowing this helpless state of things; but in glancing over the same paper we met with another article—"Hope for the Church"—which considerably changed our first conclusion. It would seem, after all, that it is the alarm of the lay members on the decline of the Church that has brought forth this labored article, "How to get Good Preaching," and is of itself but an effort to keep the sheep together a little longer. "Hope for the Church" is probably from the same pen. The writer says:

"It is very common for Christians to get discouraged in regard to the Church. In many places the worship of God has declined, and Religion appears to be dying out. We are much exposed to this feeling of despondency at the present time. The ways of Zion mourn. We feel a general lethargy weighing upon us."

Seeing the writer and his dear brethren are fully alive to the fact that "the Christianity of Christendom is an enfeebled and faded thing; its heart of fire is chilled, its arm of victory is palsied," we would respectfully suggest to them—"let it slide." Don't trouble yourselves any more with it. "Why spend your labor for that which is not bread!" As "it is certainly asleep in the arms of its Deliah, soothed, lulled, dreaming," don't wake it. If you do it will only increase your mortification, for it can only reel about and doze over again. Now that the Christianity of Christendom is far gone in consumption, let the Evangelist and his friends turn with sincerity to the Chistianity of Christ, and they will realize that "Christianity, as embodied in the writings of the Evangelists and Prophets, is precisely what it was in the beginning; just as divine in itself, and just as indispensable to guilty men." Now make the trial, and "embrace the gospel with beating heart and glowing arms, as the Church in Antioch embraced it, and the pulpit will quickly get voice and power as it did of old." But before you begin to try, count the cost. Christ is head, and you must not question his right to lead you as a little child. You can only obtain new life and spirit, and finally salvation, "by observing all things whatsoever," said he, "I command you."

When men, like the writer in the Evangelist, have courage to follow their convictions irrespective of consequences—unpopularity, losses, and persecutions—we have hope of them. There is a vast deal of sound sense in the article we have examined, and if the writer keeps humble, and thinks a little more, we should not be surprised to hear of him inquiring after the Latter Day Saints. What does he think of the idea of inquiring for some one having the authority of God to baptize him for the remission of his sins, and thereby secure a title to the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of the hands of the Elders in Israel as anciently? Think over it. Never mind though it be unpopular. It is no mean thing to be on the Lord's side. He and his friends may yet discover that the Lord has not abandoned humanity, but raised up a great prophet to bring about the establishment of his Kingdom and the "promised millennium." We conclude our remarks by another quotation from the Evangelist, which is worthy of being pondered over:

"The more faith we have in God, and the less we have in brilliant preaching, the better. One experiment we certainly might try, and ought to; and that is, a more direct, simple and earnest proclamation of what is distinctively evangelical. Christianity is not a Philosophy, but a Life. It rests on certain great Facts; it centers in one radiant Person; it contemplates the establishment of a glorious Kingdom. And the best preaching is that which is the fullest of these Facts, this Person, this Kingdom."

Utah Mail.

LATE advices from Washington are to the effect that Mr. McGraw, the present mail contractor for the Independence and Salt Lake route, has petitioned directly the Postmaster General, and indirectly the General Government for relief from present embarrassments alleged to be the result of the difficulties between the United States Government and the Sioux and other tribes of Indians on the plains. The petition sets forth the many difficulties incident to the present transportation of the mail, not contemplated at the time of contracting and asks for an increase of the annual pay from $14,440 to $36,000. It also asks the appropriation of $17,750 indemnity for property stolen by the Indians.

The petition has met a favorable reception and the committee to whom it was referred have reported as follows:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
March 20, 1856.

Read twice, and committed to the Committee of the Whole House to-morrow.

Mr. Walker, from the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads, reported the following bill:

A BILL

For the relief of Wm. M. F. Magraw, contractor for carrying the mails on route No. 8911, from Independence, Missouri, to Salt Lake, in Utah Territory.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, in consideration of Indian disturbances, and of the consequent increased expenses and difficulties of carrying the mails along the route number eight thousand nine hundred and eleven, from Independence to Salt Lake, the Postmaster General is hereby authorized and required to allow and pay to William M. F. Magraw, contractor for the mail service aforesaid, the sum of thirty-six thousand dollars, for the year ending on the eighteenth day of August, eighteen hundred and fifty-six; which said allowance shall be in lieu of the present contract price for said service, and shall be paid out of the treasury.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to pay out of the treasury, to the said William M. F. Magraw, seventeen thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars as full indemnity for his claim for property stolen and destroyed by the Indians, as included in his account filed with the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the contract heretofore entered into by said William M. F. Magraw, for the transportation of the mails on said route, be, and the same is, with the assent of said Magraw, annulled from and after the eighteenth day of August, eighteen hundred and fifty six; and that the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized and required to let said contract for the term of four years from said day, and to advertise for proposals therefor.

We have little doubt but the bill will pass in nearly or quite in its present form and we hope it will.

We find no fault with the appropriation, it is not too much and cannot be carried for less. His account of losses too for which he asks indemity may not be exorbitant or unreasonable; the route we know to be an expensive and hazardous one, and men should be paid for their labor or it would be hard to exact it from them; yet at the same time we would not encourage the precedent of taking government contracts at low, unremunerative prices, and then commence pleading poverty. Indian difficulties, and a thousand and one Gullivor stories, in order to get a reasonable compensation. We have but little to say at this time on this point, seeing it is a past affair, and we do not often cry over "spilt milk," but will just say that Mr. McGraw, did not wait until the difficulties with the Indians of which he speaks had taken place, but made as poor a mouth over the affair before they commenced as he has since. The fact is, his contract price was insufficient and no man could live by it; and we do not blame him for wanting his pay for his labor. Let the government pay him off and learn a lesson by this transaction that shall be beneficial both for itself and the citizens of Utah.

The same bill that provides the remuneration and indemnification referred to, also very wisely, we think, provides that the contract with Mr. McGraw shall end on the 8th of August ensuing, and an entire new contract be made with other parties.

We have personally no acquaintance with Mr. McGraw, and have personally no ill-feelings towards that gentleman; but complaints have come to us from so many quarters, with reference to the Utah mail delinquencies, and suffering ourselves from the same cause, we have been necessarily led to speak plainly at times, through this periodical, on the subject.

The prospect of a change in the whole affair inclines us now to look forward with patience and hope, for a more efficient and tangible mail communication with the distant Territory of Utah.

Our Washington correspondent informs us that a bill was introduced in the House of Representative on the 25th ult., and referred to the appropriate committee for the establishment of an overland weekly express mail from St. Louis to San Francisco; and that there will be a strong effort to effect its passage. The company proposing to carry it is to be called the Missouri and California Company.

We consider the object a good one and one that will pay if properly conducted. We have confidence that this, or some similar movement in keeping with the fastness of the age, the growing importance of Utah and California—when so many men of enterprise and means stand ready to embark in such an undertaking, so soon as the General Government shall lend the necessary encouragement by appropriate grants—will soon be consummated and we shall watch the movements to this end with no little solicitude.

The Western Standard.

WE have just received Nos. 1 and 2 of the Western Standard, edited and published by George Q. Cannon, bearing dates of Feb. 23 and 30. It will be recollected that a few weeks ago we announced its forthcoming, and published the prospectus.

The Standard is a weekly paper, and is published every Saturday at No. 118½ Montgomery-street, San Francisco, California. It is, as its prospectus states, "Devoted to the interests of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, items of general intelligence, and the current news of the day, both foreign and domestic."

The Standard is published on beautiful white paper and with new type: it is a little smaller in size than THE MORMON. Its general arrangement and typographical appearance do great credit to the taste of Elder Cannon, whilst the lucid and well-written articles with which its columns are so well filled, both original, selected and communicated, bespeak his competency as an editor and is a guarantee for its wide-spread circulation.

It has a beautiful and original vignette or heading, representing mountains, valleys, plains, rivers and the ocean. Highly elevated on a plain among the highest mountains is the representation of a city, with a magnificent temple conspicuous in front: near to which is a lake, we presume intended for Salt Lake; on the same elevation, and near the temple, is written, "GATHERING OF THE NATIONS." On the ocean there are steamers and ships arriving at ports, we presume intended to represent the immigration of the Saints, for afterwards we have wagons and ferries carrying them, in the foreground. On the right, we have an encampment, consisting of wagons, tents and people. In the centre, a train and its passengers in motion, together with an Indian and his wigwam, and various representations of the Saints in a state of transitu from the ocean to the mountain tops. The design is beautiful, suggestive and comprehensive, and developes at one view the great work of the gathering in which the Saints are engaged.

Immediately underneath the vignette is the following motto: TO CORRECT MIS-REPRESENTATION WE ADOPT SELF-REPRESENTATION." The Sacramento State Journal, in speaking of it, says:

"We have received a copy of this new Mormon weekly paper, published at San Francisco. In beauty of typographical appearance it is unsurpassed by any other weekly paper in the State, and it is apparently edited with considerable ability."

So say we, and he might have added, in this or any other State.

We say to the Saints, and to all interested either in our Church affairs or in the affairs of California, subscribe for this paper, for not only does it contain news concerning our affairs, the progress of our Church, emigration, &c., but it is full of interesting items from all parts of the western world up to the latest hour of publication, together with the San Francisco Price Current. We hope our brethren in the east will take hold and give Bro. Cannon a helping hand in this enterprise. The price of subscription in California is $5 per annum, but he has authorized us in this district of country to receive $2.50.

For ourselves we say, if the other numbers are like those we have received, we shall always hail it as a welcome visitor, from which we expect to draw much valuable information, and from our heart we wish its editor God speed and all the success that his laudable exertions merit.

New York Daily Times and Mormon Emigrants.

From the New York Daily Times, March 29.

Our Reporter Visits the Mormons.

THE packet-ship Caravan, Capt. Sands, arrived at this port on Thursday evening, from Liverpool, and landed her passengers at Castle Garden. They are 454 in number, and are Mormons. They came from England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland and Denmark. For the credit of Denmark, there are only two Danish families amongst them. For the credit of Ireland, there is only one Irishman.

Our reporter saw these people, conversed with them, and estimated them, intellectually and otherwise. They all belong to the lower, almost to the lowest classes of society. The Welsh peasant is notably clean—these Welsh peasants were dirty. Very ruddy are the complexions of the Welsh girls, very wholesome their appearance, very staid and chaste their manners. The Welsh damsels our reporter saw yesterday, were neither ruddy, wholesome nor staid. Further he will not testify. Some of them, a few months hence, will perhaps be added to Brigham Young's harem.

Much has been said and written favorable to the European converts to Mormonism, that was little deserved. The Mormon emigrants now at Castle Garden may be unfavorable specimens of their class. We were assured, however, by their leader, that they were considered not only respectable but wealthy. They paid their own passage to America which Mormon converts seldom do wholly, even if they contribute in part to their expenses. They were regarded by their own people as rather aristocratic than otherwise. But what has been said of the Welsh is also true of the English and Scotch Mormons now at Castle Garden. Their countenances were imbruted with ignorance and dirt—not the material dirt of a sea voyage, but the moral dirt of a life of imbecility and indolence. The Apostles of Joe Smith and Brigham Young found them an easy prey, although, as our reporter was told, they were quite above the average of Mormon respectability.

Among the whole four hundred and fifty, there was scarcely one face that showed that its possessor was greatly elevated above the animal. Dissipation had done its work with many. Most of the Englishmen had been evidently too familiar with the gin palaces and beer shops of London and the larger towns. The Scotchmen appeared to have drank deep of whisky, and drank themselves out of employment. If they paid their passage to this country, they must have had friends to send them out, as many fathers dispatch their prodigal sons to other lands, to get rid of them.

We cannot wonder how, with such intellects to work upon, Brigham Young's influence and power should extend. If Salt Lake City is wholly peopled by individuals of the average of intellect possessed by the newly arrived emigrants, we should following the law of depreciation, expect that in a century it would be merely a congregation of apes with tails.

We have not burthened our paper with the above scurrilous, false and abusive statements, with the intention of replying to that nondescript the Daily Times has condescended to dub as "Our Reporter." He is too far beneath our contempt to merit a moment's consideration. The Mormon emigrants have a reputation that cannot be sullied by an attack of that character. Heretofore we have had little occasion to complain of New York reporters; in general, they have represented our emigrants fairly, and in this the Daily Times has been no exception. We are inclined to think that the editor of the Daily Times has been imposed upon. There were one or two persons at Castle Garden after the arrival of the Caravan, making inquiries and taking notes, but the proceedure and appearance of one of them inspired so little respect that the parties interrogated did not inquire who he was or where he came from. We were ourself at Castle Garden, and saw, we presume, the gentlemen of whom our friends speak so lightly. We would have supposed that he belonged to that category of very philanthropic gentlemen who are to be met with in shoals in every seaport waiting to direct the emigrant to some particular hotel, had we been ignorant of the excellent arrangements of the Commissioners of Emigration for keeping them outside the Garden. It was but a passing glance we had of the stranger, but our friends, with whom he spoke, thought he was either timbré, or a little merry, as if he had just left a "bosom crony." This person, however, could not have been "Our Reporter," as the Daily Times pledges its word that "our reporter is a man of most temperate habits;" and though "our reporter goes to a wine sale"—"a sale of choice and rare old wines," "he could not be persuaded to taste a drop." Lest any of our friends should maintain that it was "Our Reporter" of the Daily Times they judged so uncharitably, we publish entire the editor's declaration of his temperate habits:

"Our reporter, who attended the sale, is a man of the most temperate habits. Over one hundred bottles of these and other choice wines were opened, and their contents liberally distributed, but he could not be persuaded to taste a drop. If he had been led into that indulgence, how could he have noted the features of a wine sale?"

We are aware that some folks will never be satisfied, and to those who may still be obstinate, and think that the editor's remarks make the case worse, particularly as the wine sale took place previous to the visit to the Garden, we say, friends be charitable; and for the satisfaction of all, we publish the notes of another reporter, who was not present at the wine sale:

From the New York Express, Saturday, March 29th.

THE MORMON EMIGRANTS AT CASTLE GARDEN.

At the Emigrant Depot in Castle Garden there are 454 Mormons or Latter Day Saints, who arrived here in the Caravan on Wednesday from England. The company consists of men, women and children. There are four Elders, Presidents of the Company, named Leonard J. Smith, —— Walker, Daniel Tyler, and —— Bunker, besides several deacons and teachers. On entering the Garden, on Friday, we observed the company variously employed. Some were taking their tea, and others were engaged in the kitchen, cooking various edibles; others, still, were employed in looking over their baggage, whilst the children were engaged in trundling hoops and other childish amusements. The women generally were young, handsome and cleanly dressed; a very few, we saw, looked rather slovenly, and one or two were rather advanced in years.

OUR REPORTER IS INTRODUCED TO AN ELDER.

Mr. Walsh, one of the employees of the Garden, having shown our reporter round the baggage-room, bath-room, kitchen and other places of the establishment, all of which appeared particularly clean and in excellent order, then introduced him to one of the Elders, Mr. Leonard J. Smith, who appeared a man of superior intelligence and gentlemanly manners. Mr. Smith very readily and politely furnished our reporter with the following brief history of the movements of himself and company.

ADVENTURES OF A MORMON MISSIONARY.

He stated that about three years since he proceeded from Utah to the Cape of Good Hope, on a mission for the conversion of the inhabitants of that portion of her Britanic Majesty's dominions, and succeeded during the time he resided there, not only in converting a number, but in raising a sufficient sum to buy a small brig which was then for sale at a cost of £2500 (about $12,500.) In this vessel himself and seven of his converts proceeded to London, stopping at St. Helena to take in water on the way home. On this famous island he was invited to give a lecture, which invitation he accepted, and spoke to a large audience. Here a large number of their publications (including the Book of Mormon) were purchased, and several rich and influential men of the island, as also the poorer classes of Fort Elizabeth and other places, began seriously to investigate the new doctrine, and Elder Smith had no doubt but converts would be gained there.

They arrived in London, after a pleasant passage of sixty-two days, on the 28th of January, and having landed the passengers and crew, proceeded to Liverpool, from whence they sailed for New York on the 16th of February, and arrived here on the 27th of March, after a very favorable passage of 41 days. They will proceed to Utah in a week.

The brig is to be used in carrying passengers to and from the Cape of Good Hope.

Mr. Smith says that another company, consisting of about one hundred, may be expected here in about two months.

THE FIRST FRUIT OF THE GARDEN.

One of the Mormon ladies presented her husband with a fine healthy infant in the Garden, on Friday morning. The mother and child are doing well.

THE PLURALITY OF WIVES.

Our Reporter then asked Mr. Smith how many men among them had more than one wife. Mr. Smith replied:

No such thing is permitted. Any man attempting to procure such a thing would be immediately cut off from the Church. True, we believe in a plurality of wives, as did Abraham, Jacob, Solomon and others in the Old Testament, but this is allowed in Utah only. We are also very strict in all other particulars. Any man among us who should be found attempting to seduce a young woman from the paths of virtue, or even pay her honorable addresses without the consent of her parents or guardians, would be severely censured, and if he still persisted in such a course, would be lopped off from the Church.

A MARRIAGE ON THE VOYAGE.

During the voyage from England, a young man on board paid particular attention to a young woman with whom he appeared to have been smitten, and as she was not disinclined towards him, they were united before the close of the voyage, according to the rights of the Mormon Church.

The company consists of English, Irish and Scotch, with a few Swedes.

Death of Elder R. W. Wolcott.

IT is our painful duty to announce the death of another Elder in Israel, while absent from his home, on a mission in a foreign land.

Elder R. W. Wolcott was taken ill with the small pox on the 13th of February last, and died at eight o'clock A. M., on the 27th of the same month. His funeral took place on the 28th, under the direction of President Daniel Spencer. From our limited acquaintance with him, we are not able to relate as many of the events of his life, as we should have been gratified to do. The following items are correct, so far as we can ascertain with our limited means of information.

Elder Wolcott was born in Green County, State of New York, on the 16th of August, 1829. He was the son of Aaron and Anna Wolcott. He was called and set apart for his mission to England, at the Conference held in G. S. L. City, April 6th, 1854. He left G. S. L. City on the 1st of May succeeding his appointment, and arrived in St. Louis, in company with several other Elders, also on Missions, on the 31st of the same month. He sailed from Boston on the steamer Pacific, on the 5th of July and landed in Liverpool on the 16th. He was appointed to labor, for a time, in the Cambridgeshire Conference, and succeeded Elder James Pace in the Presidency of the Bedfordshire Conference, on the 1st of January, 1855. He continued to labor in this capacity, until February 1st, 1856; when he succeeded Elder Dana in the Pastoral charge of the Bedfordshire, Cambridgeshire, and Norwich Conferences, in which capacity death arrested him in the midst of his labors.

Elder Wolcott was formerly a Methodist minister, and when passing through Utah on his way to California, in 1852, he embraced the Gospel as revealed through the Prophet Joseph Smith. After he was baptised, he married a lady in Utah, of whose society death soon deprived him, but he married again a short time before he was appointed on his mission. As the fruits of this marriage he had one child, born after his arrival in England. Brother Wolcott was kind and affectionate in his disposition, faithful in the discharge of the duties of his calling, and he won the love and respect of the Saints among whom he labored, who deeply mourn his loss. Like a true soldier, he died in the discharge of his duty, and without spot or blemish on his character as a Saint and an Elder in Israel.

During his illness he was attended by both brethren and sisters, who earnestly sought, by every possible means, to add to his comfort, and preserve his life; and although his afflictions were not soothed by the sympathy and attentions of his affectionate partner in life, yet she may rest assured that tender hands administered to him in his afflictions, and smoothed his dying pillow. While his family and friends mourn his loss, they have this consolation, that he only rests from his labors on earth, for a little season, in order to work in another sphere, for the advancement of the same great cause for which he died.

[Millennial Star.

Emigrants by the Caravan and Emerald Isle.

ON Saturday, March 29, twenty of these emigrants went to St. Louis, accompanied by Elders Smith and Bunker; also four to Alton, Ill., and twenty-one to Iowa City, accompanied by Elder William Walker. Eighty-four were forwarded to Pittston, Pa., and twelve to Philadelphia.

On the 31st, nine Welsh emigrants were sent on to Minersville, Pa., and on the 1st of April, nine Danes and two Italians of the ship Emerald Isle, who were sick on the arrival of that vessel, were forwarded in charge of Bro. George Bell, with six Danes and four Scotch passengers of the Caravan, to St. Louis and Alton.

Latest from Europe.

THE "King of Algiers," Napoleon Eugene Louis Jean Joseph, arrived in Paris on the morning of the 16th ult. Of course he is a fine boy, and no doubt very like his "dad." The empress and the prince are doing well, and Paris was in a blaze of wax candles and variegated oil lamps—promenades the order of the day, and polkas and fiddling the order of the night.

FOREIGN SUMMARY.

By the last mail we learn that on the 13th of March, the present Lord Raglan was presented with title deeds of an estate near Raglan Castle, as a mark of respect for his honored father, Field Marshal Lord Raglan.

Of late years the English people have changed considerably in their manner of testifying their appreciation of the services of public personages: instead of bequeathing massive monuments of stone and iron, for future generations to gaze at, something of a more rational and serviceable character is becoming quite popular. Richard Cobden the great Free Trade advocate got somewhere about $80,000 of bright yellow "Vic's and "Dragons," others less known to the world have got long well filled purses and magnificent well packed libraires of the richest intellectual food. Miss Florence Nightingale, the Crimean heroine on her return to England last winter was solicited to express her wishes, and though many private tokens of esteem and high appreciation of her angelic virtues rolled in upon her, she has credit for choosing the establishment of an institution for the training of nurses for the poor, which the English folks readily accede to, and subscriptions comes flowing in from all quarters from the prince and the peasent.

The Hon. Geo. M. Dallas, the new American Minister to the Court of St. James, arrived at Liverpool on the 12th ult., and took up his abode in the Adelphi Hotel. He was visited by the principal American residents in Liverpool on the forenoon of the 14th, and at 12 o'clock, by appointment, the members of the American Chamber of Commerce were received by his Excellency. After the usual congratulations about health were gone through, and hopes of friendly relations continuing between the United States and Great Britain, the deputation left and Mr. Dallas with his secretary had an agreeable walk through town; visited some of the principal places, St. George's Hall among others, and was highly gratified with what he saw and heard. With his family he left next morning for London.

It appears from some questions put to Lord Palmerston by Mr. Layard in the House of Commons, that the English Cabinet and the Persian Government are not quite pleased and friendly with each other. Preparations were making on both sides for war, and all about somebody's wife. Millions of gold have been expended, and hundreds of thousands of lives sacrificed in the Crimea war, which began in a row about whether the Greeks or Turks should keep the keys of the Holy places in Jerusalem. Now, there is a prospect of another row, because some scapegoat from Persia had got into the employment and consequent protection of a British Consul, and as the Persian government had seized upon his wife to answer to their laws, the Consul writes the Persian government, they write back again, they wax warm, threaten each other, and then follow the et ceteras.

Prussia having been invited by the "Peace Plenipotentiaries" to send her representatives to the Paris Congress, she has done so, and all Europe anticipates a speedy and peaceful conclusion to the conferences, and of course the termination of the Eastern and Northern war.

The papers represent Louis Napoleon in a high state of feverish excitement. He is terribly afraid that Eugenie may place in his Imperial arms an Imperial prince or princess before the telegraphic wires have been purified by the Peace Proclamation. Signals are prepared at the Palace of the Tuileries, communicating directly with the Invalides, so that in an instant the important intelligence will be announced to the people of Paris. Cambaceres, Grand Master of the Ceremonies has published a lengthy programme of the ceremonies to be observed on this great occasion. It is a splendid organization in which every person is expected to bow to the right, slide to the left, and wheel round about without making a somersaut or treading on another's toes. The arrangements are multitudinous for heralding the news to all the world and his wife. And we think none will get gray in waiting the daily looked for intelligence. The city of Paris presented the Imperial family with a magnificent silver cradle on the 12th ult., at the Tuileries. It was exhibited to the curious for two days at the Hotel de Ville. Some wags think that the Emperor might save a little present expenses to help some who claim relationship to the "Nephew."

The Allied and Russian Generals in the Crimea, had met on Trakhir bridge, and made out a line of neutral ground limited by the Tchernaya. There was great sickness in the Russian and French camps. The English surgeons having little to do had offered their services to the French.

Prince Menschikoff, it is said, continues in a very bad state of health, as he was when he returned from the Crimea, and it is thought he will hardly be strong enough to undertake the arduous duties of the office of General Governor of Cronstadt.

A dreadful accident occurred Jan. 30, by the loss of the government steamer Cazador, which struck on a rock near the banks of Carranza, between Valparaiso and Talchahuano and almost immediately sunk; of 358 persons on board, 315 perished; this vessel is the third Chilian Government vessel lost within less than twelve months. The captain, who escaped, has been called before a court martial.

The Inspector General of Prisons of the Duchy of Parma, has been assassinated in the street.

Theodore, one of the Aztec children, died at Berlin of fever.

Prince Gortschakoff the diplomatist, is going from Vienna to St. Petersburgh, he says, to take part in the deliberations relative to the diplomatic attitude to be taken by Russia after the conclusion of peace. M. Titoff returns for the same purpose.

The Teheran Journal announces the death of the Persian Minister of War; also, the arrest of the Khan of Baradschan; and that the Persian troops, with 8 guns, had occupied the Island of Kharek in the Persian gulf.

DOMESTIC SUMMARY.

On Monday afternoon a row of old houses situated in Water street, while being demolished to make way for new buildings, fell with a loud crash and buried in the heaps of ruins several children who were gathering chips about the building.

The United States propeller, Arctic, Commander Hartstein, arrived at this port on Monday evening after a cruise of forty-nine days, in search of vessels in distress. She experienced a succession of heavy gales, but met with no vessels requiring assistance.

Commander Hartstein, intended to have gone as far East as the ice had been met with, but having placed confidence in the false report about the Pacific putting into the Shannon he concluded to work on to the westward.

Mr. Everett delivered his oration on the life and character of Washington, at the Smithsonion Institution, Washington City, last Thursday evening. The receipts are said to be over $1,000.

The ship frigate Bird, at Philadelphia from London, has brought hither a fine original portrait of the famous British patriot and statesman, John Hampden, sent home by the Hon. James Buchanan. It belonged to Mr. John McGregor, member of the British Parliament for Glasgow, and is to be presented by him, through Mr. Buchanan, to the Congress of the United States.

Gen. Walker is in the field against the Costa Ricans. Fighting soon.

Arrivals.

The Hon. Daniel Spencer, first counsellor to the Presidency of the European Mission, and the Hon. John Van Cott, late president of the Scandinavian Mission, arrived in this city on Thursday morning from Boston, where they had arrived in the Canada on the 30th. We greet these brethren with the best feelings of our heart, and rejoice to see them in the enjoyment of excellent health and full of desire to aid in rolling forth the great work of God. We anticipate their active co-operation in the emigration in which we have already entered for this season.

The Caravan.

New York, April 3, 1856.

Dear President Taylor,—We take this opportunity to inform you that we arrived at this port on the 27th ult., after a voyage of 41 days in the "Caravan." On arriving on board the vessel we proceeded immediately to organise the Saints and place over them their respective officers, and on Feb. 15th, divided them into five sections or wards; with this arrangement all seemed satisfied, and sustained the various appointments unanimously. We did not get under weigh until the night of the 18th, at which time we were towed out by the steamer Constitution and sailed along with a fair but rather cold wind for the first week, from this time till the first of March the weather was variable, on that day we encountered the most severe storm that we experienced during the voyage. While the storm was at its height a sailor, David Kirby, fell headforemost from the fore yard, and expired almost instantly. Bro. Thos. Bartlett had his ancle severely injured by a loose spar, and several others were slightly bruised; but none seriously. We have had three births, one male, and two females, and one death, a daughter of Chas. and Phebe Gibson, aged 3 years. We have to record one marriage among the rest. Bro. William Harrison and Sister Hannah Adams from the London Conference, were united in the bonds of wedlock, by Elder Daniel Tyler, on which occasion the American Flag was unfurled to the breeze, bells rung, and all the jollification that could be experienced on shipboard in fair weather. In relation to provisions they have been abundant, and of the best quality. President John Butler, from Wales, was ordained an Elder to preside over the Welsh Saints on board. I take pleasure in informing you that the speed of our vessel eclipsed that of many others that left Liverpool and adjacent ports about the same time. In this the good hand of our Father in Heaven is to be acknowledged, as well as in the general good health and other blessings which have been bestowed upon us. The Saints with very few exceptions, have been faithful in their duties and obedient to counsel, and have proved by their works that they are worthy the name they profess. With regard to the well ventilated and convenient ship "Caravan" we take great pleasure in recommending her as being well adapted for passengers, or freight, her commander Capt. Sands has acted like a gentleman, and has given general satisfaction. He was always ready to hear, and grant any reasonable petition, and has manifested an interest in the welfare of the sick and infirm—often ministering to their necessities with delicacies from his own table —deserving of our gratitude which he has. We are also much indebted to Mr. Lindsay, who is a gentleman in every sense of the word, for the disposition he has shown to befriend the Saints during the voyage, with these few lines, and prayers for your prosperity, and success in the promulgation of Truth, we remain your Brethren in the bonds of the Covenant.

President, Daniel Tyler.

Counsellors. { Edward Bunker, Leonard J. Smith, William Walker.

Jesse Tye, Clerk.

Letter from Texas.

To the Editor of the Mormon:

Camp Matagorda, March 19, 1856.

Through the blessings of our Father in Heaven, to whom my heart is filled with gratitude, we have been permitted to arrive upon the shores of Texas in health and safety. We sailed from New Orleans on the 13th inst., on the steamship "Charles Morgan," and after somewhat of a stormy passage we arrived at the town of "Powderhorn" situated on the shores of Matagorda Bay, in the forenoon of the 17th the Saints with all our luggage and freight were all landed in safety. Say to all the friends that we are in good health and have had no sickness, save a little at sea caused by the rolling of the ship. We are moving into Camp to-day (19th,) some five miles above Powderhorn on the Bay shore, verging upon an immense Prairie and we have designated our location "Camp Matagorda." I find that we are a a little in advance of the season, and shall have to wait a week or two for the grass to grow. The Spring is very backward for this country and a severe Norther has been blowing ever since we landed, until to-day, and since morning it has turned quite warm; if it continues for a few days grass will spring up rapidly. Our teams are not come down yet, but we are expecting them every day. Two of our Brethren met us here upon our arrival, and are in Camp with us; you may expect to hear from us frequently now that we are encamped. Please to remember us all in your prayers.

Yours in the New and Everlasting Covenant.

Preston Thomas.

FOR THE MORMON.

Friendship.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

The natural movements of a well-regulated mind, have a constant tendency to develop those mental charms that are stored up in man; and thus our excursion through Nature's fair garden, becomes a series of interesting, diversified meanderings well calculated to enrich our mind with images of beauty and harmony. Calmly sleeping in sweet repose in the inmost recesses of the human heart is a feeling, that has often inspired the poet to strike the lyre. What is it? Numbers of Seraphs whisper from the vaulted dome of Heaven "Friendship," the soothing strains of which, lull grief and sorrow into sleep, arouse man from the murky, gloomy vapors of narrow-contractedness and animate him to reach the achme of magnanimity and generosity.

When two beings are brightening, strengthening and regulating each other by a congeniality of feelings and sentiments, by an unanimity of action; when there are two souls, that have but One idea, two hearts with but One pulsation; then they are in that state of mental harmony, where friendship is blooming like a rose, the fragrance of which is scenting every surrounding object; where affection unfolds her most beautiful charms; where every idea is a sun-beam, and every word a note of music; where everything seems to echo back our joy and gladness, and dangers and difficulties die like a feebly glimmering star in the morning of eternity into the light of Heaven; where every noble, exalting principle is courting the mind and one is the reflex of the other. If we had the gigantic resources of a Crœsus at our command, and had no friend, we would be lonely, forsaken pilgrims in this labyrinth of earthly trials, there would be no one to cheer and comfort us in solitary hours, when the solemnity of eternity is more than usually resting upon us, and we realize the necessity of having near us a kindred mind.

Let the Nobles of the earth move in their brilliant career of worldly splendor, and be friendless, I pity them; their gorgeous palaces where scenes of revelries and bacchanalians are going on, that would shame a Satyr, appear to me gloomy and desolate; my spirit conjures up the impending dangers; it sees nothing but the sword of Damocles, with none to warn them; I prefer living far from the din of the world with an intelligent friend in an humble cottage, realizing thus the picture of sacred peace and privileged seclusion. All the silver mines of Peru and Chili or the golden treasures of California and Australia cannot fill up the vacuum in a heart that is caused by the loss of a friend.

When on a fine Summer morning, everything appears to be dressed in its bridal array; when the warbling of birds; the humming of bees; the golden moss and the glittering ivy; when life and loveliness seem to be wedded by Nature's exquisite taste, does not that magnificent scenery teach us, that social and friendly feelings are prominent features in God's creation. Yes, it is nature, to have beings near us, in whom we can confide the secrets of our heart; whose words are a soothing balm in days of affliction, and a song of joy in days of happiness; in whose bosom our sentiments find a harmonious echo; who are the shadows of ourselves, and whose conversation is a mental re-creation for us.

Some however are destitute of the fine, and noble feelings of Friendship, and so fired with pride and with the lust of dominion, that they prefer drenching the earth with human gore, in order to be eulogized as heroes; such individuals are destined by Nemesis to take prominent parts in the bloody drama of the World.

If we examine the history of the classical ancients, we find that in a time when everything was done by the extinguished stars of fallen greatness for the cultivation of noble, principles, Friendship was a conspicuous feature that had to grace the citizens of those bygone Republics. The most distinguished literary characters, such as Sophocles, the tragedian, Homer, etc. praised under the auspices of the Muses in elegant and beautiful stanzas such men as Eurgalus and Nisus, Damon and Pythias, Pylades and Orestes, Achilles and Patrodes, that were looked upon as beau-ideals of Friendship. The flower of Hellas' youth used to assemble on certain days, to celebrate and solemnize by a variety of feasts and sports that virtue and those that practised it. The oracles of Jupiter—Ammon pronounced often great blessings on true friends, promising even their sanctification and prominent places among the demigods. The Athenian flute that praised so often in solemn or lively strains Friendship, is silent; those men that were crowned with wreaths of myrtles as rewards for their excellent virtues have thousands of years ago crossed the Acheron; the places of their festivals that resounded with songs of joy and gladness, are desolate and shadowed with the color of the grave, even the marble statues of the classical Gods, have suffered from the corroding influence of Time, and assumed the attitude of deep mourning. But although those heroes of Friendship are as it were engulphed by Lethe's stream; their names have been handed down to succeeding generations and inspired many to follow their example. Great changes have taken place in the course of centuries; the bashful and nimble-footed Muses have fled from their places; the altars of the heathen Gods are destroyed, and where the solemn songs of Vesta's sacred virgins were ascending, the din of war is heard; alas, the beautiful time of the classical ages is gone. As far as we know there have been men in all epoch's of the World's history, that proved themselves true and disinterested friends.

At the present age, where the human family is only desirous of gaining wealth and personal distinction; when trashy gold is the powerful lever that keeps the World's machinery in motion; where hypocrisy, selfishness and deception with rose painted cheeks and beguiling smiles are hovering on tip-toe, and causing people to lay aside every feeling of humanity and rectitude for the accomplishment of their ambitious objects; where the wailing trumpets of misery and wretchedness are the dirge of foul oppression's unhappy victims; where the rich and the mighty, close their ears to the complaints and lamentations of ruined virtue and honesty, we need not be astonished at meeting so few real friends, that are willing to sacrifice their All for the benefit of their fellow-beings; that show by words and actions, that they realize the noble position of being friends in very deed. Such high-minded individuals are like the gems of the purest ray serene lying long in the ocean's deep, unfathomed eaves.

Like the weary traveller while wending his lonely way through Sahara's burning desert, who has often been haunted by the Mirage's beautiful but deceptive visions, when his searching eye detects at the distant horizon the green Oasis, spread out like an immeasurable bed of tulips and roses; all animated with life and loveliness; and he at the sight of the beautiful, flowery carpet in the midst of the sandy ocean remains moving his lips in secret prayer, his hands uplifted and his fading eye fixed, as if he expected to see descending that sublime Being, that preserved him so marvelously; so the pilgrim of life, whose path has often been crossed by deceitful persons like hideous spectres; who being tired of society, is on the verge of becoming an anachorete and misanthrope; on meeting with a true and disinterested friend, in whose presence he can give vent to the feelings of joy and grief; whose words are like the sighs of the Aeolian harp, filling his mind with hopes inexpressible charms, burying the gloomy phantoms of sadness in oblivion, and clothing the future with a halo of unutterable bliss.

What is more honorable to the mind and heart, than to watch with tender care over a being, that is persecuted by the lynx-eye of a malicious world! What is more calculated to gain the affection of our fellow-beings, than to console and cheer him, that seems to despond under the burthen of earthly trials, to let him know, that he may cling to you for support. Friendship is one of the sublimest principles, which bounteous Nature has introduced into the fields of its vast creation; it exists for the purpose of counteracting the dire and woeful results of death and sorrow; it emanates from those holy places where the spirits of the dead drink the waters of immortality. It capacitates man to pass through the most awful transactions of this sublunary existence; it is the Aegis against dangers and difficulties; in fact it steels the human heart against the inroads of misfortune.

But beware, oh beware of him, that comes sneeking round you, whose look is a hypocritical smile before you, and a frown behind you; praising and extoling all your actions and words; who always says yes, and never says no; he will shed crocodile tears at the recital of your misfortune, but at the same time he is ready at the first chance to plunge the dagger of revenge and hatred into your bosom. False Friendship is a subtle and sure poison; when you once get within the magic circle of its pestiferous influence, you are lost; like the little bird that gets within the mysterious charm of a rattlesnake, it is spell-bound, and not being able to flee it perishes in the yawning grave. Yes, false Friendship comes from the gates of Hell, to fill the cup of human misery and destroy man by its blasting atmosphere. Therefore it behoves us to exercise that intelligence which we possess, that we may know who is our friend, lest we may not get ensnared into the abyss of destruction. Let us then always remember, that he is our friend, who points out to us candidly but with delicacy of feeling our faults and weaknesses.

ERRATA IN THE ARTICLE "LIGHT," OF LAST WEEK'S PAPER.

Instead of light traveling at the rate of 102,000 miles in a second, read: 292,000 miles.

Instead of: It takes eight months and thirteen seconds for a ray of light to move from the Sun to the Earth, read: It takes eight minutes and thirteen seconds etc.

Sound traveling through a distance of 95 millions of miles, would not reach us in less than 14 years and 87 days instead of 19 years etc.

Read Prismatic Spectrum, and not Spectran.

Money in the United States Treasury.—The report of the United States Treasurer shows that on the 25th of February, 1856, the total amount on deposit in the United States Treasury was $24,658,961 87—of which there were at Washington, $338,322 53; at Boston, $2,965,241 73; at New York, $2,064,444 52; at St. Louis, $2,027,541 86; in the Assay Office, New York, $7,744,500; in the Branch Mint, San Francisco, $1,200,000; in the Mint of the United States, Philadelphia, $3,308,354 16; in the Branch Mint, New Orleans, $2,021,949 63. The net amount subject to draft was $22,714,956 23.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

Washington, March 27, 1856.

The invalid pension bill was passed.

Mr. Harlan addressed the Senate on the subject Kansas, taking ground strongly against Mr. Douglas's report. Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion of Mr. Falkner, the Committee on Foreign Relations were instructed to inquire into the expediency of modifying the act remodelling the dipolomatic and consular system, so as to repeal, among other things, so much of it as requires that all diplomatic agents shall be of the grade of Envoys Extraordinary or Ministers Plenipotentiary.

The consideration of the bill defining the rights of voters and the duties of the Commissioners of elections in Washington, was resumed.

Mr. Cobb, (Georgia) at five o.clock, moved that the Sergeant at Arms summon absentees, and compel attendance. The House, he said, was left without a quorum, owing to the factious movements of the majority.

Mr. Campbell, of Ohio, indignantly denied the charge.

The House, wearied with the struggle, adjourned by five majority.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

March 28.

The House resumed the consideration of the bill defining the rights of Voters and the duties of Commissioners of Elections in Washington.

After a struggle of two hours, the bill was recommitted to the Committee of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Lane (Oregon) called attention to the horrible sufferings of the whites in Oregon and Washington Territories caused by the unrestrained outrages of the Indians, 20,000 of whom, of various tribes, are located therein.

Mr. Campbell, Chairman of Ways and Means, said the matter would be considered immediately.

Adjourned till Monday.

SENATE. March 31.

Mr. Clayton of Del., in making explanation regarding his remarks, the other day, said the whole cost of Wilkes's exploring expedition, during four years employment, including the printing of the narrative, was about one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of the resolutions submitted by Mr. Iverson, providing for the appointment of a committee to summon members of the late Naval Board for the purpose of ascertaining the reasons which governed the action of the Board.

Considerable discussion on the conduct or misconduct of the Board ensued. Adjourned.

On motion of Mr. Phelps, of Mo., the Military Committee was instructed to inquire into the expediency of accepting the service of volunteers to aid in the suppression of Indian hostilities on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Campbell, of Ohio, from Committee of Ways and Means to which had been referred a bill for the suppression of Indian hostilities in Oregon and and Washington reported a substitute appropriating $300,000, to be expended under the direction of the President, for restoring and maintaining the peaceable disposition of the tribes on the Pacific coast, and $120,000 to purchase gun powder. Mr. Campbell said the original bill contemplated a rather warlike movement, but the committee thought it would be better to report a measure looking to peace on the frontiers as recommended by the Secretary of War.

Mr. Allison of Pa., was of the opinion that the charge made by Gen. Wool against Gen. Curry, ought to be investigated. The charge was that Gen. Curry, by calling out men, purchasing horses, &c., was involving the treasury to an expense of from two to four millions.

Mr. Campbell, of Pa., was in favor of voting the money forthwith, and holding the administration to account hereafter.

Mr. Zollicoffer, of Tenn., in referring to the conflicting statements about the affairs of Oregon and Washington Territories, said he thought an investigation was necessary before voting money.

Mr. Phelps advocated immediate action on the bill. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 1.

Mr. Mason, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a joint resolution amending the act of March, 1855, to remodel the diplomatic and consular system of the United States. He explained that the resolution proposed to change that feature of the act which seemed to make it mandatory on the President to elevate all our foreign Ministers resident to Ministers Plenipotentiary, and to affix the salary of each mission. Congress has no power to command, but could only recommend this to the President.

The resolution was adopted.

Dr. Clayton resumed his remarks on the action of the Naval Board.

Mr. Bell of Tennesee sustained in the main the proceedings of the Board, and earnestly defended Lieut. Maury from the charges made in Mr. Clayton's speech.

Mr. Fitzpatrick asked Mr. Bell to give way to a motion to adjourn.

Mr. Clayton—I hope the Senator will finish now.

Mr. Bell—I shall finish at some time. [Laughter.]

Mr. Clayton—[Earnestly]—The attack has been made and I have a right to answer now.

Mr. Mason—I move the Senate adjourn.

Mr. Clayton, [Excitedly]—No adjournment—I am not bound to listen to the insolence of that man it is unjust; unjust Sir. [Sensation.]

Mr. Mason—I call the Senator to order.

The President rapped briskly with his hammer, meantime—

Mr. Bell said—Let him go on with his insolence. I have heard of that gentleman before [pointing significantly with his finger to Mr. Clayton.]

While they were thus engaged in colloquy the Chair put the question and declared the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Among the reports from Standing Committees were bills establishing additional Land Districts in Kansas and Nebraska.

Ten thousand copies of the Central American correspondence, together with that between the United States and Great Britain on the arbitration and enlistment questions, were ordered printed; as were also the same number of copies of the document on the commercial relations of the United States with all foreign nations, statistics, comparative tariffs, &c.

The bill appropriating $300,000 for restoring and maintaining the peaceable disposition of the Indian tribes on the Pacific coast, and $120,000 for the purchase of gunpowder, was passed.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the President's annual message, and Mr. Warner vindicated the rights of the South in the common territories of the United States.

Mr. Allison spoke in opposition to the extension of slavery. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 2.

Mr. Mason from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a joint resolution to permit Dr. Kane, and the officers associated with him in the expedition to the Arctic seas, to accept such tokens of acknowledgement therefor as the government of Great Britain may please to present, in accordance with its wishes on the subject.

Mr. Cass, (dem.) of Mich., hoped the resolution would be immediately passed.

Mr. Seward desired to express, in behalf of Mr. Henry Grinnell, of New York, who furnished the funds with which the expedition was prosecuted with so much energy, with so much sacrifice, and such great results, his hope that the resolution would be adopted.

Some honorable members could not vote for the resolution bill they knew what the British government intended to give Dr. Kane. Others opposed the resolution. The further consideration of the subject was postponed.

The three million appropriation bill was then taken up and with the Central American treaty again brought on the carpet.

Mr. Butler gave notice that he should discuss the bill as a war measure.

The further consideration of the subject was postponed.

Mr. Bell, of Tenn., alluded to the rupture between himself and Senator Clayton, yesterday. He regretted the occurrence, as it resulted from a misapprehension on his part. If the Senator from Delaware shall say he did not mean to be personally offensive in his remarks relative to Lieut. Maury he was prepared to make the amende honorable.

Mr. Clayton replied—He had no doubt that the Senator, with himself, regretted the disagreeable occurrence, especially as it originated in a misapprehension. He (Mr. Clayton confessed that he felt warmly on that occasion, and was sorry for its exhibition. He could not bear malice, after the frank and manly explanation of the Senator from Tennessee, and he was glad to renew that friendship existing between them for more than twenty years. He tendered him his hand with all his heart. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The entire session was occupied in the consideration of the Senate's amendments to the West Point, Pension and Deficiency Appropriation bills without coming to any conclusion therein. Adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

Loss of the Cunard Steamer Curlew.

Boston, March 29, 1856.

We learn by the arrival of the bark Messenger Bird, at Provincetown, (Cape Cod, Mass.) that the Cunard steamer Curlew, from Halifax to Bermuda, ran ashore on the North Breaker, off Bermuda, at 4 o'clock on the morning of the 18th inst., and sank in three minutes. The mails were lost, but the crew were saved. She lies with decks under water, and is broken in two. Assistance has been sent to her, but the sea ran so high they could not save anything.

Governor Price not a Defaulter.

Trenton, N. J., March 29, 1856.

The Jury in the United States Court to-day rendered a verdict in favor of Gov. Price for $195,039 against the United States Government, leaving $75,000 to be adjudicated on by Congress, which could not be legally settled in this suit.

Black "Republican" Nominations.

Albany, March 29, 1856.

The Black "Republicans" have nominated Vischer Ten Eyck for Mayor of this city, and S. H. H. Parsons for Recorder.

Railroad Accident.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 29, 1856.

The train which left Philadelphia this afternoon for this place was thrown down an embankment fifteen feet, and was only saved from going into the river by the cars lodging in the trees. Two of the passengers were seriously injured, and others badly bruised.

Suicide at Springfield, Mass.

Springfield, March 29, 1856.

Charles A. Schouller of Boston, in a temporary fit of insanity last night jumped from the third story window of the Massasoit House, and died from injuries received.

From Kansas.

St. Louis, March 29, 1856.

Gen. Lane, Senator elect from Kansas, arrived here yesterday, bound for Washington. The United States District Court for Kansas meets at Lecompton on the 7th of April, when it is expected the Grand Jury will take into consideration the charges against the members of the new Legislature and the free State Government. Affairs in Kansas were quiet when Gen. Lane left.

Important from Central America—War Between Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

New Orleans, March 29, 1856.

The steamship Daniel Webster, from San Juan Nicaragua, on the 23d inst., has arrived at this port.

The news is highly important.

Col. Schlessinger, the Nicaragua envoy to Costa Rica, was escorted out of that country on the 9th March, and on the following day a formal declaration of war by Costa Rica was received at Granada.

Gen. Walker immediately returned the compliment, and on the same evening accompanied by 300 troops he crossed the lake to Virgin Bay.

On the following day Col. Schlessinger followed Walker with 280 men.

At the latest dates the Nicaragua troops had not met the enemy, but had provided themselves with horses, intending to march against Guamo Castle on the 21st inst.

Major Heiss had arrived at Granada with dispatches from Washington for Minister Wheeler.

An Embassador from San Salvador had arrived at Granada with dispatches of a peaceful character, but taking exception to the presence of so many Americans.

Gen. Walker had been reenforced by the arrival of 310 Americans.

Mr. Walker, in a proclamation issued on the 9th of March, states that he was invited by the Democratic party of Nicaragua to espouse their cause. He had complied with their request, and struggled to carry out the principles of the revolution of 1854, but the legitimist party having repelled all efforts at conciliation, there was left no other resource but war.

The Costa Rican Government had issued an address to the people of Central America, calling on them to rise and destroy the American invaders.

The Canada at Boston.

Boston, March 30, 1856.

The Royal Mail steamship Canada, Capt. Lang, arrived here at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and her mails for the South were dispatched by the 8 P. M. train due in New York at an early hour on Monday morning.

The papers contain nothing of importance beyond what was embraced in the dispatch from Halifax.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

Nov. 29, 1855

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb..	$0 40
do clarified "	40
do brown "	40
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	40
Tea, Young Hyson "	2 00
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	2 00
Tea, black, per lb	2 00
Apples, dried, per lb	40
Peaches " "	38
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb	75
Allspice "	50
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	50
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	40
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	50
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	75
Brimstone "	40
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	75
Candy "	1 00
Candles, 6 to the lb	50
Figs, per lb	75
Cloves, per oz	15
Nutmegs "	20
Oysters, per can	2 00
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	2 00
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 50
do pints "	1 00
Lemon Syrup "	1 50
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	20
do 10x12 "	20
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	20
Pepper "	20
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb	$0 30
Glue "	75
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	35
Copperas "	20
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	75
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	40
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $2 pr lb. or pr oz	20
Gum Camphor, per oz..	15
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	15
Turkey Opium "	1 00
Golden Seal "	15
Liquorice, per lb	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal.	6 00
Linseed Oil "	8 00
Copal Varnish "	10 00
Whale Oil "	8 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	1 00
do do do	50
Mustang Liniment, p bot	50
Rope, sea grass, per lb..	50
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	25
do 2d do	50
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$3 10
do boys', handled	2 50
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	3 00
Shovels	3 25
do steel plated	3 60
Grain Scythes	2 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 00
Two prong Hay Forks	2 00
Three do do	2 50
Four do dung do	2 50
Hoes	1 25
Concave Augers, per ¼	25
Bitts "	25
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 00
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb	1 00
Flat Irons "	25

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	50
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	60
Sand Paper, pr 2 sheets.	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb	35
SCREWS. Size.	Gross
¼ inch	1 00
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 50
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	20
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1½	20
1¾	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	20
10 do	20
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box.
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Hat, 250	1 00
Powder, per lb	80
Lead "	40
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	8 00
Fine do	10 10
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes..	3 50
do Patent	4 05
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 50
do do Low	2 75
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 20
Knacks	50
Sole Leather, per lb	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to.	2 50
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz	75
Oil Cassia "	1 00
Oil Peppermint "	1 00
Oil Lemon "	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 16¾ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	50
Ticking	40
Blue Drilling	25
Denims	30
Cotton Batten, per roll..	20
do Yarn, per 5 lb..	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb	35
Eggs, per doz	20
Cheese, per lb	25
Bacon, smoked. per lb..	25
Shoulder "	20
Ham "	25
Middle "	20
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 00
Oats "	1 50
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar-cured Beef, pr lb.	20
Beef, fresh, per lb	9
Mutton "	12½
Tongues, each	50
Tallow, per lb	20
Lard "	20
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $2 to	5 00
Adobies, per 100	30
Stone, per cord	12 00
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	8 00

WILLIAM N. WHITE & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,
CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, MATTINGS, &c.,
120 Verandah Row, Fourth Street,
ST. LOUIS, MO. mh29–3m

Mormonism in New York.

The Latter Day Saints intend holding Meetings in this City every Sunday, at the Broadway House, entrance 116 Grand street, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., 3 P. M., and 7 in the evening.

All who wish to become acquainted with the principles of Salvation, as taught by Apostles and Prophets, ancient and modern, are respectfully invited to attend.

Conference Notice.

There will be a Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints held at St. Louis, Mo., commencing on the 6th of April next. All that can, conveniently, are respectfully invited to attend.

Per order,
J. H. Hart, Presiding Elder.

A Conference will likewise be held at Philadelphia the same day. The Presiding Elders of branches in this district of country are requested to attend, bringing with them a report of their several branches.

Mormon Books.

We have received, and have for sale, the following Books, and at the annexed prices:

Book of Mormon, roan	1 25
Doctrines and Covenants	1 00
Spencer's Letters, cloth bound—O. Spencer	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
Voice of Warning—P. P. Pratt	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
do do calf gilt, do	1 25
Government of God—J. Taylor	0 50
Pearl of Great Price—F. D. Richards	0 37½
Livre de Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Das Buch Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Zion's Panier—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Etoile du Deseret—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Route to Salt Lake, illustrated—Piercy & Linforth—per No.	0 40

ARTHUR LEITCH,
APOTHECARY AND CHEMIST,
Corner of Fifth and Market Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
American, English and French Drugs, Perfumeries, Brushes, and all articles appertaining to the Toilet. mh29–3m

McMULLAN & MAXWELL'S
STEAM BAKERY MANUFACTORY,
No. 186 South Fourth Street.
Sale Office and Depot, N. W. cor. Vine and Commerce Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Every variety of LOAF AND PILOT BREAD, Boston, Butter, Soda, Sugar, Water and Wine Crackers, manufactured and kept constantly on hand.
Particular attention paid to Steamboats, Hotels and Merchants' orders. mh22–3m

McBRIDE & BOWEN,
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA.,
EMIGRANTS' STORE,
Corner Broadway and Pearl St., opposite Pacific Hotel.
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware, Family Groceries, Provisions, Queensware, Boots and Shoes, Drugs, &c. &c.
ALL GOODS necessary for EMIGRANTS crossing the Plains, or WESTWARD BOUND, at WHOLESALE prices, put up with care, neatness and despatch, at as LOW or LOWER prices than can be bought in Council Bluff City.
☞ Agricultural Implements, Grass and Garden Seeds. All Goods warranted as represented.
mh22–3m McB. & B.

HO! FOR SALT LAKE.
"In Time of Peace Prepare for War."
At the GREAT GUN EMPORIUM of
P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON, No. 25 Main street, (Sign of the Gilt Gun,) east side, St. Louis, Mo.,
Will be found the largest and most complete stock of FIRE ARMS in the Western country.
Emigrants and Trains crossing the plains will find it to their advantage to give us a hearing, as from an experience of twenty-six years in this trade we are enabled to offer inducements which no other house can possibly offer. We know the wants of the people, and are able to supply them to almost any extent. We can offer 10 per cent. inducements to cash buyers. Our stock consists of every variety of Double and Single Guns, Minié Rifles, U. S. Yaugers and Muskets, Sharp's and other breech-loading Rifles, Colt's Revolvers and other Pistols of every description and size. Also, Caps, Ammunition, Swords, Hunting Apparatus, and in fact everything necessary to a complete outfit.
Call and examine before purchasing.
Remember the No—25 Main street, east side.
mh15–6m P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON.

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,
in packages, prepared for Shipping.
Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee, Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8–1y

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!
CHARLES ROGERS,
IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,
No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,
Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.
Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.
mh8–1y CHARLES ROGERS.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,
Are transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.
The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind which will insure satisfaction.
Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.
Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. Robertson, Hudson & Pulliam, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or Waterman & Ryan, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. City, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of Domestic Yarns Warps and Fillings. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.
Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
Reference—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh21

THE MORMON.

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

WE believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the ufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés!" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ!" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS, St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets.
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
☞ Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines,
Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, J. A. JAMESON, J. P. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL, A. COTTING, JR., CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city.
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 bases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs sealed and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11. 1855. 26:tf

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

C. D. ELLIS. J. S. CAVENDER. JAS. SMITH, JR.
ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
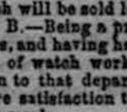
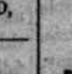
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8–4m

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet; and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22–1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.



A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10–6m

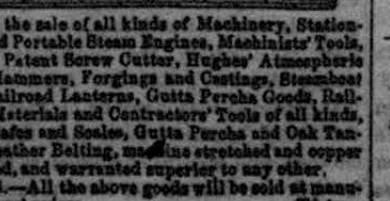


CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
☞ Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29–6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29–6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment o WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12–1y



J. McGREGOR,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,

81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22–6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVIS,

GUN AND LOCKSMITH,

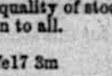
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

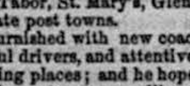
FOR the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. f24 1y

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article.
Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread.
mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22



ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22



W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
☞ Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29-tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. F. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Buzby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T.
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
We also keep constantly on hand the CELEBRATED SHARP'S PATENT RIFLE, which is the safest and most destructive weapon ever invented, for sale at the Manufactuser's prices, for cash.
Please call and examine for yourseles, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
☞ Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je9-

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS.
fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 8. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 12, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Imaginary Evils.

BY CHARLES SWAIN.

Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow;
Leave things of the future to fate;
What's the use to anticipate sorrow?
Life's troubles come never too late!
If to hope overmuch be an error,
'Tis one that the wise have preferred;
And how often have hearts been in terror
Of evils that never occurred.

Have faith—and the faith shall sustain thee—
Permit not suspicion and care
With invisible bonds to enchain thee,
But bear what God gives thee to bear.
By this spirit supported and gladden,
Be ne'er by "forebodings" deterred;
But think how hearts have been saddened
By fear of what never occurred!

Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow;
Short and dark as our life may appear,
We may make it still darker by sorrow—
Still shorter by folly and fear!
Half our troubles are half our invention,
And often from blessing conferred
Have we shrunk in wild apprehension
Of evils that never occurred!

The Great Want of the North West.

With a soil unsurpassed for richness and fertility, which, as Douglas Jerold said of Australia, "needs only to be tickled with a hoe, and it laughs with a harvest;" with a climate of rare salubrity and mildness; with untold mineral wealth hoarded up in underground chambers; with great natural water courses and unequalled navigable Lakes, on which to float its products to all markets,—what is it which this north-west yet needs upon it, to attain that lofty position of wealth and power for which it is by nature designed? The answer is a plain one. It needs men; it wants busy brains and dilligent hands; it calls for farmers to break up the wild prairie sod, and tame it with cultivated fruits and grains; it lacks architects and mechanics to build the homes of civilized men through all its groves, and over all its prairie slopes, and fill them with the implements, the furniture and the taste of cultivated life; it demands chemists and engineers to bring up from their deep chambers the treasures of the mines and the quarry, and make those useless beds of stone, coal and clay, and the exhaustless veins of copper, iron, silver and gold, beneficient and generous contributors to the comfort and luxury of life. To accomplish all this, men are needed; human intelligence, enterprise and thought. Supply but this one want, and the north-west will go speedily forward to a height of wealth, civilization and power, which we can hardly imagine. It has been fortunate for us that hitherto this great want has been supplied by the Immigration from the Old World. The exile and the outcast from the oppresion and destitution of foreign lands have been flocking to this more favored region, drawn hither by richer bounties than any other government has ever offered to the emigrant—the assurance that here labor should have its reward, and every man his equal rights. This Immigration has turned wild lands into fruitful fields, has built roads, canals and railways across the trackless prairie and through the pathless forest, has filled the wilderness with homes, school houses and churches, and, better than all, material wealth has given to all these new states a population full of energy enterprise and hope, devoted to the great cause of equal rights and Republican freedom, and promising a higher civilization and more just and equal social polity than the world has ever before seen. Such are some of the fruits of the liberal and enlightened legislation which the country has hitherto pursued towards foreigners; and is it possible to conceive of anything more short-sighted and self-destructive than to attempt, by narrow and intolerant laws, to drive away the men who are thus building up our wealth and prosperity. There are no worse enemies to the North-west than they who by bigoted and exclusive opinion or legislation are turning away from our unsettled lands the very men—the one thing which above all others—they must have. If we are to have bread to eat, and have it cheap; if we are to have lumber, and coal, and wood and stone, and have them cheap; if we are to build railroads and canals, and have them pay; if we are to make pleasant villages and large towns and cities; if we are, in short, to have the institutions, and appliances of civilization and educated society; if we wish to be rich, prosperous and great as a people, we need emigration. Older communities may get along as they are this new region, this undeveloped, unsettled North-west needs men; it must have them or remain forever a wilderness! What are the blind and deaf, who persecute the foreigner and build up high walls against the exiles, thinking about? If they succeed in carrying out their illiberal and unjust views, they will succeed in giving the prosperity of this country the heaviest possible blow; and all such men and all these schemes should be regarded as the worst foes to the progress and growth of the country.—[Weekly Tribune.

The Utah Mail Contract.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, MARCH 20, 1856.

Mr. Walker, from the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads, made the following REPORT.

The Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads, to whom was referred the memorial of Wm. M. F. Magraw, having had the same under consideration, make the following Report:

The Memorialist is the Contractor for carrying the mail on route No. 8911, from Independence, Missouri, to Salt Lake, Utah. The service was commenced in July, 1854, and the contract price was $14,440 per annum. This rate of compensation was fixed when the Indians living on the route were at peace, and when there was no reason to apprehend that disturbances would arise.

Soon after the commencement of the service the Indians became hostile, rendering it difficult and dangerous to transport the mails, and greatly increasing the expenditures necessary for that purpose. The Postmaster General could afford no relief from the unexpected hardships of the contract. Application was, therefore, made to Congress in December, 1854, and, by a clause in the Post Office Appropriation Bill of that Session, the compensation for the service of this mail route was raised to $36,000 for one year, from August 1854, with the proviso that the Postmaster General (the memorialist consenting) should have power to annul the contract.

During the year for which provision was thus made, the Indian difficulties continued to increase, insomuch that, on the 18th of September, 1855, General Harney ordered all the trading-posts to be withdrawn from the Indian country. Most of them had been previously abandoned, and the change was necessarily disastrous to the mail contractor.

In consequence of the state of facts which produced this order, and in advance of the expiration of the year for which the appropriation of $35,000 was made, the Memorialist urged the Postmaster General to act upon the proviso contained in the law, and to release him from the further performance of the contract. The Department, deeming the service of great importance to the country, declined to rescind the contract, but insisted upon holding the Memorialist to perform it, notwithstanding the hardships and ruinous losses consequent upon the failure of the Government to suppress the Indian disturbances, leaving him to seek relief in Congress, where alone, according to the views of the Department, it could be afforded.

Since the 18th day of August last, the Memorialist has continued to carry the mails at a cost, as he alleges, much greater than that of the preceding year. In his former application to Congress he has submitted an estimate, showing the actual cost of the service to be not less than $41,800, without any allowance for pay of agents, or for his own personal services, and for the use of his capital. This estimate was reduced to $36,000, as already stated; that being the whole compensation allowed for the year ending the 18th of August last.

The Committee have very carefully examined the papers and proofs on file in the Senate, upon which the increased compensation was allowed by the last Congress. They are well satisfied that the statements of the Memorialist, as to the increased cost of performing the mail service, during the existence of Indian hostilities, are fully sustained by the testimony of witnesses who had every opportunity to know the facts, as well as by the general information of the Committee as to the condition of the country and its necessary influence upon the performance of such a contract. For a clear and explicit account of the service as it has been affected by the Indian war, the Committee beg leave to refer to the Memorial of date the 20th November, 1855, addressed by the Contractor to the Hon. James Campbell, Postmaster General, which is hereto appended and made part of this Report.

Upon the facts stated in this Memorial, supported as they are by the testimony referred to, the Committee do not entertain a doubt that the relief granted by the last Congress was demanded by the circumstances of the case, and was in every respect just and proper. Nor is it less certain that the difficulties and expenses of the service have rather increased than diminished, since the time when that appropriation was made. It has been since that time that General Harney's order was issued for the withdrawal of the trading-posts, and that heavy depredations have been committed by the Indians upon the mail trains, involving serious losses to the Memorialist.

Under these circumstances, the Committee deem it just to the Contractor, at least, to continue the rate of compensation allowed by the last Congress, down to the 18th of August next. Although a larger allowance is claimed, and although it is admitted that the difficulties have been recently much greater than during the first year of the contract, the Committee do not feel at liberty to go beyond the precedent established, and to fix the compensation higher than $36,000. But, in view of the uncertainty attending the mail service on this route, and the wholly altered circumstances under which it must now be performed, the Committee are of opinion that justice to both parties requires that the contract be annulled, and the Contractor released from further performance of it from and after the 18th of August, 1856.

The Committee have also considered the claim presented by the Memorialist for the value of the property taken and stolen by the Indians while the same was actually being used in the transportation of the mails. The proof of the loss is ample and conclusive; nor is there any doubt in the Indian Bureau that the demand upon this ground is just, although the Commissioner has not the authority to allow and pay it. The loss is well established to the extent of $17,750, and this amount of indemnity the Committee consider the Memorialist entitled to receive from the Treasury.

Accordingly, the Committee report a Bill fixing the compensation of the Memorialist for carrying the mail for one year from the 18th of August last, at the sum of $36,000, and releasing him from the further performance of his contract after the expiration of that time; also directing the Postmaster General to advertise for a new contract to carry the mails on the said route for four years from the 18th of August next, and authorizing the payment out of the Treasury of the said sum of $17,750, the amount of losses by Indian depredations as aforesaid.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., October 4, 1855.

Sir: In view of the fact that the appropriation of Congress of last winter in my favor expired on the 18th day of August and in view of the fact that the circumstances still exist which induced the appropriation, and that you have declined to avail yourself of my proposition under the law of Congress enacted for that purpose, to release me from the further action under my contract for carrying the mails from Independence, Missouri, to Salt Lake, Utah, I deem it due to your Department to make the following suggestions:

First. Under my obligations to carry out the said contract, it has become necessary for me to procure, at great expense, large additional means of conveyance for the mails and other equipments for the prosecution of said contract, during the coming winter; all which I have already done.

Second. That, owing to the tardy movements of the Government escorts from the different stations on route No. 8911, from and to the points above named, during the whole of last year, I was obliged to keep four sets of hands and teams upon the road at once, when, under ordinary circumstances, two sets of these would have been amply sufficient for that service; and of these last facts I was not aware at the time I made the estimate of the actual expense of carrying said mails, which estimate was the basis of the appropriation so made in my favor by Congress.

Third. That, since the expiration of the appropriation so made in my favor by Congress, I am, without any fault on my part, losing from twenty-five hundred to three thousand dollars per month, by the terms of my original contract for carrying said mails upon the route aforesaid, and that this loss arises solely from circumstances that were not only unforeseen, but did not exist at the time of making said original contract with your Department.

In view of these facts, it is utterly impossible for me to carry out said contract without further aid from the Congress of the United States.

Being informed that it is the province and prerogative of your Department to inquire into circumstances like those above set forth, and to report thereon to the Congress of the United States, I respectfully request that you send out some intelligent agent attached to your Department, who shall fully investigate the facts and circumstances connected with the service by me rendered under said contract, and that, being informed through this medium, you make such representations to Congress that the grievance herein complained of may be appropriately redressed; and I hereby pledge myself to give such agent, when sent, and upon his demand, all and every facility for eliciting the facts in relation to this service.

Hoping that the above, to me very important matter, may command your early and kind attention, I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM M. F. MAGRAW,
Mail Contractor, Route No. 8911.

Hon. James Campbell,
Postmaster General United States.

WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., Nov. 30, 1855.

The Memorial of William M. F. Magraw Contractor for carrying the United States mail on route No. 8911, from Independence, in Missouri, to Salt Lake, Utah Territory, respectfully sheweth:

That, at the letting in March, 1854, your Memorialist and John M. Reside obtained the contract for carrying the mail on said route at the sum of $14,440. At the time, under the circumstances, and in the condition of the country when the contract was taken, and having reference to the incidental advantages connected with it, the sum was fair and reasonable compensation; but the circumstances and condition of the country are so changed, that the execution of this contract has become ruinous to the Memorialist, and to all the friends who, from personal kindness, are willing to sustain him.

He respectfully invites your attention to the following statement of the condition of things when the contract was taken, the changes which have occurred since, and the heavy charges that must be borne in the execution of the contract.

The route No. 8911, from Independence to Salt Lake, is twelve hundred and fifty miles long—perhaps the longest mail contract by land in the world. The greater part of the route is through the territory of wild Indians. On the eastern end of the route, Westport, twelve miles from Independence, is the last white settlement. Hence to Fort Leavenworth, thirty-eight miles from Westport, the route is through the nations of Shawaee and Delaware Indians. From Fort Leavenworth to Salt Lake Valley is twelve hundred miles through the nations of Sioux and other wild Indians. Beyond Fort Leavenworth, as far as Big Blue River, one hundred and forty miles, there are a few germs of settlements; beyond that there are none.

The route along which the mail is to be carried is the route traveled by emigrants from the Atlantic States to the Territories of Utah, Oregon, and Washington, and the State of California; and this is the overland mail-route to California. Prior to this contract, the mail had been carried each direction in one small carriage; sometimes by one man, and not at any time by more than two.

Your Memorialist and his partner supposed that the increased and increasing amount of mail matter, arising from the increased population of Utah and the States and Territories on the Pacific, would require, each trip, one large mail-wagon, drawn by four mules, and the service of two men to each wagon; and this force would always be sufficient to carry the mail. They were aware that the speed required would make it necessary to relieve the mules by relays, to be kept at proper stations. They, therefore, determined to establish in the first year twelve stations between Independence and Salt Lake. These stations were to be about one hundred miles apart—some more and some less, according to the requirements of the business. They commenced establishing these stations, and the necessary buildings were erected at several of them at a heavy cost.

It was designed, in the subsequent years of the contract, to establish an intermediate station in each hundred miles, until the distance between each station should be reduced as much as practicable. The necessity and advantages of these stations, in the execution of this contract, will appear from the following statement:

The number of mules estimated as necessary for the contract was four at each station, making about fifty; and eight or ten extra mules were to be kept to take the places of such as were disabled—making about sixty in all. It was necessary, during a portion of the year, to feed the working mules, through the whole route, with grain, to enable them to do the work. The grain had to be purchased at each end of the route, and transported to the intermediate stations. Grain purchased at Independence had to be carried to the various stations, as far west as Fort Laramie. Last year, your Memorialist did transport the supplies to these stations with ox-teams, which was the cheapest mode of transportation, but which, in consequence of Indian hostilities, has become impracticable.

On the western end of the route, the grain used must be purchased at Salt Lake, and carried to the several stations as far as Devil's Gate.

Your Memorialist and his partner believed that after the first year, the hands kept at each station to attend the relays of stock would raise grain, and cut and save hay, more than sufficient to support the stock; the surplus to be disposed of to travelers.

Secondly. At these stations the mules would rest two weeks after each trip, and be so recruited as to be able to perform their work on the return trip.

Thirdly. Disabled mules could there be taken care of and rendered fit for future service. The importance of this consideration is manifest from the fact that every disabled mule left on the plains became the prey of wolves and Indians, and was lost to the contractor. A mule, falling on a route of one hundred miles, may be brought in and saved; but, on a long route, of several hundred miles, is lost. Loss of stock by casualties is a heavy item in the execution of this contract.

Fourthly. Great incidental advantages were expected from the establishment of these posts, of shops for shoeing mules, repairing wagons, harness, etc., and also by making these posts places for furnishing supplies to emigrants, and trading with the Indians. By these means many of the incidental expenses of the contract would be saved, and security against casualties in the loss of animals be obtained. At the same time great benefits would have accrued to the emigrant trains in having places to rest, attention to the weary and invalid, and an opportunity to procure necessaries, and also to dispose of their disabled stock.

Fifthly. The posts of the traders scattered along this route gave incalculable advantages in securing disabled mules, and shoeing such as had become lame; also, in ferrying rivers.

Another source of direct profit, reasonably expected, was from passengers: the passage-money was $200 each, and it was reasonable to suppose that the average number, each trip, would be at least four. To conduct this business, four wagons costing $400 each were deemed sufficient. One conductor was allowed to each train at $75 per month, making for the two trains $150 per month. To each carriage was allowed one other hand at $40 per month, making for the four carriages per month $310. In this calculation it was intended that one wagon should be exclusively for passengers, and the other for the mails.

When this contract was entered into, the country was at peace with the Indians on the route, and your Memorialist believed there was no danger of war with them. He, therefore, believed that with the prospective advantages mentioned, the contract could be executed with a profit; he certainly would not have taken it without the hope of having the benefit of these advantages.

On the 18th of August, 1854, Indian hostilities suddenly commenced by the murder of the party commanded by Lieutenant Grattan. This outbreak was wholly unexpected by the contractors and the mail party on the route. In proof of this, your Memorialist states, that on the 16th of August, the mail train with three men in charge, under conduct of Jesse A. Jones, encamped and spent the night with the very band of Indians who, on the 18th, murdered Grattan and his party. The train left the Indian encampment on the morning of the 17th, without an intimation to any one of the men that the Indians meditated hostilities. With this commencement of hostilities the condition of the contract has entirely changed. The hope of profit from passengers is extinguished.

In November, one of the mail trains was surprised by the Indians, the men murdered, the mules stolen, and other property destroyed; after which John E. Reside withdrew from the contract, and your Memorialist has, since then, executed it. Three of the stations established, viz: one at Fort Laramie, one at Independence Rock and one at Ash Hollow, were broken up by the Indians. The other stations had to be abandoned, except one at Fort Kearney, one at Fort Bridger, and one at Big Blue river, and none can now be established. All hope of raising any portion of the supplies, except hay, at these stations on the route, is gone. Your Memorialist cannot keep depots for his grain and other supplies on the greater part of the route, nor could he procure transportation to them, if he could establish them. Under these circumstances, your Memorialist finds himself deprived of every incidental advantage expected from the contract, and he finds his actual expenses oppressively increased, besides being exposed to the most disastrous casualties.

On the eastern end of the route, the crossing of the Big Blue river, one hundred and ninety miles from Independence is the most western station at which he can establish a depot for grain and other supplies. On the western end, Fort Bridger is the most eastern station, at which such a depot can be established. The distance between these stations is about nine hundred and forty-seven miles, through the country of the hostile Indians.

On this entire route there are only two places, Fort Kearny and Fort Laramie, where the trains can have temporary rest and protection, and even at these points the protection scarcely extends beyond the walls of the forts; and even here, his losses from Indian depredations have been heavy. Your Memorialist can establish no depots for grain and supplies at these posts, because transportation by small parties is impracticable.

The traders have been withdrawn from this country by the orders of General Harney, and your Memorialist is thus deprived of places at which mules may be shod or left to recruit. He does not complain of the orders of General Harney: he regards the difficulties to which he is subjected as the unavoidable consequences of the war. From Big Blue to Fort Bridger, nine hundred and forty-seven miles, he must pass the entire route exposed to constant ambushes and assaults from a starving, desperate, fierce, and remorseless enemy, without the slightest hope of aid or sympathy, except at Forts Kearny and Laramie, and without any of the appliances or assistance found in a civilized country; and through this country he is required by his contract to transport a mail weighing on each outward trip an average of fifteen hundred pounds, and on the inward trips an average of three hundred pounds. He is bound to carry it in four mule coaches, and to carry it without endangering it. This contract it is impossible to perform without aid from the Government. As he has already said, his mules must be grain-fed; as it is impossible to have transportation for the grain, or to establish depots between Big Blue river and Fort Bridger, all the grain to be used during each trip must be carried with the mail each way. To enable him to do this, he has been compelled to increase the service from four to six mule wagons, by adding two mules to each team, and to send additional force with each. The great increase in the length of the distances between the stations renders it necessary to increase the quantity of grain feed to each mule, in proportion to the increased strength and power of endurance required in the animal. Grazing on such trips will not sustain the animals, even if it were practicable.

Your Memorialist is not able to submit any accurate calculation of the cost of transporting grain to Big Blue river and Fort Bridger, and the cost along the route. When the contract was commenced, your Memorialist and his partner put on the line fifty mules, and believed that ten more would enable them to perform the contract; service was successfully performed with that number until hostilities commenced. Your Memorialist has been compelled to put on the line one hundred and sixty mules. Much other valuable property and sixty mules have been lost to him by Indian depredations, for which he is seeking redress through another branch of the Government. He does not charge this loss against the Post Office Department, but he considers it right to mention it, to show some of the hazards to which he has been subjected. These hazards must be greatly increased in the future, and to them must be added the loss of mules from the increased severity of the labor, and the diminution of supplies of food to which they must be subjected. He has been compelled to increase the number of mules in each wagon from four to six, and in each train from six to thirty; they must take their subsistence with them, to enable them to travel and relieve each other. In view of all the difficulties, he firmly believes that the future execution of this contract will require at least two hundred and fifty mules on the line, and this number must be constantly recruited, to supply the places of those lost by the casualties of the service; and none but mules of the best quality will perform this service. For such mules he is compelled to pay from $200 to $250 each. Mules of inferior quality cannot make the long trips, and must be left on the road.

When the service commenced, it could be performed by one conductor to each train, and one hand to each wagon in the service, one wagon being kept exclusively for passengers. The conductor received $75 per month, the hands $40; making the monthly pay of two conductors and four hands, $310. Now, your Memorialist pays $100 per month to conductors, and $60 to his hands; and to start a mail on the first of each month, he is compelled to keep two extra sets of hands and outfits in his employment, as he is obliged to run in each train never less than two, oftener three, and sometimes four six-mule wagons for the transportation of the mail and subsistence of the animals and the men. This increased number of wagons and mules on the route compels him to employ a larger number of hands; and he now employs twenty, and at wages which may seem high to those who only bear in mind the prices paid in the civilized country. But when it is remembered that these men pass through bands of hostile savages, at the constant hazard of life, and are continually exposed to the rigors of the most severe climate, that they must be men of courage and experience, skilled in Indian warfare, acquainted with Indian habits and with the plains, accustomed to manage and tend animals upon them, and must also be men of character, it will be apparent that the price given is, perhaps, less than he must pay for the future.

The monthly wages which must be paid in executing the contract will amount to $1,600. The entire sum paid by the department is $1,203½ per month. The subsistence of these men costs your Memorialist one dollar per day, making $24 per day, or $730 per month. This amount is greater than when the contract was taken, as it is now unsafe to hunt. The amount of wages paid is $19,200 per annum, and of subsistence $8,760—making in these two items, $27,960 per annum.

The contract contains a clause forbidding your Memorialist to endanger the mail. The hostility of the Indians through whose country the mail is carried necessarily endangers it; but, to obviate this danger as far as possible, a military escort has been allowed on part of the road—from Fort Kearny west to Sweetwater river, and Fort Laramie to Fort Kearny going east. This escort, when with the mail, aids its security, but delays the transportation and adds to the expenses of the contractor. From the necessity of the case, the commander of the escort must control the entire travel of the party, its day's journey, encampment, and hours of travel; and in doing this, he must have regard to his duties as a military man, to the preservation of the horses and other public property under his charge. The usual number of miles travelled by the military escort is near thirty per day; the mail party should travel forty-one or forty-two miles; the delay of the escort delays the trains, increases the expense, and renders it impossible to get through in schedule time. The inconveniences, too, to which the mail party is often subjected by choosing the place of encampment for a military party, and the different hours and speed of travel suited to the two parties, increase the hardships on the mail animals and the number lost in the service.

In view of the ruinous effects upon the contractor produced by the change of circumstances under which the contract is to be executed, your Memorialist has heretofore applied to be released from his contract; this request has been denied by the department, unless the contract could be transferred to some one able and willing to execute it on the same terms. This decision of the department was, no doubt, made from considerations of public duty, and your Memorialist cannot, therefore, complain of it. It may be that the character and interest of the country forbid it to abandon the overland mail-route through its own Territories to its Pacific State and Territories; but your Memorialist is in no way responsible for the Indian hostilities, which did not exist, and were not anticipated, at the time the contract was made, and the disastrous consequences to the mail route should not be visited on him. When he undertook this contract, the sum of $14,440 per annum would, with the collateral advantages and with good management, have been a fair compensation. He has been deprived of all these advantages; and the sum of $14,440 per annum is so disproportioned to the necessary expenditure, as to be a mockery rather than a just compensation. He is willing to use every honest endeavor, and encounter every hazard, in the execution of the contract; but he has arrived at that point when his means and the means of his friends and supporters are exhausted, and it is impossible to go on with the service much longer without the assurance of just and essential aid and support from the Government. In consideration of these circumstances, he earnestly, but respectfully, asks that you again take his case into consideration; that, if consistent with your views of public duty, you will release him from the performance of his contract, and allow him an adequate indemnity for his necessary outlays and losses, above the sum received on the contract.

If this cannot be done, he then respectfully asks that the contract be so modified that an express mail, only, may be carried at an adequate compensation, and without a clause forbidding the mail to be endangered. If neither of these things can be granted, then he asks that the compensation allowed for carrying the mail may be increased, so as to make an adequate compensation for the increased expenses and means required to carry it.

If, on consideration, you should think the present powers of the department do not permit you to give such relief, then he most respectfully asks that his case may be referred to Congress by you for such relief as will be just.

The extreme urgency of his affairs, and the interest of this branch of the public service, will, he hopes, be his excuse for earnestly, but respectfully, urging his case on the immediate consideration of the department, and soliciting a prompt action upon it.

With respect, W. M. F. MAGRAW.

Hon. James Campbell, Postmaster General.

Where was Eden?

We are informed in the sacred narrative that the "Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there He put the man whom He had formed." But where was this land? According to a late author, "the manifold resources of philology, literature and historical research have failed to answer this question." We have before us the opinions of Reland and Calmet, who assume this locality to have been in the mountainous region of Armenia, among the head waters of the Euphrates, Tigris and Araxes. "And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted and became into four heads," &c. The first was Pison, the second was called Gihon, the third Hiddekel, and the fourth was called Euphrates. Euphrates, then, is one river, and according to Faber, has not changed its name since the time of Moses. Hiddekel is supposed to be the same with the Tigris. Although a greater difficulty has arisen in regard to the Pison, yet if we can rely upon some biblical critic, it is what is now known as the Absarus, which has its rise not far from the origin of the Euphrates and Tigris, and falls into the Black Sea in the territory of the ancient Colchians, famed in all antiquity for its gold. The river Gihon is supposed to be the same as the Gundes, which rises in the same district as the others. Consequently, Armenia is pointed out as the site of Paradise. This has been the generally received opinion of most commentators, but latterly we have observed men to differ from this, and endeavor to point out distinctly that the Garden of Eden was not in Armenia, or any of the countries across the dark blue sea, but in America, the United States, yes, in the Territory of Kansas. Max Greene, the author of "The Kansas Region," speaking of a large, beautiful and unrivalled park in the great mountain valley of Kansas, remarks, that "in this natural park the head streams of the Arkansas interlock with those of the Rio Grande and South Fork of the Platte or Nebraska, and affluents of the Colorado of the West; a water star whose rays glide south to the Gulf of Mexico, north to the Missouri, east for two thousand miles to the Mississippi, and westward to the mighty Pacific. It is the only valley in the world, which, with its four rivers, and other respects, answers to the sacred Geography of the lands of Eden." This is a new view of this matter as well as strange, but Mr. Greene is not alone in his views in regard to Kansas being the Eden of the Bible. Rev. Lyman Coleman in his Historical Geography of the Bible, says the learned have brought to the investigation of this matter the aid of most recent discoveries of Eastern Missionaries and travelers; and after the widest range of inquiry, have only returned with some elaborate theory of fanciful conjecture. The geographical position of Eden as defined by Moses, is involved in great obscurity; yet it was evidently designed to describe the location of the country by landmarks that were familiarly known at the time. Four rivers proceeded from it, one of which encompassed the land of Havilah, where was found fine gold and precious stones. Two other places bearing this name are mentioned in Gen. x: 7 and 29; but each is evidently distinct from this, which is totally unknown. Another encompassed the land of Cush; which, in other passages, is the Ethiopia of the Scriptures, lying upon either side of the Red Sea, in Upper Egypt and Southern Arabia. (Gen. 10: 7;) but in this place it seems to be the name of some other country, now unknown. The third river Biddekel, flowed from Eden toward Assyria. The fourth was Euphrates. The Bible plainly says that the rivers of Paradise arose from one source; and, flowing out of the garden, divided into four great rivers, running in different directions. Nowhere but in the South Park of Kansas is such a thing known on earth. If this is the case, and we have no reason to doubt it, may it not in a short time create as great a revolution in our feelings in regard to Eden, as Prof. Baldwin's "Armageddon" is creating in regard to prophecy? We shall see.—[Virginia Telescope.

Boston Two Hundred Years Ago.

In Massachusetts Colony there was a law which required a daily register to be kept in each family of what was done by each individual composing it; stocks being the means most relied on for keeping the framework of society together—appropriately placed directly in front of the church door. Just as with the builder of the Bastile in France, to whom the Bishop might appropriately have made allusion, it appears that the carpenter who first made the stocks was the first to suffer from them, by reason of his extortionate charges. One of the laws of the Colony contained a distinct recognition of slavery; even a fugitive slave law was passed. The limited notions which prevailed of true freedom were illustrated in the liability of any person to be reduced to slavery for a limited term, if guilty of what the court might be pleased to consider "ill and insolent carriage." The year 1633 witnessed a remarkable interference with freedom of individual action, "all Christian people being forbidden to have lectures during the week before 1 o'clock in the afternoon." This regulation appeared not to have been uncalled for, for so long would the zealous clergy of that period preach, that numerous of their hearers adopted the expedient of cutting little private doors from their pews through the sides of the meeting houses, from which they might escape when the fortieth or fiftieth head of the discourse was reached—a device which the law stepped in to restrain. Presently idleness was made a legal sin; constables were charged to take care of "common coasters,"—the loafers of two hundred years ago. The law entered the house to prescribe the use of tobacco, permitting no man to take it in the presence of strangers; it took away the custom of drinking healths, and stamped D on the drunkard; it had its eye, too, on unguarded publications likely to give offence to the court.

Take Care of Your French.

One of the most ludicrous conversations took place not long since in Paris. The parties were a Yankee, who had studied French on the ship as he came over and the garçon of a hotel. The new-comer was hungry, and had watched anxiously the movements of the garçon, who was putting things to rights in his room; but the phrase for getting dinner wouldn't come to his memory. He had seen in his Ollendorf that J' ai faim (I am hungry) were the magic words to be used for that purpose. At last, he thought he had them.

"Garcong," said he, beckoning with his forefinger.

The garçon approached.

"Garcong, J' ai un femme," (I have a wife.)

"Eh bien, monsieur!" answered the boy.

"I hope that madam is quite well."

The Yankee, mistaking this for a promise to serve up, waited awhile, but, seeing that the boy did not take any step to fulfill, concluded to try again.

"Garcong," said he, beckoning as before, Je suis fameaux (I am famous.)

The garçon answered, with a low bow: "All Englishmen, monsieur, are covered with glory," and went on with his work.

The second open sesame had failed. The Yankee desperate; at last he was sure of being right."

"Garçon, Je suis une femme" (I am a woman.)

This made the Garçon open his eyes; but, guessing in a moment what was wanted; "Ah, monsieur wants to say J' ai faim."

"Yes, that's it!" cried the relieved Yankee, who now tells the thing as a good joke on himself.—[Godey's Lady's Book.

Examination of Attorneys.

The following examination of a certain candidate for admission to the bar, taken from the Western Law Journal, is decidedly a good one. The examiner commences with the following:

"Do you smoke?"

"I do, sir."

"Have you a spare cigar?"

"Yes, sir." [Extending a short six.]

"Now, sir, what is the first duty of a lawyer?"

"To collect fees."

"What is the second?"

"To increase the number of his clients."

"When does your position toward your client change?"

"When making a bill of costs."

"Explain."

"When they occupy the antagonistic position I assume the character of plaintiff and they defendant."

"A suit decided, how do you stand with the lawyer conducting the other side?"

"Cheek by jowl."

"Enough, sir—you promise to become an ornament to your profession, and I wish you success. Now, are you aware of the duty you owe me?"

"I am, sir. It is to invite you to drink."

"But suppose I decline?"

[Candidate scratches his head.]

"There is no instance of this kind on record in the books! I can't answer the question."

"You are right, and the confidence with which you make the assertion shows that you have read the law attentively. Let us have a drink and I will sign your certificate."

A fat man in an omnibus, a tall man in a crowd, a short man on parade, and a lady in a huge bonnet sitting before you at a public lecture, are declared to be four of the most unpopular personages of the day; the bonnet is a decided nuisance.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 109 Nassau st., cor. ANN, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months.....	$4.	3 months.....	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
12 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

All letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 12, 1856.

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin and an Anonymous Scribbler in Utah.

THE Philadelphia Evening Bulletin published two weeks since a lengthy letter of nearly two closely printed columns, purporting to have come from Utah, on persons and affairs in that Territory. For a wishy-washy, calumniating, lying fabrication, we have not seen its equal for some time back. Years ago we have known men, after some of our boys had hurt their faith or their corns, sit down with their cup of spleen running over, and write the most horrible things that their agitated and corrupt minds could fabricate, and the Mormons, being comparatively unknown, such statements passed for grave truths, but it is now too late in the day for anonymous scribbling. It won't do, in 1856, to say that "the leading men belonging to this Church are the most disloyal and treasonable set of men now living on the face of the earth."

We can well understand by the writer's language why he has written against the Mormons. He is returning home, and may expect something to reach the Keystone State before he arrives. But why our Philadelphia cotemporary has condescended to be the echo of an anonymous calumniator we cannot divine. We would advise the editor of the Bulletin to read the letter over again, and let him ask himself if it does not bear every trace of the most rancorous, vindictive feeling that a man could harbor in his bosom. Is the editor ignorant of the many incontrovertible proofs which the Mormons have given, and give daily, of their devotedness to the Constitution of the United States? If ignorant, he is a bigotted partizan who reads but one side of a disputed subject, for enough to repel all such charges has been published not only by the Mormons, but by other men whose zeal for grandmother's faith had not blinded their eyes to facts. If the editor has any sense of justice, we shall expect him to acknowledge he has been awfully hoaxed.

We will not condescend to refute this anonymous scribbler, but a few extracts from his letter, with a passing remark, may not be altogether uninteresting:

"The masses are desperately ignorant and very poor, while but a few leading spirits are clothed with wealth, grandeur and power, not surpassed nor indeed equalled in any country now on earth. Among these I place Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Jedediah M. Grant, Ezra T. Benson, Gen. D. H. Wells and Col. W. C. Babbit."

Lying and exaggeration go hand in hand—a better illustration of the fact than the above we despair of finding. Must Mormonism be charged with whatever ignorance exists in Utah? In the city of Great Salt Lake, with a population of somewhere about twenty thousand persons, there are at least nineteen ward schools, many private schools for the young and rising generation, with evening schools for adults, and numerous institutions for the teaching of the higher branches of education—and all these are Mormon schools and Mormon institutions, Mormon teachers and Mormon scholars. We opine that the scribbler for the Bulletin found that however ignorant the masses in Utah might be of Three being One and One Three, as in orthodox theology, they could measure his bushel in their peck without much pressing down or running over.

On Wednesday last the New York Herald published a table of the population and wealth of the United States in 1855, in which the wealth of the whole Territory of Utah is put down at 2,100,000. The Bulletin friend must have made an important discovery between the 31st of December, 1855, and the 8th of January, 1856 (the date he writes.) We regret that his many lies make this statement very doubtful. We should, however, be pleased to learn that in this instance he is correct, and that the few gentlemen he names "are clothed with wealth, grandeur and power, not surpassed nor indeed equalled in any country now on earth."

Here is another spicy piece of information:

"The prime object of the Church is to keep the masses poor and in abject ignorance—ignorant of the laws of the Church, ignorant of the powers of the Church, ignorant of the relation they bear to the United States, ignorant of their duties to God, to their country and all of their fellow-men."

He must have felt greatly relieved when he got these lines penned. We will not name the numerous books published by the authorities of the Church, nor the multitude of home missionaries who are travelling throughout the Territory of Utah to instruct their brethren—we will pass them, but we cannot think of passing "the prime object of the Church is to keep the masses ignorant of the relation they bear to the United States, ignorant of their duties to God, to their country, and all of their fellow-men."

The three last phrases are mere twaddle from such a pen. The Mormons "ignorant of the relation they bear to the United States! They may be; but one thing is certain, the first book published in the Territory of Utah was a book of 258 pages, containing the "Constitution of the United States, Organic Act, and Territorial Laws, accepted and endorsed by Congress." That's enough.

Had the letter not been so lengthy we would have published it in our columns for the amusement of our friends in Utah. Here is one choice morsel they must have:

"Gen. Holman, the late District Attorney, left the Territory for the good of his country and the reputation of his profession!!!!!"

"Thereby hangs a tale." We hope there is no relationship. We expect to learn something soon. Oh! squaws, paint, blankets, and looking-glasses, what a tale you may yet tell!

Emigration.

BY the latest advices from our agents in the West, who are engaged in arranging for the emigration to Utah, we learn that cattle are to be had for about $70 per yoke, with some additional expense for driving them two or three hundred miles to the place of outfit. Provisions are falling in prices. We have reasons for hoping that the price of cattle and provisions will still be lower by the time we purchase. Emigrants, don't delay preparations. Now is the time. Our next ship load of Saints, whose names are given in another column, will arrive in Boston. Being nearly all through passengers, they will proceed West, via New York and Iowa City. Elder Daniel Spencer will superintend the emigration in the West.

DOMESTIC SUMMARY.

GOVERNOR CLARK, of New York, in consideration of the impaired health of Dr. Robert M. Graham, granted him a pardon on Friday last. It will be remembered by our readers that the Doctor, in an affray, killed Mr. Loring in the St. Nicholas Hotel of this city.

On the first page we have published Mr. Magraw's petition to Congress, setting forth his claims upon Government for the assistance his present position requires.

On the article, "Where is Eden?" we might say something; at present we can only remark, if Kansas were Eden—what a change! Eden's first occupant and his fair consort walked with God—now, "Border Ruffians" and "Nigger Worshippers," with Colt's revolvers and Sharpe's rifles.

On Monday the steamship Adriatic was launched from the yard of the Messrs. Steers. The Adriatic is 354 feet long from stem to stern; 50 feet beam; depth of the hold under the spar deck, 33 feet 2 inches, and tonnage 5,888, carpenter's measurement. She is the largest vessel ever built in this country, and designed to be the fastest ocean steamer in the world. The inhabitants of New York turned out in great numbers to witness the ceremony. It was a holiday throughout the city. Pickpockets did a big business; some, however, got more attention than they found agreeable. Some idea of the dimensions of the Adriatic can be formed from the following comparative table, giving the relative sizes of the largest vessels afloat:

	Carpenter's Measurement. Length.	Tonnage.
Adriatic, steamship.....	354	5,888
Great Republic, clipper ship.....	300	5,520
Niagara, U. S. steam frigate	345	5,100
Pennsylvania, U. S. line battle ship	—	4,400
Cornelius Vanderbilt, steamship...	335	5,100
Great Republic, rebuilt.....	360	3,300
Persia, British steamship.....	390	5,600
Atlantic, steamship.....	287	3 000
Great Britain, British steamship...	350	3,500
Himalaya, British steamship.....	350	3,500

Among other appliances of safety, the Adriatic will be furnished with one of Professor Grant's calcium lights, so arranged, with a reflector placed upon the starboard wheelhouse, as to throw a light upon the ocean sufficiently brilliant to enable those on board to see any object one mile in advance of the ship's track; thus making it impossible to encounter any obstacle at night unobserved by the lookout, except in case of a dense fog. A novel and valuable feature is incident to the pencil of rays projected by the calcium light, which is, that the cone of rays so illuminates the air that a bright line, like the tail of a comet, marks its path and can be readily distinguished from any direction—thus showing the course of the steamer which carries it to any vessel upon the ocean in its vicinity.

FOREIGN SUMMARY.

LAST week we announced the birth of the King of Algiers; on another page will be found an account of the bowing and scraping his royal presence commanded. The Emperor has declared an amnesty to all political offenders, who will return to France and swear allegiance to the present Government. Generals Randon, Canrobert and Bosquet have been promoted to the rank of Marshals of France. The papers are full of congratulatory addresses to the Emperor. Pope, Kings, Emperors, Princes, Bourgeois, and Peasants are all rejoicing!—if we only could believe them.

Every movement among the belligerents indicate that before the expiration of the present armistice peace will be proclaimed.

The King of the Belgians arrived in London on the 18th ult., and was godfather of the Princess Royal of the family of Queen Victoria, at her confirmation on the 20th.

The Prince of Prussia is to visit England in May. According to the knowing folks he is going to do some courting before he returns. The Princess Royal stands a good chance of accompanying him to his father's house.

The attention of Lord Palmerston to Mr. Buchanan, on leaving the British Court, and the reception of Mr. Dallas, augurs peace for some time longer between John and Jonathan.

Conferences.

A CONFERENCE of the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was held at Washington Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., on Sunday, April 6th, 1856.

DR. JETER CLINTON, presiding.

The Conference opened at 10½ A. M.

The Choir sung "The Morning Breaks, the Shadows Flee."

Prayer by Elder Angus M. Cannon.

Officers present—One of the Twelve Apostles, 5 Seventies, 5 High Priests, and a numerous attendance of Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons.

After making some observations on the great work that the Saints were engaged in, Elder Clinton invited Pres. J. Taylor to address the Conference. He arose and said he was much pleased at having the opportunity of meeting with his brethren and sisters under such favorable circumstances. Being the anniversary of the organization of the Church, they had met, as was the custom of the Saints everywhere, to attend to such business as the interests of the Kingdom of God demanded. To-day, the Saints in Salt Lake City are assembled in Conference, and it may be that hundreds of persons are there appointed to preach to the nations or to build up Zion. Measures are set forth there with the view of extending and strengthening the Kingdom of God. With this faith, the Saints meet in Conference, and it is no question with them whether the adoption of any measure makes them dollars richer or poorer. They had not met there that day to promote measures for their individual aggrandisement, but to learn the will of God; and when they acquire that knowledge, it became their duty to practice it. It was the privilege of the Saints to express freely their confidence or want of confidence in the authorities of the Church at the April and October Conferences. No one should cover iniquity. If any man, from President Brigham Young down to the deacon at the door, had in any way violated the trust confided to him, to-day the Saints were required to testify of it. The names of the presiding authorities would be submitted to a vote of confidence; every person was required to vote for or against. Now was the time, brethren and sisters, to speak out; no tittle tattling or whisperings in corners afterwards. Vote according to your conscience; hypocrisy cannot flourish among Mormons; whoever tries it finds it unprofitable work, and the Saints banish them from their midst. The eyes of the Lord are on the ways of his people, nothing is hid from Him; we therefore wish to walk in the light, as He is in the light.

The Conference voted unanimously to sustain Brigham Young as President, Prophet, Seer and Revelator of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints throughout the whole earth; and Heber C. Kimball and Jedediah M. Grant, as his counsellors.

Orson Hyde, Parley P. Pratt, Orson Pratt, Wilford Woodruff, John Taylor, Geo. A. Smith, Amasa Lyman, Ezra T. Benson, C. C. Rich, Lorenzo Snow, Erastus Snow, and F. D. Richards, were severally sustained members of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles—with Orson Hyde President.

Elder John Taylor was sustained President of the Eastern States. Bishop N. H. Felt and Elder Alex. Robbins, Jr., were sustained in their respective positions as assistants to Prest. Taylor.

Dr. Jeter Clinton was sustained as the President of the Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey conferences.

The names of those holding the priesthood connected with those conferences were read and sustained.

Elders Samuel A. Wooley, Wm. H. Miles, Angus M. Cannon, S. P. Rose and Solomon Mack, addressed the conference, representing the number of Saints in their districts, and the position of the Church and the progress of the members over whom they presided. These brethren bore testimony to the divinity of the work introduced to this generation by the Prophet Joseph Smith, and related with much spirit their individual experience associated therewith.

Meeting closed by singing and prayer.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Saints met again at 3 P.M.

After opening by singing and prayer, Elder Clinton spoke and eulogised the labors of the sisters connected with the Philadelphia Branch, who had clothed the poor of the Church during the past winter. Their conduct was commendable and worthy of the blessings of good men, angels and God.

Pres. J. Taylor addressed the Saints. He was truly glad to hear the favorable reports that had been given during Conference, and when contrasting the present position of the Church with its position when himself and brethren arrived here from Utah about eighteen months ago, he was truly grateful to the Lord God of Jacob and praised his holy name. Everything was at first discouraging, but the Lord had been with them and enabled them to do what the Presidency required at their hands, and now all things were in a prosperous and encouraging position. He had been nobly sustained by many in and out of the Church, and though the publication of THE MORMON had caused much anxiety, and some persons thought they never could carry it through, he felt to recognize the hand of the Lord for the strength they had received, and was proud to say that no man had ever presented a claim against the office that they had not been able to meet. He spoke for some time on the subject of tithing. On account of the great number of emigrants who had been assisted by the Saints on their arrival in New York and Philadelphia, many of the Saints had not been able to attend to this matter as the Church requires, but he hoped that as the poor Saints found employment and things moved in their ordinary course, it would be attended to by all. He had no wish to press any one nor lay upon his brethren burthens they desired not to carry, he therefore would leave it as a matter of conscience with them. Some thought that the Priesthood were enriched by tithing, but it was a mistake. The Elders of the Church, when at home and attending to their own affairs, pay their tithing the same as the members. For his part, he had never received one cent of it. The public buildings of the Church alone were sustained by it. He trusted that the Saints would take hold of the Perpetual Emigration scheme and contribute to its funds, that the poor everywhere might be gathered to the valleys of the mountains and serve the Lord their God far from the oppression of men. He spoke likewise on the subject of emigration, and gave such instructions as would benefit those preparing to cross the plains.

Elder T. B. H. Stenhouse addressed the Conference a few minutes.

Conference closed by singing and prayer.

Adjourned to 7½ P.M.

EVENING SESSION.

In the evening the large Hall was filled with an attentive audience.

Elder Angus M. Cannon addressed the meeting on the latter day work of God.

President Taylor followed, giving much good instruction to those seeking to do well and a stirring address to hypocrites.

Elder Clinton invited his hearers to investigate Mormonism and judge for themselves.

During the Conference, enlivening strains from the choir elevated the minds and gladdened the hearts of the Saints. An excellent spirit prevailed and unanimity marked every movement.

TEXAS.

BY letter dated Mill Creek, Ellis Co., Texas, March 10, we learn that a Conference of the Saints had been held there lately—(no date given in the letter.)

Elder B. L. Clapp presiding.

In the forenoon of the Conference the President preached on the divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and Elder William C. Moody spoke on the Gospel.

In the afternoon the Saints voted unanimously to sustain Elder Homer Duncan as President of the Texas Conference.

Elders J. Ostler and M. J. Snediker were appointed to labor in East Texas under his direction.

Elder Clapp was released from his labors, and thanked by the Conference for his wise and judicious counsels while laboring in their midst.

Elders Wm. W. Allen and Andrew Bigler were released from their labors, and permitted to return home, as they had faithfully discharged their duties. They gave an account of their labors, and bore a faithful testimony to the work of God.

Seventeen persons had been baptized since the previous Conference. A goodly number were preparing for the spring emigration. The Elders are all well.

PENNSYLVANIA.

THE Saints in Franklin county met in Conference in the town of Franklin, Quincy township, Penn., on Sunday, March 29th, 1856.

Angus M. Cannon presiding.

Elder George J. Taylor, who had been laboring in that district of country for some months, had left previous to the Conference to join the staff of the office at New York.

Officers present—1 Seventy, 6 Elders, 1 Priest, 4 Teachers, 1 Deacon.

The standing of the authorities of the Church were individually presented to the Conference, and unanimously sustained in their respective callings.

The Union Branch, represented at Conference, numbers 59 members, including 1 Seventy, 6 Elders, 1 Priest, 4 Teachers, 2 Deacons. Much good instruction was given by the Elders who spoke at Conference.

Elder Daniel Robinson resigned the presidency of the Union Branch on account of his leaving the country. Thanks were tendered to Elder R. for his faithful labors and watch-care over the Saints. The blessing of the Lord was craved for his future life. Elder Martin Heiner was chosen to succeed him in the Presidency of the Branch.

Several brethren were ordained to the ministry.

TOM'S RIVER.

THE Saints connected with the Tom's River Branch of the Church met in Conference on Sunday, the 30th ult.

Elder W. C. Reamer presiding.

By the report we learn that they had a real good time. Much good instruction was given by Elders Reamer and McKean, and many of the Saints related their experience and testified their determination to serve the God of Abraham.

On the Death of N. Preston Felt.

And art thou gone, dear little friend,
To some far off and holy land?
Oh! why did Heaven thy presence lend,
Then snatch thee from our happy band?

We miss thy bright and cheerful look,
Where class-mates one by one repair,
And view thy desk—thy bench—thy book—
Then think of thee who late sat there.

Oh! when the hour of sleep draws nigh,
How sadly do thy brothers mean—
Then cast to Heaven one deep-drawn sigh,
And weep that they must be alone.

Thy father, too, will speak of thee,
Dear gentle, sweet, and lovely child;
In fancy that fond face he'll see,
Which oft on his so sweetly smiled.

Through the long day when all seems bright,
Thy name will not forgotten be,
And in the silence of the night,
Soft whispering winds will speak of thee.

Thy mother will in grief repair
To some familiar, well-loved spot,
And dream her boy may meet her there,
But that loved boy approaches not.

How little thought that trusting heart,
Whilst thou wert seated by her side,
That she so soon with thee must part—
That then so soon, sweet child, had died.

But now in peace she bows resigned,
Though she has lost a favorite son;
True christian grace adorns the mind
Of her who says—"God's will be done."

Preston, thy spirit's taken flight,
Where earthly cares no more annoy,
In Heaven must souls like thine delight—
Earth could not keep so dear a boy.

But He who hears each fervent prayer,
Who sees each throbbing of the heart,
Will all our sorrows soon repair,
Where we no more, sweet child, may part.

MACCIN.

FOR THE MORMON.

All the World's a Stage.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

ONE day while engaged in the perusal of Shakespeare's works, I met with the above passage, that caused me to reflect upon the philosophical truth of the same.

The world may be compared to a vast stage or arena, on which every one is more or less taking an active part in the multifarious, ever changing scenes of this life, and endeavoring to act his part in proportion to the physical and mental capacities he has received from, and the circumstances he is placed in by God. Previous to my lifting the curtain of this gigantic theatre, I have to advise the reader not to view the scenes that may be represented to him, through a kaleidescope, magnifying glass or microscope, but trust to the optical powers of his own judgment and reason, and as for myself I shall not use any artificial painting and coloring in portraying the characters and scenery, but endeavor to represent things in their wildly glaring, colossal reality, so that he may not be deceived, but get a correct view of them.

On raising the curtain, we behold the innumerable chameleon hues and protean forms of the human character; a chaotic multitude of pigmies, striving, struggling and fighting to reach the mountain-top of worldly splendor and distinction; like a continual, irresistible stream of lava, flowing over walls, filling up ditches, burying whole cities, till at last, with a hissing, boiling and roaring noise it becomes engulphed by Neptune's watery embrace; so man is madly rushing and pushing forward, scaling one mount of difficulties after the other; every moment ready for encounter, and trampling down those, that try to stop him in his headlong career to destruction. It is really a sickening and revolting sight to the noble-minded man, to see so many millions of human beings confederated and linked together by the chain of selfishness, avarice and ambition, who instead of reposing their eternal interests in the saving and exalting principles of a true religious philosophy, risk their honor, their lives, souls, in fact their all, the Present and Future for a bag of silver or gold; who subdue everything that is noble to the mind and heart to the sovereign sway of selfish interests. O, what an age, where virtue and generosity are but names; where people deny each feeling of humanity; dissolve the tenderest ties of relationship; disavow rectitude and pay their hypocritical homage to vice and crime. It is a moral revolution, that nothing but the voice of Omnipotence can subdue, the lustre of this world's sun is faded and troubled.

How few are there, that confirm their words by blameless and honorable lives! That are faithful and loyal to the cause of truth, like Mucius Scaevola, who having failed in his attempt of stabbing King Porsena, that was besieging Rome with a large army, was threatened with the most excruciating tortures, human ingenuity could invent, if he would not tell the names of his accomplices; whereupon the noble Roman replied, "King, that thou mayest see how little I dread death I put my right hand in this coal fire;" and suiting the action to the word, he had it slowly burnt by the consuming element.

In order to win and hold a proud position among the so-called élite of the world, we see men exhibiting the nature of a hyena; the ferocity of a tiger in destroying their offspring, their parents, surrounding themselves with a host of vile hirelings, and with a blood stained splendor; riding in their triumphal chariots over mouldering corpses, smoking ruins of cities, till they make their final exit from the stage of this life.

To show that the above sentiments are not mere fancy but that reality often excels fiction, I refer to a certain circumstance, that occurred about 20 years ago, in the Kingdom of Bavaria, Germany, which caused a general excitement and indignation. A young man, by the name of Kaspar Hauser, whose father was a personage of the highest rank, was kidnapped through the instrumentality of his own parent, and for fifteen years confined to a gloomy, subterranean dungeon, with no other companion but a wooden horse; never seeing a ray of light, nor a person to speak to, except the gaoler, who supplied him with the coarsest kind of food. One day Hauser was informed, he had to leave his prison, in consequence of which he received some instructions, was made to practice walking, but having been confined so long and having had little or no exercise, it was with the utmost difficulty, he could walk. The young man was sent with a letter to a military officer in Nuremberg, where he was soon found by the police. The greatest researches were made by the authorities to find out the child's father, but when he proved to be the son of a prince, all was hushed up. The young man Hauser having been adopted by Lord Stanhope, was to finish his education in Nuremberg and then leave for England. One day he received an invitation to meet a gentleman in the Castle garden of the said town; he went without apprizing his friends of it, and on arriving at the appointed place, he met a stranger, who produced a letter, and while Hauser was reading the same, he was stabbed and expired shortly afterwards.

In yonder low-roofed cottage, where the wreathing smoke coils up among the dark, green foliage of the forest—where every thing breathes the spirit of peace and love, a man is sitting in his study, absorbed in deep meditation; he is one of the greatest searchers into physical and mental truth, whose sterling virtues secure him an affectionate and reverential remembrance in the literary world. Although he has conferred the most lasting benefits upon society, and his noble actions and mental productions bear an emphatic testimony of his great and exalted soul, he is one of the most unassuming and modest man history speaks of. It will ever be with associations of a most pleasing nature, that a man like Jean Jacques Rousseau will be remembered. The infant child, on being ushered into existence, has to pass through a variety of circumstances, which all have a tendency to prepare him to become an actor on the stage of this life; in fact, his career commences as soon as he is aware of his physical and mental existence, as soon as he can tell good from evil. It is of paramount importance that his parents or guardians take special care in strengthening his reason, enlarging his compass of knowledge, ennobling his mind with the beautiful graces and embellishments of nature, and brightening his imagination, that he may become ardently attached to every principle of truth, and discountenance every thing that might be disagreeable to the critical acumen and noble execution of the all-wise Creator; yes, the main design of the parents should be to cultivate exalted sentiments in their child, so that he may be capable of confronting error, introducing light, that good and correct principles may dwell in harmonious unity in the mind. It is not wisdom to move only in a sphere of theory or speculation, to acquire merely a knowledge of principles as they are represented to the mind from the world of ideas, an execution of which is entirely out of the question. Every thing, no matter what it is, requires a practical support, in order to be useful to the human family. To what would the mere knowledge of the Involution of Powers, the Binomical Theorem, the conic sections amount, without knowing how to apply the same to our practical, every-day life! Theory and practice are twins; they cannot be separated—they go hand in hand; they have to support each other. A mere theorist, without practice, is like a man that knows how to call for a knife and fork, in ten languages, without knowing how to use them.

In regard to instilling principles into children, it will be well to teach them not to move in extremes, but always observe a juste milieu. Fire and water are very useful elements, but without sufficient judgment and experience how to approach or use them, they may prove fatal.

If man has stored his mind with useful knowledge, is urbane and kind to his fellow-beings, and does every thing that is compatable with true religion, mental refinement and cultivation, then he will act his part on the stage of this life so that even the most hostile criticism will not affect his reputation, but, like Virgil the poet, who enjoyed such popular esteem and respect, that one hundred thousand Romans rose on his entering the theatre to pay him the same homage as they did to the emperor himself, he will meet the approbation of the intelligent and honest part of humanity, that will support him even in the agonies of death, and the sun of his life will set with a calm and softened splendor.

But how thankful ought we to be, if a kind and overruling Providence has placed us in such favorable circumstances that we are permitted to take a prominent and honorable part in the great game of life. How ought we to strive and endeavor to realize the noble and grand position we occupy, and show by our actions and words that we want to honor our Heavenly Father, please Him, His angels, good men and spirits.

Fearful Conflagration in Galena, Ill.

Thirty-two Buildings Destroyed—Estimated Loss $300,000—St. Michael's Catholic Church in Ruins—Courier Office Consumed.

AT 3 o'clock yesterday morning our city was visited by the most disastrous conflagration that has ever yet occurred here, and one which will long be remembered with sorrow, not only by those who have suffered the loss of their property, but by all who witnessed its terrible effects and can feel for the misfortunes of others. Men whom we have watched for years toiling with carefulness in the prosecution of their business, saw the fruit of all their labor swept away as by a single breath, and they are left again to commence the world anew, with the accumulated load of discouragement upon them. While we compassionate them, we appeal to their sturdy courage to sustain and arm them anew for the struggle of life. Life is a warfare with difficulties, and he who meets them most manfully is the greatest hero. To our knowledge, this is the fourth or fifth time some of the sufferers by this fire have been burnt out within a few years. Most of the sufferers were among our most worthy, industrious and enterprising citizens, as will be seen by a reference to the list below.

The fire was first discovered in the stable on Commerce street, near Washington, owned by Mr. O. Walker, of Chicago. In a few minutes it was all in a blaze. The portion of the block in which it was situated, north of the De Soto House, was of the most combustible materials, and in a very short space of time it was in a single sheet of flame defying all hope of victory by human effort. All the buildings in that block north of J. A. Packard & Co.'s store, bounded by Main, Washington and Commerce streets, like one mighty candle, lit up the whole Heavens with a most terrific glare. The fire crossed Washington street in a Northward direction, and burnt all the wooden buildings South of L. S. Felt's old brick store, now occupied by J. Coatsworth & Son. It crossed Main street Westward, and burnt all that fine brick block of stores and offices North of Dr. Weirich's new building, and South of Bergman & Co.'s cabinet warerooms, with the exception of the building on the North corner of Main and Washington streets. It then crossed Bunch street, and burnt the residence of D. A. Borrows, the next dwelling Southward, and lastly, in that direction, the Catholic Church, where it was finally subdued.

Such was the fury of the tempest of fire, that large cinders were carried a mile or more from the scene of immediate conflagration, so as to endanger buildings at that distance. We hear of several buildings that caught fire on the hill, but which were extinguished.—[Galena Advertiser, April 1.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 3, 1856.

The bill for the relief of the widows and orphans of the officers, seamen and marines of the sloop-of-war Albany was passed.

The joint resolution declaring the manner in which the pension laws for the benefit of the Cherokee Indians shall be executed was adopted.

Mr. Collamer spoke on Kansas affairs. Without concluding he yielded to a motion to adjourn. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House was then engaged considering the Senate's amendments to the Deficiency Appropriation bill.

The proceedings were uninteresting. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 4.

The House bill, appropriating $300,000 for restoring and maintaining the peaceable disposition of the Indian tribes on the Pacific coast, and $120,000 for gunpowder, was passed.

Mr. Collamer resumed his remarks on Kansas affairs.

Mr. Douglas replied to some of Mr. Collamer's criticisms on the majority report.

Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Evans introduced a bill to authorize and facilitate the construction of a Northern, Southern and Central Pacific Railroad and Magnetic Telegraph line.

The bill was referred to the Select Committee on the subject. Adjourned till Monday.

SENATE. April 7.

Mr. Mason, from Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a resolution to the effect, that no further legislation is necessary in order to put an end to the treaty with Denmark, regulating the Sound Dues.

The subject was made the special order for Monday next.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Mace, by unanimous consent, presented the Constitution of Kansas, together with a memorial of the new Legislature of Kansas on the subject.

Referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. Mace's motion to print 10,000 copies, was referred to the Committee on Printing.

On motion of Mr. Humphrey Marshall, the Committee on Foreign Affairs were instructed to inquire into the expediency of declaring the engagement of American vessels in the Chinese Coolie trade to be illegal, and a sufficient cause of forfeiture to the captors of the ship engaged therein.

On motion of Mr. Pringle, it was resolved that the President be requested to communicate what information he may possess in regard to citizens of the United States being engaged in the slave trade, or in the transportation in American ships of coolies from China to Cuba and other countries, with the intention of placing or continuing them in a state of slavery or servitude, and whether such traffic is not, in his opinion, a violation of the spirit of existing treaties; rendering those engaged in it liable to indictment for piracy; and especially that he be requested to communicate to this House the facts and circumstances attending the shipment from China of some 500 coolies in the ship Sea Witch, of the city of New York, lately wrecked on the coast of Cuba. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 8.

Mr. Pearce, of Md., reported a bill to remit and refund duties on goods, wares and merchandise destroyed by fire.

Mr. Seward, of N. Y., said the bill was passed by the Senate last session, but failed in the House for want of time. It was passed.

Mr. Sumner, of Mass., introduced a bill supplementary to the act to limit the liabilities of ship owners.

Mr. Mason, of Va., introduced a bill to make further provision for the satisfaction of Virginia land warrants. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Debate on political questions. Slavery, Kansas and Great Britain. The old stories. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 9.

A number of bills from the Court of Claims making appropriations for certain claims were passed.

The question of printing the memorial of the Kansas Legislature, presented by Mr. Cass, was taken up. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. April 9.

The Deficiency Appropriation bill was taken up.

Mr. Shorter, of Ala., contended that Massachusetts, by her conduct relative to the Fugitive Slave law, has placed herself outside of the pale of the constitution and ought not to be represented here. He said that the South had been victimized every time she had compromised with the North. He hoped, therefore, that no further attempt of that kind would be made. He said not only Alabama, but every Southern State, is resolved that, should the government fail to protect them in their constitutional rights, they will take the remedy into their own hands. They will stand on the Georgia platform. If the Democratic party, which is the true exponent of State rights principles, shall triumph in the Presidential election, the Union will be saved; but if Black Republicanism prevails, the history of our confederacy will have been written. The only way to preserve the Union is for the true conservative men of the North, now represented by the sound national democrats, to unite with the South and wage unceasing war on the fanatics who would tear down the pillars of our Republic.

The Senate's amendment appropriating nearly $50,000 for engraving maps and drawings accompanying the reports of the explorations and surveys to determine the route for a Pacific railroad, was discussed. The question of extravagance was dilated upon in this connection, one gentleman saying the printing and engraving of this work will cost one million dollars, while others thought such large outlays would have a tendency to prejudice the construction of the road. An ineffectual effort was made to confine the appropriation within proper limits, excluding illustrations fitted only to adorn books of travel and natural history. The amendment to that effect was rejected, and the House adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

The Ill-fated Ferry Boat New Jersey.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3, 1856.

The boiler of the ferry boat New Jersey was raised to-day. One of the furnace doors was found open. The United States Boiler Inspector examined the interior of the boiler and found it to be very defective. Several patches, where it had been mended were actually burnt away. Numerous leaks were also found about the back legs of the boiler sufficient, when acting upon the furnace, to fill the flues with steam and force out a flame in front.

The inspectors say it is a matter of astonishment that the boiler could have stood so long without accident. The plates in many places were reduced to one third of their original thickness. The boiler was totally unfit in every respect for service. Although the above was evidently the cause of the destruction of the boat, it was also found that the plates and brick work under the boiler were open, through which fire could rapidly communicate to the wood work at the bottom of the boat. The Coroner's Jury meet to-morrow to form a verdict.

From the Cape de Verds.

BOSTON, April 7, 1856.

Capt. Rider of the Brig Planet, arrived at Salem from Port au Praya, Cape de Verds, Jan. 3, reports that a crisis was fast approaching there. Want and misery prevailing to an alarming extent. By the arrival of a small quantity of food from Brazil and the exertions of the Governor General, actual starvation, except in a few instances at St. Antonia, had thus far been prevented. Their present supply will soon be exhausted and they require out, side assistance for nine to twelve months to come.

Explosion at the Montreal Gas Works.

MONTREAL, April 7, 1856.

At three o'clock yesterday morning, the purifying house of the Montreal Gas Works blew up. Three men were severely bruised—one dangerously. The explosion was caused by one of the workmen entering the building with an unguarded lamp, to search for an escape of gas. The machinery escaped without injury. The works were stopped for five hours.

Fire in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, April 7, 1856.

The four story warehouse in Baltimore street, opposite Hanover, was destroyed by fire last night. The building was occupied by Carey, Howe & Co. boot and shoe dealers. Loss $60,000. Both firms fully insured. Joseph Wing, owner of the building was also insured. A carpet warehouse adjoining was broken in by the falling walls, and the stock, owned by Gable, McDowell & Co., much damaged.

The rear building, occupied as a clothing warehouse, was also crushed, and the stock, owned by Messrs. Weisenfeldt & Co., injured. The entire loss is estimated at $200,000.

THE MORMON.

Seizure of a New York Vessel by the Authorities of Virginia.

NORFOLK, April 7 1856.

The captain and crew of the schooner Maryland, of New York, have been seized, and the vessel brought from Hampton Roads, for refusing to submit to a search for slaves under the law recently passed. Upon the refusal of the captain to allow his vessel to be searched, a company of military was sent on board. Great excitement exists, as it is believed there are slaves concealed in the vessel. The captain and crew have been consigned to prison.

Boston Banks.

BOSTON, April 7 1856.

All of the Boston Banks have conceded to the requirements of the new Clearing House, and will hereafter be governed accordingly.

A Watch House in East Cambridge was destroyed by fire last night, and an intoxicated man confined therein was burned to death.

News from Texas.

BALTIMORE, April 8, 1856.

Texas dates to the 29th. The federal officers at Fort Mackintosh had interfered to prevent another invasion of Mexican territory from the American side. The Lipan Indians had attacked another mail rider, wounded some escorts and committed othes depredations.

—Indian Hostilities on Rogue River.

Desperate Fight—Twenty-five Americans Massacred.

WE are indebted for the following terrible news to an extra of the Crescent City Herald, published on February 25, which gives the details as follows:

Yesterday (Sunday) morning we were favored with the perusal of a letter written by Robert Smith, a settler up the coast, to Mr. Miller, living in the neighborhood of Whaleshead, informing the latter that on the 22d inst., while William Hensly and Mr. Nolan were driving some horses towards Rogue river, two shots were fired at them by Pistol river Indians. Mr. Hensly had two of his fingers shot off besides receiving several buckshot wounds in his face. The horses fell into the hands of the Indians.

The letter contains also a request to urge forward from Crescent City any volunteers that may have been enlisted.

From F. H. Pratt, Esq., a resident at the mouth of Rogue river, who arrived last night in the schooner Gold Beach, we receive the startling news that the Indians in that district have united with a party of the hostile Indians above, and commenced a war of extermination against the white settlers.

The station at Big Bend, some fifteen miles up the river, having been abandoned several weeks previous, the Indians made a sudden attack on Saturday morning, Feb. 23, upon the farms about four miles above the mouth, where some ten or twelve men of Capt. Poland's company of volunteers were encamped; the remainder of the company being absent attending a ball on the 22d, at the mouth of Rogue river.

The fight is stated to have lasted nearly the whole of Saturday, and but few of the whites escaped to tell the story. The farmers were all killed.

It is supposed there are now about 300 hostile Indians in the field, including those from Grave and Galaise creek and the Big Meadows. They are led by a Canada Indian named Enos, who was formerly a favorite guide for Col. Fremont in his expeditions.

LIST OF KILLED.—Capt. Ben. Wright, Capt. John Poland, H Braun, E. W. Howe, Mr. Wagoner, Barney Castle, Geo. McClusky, Mr. Lara, W. R. Tullus, Mr. Smith, Mr. Seamen, Mr. Warner, John Geisell and three children, P. McCullough, S. Heidrick, Jos. Seroc and two sons.

Besides three or four names unknown. Mrs. Geisell and daughter are prisoners, and in the hands of the Micano band of Indians, about eight miles up the river. Dr. M. C. White escaped by jumping into Yuca creek and secreting himself under a pile of driftwood, remaining there for an hour and a half, and until the Indians had given up the search.

The inhabitants at the mouth of Rogue river have all moved to the north side of the river, where formerly, under the apprehension of a sudden attack, a fort had been erected; they number about 130 men, having less than a hundred guns amongst them.

The schooner Gold Beach left yesterday (Sunday) morning, at half-past five o'clock, and is supposed that a fight commenced at daylight, as there was a party going to cross to the south side of the river, where they expected to find the whole body of Indians. At sunrise everything on the south side was in flames.

The stores of Coborn & Warwick, F. H. Pratt and W. A Upton were probably all destroyed.

Mr. Pratt states that, according to the census taken last spring, there are three hundred and thirty-five warriors in the district. They were all engaged in the fight except the Chetcoes and Pistol river Indians, who number about eighty. The number of Indians from above or out of the district is between fifty and sixty.

Upon the death of the sub-Indian agent, Captain Ben. Wright, Mr. J. McGuire assumed the duties of sub-Indian agent.

A boat was dispatched, as early as Saturday evening, to Port Oxford, to inform Major Reynolds, in command of that post, of the occurrence.

We are indebted to Mr. Burns, agent of the Pacific Express Company at Crescent City, for the following. Mr. Burns brings the petition to the Governor of California, spoken of below:

After the issue of the Herald extra, of the 25th inst., the schooner Ellen arrived from Port Orford and Rogue river. She reports that at the former place the inhabitants were at work building a log fort and making other preparations to defend themselves from an expected attack of the Indians. The schooner was not enabled to communicate with the shore at Rogue river, in consequence of the entire settlement, with the exception of the fort, being in the hands of the Indians. She reports that every house on the south side has been burned to the ground, and as she left the houses on the north side were in flames. Many persons have been killed whose names have not been enumerated. Among them a Mr. Wilson and John Chadwick, of San Francisco.

A meeting of the citizens of Crescent City was held on the evening of the 25th inst., when a petition to the Governor of California was submitted to and signed by nearly every male inhabitant in town, requesting him to call out the volunteer force of the place, and to provide other necessary means to enable the citizens to defend the place. There were not arms or ammunition enough in town to equip twenty five men. There are fifty United States troops stationed at Crescent City, which force, in the opinion of all, is totally inadequate to defend the place against the 300 or 400 Indians which have attacked the settlement at the mouth of Rogue river. A subscription was raised at the meeting for the purpose of chartering the schooner Ellen to proceed to San Francisco to convey the petition to the Governor, and to request him to carry out the necessary measures as soon as possible.

The Progress of Naval Architecture and Commercial Enterprise.

THE new steamship Adriatic, which was launched last Monday, is one of the most perfect specimens of naval architecture in the world. Her immense size, the admirable symmetry of her proportions, as well as the speed claimed for her, and which, it is said, will be greater than that of any ocean steamship now afloat—in all these respects she may be regarded as the most forcible illustration that could be given of human ingenuity, the extension of commercial enterprise, and our progress as a commercial nation. Two hundred years ago "the ship Unrest"—the first vessel built in New York, or New Amsterdam, as the great metropolis was then called—was launched on the East river. The Unrest, history informs us, was exactly 44 1-2 feet long, and 11 1-4 feet breadth of beam, and her launch was considered among our simple minded ancestors as an event of the greatest importance. In the two centuries that have elapsed since then, the little Dutch village has grown to a vast city, and the two rivers that form its boundaries are now crowded with an immense fleet of vessels from all parts of the world.

The application of steam to machinery has given a new and powerful impulse to ship building and the progress of commerce. It was at first believed that steamers could only be used in making short passages, and that a voyage across the Alantic, if not impossible, was at least highly improbable. The success that attended the first efforts of the Sirius and the Great Western, which crossed the Atlantic eighteen years ago—the former from Cork, Ireland, and the latter from Bristol, England —soon dispelled all doubts and scepticism on that point. The Sirius arrived at this port on the 23d April, 1838, after a passage of eighteen days, and the Great Western on the same day, after a passage of fifteen days. The first was not built for long voyages, but the second was intended to run between England and the United States. Their arrival at this port was hailed with the greatest enthusiasm. When the news was spread throughout the city that the Sirius, which arrived first, was coming up the bay, nearly every one rushed to the Battery to see her. It was a beautiful April day, just like that on which the launch of the Adriatic took place, and as she passed up to her dock in the East river, at the foot of Market street, the thousands that thronged the piers welcomed her with shouts of delight.

The successful accomplishment of the passage by both these vessels, and in such a comparatively short time, showed what might be done by the aid of those improvements which greater experience in ocean steam navigation would suggest. With larger vessels it was confidently predicted that it could be made in from ten to twelve days. The Great Western was 240 feet in length and registered 1,340 tons, while the Adriatic is 354 feet long and registers 5,888 tons, and it is expected will make the passage between New York and Liverpool in about nine days. The clipper ship Great Republic was 300 feet long, and measured 5,520 tons; the Atlantic is 287 feet in length and registers 3,000 tons; and the Persia, the new iron steamship of the Cunard line, has a length of 390 feet and registers 5,600 tons.

But all these gigantic vessels shrink into insignificance when compared with the mammonth iron steamer which is now in process of construction at London for the Eastern Steam Navigation Company. Her length is 680 feet; her draft of water when loaded 28 feet; her register 28,000 tons, and she is to be propelled by a gigantic screw, 23 feet in diameter, and by four paddles, besides the sails which she will carry, and for which she will have seven masts. With this motive it is calculated that her average speed will be twenty-three knots an hour. Besides a large number of life boats, she is to carry eight small screw steamers, each 110 feet long. These will be employed in taking on board and landing passengers and cargo, as it will be impossible for her to approach near the shore, in consequence of her great draft of water. Her accommodations will be ample enough for 600 first class passengers, 1,800 second class, and 10,000 troops, with all their field equipments. The estimated cost of this leviathan, which we understand is to be called the "Great Eastern," is over one and a half million dollars.

Who, in view of these facts, will venture to say there is a limit to progress in human ingenuity, and particularly in that department of it which relates to naval architecture!—[N. Y. Herald.

LOOK out for spurious quarter eagles, which have made their appearance in Philadelphia, Baltimore and this city. They are dated "1854," and in point of execution are calculated to deceive, though in color they are as light as brass, as well as deficient in weight. The various shades of color of the genuine coin will assist in the pasing of the spurious, but when compared with the genuine the difference in weight is easily perceived. An examination and comparison will cost but little trouble, while it may prevent considerable loss.—[Washington Star.

The Russian Army in the Crimea.

THE Times correspondent gives the following statement of the strength and distribution of the Russian army in the Crimea toward the end of January, as likely to be correct in all important points. The divisions are set down at the regulation number of 9,000 men each. It is more than probable that this is considerably beyond their effective strength has not been ascertained. Taking, however, the nominal strength, we get a total of 67,000 infantry, 19,600 cavalry and artillery, and 300 guns, divided as follows:

THIRD CORPS D'ARMEE, COMMANDED BY GEN. SOUKHOZANET

Seventh Division (Reserve)—Stationed on the Upper Belbeck; 9,000 infantry and 36 guns; regiments of Smolensk, Mohiloff, Vitebsk and Polock.

Seventh Division (Active), at Korales; same strength, same regiments.

Eighth Division, on Mackenzie's Plateau; same strength; regiments of Diebitz, Pultowa Kosemienscuk, Alexopoisk.

Ninth Division, on the Inkerman Hights; same strength; regiments of Yeleck, Sievsk, Bransk and Erivan.

FOURTH CORPS D'ARMEE, COMMANDED BY GEN. OSTEN SACKEN.

Tenth Division on the Katcha; 9,600 infantry and 36 guns; regiments of Ekaterinburg, Tobolsk, Tomsk and Kolavausk.

Eleventh Division, on Mackenzie's Hights; same strength, regiments of Selenghinsk, Yakutsk, Okhotsk and Kamtchatka.

Twelfth Division, on the Jozeba; same strength; regiments of Azoff, Dnieper, Ukraine and Odessa.

Every regiment has four battalions of 600 men each, and of which one is a militia battalion. This gives 67,000 men and 252 guns. Each field piece has fifteen men and fifteen horses, which gives in addition 3,780 men and 3,780 horses.

The cavalry in the Crimea are about 15,000 sabers and lances, distributed as follows:

Light cavalry under Prince Kadzivil, near Eupatoria!

	Horses.
Four regiments, each 600 horses	2,400
Horse artillery battery, 8 guns	108
Dragoons under Gen. Montressor, near Perekop:
Three regiments, each 800 horses	2,400
Horse artillery, 8 guns	108
Dragoons under Gen. Wrangle:
First regiment, near Eupatoria	800
Second regiment, Almakerman	800
Third regiment, Kertch	800
Battery, 8 guns	180
Ten regiments of Don Cossacks	6,000
Three Cossack batteries	324
Two regiments of Hussars at Simpheropol	1,200
Total	15,048

Two divisions of Grenadiers are supposed to be near Eupatoria. Also Black Sea Cossacks (infantry) and militia at Arabat, Kaffa, &c. The distribution of the whole Russian army out of the Crimea has also been stated to me.

1st Corps d'Armee	Ismail.
2d Corps d'Armee	Nicolaieff.
5th Corps d'Armee	Ukraine.
6th Corps d'Armee	Nicolaieff.
Guards and Grenadiers less the two divisions of the latter supposed to be at Eupatoria, if they are there.	Poland and Army of the North.

At Stravropol there are believed to be 22,000 men; at Kutais 24,000, under Beboutoff; Mouravieff's army is estimated at 100,000 men. The sources from which these statistics are derived being within the Crimea I am disposed to rely more upon that part of them which relates to the Crimean army than to the Russian army in general, and I doubt Mouravieff's having 100,000 men, although in that number are included all the Transcaucasian garrison and troops, regular and irregular. This, however, does not pretend to be more than an approximate estimate. Some of the troops stated to be at Nicolaieff are probably at Odessa.

New York Eighty Years Ago.

IN 1777, the State of New York was divided into the ten following counties, to wit: New York, Albany, Ulster, Dutchess, Orange, Westchester, Kings, Queens, Suffolk and Richmond. At that time the City of New York was about one mile long, and a quarter of a mile broad, and contained about 13,000 inhabitants, and the whole Province contained 80,000 people. At an average of three years, its exports amounted to 526,000 lbs. The first settlements made within its limits were of Swedes and Dutch. It became a part of the British Empire by conquest in 1664, and it was confirmed to Britain by the treaty of Buda, in the year 1667, in whose possession it remained until the American Revolution.

Such was New York eighty years ago, the greater part of its territory being covered by a dense forest, and tenanted only by wild beasts and wandering tribes of Indians—its beautiful rivers were solitudes, and its mighty lakes "deserted wastes of water." But now behold how changed is all this! The forests have fallen and faded away before the ax of the hardy pioneer—the council fires of the aborigines have been extinguished, and the "places that once knew them, will know them no more forever"—our rivers and lakes are traversed by fleets of noble steamers, laden with the treasures of the artisan and husbandman, while a perfect net-work of railroads intersect every portion of the State.

Our population has increased from 80,000 in 1777 to 3,000,000 in 1856; our exports and imports have augmented in a proportionable ratio, and we find from the records on file in the office of Secretary of State the following statement of the valuation of the real and personal property in the State, as reported by the Assessors, has been obtained:

Real estate	$,107,272,275
Personal estate	594,012,564
Aggregate	$1,701,284,839

The following is the taxation on the above valuation:

State tax of 1½ mills	$1,753,561 17
County taxes	7,947,593 19
Town taxes	1,976,651 33
Total	$11,678,015 69

This makes the rate of tax 8—10 mills upon every $1 of valuation.

Verily our past progress has been great, and our future destiny defies the power of human calculation.—[Rochester Tribune.

The Young King of Algiers.

THE civilized world has been for weeks in a state of expectation with regard to "Eugenie's baby." As much as we may as Republicans swear at the "humbugs of royalty," still the fact that our editors find it both profitable and necessary to copy into their columns the order of ceremonies announcing a birth to the Imperial throne of France; and also, because there is not a lady "in the land," who has not with interest pored over the wonderful details of the cradle and of the baby clothes; therefore, we conclude there is even among us, something that is gratified by these, philosophically speaking, "nonsensical displays."

As parents, Napoleon and Eugenie are as human and as democratic as any of us. In this sacred relation, a child is a source of the same interest, the same affection, as if it were the offspring of one of our most estimable neighbors, therefore, we congratulate these distinguished individuals, upon their happiness, and aside from all royal or imperial considerations, are right glad that they not only have a baby, but also that it is a boy baby, and that Eugenie, like a good wife, has gratified her liege lord, not only in the fact, but also in the sex of the little stranger. We trust and pray that Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Simmons may be equally happy in obliging their good husbands.

The moment the imperial prince was born, a salvo of one hundred and one guns was fired —the same salute will be given in every country occupied by French troops.

In the Empress's chamber there was present the mother of the Empress the Grand Mistress of her Majesty's Household, the Governess, and the Lady in Waiting on her Majesty.

In the Green Saloon, contiguous to the Empress's chamber, the Princes and Princesses of the Imperial family, and the members of the Emperor's family holding rank at Court, were in waiting.

In the Saloon of the Empress were the high officers of the Crown, the Ministers, Marshals, Admirals, the Grand Chancellor of the Legion of Honor, the Governor of the Invalides, the Commander-in-Chief of the National Guards of the Seine, the General in Command of the Imperial Guard, the Adjutant-General of the Palace, the Ladies-in-Waiting on the Princesses.

The moment the child was born their Excellencies the Minister of State and the Keeper of the Seals were sent for and brought into the chamber. Such of the Princes and Princesses were also admitted as his Majesty deemed advisable.

When the child was presented to the Emperor and Empress by the head nurse, it was presented to his Excellency the Minister of State, and to his Excellency the Keeper of the Seals, who at once proceeded to the saloon occupied by his Excellency the President of the Council of State, fulfilling the functions attributed to him by the 12th article of the Imperial statute of the 21st of June, 1853. A formal statement of the birth of the child was drawn up.

The Imperial child was then carried to its apartment by the head nurse, accompanied by her sub-nurses, the General commanding the Imperial Guard, and Equerry on duty. This cortege left the bed-chamber, crossed the saloons, and entered the apartment prepared for the child.

In this apartment assembled the persons appointed by the Emperor to wait upon the Imperial child.

The Emperor having returned to his State apartment received the congratulations of the persons assembled in the Empress's apartments.

On the day following the confinement, the Imperial child was privately baptized in the Palace Chapel by the Emperor's First Almoner, in presence of the Princes and Princesses of the Imperial family, the Princes and Princesses of the family of the Emperor holding rank at Court, the mother of the Empress, the grand officers of the Crown, the Cardinals, Ministers, Marshals, Admirals, president of the Senate, &c.

The Senate and Legislative Body received the information from an officer of the Emperors household; the birth was announced in the same manner to the municipal authorities of Paris.

The Grand Master of the Ceremonies sent a Master of the Ceremonies to the Ambassadors, and an Assistant of the Ceremonies to the foreign Ministers, to announce the birth of the child.

Such is an epitome of the ceremonies of this "august occasion." Certainly nothing was left undone to make an impression not only upon France, but upon the world. Whatever may be the fortune of its parents, the fate of that child will ever interest mankind.

It has been truthfully remarked that there is small reason for rejoicing at the birth of an imperial infant of France. The unhappy offspring of Marie Antoinette either died from the harsh treatment of his cruel jailors, or he has been for more than half a century a wanderer among our Northern Indian tribes. The fate of the son of Napoleon the Great was hardly less melancholy, than that of the wretched Louis XVIII; he died a prisoner, forbidden to hear his father's name. Louis the XVI. whose birth was heralded with all the pomp and circumstance of royalty, perished on the scaffold; his successor, Charles X., an exile, died despised and upitied in a foreign land; Henry V. was banished from France; Louis Philippe died an exile, and dependent for a grave upon a foreign power; his heir came to a violent end, and the Count de Paris is without a home; the great Napoleon himself was, like Prometheus, chained to a rock, to be destroyed by the fiends of unceasing sorrow. It can hardly be possible that the child of Napoleon III. is reserved for a fate less dreadful than his predecessors—we therefore repeat that his birth is history, his fate will ever interest mankind.—[Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

LIST OF PASSENGERS

SHIPPED on board the "Enoch Train," from Liverpool for Boston, March 22, 1856, by F. D. Richards.

Adults.	Children.	Adults.	Children.
John and Jean Frew,	3	Arthur Maxwell.
Hugh & Jean Clotworthy,	5	Catherine Maxwell.
Joseph McDougald.		Elizabeth Maxwell.
Mary McGowan.		Elizabeth Durro.
John and M. J. Dreaney,	2	Ellen Russel.
Mary Bathgate,	1	Elizabeth McCanlin.
Isabella Park.		Agnes Anderson,	3
Alexander McDonald.		Andrew Smith.
Wm. and E. Johnston,	3	Thomas and M. A. Lyon,	3
Janet Hardie.		Ellen Wandless,	1
Margaret Downie.		Samuel Bond.
Phillis Hardie.		George and M. A. Clark,	3
Agnes Hardie.		Edward and E. L. Frost,	2
John Hardie.		Elizabeth Franklin.
Grace Hardie.		Sarah A. Sprigg.
James Hardie.		Thom's Joins.
Mary Mathieson.		Elizabeth Burfitt.
Nancy Stewart,	3	Wm. Nash.
Mary Gale.		John and E. Devering.
Benson and L. Eardly.		Thomas and H. Richins,	1
Wm. Hall.		Mary Mayo.
John and Maria Bell,	2	Mary Ann Baker,	5
Henry and C. Hanna,	1	James and Maria Sheen.
John and Jane Gray,	3	Robert and Eliza Sheen,	4
Jane Gray.		James J. and Mary Sheen,	2
James Crawford.		Anna Sheen.
Wm. Kaitkin,	2	James and Sabina Jones.
Wm. and Maria Wright.		Andrew and Jane Galloway,	1
Wm. and M. Hillhouse,	6	Ann Price,	2
John Hillhouse.		John Moss.
Janet Hillhouse.		David Bowen.
Ann Gardener,	5	Wm. Harmon.
John McDonald.		James and Mary A. Bailey,	5
James and E. Reid,	4	Charles H. Bridges.
George and Janet Spiers,	3	Hannah Jones.
Ann Randall,	1	John A. Hunt.
George and M. Muir,	2	Jane Hemming.
Sarah Smart.		Eliza Jeffries.
Elizabeth Shields.		George and Frances Hanson,	1
Walter and C. Grainger,	5	Wm. and Sarah A. Morris.
Catherine Grainger.		John and Sophia Ash.
Mary Hay.		Sarah Ash,	3
Mary Findlay.		Ann Ham.
Rich'd and M. Kennington,	5	Hannah Baldwin.
George Peacock.		Mary A. Bone.
Wm. Lawson.		Peter and E. Richardson.
Henrich and M. Esiku,	7	Richard and M. Preater,	2
Johannes and A. Schlee.		James and M. A. Birch,	3
Susanna Bonner.		Wm. and E. Birch.
Josephine Ludut,	1	Elizabeth Walker.
Anna Furrer.		Henry Mass.
Wm. and C. Smith,	3	James and Maria Bowers,	6
Ralph and E. Ramsey,	1	Thomas and M. Bourner,	6
John Chapman.		Walter Sanders,	4
Hannah Goodworth,	3	Absalom Frisby.
Ann Chester.		George Williams.
Alex. and M. Stevenson,	6	George Warring.
Isabel Stevenson.		Emma M. Burdett.
James and M. Commander.		Mary Godsall,	4
Alice Brough.		Amelia Williams.
Neils P. and G. Jpson.		Elizabeth Bayham.
Anne Ballan,	2	Ann Salisbury,	3
Robert and Ann Parker,	4	Rebecca Sanderson,	2
John and E. Lloyd,	5	Esther Jones.
Wm Green.		Edmond Elsworth.
John and E. Powell,	6	Thomas Passey.
Hannah Hodgetts.		Mary A. Bates.
Daniel and Ann Jones,	6	Mary A. Meadows.
Elanor Vaughn.		Mary A. Jones.
Samuel and E. Bond.		Eliza Robinson.
Wm. Bond.		John and Emma Robinson,	3
Wm. and E. B. Heaton,	2	Elizabeth Robinson.
Abraham and E. Hunt.		Wm. and C. Pratt,	4
John and Sarah Lee,	6	Richard Shelton.
Arche and H. Walters,	5	Joseph and Jane Argyle,	6
Margaret Mickle,	2	Elizabe'h Tate,	1
Wm. Mickle.		Henry E. and E. Bowering,	1
David and M. Chambers,	1	George and Jane Johnston,	2
Elizabeth Twaddle.		Mary Banks.
Samuel and A. Hargraves,	6	Nicholas and E. Black,	3
Elizabeth Maxwell,	2	Christiania Brown.

RECAPITULATION.

Adults, over 8 years	332
Children, under 8 years and over 1 year	84
Infants, under 1 year	14
Total	430

ORDINARY AND THROUGH PASSENGERS.

Adults.	Children.	Adults.	Children.
*Charles and C. Roper.		†Thomas Hicks.
*John and I. Bawley,	6	†Frances Peel.
*James Rawley.		*John Cooper.
George Rawley.		*Mary Ann Lewis.
†John and Jane Turner,	1	*Edward F Munn.
*Joseph and Ann Player,	2	*Thomas Fowler.
Spicer W Crandale.		†Wm. and E. Rowland,	2
*Ulrich and M. Bryner,	1	†Harriett F. Rowland.
*Olvis Bawer.		†Anne Fauslough.
*Daniel D McArthur.		*Wm. Walker
*Elizabeth Player.		*Elizabeth Walker.
*Emily Player.		*Emma Walker.
*Wm. and E. Hawkins.		*Wm. Page.
*Alice Leesley.		†George and Jane Pope,	1
*Ann Leesley.		†Sarah A. Tranton.
Thomas Senior.		*Samuel and E. Hughes.
*Henry and Agnes Baxter,	4	*Samuel and H. Lawrence,	2
*James Miller.		*George Lawrence.
*Susan Grant.	2	Truman Leonard.
*George and R Jackson.	5	Nathan T. Porter.
*Joseph and M. McMurrin,	3	*Mary Tanner,	5
*Margaret McMurrin.		*Maria Chetwyn.
*Elizabeth Lucing.		*Mary Boden.
John D. T. McAllister.		*Thomas Jones.
*James and L. J. Holly,	2

Those marked thus * go direct to the West.
Those marked thus † expect to remain a while in Boston.

SUMMARY.

Adults, over 8 years	79
Children, under 8 years and over 1 year	14
Infants, under 1 year	6
Total	99

TOTALS.

	Adults.	Children.	Infants.	Total.
P. E. Fund	332	84	14	430
Ordinary	79	14	6	99
	411	98	20	529

JAMES FERGUSON, President of the Company.
JOHN GALBRAITH, HENRY E. CHAPMAN, } Cooks.
HENRY BONE, Steward.

MARRIED,

April 3d, 1856, by Elder James H. Hart, SIMEON DUNFORD, late of Trowbridge, Wiltshire, and MARY DAVIS, late of Bristol, England.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

Nov. 29, 1855

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb.	$0 40
do clarified "	40
do brown "	40
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	40
Tea, Young Hyson "	2 00
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	2 00
Tea, black, per lb	2 00
Apples, dried, per lb	40
Peaches " "	30
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb	75
Allspice "	50
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	50
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	40
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	50
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	75
Brimstone "	40
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	75
Candy "	1 00
Candles, 6 to the lb	50
Figs, per lb	75
Cloves, per oz	15
Nutmegs "	20
Oysters, per can	2 00
Brandy Cherries, per bot	2 00
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 50
do pints "	1 00
Lemon Syrup "	1 50
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	20
do 10x12 "	20
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	20
Pepper "	20
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb	$0 20
Glue "	75
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	35
Copperas "	30
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	75
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	40
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $2 pr lb. or pr oz	20
Gum Camphor, per oz	15
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	15
Turkey Opium "	1 00
Golden Seal "	15
Liquorice, per lb	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal	6 00
Linseed Oil "	8 00
Copal Varnish "	10 00
Whale Oil "	8 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	1 00
do do do	50
Mustang Liniment, p bot	50
Rope, sea grass, per lb	50
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	25
do 2d do	50
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$3 10
do boys', handled	2 40
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	3 00
Shovels	3 25
do steel plated	3 00
Grain Scythes	2 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 00
Two prong Hay Forks	2 00
Three do do	2 50
Four do dung do	3 50
Hoes	1 25
Concave Augers, per ¼	25
Bitts "	25
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 00
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb	1 00
Flat Irons "	25

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	30
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	60
Sand Paper, pr 3 sheets	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb	35
SCREWS. Size.	Gross
¼ inch	1 00
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 50
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	20
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1½	20
1¾	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	50
10 do	20
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box.
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Hat, 250	1 00
Powder, per lb	80
Lead "	40
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	8 00
Fine do	10 10
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 05
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 50
do do Low	2 75
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 20
Sacks	50
Sole Leather, per lb	55
Calf, per skin, from $5 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to	2 50
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz	75
Oil Cassia "	1 00
Oil Peppermint "	1 00
Oil Lemon "	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 18¾ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	50
Ticking	40
Blue Drilling	25
Denims	30
Cotton Batten, per roll	20
do Yarn, per 5 lb	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb	35
Eggs, per doz	20
Cheese, per lb	25
Bacon, smoked, per lb	35
Shoulder "	30
Ham "	35
Middle "	40
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 25
Oats "	1 50
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar-cured Beef, pr lb	30
Beef, fresh, per lb	8
Mutton "	12½
Tongues, each	60
Tallow, per lb	30
Lard "	30
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $4 to	5 00
Adobies, per 100	30
Stone, per cord	12 50
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	8 00

Appointments.

GEORGE D. GRANT and William H. Kimball are appointed to purchase cattle for the coming emigration.

Alexander Robbins is appointed to purchase provisions and general supplies for emigration, and carry them to Florence, the outfitting place for the plains.

Daniel Spencer is appointed general superintendant of emigration in the West, with liberty to call for such aid as he may need, in Iowa City and other places.

James H. Hart, of St. Louis, Mo., is appointed agent to receive orders and moneys for the purchase of cattle, wagons, provisions, &c., for the emigration. Address James H. Hart, Box 333, St. Louis, Mo.

James McGaw, John Van Cott, William Walker, Joseph France, and all the Elders going West, on the way to Utah, are requested to report themselves to Daniel Spencer, at Iowa City, and assist him, if needed.

Andrew Cunningham is appointed to select a company for a settlement in Nebraska.

JOHN TAYLOR.

DIED,

AT the house of Samuel Fenton, Philadelphia, January 29th, ELIZABETH, relic of Joseph Chapman, in the 58th year of her age.

Sister Chapman is well known to many from Pennsylvania and New Jersey. In Jacobstown, N. J., she resided a number of years. For fifteen years she has been a consistent and honorable member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. She lived a Saint and died in the hopes of a glorious resurrection. She bore a faithful testimony to the truth of the principles she had espoused, with her dying breath.—[JR. CLINTON.

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to April 11, 1856.

Article	Price
ASHES—Pot ... per 100 lb.	6 12½ a — —
Pearl	— — a 8 12½
CANDIES—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted ... per lb.	— a —
Ordinary	— a —
CANDLES—Sperm ... per lb.	38 a 40
Adamantine	24 a 29
Mould, yellow	— a 14
COFFEE—Java, white	14 a 14½
Mocha	— a 16
Laguayra	11 a 12½
Maracaibo	11 a 13
St. Domingo (cash)	— a 10½
DRUGS AND DYES—Alcohol. pr. gal.	— 58 a — 64
Alum ... per lb.	— 2¼ a — 2½
Arrowroot	— 50 a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— — a — 2½
Assafœtida	— 5 a — 25
Borax, refined	— 28 a — 28½
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2½ a — —
do crude ... per ton.	30 — a 32 —
Camphor, crude ... per lb.	— 24 a — 24½
do refined	— 35 a — —
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 62½ a 1 75
Chlorate Potash	— 37½ a — 40
Cochineal	— 80 a 1 20
Copper—sheathing ... per lb.	— 23 a — 27
Copperas ... per 100 lb.	1 25 a — —
Cream Tartar ... per lb.	— 28 a — 29
Gum Arabic, picked	— — a — 35
Gum Copal	— 40 a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 25 a — 30
Iodine, resublamized	5 — a 5 25
Ipecacuanha	2 12½ a 2 25
Madder	— 11 a — 12
Magnesia	— 14 a — 16
Do calcined	— 30 a — 35
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 18 a — 19
Oil Anis	— — a 8 —
Oil Bergamot	2 — a 2 12½
Oil Cassia	— — a 3 75
Oil Lemon	2 — a 2 12½
Oil Peppermint	— — a 2 25
Opium, Turkey	4 25 a 4 37½
Otto Rose ... per oz.	3 50 a 6 50
Oxalic Acid ... per lb.	— 32 a — 33
Phosphorus	1 — a 1 —
Quicksilver	— 43 a — 45
Rhubarb, China	1 25 a 1 80
Saleratus	— — a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10½ a — —
Senna	— 11 a — 15
Shellac	— 11 a — 14
Sugar Lead, white	— 14 a — 15
do brown	— — a — 10
Sulphate Quinine	2 55 a 2 60
Tartaric Acid	— 44 a — 45
Verdigris	— 41 a — —
Vitriol, blue	— 10½ a — 11
DYE WOODS—Camwood ... per ton.	100 — a 110 —
Fustic	18 — a 30 —
Logwood	21 — a 28 —
FLOUR—State, common ... per bbl.	6 37½ a 6 43½
Michigan and Indiana	6 87½ a 7 —
Genesee, extra	6 75 a 10 50
Rye Flour	4 25 a 5 —
Corn Meal	3 37½ a 4 50
FRUIT—Raisins ... per box.	3 — a 3 25
Raisins, layers	— — a 3 50
Currants ... per lb.	— 15 a — 23
GLASS (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10 ... per 50 feet.	3 25 a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75 a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 — a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50 a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 — a 7 50
GRAIN—Wheat ... per bush.	1 90 a 2 —
Corn, round yellow	— 63 a — 66
Barley	1 20 a 1 30
Oats, Western	— 63 a — 68
Beans	2 25 a — —
GUNPOWDER ... per 25 lbs.	3 50 a 6 50
INDIGO ... per lb.	— 90 a 1 30
IRON—Pig, Eng., Scot ... per ton.	35 — a 36 —
Bar, Eng. refined	67 50 a 70 —
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality ... per lb.	— 18 a — 18½
Sheet, Eng.	— 3¼ a — 4½
LEAD—Galena ... per 100 lbs.	7 — a 7 12½
Sheet and Pipe	— 8½ a — —
LEATHER ... per lb.	20 a 31
MOLASSES ... per gal.	33 a 44
NAILS—Cut, 4d and 6d ... per lb.	4½ a —
Wrought, 6d and 20d	6 a 7½
OILS—Olive .. per bskt., 12 bottles.	3 62½ a 3 75
Olive, in casks ... per gallon.	1 25 a 1 87½
Linseed	— 85 a — —
Whale	— — a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95 a 1 —
PAINTS—Lead, red, Am ... per lb.	— — a — 8¼
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— — a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8½ a — —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	1 — a 1 62½
Ochre, in oil	— 4 a — 6
Spanish Brown, dry ... per cwt.	— 60 a — 75
Litharge ... per lb.	— — a — 8½
Vermillion, Chinese	— 95 a — —
Venetian Red ... per cwt.	2 — a 2 37½
RICE ... per 100 lbs.	4 — a 4 50
SALTPETRE ... per lb.	8 a 18
SEEDS—Clover ... per lb.	— 14 a — 14½
Flax, American, rough .. per bush.	2 — a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	2 25 a — —
SOAP—New York ... per lb.	4½ a 7
Castile	11 a 11½
SPICES—Ginger, Race ... per lb.	5 a 5½
Mace	85 a 90
Nutmegs	91 a 95
Pepper	— a 11½
Pimento	11½ a —
Cloves (cash)	12½ a 13
SUGAR—New Orleans ... per lb.	6¼ a 8½
Havana, white	9 a 9½
do brown	7 a 9½
Stuart's crushed	— a 10½
SUMAC, Sicily ... per ton.	72 50 a 82 50
TEAS—Gunpowder and Imperial .. per lb.	35 a 75
Hyson	30 a 60
Young Hyson	32 a 70
Hyson Skin	20 a 35
Black	23 a 50
TIN—Banca ... per lb.	— a 31½
Straits	29 a 29
Plates ... per box.	9 — a 10 50
TOBACCO	7 a 43½
TURPENTINE ... per 280 lbs.	3 62½ a — —
TAR ... per bbl.	3 — a 3 25
SPIRITS TURPENTINE ... per gallon.	— 41 a — 42

Mormonism in New York.

THE LATTER DAY SAINTS intend holding Meetings in this City every Sunday, at the Broadway House, entrance 116 Grand street, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., 3 P. M., and 7 in the evening.

All who wish to become acquainted with the principles of Salvation, as taught by Apostles and Prophets, ancient and modern, are respectfully invited to attend.

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

Mormon Books

WE have received, and have for sale, the following Books, and at the annexed prices:

Book of Mormon, roan	1 25
Doctrines and Covenants	1 00
Spencer's Letters, cloth bound—O. Spencer	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
Voice of Warning—P. P. Pratt	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
do do calf gilt, do	1 25
Government of God—J. Taylor	0 50
Pearl of Great Price—F. D. Richards	0 37½
Livre de Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Das Buch Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Zion's Panier—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Etoile du Deseret—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Route to Salt Lake, illustrated—Piercy & Linforth—per No.	0 40

WILLIAM N. WHITE & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,
CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, MATTINGS, &c.,
120 Verandah Row, Fourth Street,
ST. LOUIS, MO. mh29–3m

ARTHUR LEITCH,
APOTHECARY AND CHEMIST,
Corner of Fifth and Market Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
American, English and French Drugs, Perfumeries, Brushes, and all articless pppertaining to the Toilet. mh29–3m

McMULLAN & MAXWELL'S
STEAM BAKERY MANUFACTORY
No. 186 South Fourth Street.
Sale Office and Depot, N. W. cor. Vine and Commerce Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Every variety of LOAF AND PILOT BREAD, Boston, Butter, Soda, Sugar, Water and Wine Crackers, manufactured and kept constantly on hand.
Particular attention paid to Steamboats, Hotels and Merchants' orders. mh22–3m

McBRIDE & BOWEN,
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA.,
EMIGRANTS' STORE,
Corner Broadway and Pearl St., opposite Pacific Hotel.
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware, Family Groceries, Provisions, Queensware, Boots and Shoes, Drugs, &c. &c.
ALL GOODS necessary for EMIGRANTS crossing the Plains, or WESTWARD BOUND, at WHOLESALE prices, put up with care, neatness and despatch, at as LOW or LOWER prices than can be bought in Council Bluff City.
☞ Agricultural Implements, Grass and Garden Seeds. All Goods warranted as represented.
mh22–3m McB. & B.

HO! FOR SALT LAKE.
"In Time of Peace Prepare for War."
At the GREAT GUN EMPORIUM of
P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON, No. 25 Main street, (Sign of the Gilt Gun,) east side, St. Louis, Mo.,
Will be found the largest and most complete stock of FIRE ARMS in the Western country.
Emigrants and Trains crossing the plains will find it to their advantage to give us a hearing, as from an experience of twenty-six years in this trade we are enabled to offer inducements which no other house can possibly offer. We know the wants of the people, and are able to supply them to almost any extent. We can offer 10 per cent. inducements to cash buyers. Our stock consists of every variety of Double and Single Guns, Minié Rifles, U. S. Yaugers and Muskets, Sharp's and other breech-loading Rifles, Colt's Revolvers and other Pistols of every description and size. Also, Caps, Ammunition, Swords, Hunting Apparatus, and in fact everything necessary to a complete outfit.
Call and examine before purchasing.
Remember the No.—25 Main street, east side.
mh15–6m P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON.

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,
in packages, prepared for Shipping.
Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee, Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8–1y

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!
CHARLES ROGERS,
IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,
No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,
Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.
Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.
mh8–1y CHARLES ROGERS.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,
ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.
The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind which will insure satisfaction.
Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.
Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my13

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.
Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés!" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit!" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains-par la foi en Jésus-Christ!" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection!" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ!" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.!" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.!" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophèties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaitre Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les écès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

St. Louis, Mo.

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

EMIGRANTS AND COUNTRY MERCHANTS
Are invited to call at
JOHH Q. MYERS,
Wholesale and retail
MEN'S, YOUTHS', AND CHILDREN'S
Clothing & Furnishing Emporium,
No. 57 MARKET STREET,
North side, between Second and Third streets.
St. Louis, Mo.
Trunks, Carpet Bags, Shirts, &c.
FURNISHING GOODS OF ALL KINDS.
CLOTHING MADE TO ORDER. fe17

DOAN, KING & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
SILK AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
NOS. 123 AND 125 MAIN STREET,
Union Buildings, between Vine and Locust,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines,
Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city,
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco. Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11. 1855. 26:tf

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

C. D. ELLIS. J. S. CAVENDER. JAS. SMITH, JR.
ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
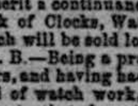
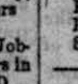
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8-4m

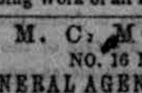
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE-TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22-1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.



A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10-6m



CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 84 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22



T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29-6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29-6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment o WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12-1y

J. McGREGOR,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,

81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22-6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVIS,

GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.

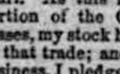
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

M. C. MOIES & CO.,
NO. 16 MAIN STREET,
GENERAL AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

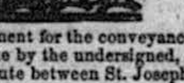
FOR the sale of all kinds of Machinery, Stationary and Portable Steam Engines, Machinists' Tools, Gates' Patent Screw Cutter, Hughes' Atmospheric Trip Hammers, Forgings and Castings, Steamboat and Railroad Lanterns, Gutta Percha Goods, Railroad Materials and Contractors' Tools of all kinds, Iron Safes and Scales, Gutta Percha and Oak Tanned Leather Belting, machine stretched and copper rivetted, and warranted superior to any other.
N. B.—All the above goods will be sold at manufacturers' prices. f2d 1y

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article. Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread.
mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22



ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22



W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29-tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
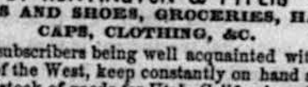
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.



TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Buzby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
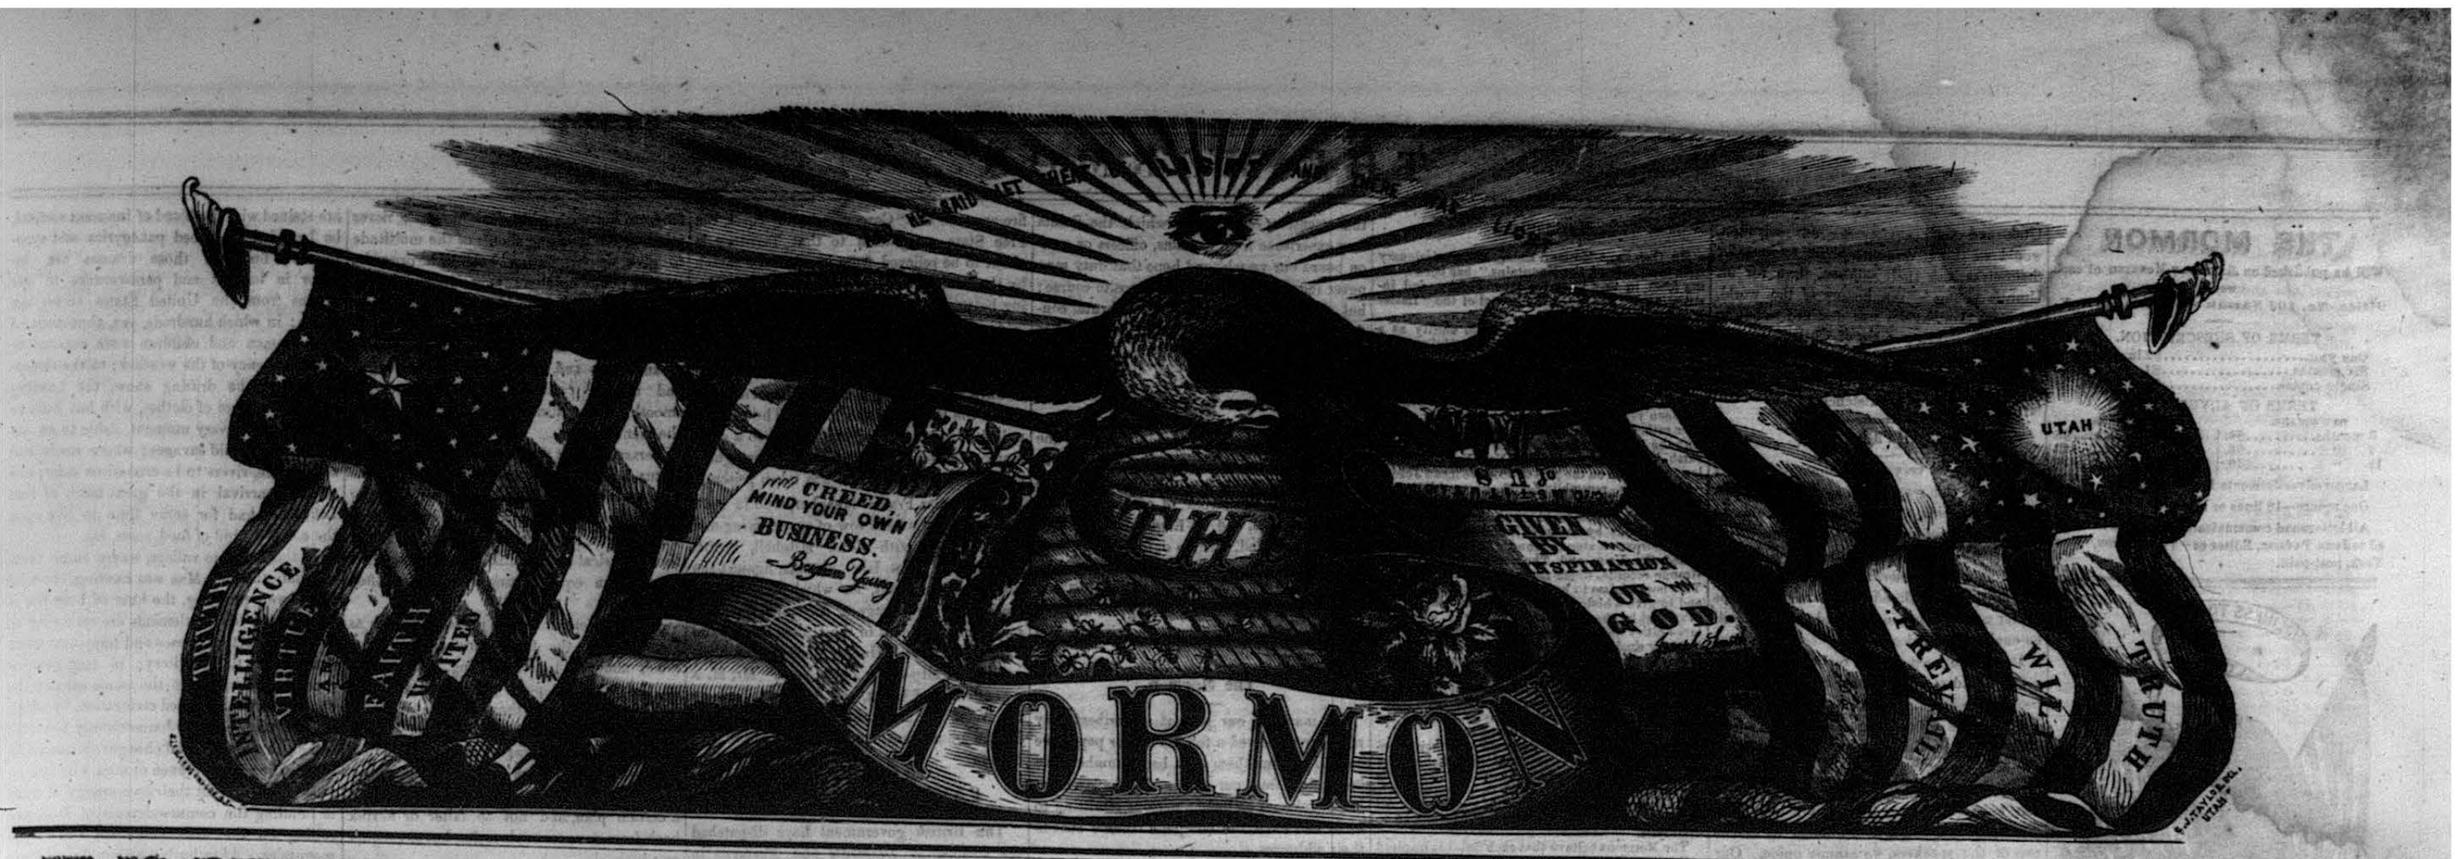
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fel



N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
We also keep constantly on hand the CELEBRATED SHARP'S PATENT RIFLE, which is the safest and most destructive weapon ever invented, for sale at the Manufacturer's prices, for cash.
Please call and examine for yourseles, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods. Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je9-

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS.
fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.---NO. 9. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

All Is Well.

BY ELIZA R. SNOW.

O AWAKE! my slumb'ring minstrel—
Let my harp forget its spell;
Say, O say, in sweetest accents,
Zion prospers—all is well.

Strike a chord unknown to sadness,
Strike, and let its numbers tell,
In celestial tones of gladness,
Zion prospers—all is well.

Zion's welfare is my portion,
And I feel my bosom swell
With a warm, divine emotion:
When she prospers—all is well.

Zion, lo! thy day is dawning,
Though the darksome shadows swell.
Faith and hope prelude the morning—
Thou art prospering—all is well.

Thy swift messengers are treading
The high courts where princes dwell;
And thy glorious light is spreading—
Zion prospers—all is well.

Cruelty to Children.

READERS of newspapers are constantly being shocked with the unnatural conduct of parents towards their children. Some are detected in locking them up and half-starving them; others tax them beyond their strength, and scourge them dreadfully for not bearing it; others take horrible dislikes to their children, and vex and torture them in every way they can think of, short of subjecting themselves to the gallows. In most cases, the tyranny is of long duration before it is exposed. A whole neighborhood are saddened by the cries of the poor victim, till they are obliged to rise up in self-defence and bring the criminal to justice. By this we may judge how many miseries are taking place of which people have no suspicion; how many wretches have crimes of this sort, to account for the evil in their looks; and how many others, more criminal because more lying, go about in decent repute, while some oppressed and feeble relative, awfully patient, is awaiting in solitude the horror of the returning knock at the door.

It is alleged by offenders of this description, that the children are vicious and provoking; that their conduct is very "aggravating," as the phrase is; and that "nothing can mend them but blows," which never do. But whence come the faults of children? and how were they suffered to grow to such a height? Really,—setting aside these monsters of unpaternity,—parents are apt to demand a great many virtues in their children, which they do not themselves possess. The child, on the mere strength of their will, and without any of their experience, is expected to have good sense, good temper, and Heaven knows how many other good qualities; while the parents, perhaps, notwithstanding all the lessons they have received from time and trouble, have little or nothing of any of them. Above all, they forget that, in originating the bodies of their children, they originate their minds and temperaments; that a child is but a continuation of his father and mother, or their fathers and mothers, and kindred; that it is further modified and made what it is by education and bringing up; and that on all these accounts the parents have no excuse for abusing and tormenting it; unless with equal wisdom and a glorious impartiality they should abuse and torment themselves in like manner,—scourge their own flesh, and condemn themselves to a crust and black hole. If a father were to give his own sore legs a good flogging for inheriting ill humors from his ancestors, he might with some show of reason proceed to punish the continuation of them in those of his child. If a cruel mother got into a handsome tub of cold water of a winter morning, and edified the neighbors with the just and retributive shrieks which she thence poured forth for a couple of hours, crying out to her deceased "mammy" that she would be a good elderly woman in future, and not a scold, and a reprobate, then she might, like a proper mad woman—for she is but an improper one now—put her child into the tub after her, and make it shriek out "mammy" in its turn.

But let us do justice to all one's fellow creatures, not forgetting these very "aggravating" parents. To regard them as something infernal, and forget that they, as well as their children, have become what they are from circumstances over which they had no control, is to fall into their own error, and forget our common humanity. We believe that the very worst of these domestic tyrants—and it is an awful lesson for the best of them—would have been shocked in early life, if they could have been shown, in the magic glass, what sort of beings they would become. Suppose one of them a young man, blooming with health, and not ill-natured, but subject to fits of sulkiness or passion, and not very wise; and suppose that in this he sees an old, ill-looking, scowling, violent, outrageous man, tormenting with a bloody scourge his own child, who is meagre, squalid, and half-starved. "Good God!" he would cry, "can that be myself? Can that be my arm, and my face? And that my own poor little child? There are devils then, and I am doomed to be one of them." And the tears would pour into his eyes. No: not so, poor wretch: thou art no devil—there is no such thing as devilishness or pure malice for its own sake; the very cruelest actions are committed to relieve the cravings of the perpetrator's want of excitement, more than to hurt another. But though no devil, you are very ignorant, and are not aware of your ignorance. The energies of the universe being on a great scale, are liable, in their progress from worse to better, to great roughnes in the working and appalling sounds of discord. The wiser you become, the more you diminish this jarring, and tend to produce that amelioration. Learn this, and be neither appalled nor appalling; or if your reflections do not travel so far, and you are in no danger of continuing your evil course by the subtle desperations of superstition, be content to know, that nobody ill treats another, who is satisfied with his own conduct. If the case were otherwise, it would be worse; for you would not have the excuse even of a necessity for relieving your own sensations. But it never is so, sophisticate about it as you may. The very pains you take to reconcile yourself to yourself, may show you how much need you have of doing so. It is nothing else which makes the silliest little child sulky; and the same folly makes the grown man a tyrant. When you begin to ill treat your child, you begin to punish in him your own faults: and you most likely do nothing but beat them in upon him with every stroke of the scourge; for why should he be wiser than you? Why should he be able to throw off the ill humors of which your greater energies cannot get rid?

These thoughts we address to those who are worthy of them; and who not being tyrants, may yet become such, for want of reflections. Vulgar offenders can be mended only with the whole progress of society, and the advancement of education. There is one thing we must not omit to say, which is, that the best parents are apt to expect too much of their children, and to forget how much error they may have committed in the course of bringing them up. Nobody is in fault, in a criminal sense. Children have their excuses, and parents have their excuses; but the wiser any of us become, the less we exact from others, and the more we do to deserve their regard. The great art of being a good parent consists in setting a good example, and in maintaining that union of dispassionate firmness with habitual good humor, which a child never thinks of treating with disrespect.

We have here been speaking principally of the behaviour of parents to little children. When violent disputes take place between parents and children grown up—young men and women—there are generally great faults on both sides; though, for an obvious reason, the parent, who has had the training and formation of the other, is likely to be most in the wrong. But unhappily, very excellent people may sometimes find themselves hampered in a calamity of this nature; and out of that sort of weakness, which is so often confounded with strength, turn their very sense of being in the right, to the same hostile and implacable purpose, as if it were the reverse. We can only say, that from all we have seen in the world, and indeed from the whole experience of mankind, they who are conscious of being right, are the first to make a movement towards reconciliation, let the cause of quarrel be what it may; and that there is no surer method, in the eyes of any who know what human nature is, both to sustain the real dignity of the right side, and to amend them on the wrong one. To kind-hearted fathers in general, who have the misfortune to get into a dilemma of this sort, we would remember the pathetic story of a French general, who was observed after the death of his son in the battle, never to hold up his head. He said to a friend, "My boy was used to think me severe; and he had too much reason to do so. He did not know how I loved him at the bottom of my heart; and now it is too late."—[Hunt's Miscellany.

Sense of Smell.

THE exquisite delicacy of this sense, and its powerful influence on the mind, arises mainly from the fact that the olfactory nerves stand in the very nearest and most constant connection with the brain. Even in animals they are the immediate and powerful continuation of the substance of the brain. In man this is still more distinctly marked. This close and intimate relation between the organ of smell and the great temple of intellect, and the very large surface on which these nerves operate, explain both the marvelous variety of impressions we receive by smell and the permanent influence of odors on our inner life. Nor can it be entirely insignificant that the two nostrils are independent of each other. Two distinct fragrant substances presented at once do not produce a mixed odor but both are distinctly perceptible, and we can at will let one prevail over the other. Our attention alone decides between the two competitors, who are equally anxious to gratify the eager nerves.

The power of perception itself varies wondrously in different individuals. There exist even cases, though very few, where both pairs of olfactory nerves and the sense of smell itself were entirely wanting. Diseases are apt to produce very remarkable changes in our perceptions. Women, who, in good health, were passionately fond of the sweet odor of flowers detest them in hysteric attacks, and prefer the odor of asafœtida or burnt feathers to all others. Strychnine sharpens the sense to almost painful acuteness. Pleasant but gentle odors are most frequently imperceptible to men but feebly endowed with the sense of smell. Frequent change, also, and constant use, make the latter at last dull, and finally inactive; the most pleasant perfumes, if used without intermission become at first indifferent and then disagreeable. Thanks to the fact that habit diminishes the power of the sense, step by step, workmen who deal with putrid substances, druggists, and surgeons, soon overcome their first often painful impressions. Equally fortunate is it that a stronger smell extinguishes the weaker. A drop of oil of cloves and one of oil of peppermint put into the same bottle produce no mixture, but the former only is smelled, while the latter has for a time disappeared. Hence the large consumption of snuff by the young student of anatomy, made more efficient yet by the experience that the odor remains in the nostrils long after the fragrant substance is removed, thanks to the tiny atoms caught and kept captives between the downy hairs.

The effect of smell on the general state of our health and on our temper is not less varied and interesting. Men with a dull nose keep no account at all of their perceptions by this sense. Others are influenced by it more than by any other, and odors excite in them pleasure and comfort, or disgust and even fainting illness. The Italians love the perfumes of flowers with passion, but cannot endure artificial odors. While Schiller kept rotting apples in his drawers sharing the royal poet's wish. "The smell of thy nose shall be like apples," Quercet, the secretary of Francis I., could never smell them without giving his nose a violent bleeding. While some men scarcely notice the most penetrating and disagreeable odors, others perceive instantly the most delicate exhalations. The blind very often become acute observers by this sense and can with marvelous accuracy recognise persons by the faint, feeble odor of their perspiration, which we do not notice. It is well known that our Indians perceive in the mere touch of a bare foot on the soil a sufficient odor to distinguish the track of a white man from that of a red man. In the Antilles there are negroes who will even, by smell alone, distinguish the footstep of a Frenchman from that of a native.

For such purposes animals are often endowed with a peculiarly keen sense of smell. By it the spaniel finds the game in field and forest for his master; by it the camel bears the pilgrim to the fountain of fresh water across the buring sands of Arabia; and by it the shark pursues through the ocean his helpless victim. Safer than sight or hearing, smell alone leads the faithful dog to trace his master's course through the crowded street and the lonely heath, where man could not find the dog by such or other means. In some dogs it seems even to have been given for this special purpose alone, and not for the obtaining of food, for they will not eat the game they have thus tracked, although the scent seems to animate them far beyond the zeal that a mere desire of food could produce. Birds of prey, that feed upon carrion, are often guided by smell, though most of them rely on their sight with greater accuracy, and at farther distance. In other animals, again, it serves to enable the male to discover the female, which at certain seasons is gifted with special odors. Nor are the influences of odors on the passions of animals less striking. Elephants, who have never seen tigers, show the most violent symptoms of fear and horror at there mere smell. In one of the gorgeous spectacles which Lord Clive was so fond of giving to strangers, nothing could force or allure an elephant to pass a place over which a tiger in his cage had been dragged. A gallon of arrac, however, at once changed his fear into fury; he broke down the barriers between himself and his adversary, and killed him almost in an instant. Horses, also, can not easily be made to step over the spot where another horse has died, though they have not seen it, and though no trace of it may remain. All farmers are, moreover, familiar with the fact that oxen, upon seeing blood especially if it come from their own race, will assemble around it, and roar and bellow with most expressive signs of horror and deep distress. They have no sensation of fear, nor can they apprehend death to themselves: it is one of those mysterious symptoms of a higher life in the brute creation, all of which we cover conveniently and lazily with the broad name of instinct.—[Woman's Advocate Personalties of Literati.

JERROLD.

DOUGLAS JERROLD, a well-known contributor to Punch, an editor of various publications is a man about fifty years of age, and in person is remarkably spare and diminutive. His face is sharp, angular, and his eye is of a grayish hue. He is probably one of the most caustic writers of the age, and with keen sensibility, he often writes under the impulse of the moment articles which his cooler judgment condemns. Although a believer in hydropathy his habits do not conform to the internal application of Adam's ale. His Caudle Lectures have been read by every one. In conversation he is quick at retort—not always refined. He is a husband and grandfather.

MACAULEY.

The Hon. T. B. Macaulay is short in statue, round, and with a growing tendency to aldermanic disproportions. His head has the same rotundity as his body, and seems stuck on it as firmly as a pin head. This is nearly the sum of his personal defects, all else, except the voice, which is monotonous and disagreeable, is certainly in his favor. His face seems literally instinct with expression; his eyes above all, full of deep thought and meaning. As he walks, or rather struggles, along the street, he seems in a state of total abstraction, unmindful of all that is going on around him, and solely occupied with his own working mind. You cannot help thinking, that literature with him is not a mere profession or pursuit, but that it has almost grown a part of himself, as though historical problems or analytical criticisms were a part of his daily food.

BAILEY.

A correspondent of The Tribune, writing from Nottingham, England, says: "I have seen Bailey, the author of "Festus." His father is proprietor of The Nottingham Mercury, and the editorial department rests with him. He is a thick set sort of a man, of a stature below the middle size, complexion dark, and in years about eight and thirty. His physiognomy would be clownish in expression, if his eyes did not redeem his other features. He spoke of "Festus," and of its fame in America, of which he seemed very proud. In England it has only reached its third edition, while eight or nine have been published in the United States."

DE QUINCY.

He is one of the smallest legged, smallest bodied, and most attenuated effigies of the human form divine that one could find in a crowded city during a day's walk. And if one adds to this figure clothes that are neither fashionably cut nor fastidiously adjusted, he will have a tolerably rough idea of De Quincy. But then his brow, that pushes his obtrusive hat to the back part of his head, and his light gray eyes, that do not seem to look out, but to be turned inward, sounding the depths of his imagination, and searching out the mysteries of the most abtruse logic, are something that you would search a week to find the mates to, and then you would be disappointed De Quincy now resides at Lasswade, a romantic rural village, once the residence of Sir Walter Scott, about seven miles from Edinburgh, Scotland, where an affectionate daughter watches over him, and where he is the wonder of the country people for miles around.

LAMARTINE.

Lamartine is—yes, young ladies, positively—a prim looking man, with a long face, short gray hair, a slender figure and a suit of black. Put a pen behind his ear and he would look like a "confidential clerk." Give his face more character and he would remind you of Henry Clay. He has a fine head, phrenologically speaking—large and round at the top with a spacious forehead and a scant allotment of check. Prim is the word, though. There is nothing in his appearance which is ever so remotely suggestive of the romantic. He is not even pale, and as for a rolling shirt collar, or a Byronic tie, he is evidently not the man to think of such things. Romance, in fact, is the article he lives by, and like other men, he chooses to "sink the shop," at least when he sits for his portrait.

DUMAS,

On the contrary, is a burly fellow. His large red, round cheeks stand out, till they seem to stretch the very skin that covers them and it looks as smooth as a polished apple. His black crisped hair is piled high above his forehead, and stands divided into two unequal masses, one inclining to the right and the other to the left. His eyes are dark and his mouth sensuous, but not to the degree of vulgarity. His person is large, and his flowing mantel red. He is a gentleman to lay bare his throat and look romantic, not Byronically so, but piratically. Yet he looks good humored, and like a man whose capacity for physical enjoyment is boundless. His negro blood is evident enough to any one who knows he has it; but it would not be detected by any one who knew it not. It appears in the peculiar rotundity of the man in all his parts; it crisped and heaped his hair; it made him dress up in a flowing red, to have his portrait taken. But his complexion is only a shade darker than the average. The portrait reminds us for a moment of the late Thomas Hamblin, the actor.

EUGENE SUE

Is neither prim nor burly. He is a man of large frame, over which a loose black coat is carelessly buttoned. Complexion light, eyes blue, hair once black—now pepper and salt, whiskers volumnious, eyebrows black and thick, good forehead and the lower face ample. This conveys no better idea of the man's appearance than a French passport. But the truth is, Sue's countenance and figure have none of those peculiarities which make description possible. He looks in his portrait like a careless, elderly gentleman, taking his ease in an easy chair and easy coat. He does not look like an author—authors seldom do. His air is rather that of a prosperous citizen. Sue is only forty-five years old, but he has lived fast and looks fifty five. Lamartine is sixty three and would pass easily for fifty-three. Dumas is fifty and could get credit for thirty-eight.

A Sharp Judge.

A FEW days ago, a scandalous affair was to be tried before the Court of Assizes of the Yonne. When Court convened, it was found that all the ladies of the locality were in attendance. In seeing all these toilets, the President said:

"The persons that are in Court do not know perhaps the nature of the suit which is going to commence; I beg all honest women to retire." Not a soul moved.

"Sergeant," said the President, "now that all the honest women have left, turn out the rest!"

What is not Etiquette in England.

THE following piece of drollery on this subject, containing some truths, along with a few absurdities, is given in Mr. W. Blanchard Jerrold's work, entitled "Imperial Paris." A Frenchman is supposed to be speaking. In England, 'it is not etiquette to go to the Opera with the smallest sprig upon the waistcoat or the cravat; to take soup twice; to salute a lady first; to ride in an omnibus; to go to a party before ten or eleven o'clock, or to a ball before midnight; to drink beer at table without giving back your glass at once to the servant. It is not etiquette to refrain a day from shaving; to have an appetite; to offer anything to drink to a person of high rank; to appear surprised, when the ladies leave the table at dessert time—that hour which is so charming with us. It is not etiquette to dress in black in the morning, nor in colors in the evening. It is not etiquette to address a lady without adding her Christian name. To speak to a person, on any pretext, without having been presented; to knock at a door quietly; to have the smallest particle of mud upon the boot, even in the most unfavorable weather; to have pence in your pocket; to wear the hair cut close; to have a white hat; to exhibit a decoration or two; to wear braces or a small or large beard—to do any of these things is to forget etiquette. But that which violates etiquette in England more than anything else is—want of money. Ruin yourself—run into debt—nobody will mind this; but, above all, be a spendthrift. If, when a foreigner arrives in London, it becomes known that he lodges in one of the economical hotels near Leicester Square, he is lost to certain society. Never will an equipage, or even the card of a lord, wander thither.'

The Tobacco Nuisance.

A LADY correspondent of The Tribune, giving an account of her experiences on the way from New England to Washington, thus describes her sufferings from the tobacco nuisance:

"We scarcely got under way before a furious snow storm attacked our train. The locomotive battled bravely with the angry elements, and for a while we seemed to be flying all the more rapidly through the whirling snow—but alas! the iron music fell from a quick step to a hymn tune, and then to a dead march, and at last ceased altogether. The driving wheels whirled uselessly on the icy track, and the locomotive seemed seized with a palpitation that expressed itself in quick snorts, as if far gone for want of breath. We saw men leaping from the platform armed with shovels, and we waited in various stages of impatience for the result. Have you ever noticed the talent for silence exhibited by a car when it stops? From a stunning din you drop into a quiet where snow falling on wool might be heard. But a falling noise of another kind nearly set one frantic. I was in the ladies car, of course, yet about me sat a brigade of tobacco chewers. I opened a book and attempted to read, but in vain. I tried to look over the heads of the crowd—be abstracted—but my eyes would get into a mirror at the further end of the car, that only distorted my own fair face into a horrid caricature, but gave me an extended vista of the busy tobacco worms.

"I am not a strong minded woman—am indifferent to reforms in general—but oh! my country, cannot something be done to check this frightful practice? Cannot our garments at least be protected from the pollution—our lungs from the foul air? The stove was heated to fever heat, and at least ten human machines were at work poisoning the atmosphere—three of them, not content with an ordinary process, expectorate directly upon the stove, and there arose a vapor from which the great adversary of the human family might secure a lively hint for the improvement of that locality devoted to the punishment of sinners.

"Why not have a chewing car as well as a smoking one; a vile, filthy place with the floor full of holes, and any quantity of red-hot stoves?

"I write with the memory of an ill-temper dropping from my pen. But the ruin of a new travelling dress is the provocation. I remember the wretch and will pin him to my page as a warning to gods and men. I want all ladies to beware of him. This animated tobacco-plant is a tall, thin, ungainly specimen of a "first family." His extremities are in an unhappy state of disorganized diplomacy, being by no means in a harmonious state. His face is just such a face as you may expect to find pertaining to a man who chews tobacco in a railroad car. It is thin, sallow and dirty—every line indicates selfishness and every movement ill-breeding. There, now, recognise him; and do not make the mistake I did and, let your garments touch any place he once occupied. I did, and in a minute two breadths of my charming robe were of the color of the wretch's face."

Traffic in Chinese Children,
For Foreign Countries.

SOME disclosures, lately made in China, will tend to awake the sympathies of the civilized world to the horrors of a system as revolting to humanity as the African slave trade.

It appears from the China Mail that a system has long been pursued of selling female children, between the age of four and eight years, to be sent to foreign countries, though chiefly to Siam; but as the traffic was carried on in Chinese vessels it has either escaped the notice of foreign merchants, or was not deemed worthy of their attention.

An English vessel was lately discovered having a number of these little ones on board bound to Manilla, where, it was said, they were to be employed in making cigars. In another instance, forty girls were purchased by a Portuguese in Canton and sent to Amoy, where they were to be shipped to Cuba. On the discovery of the latter the children were released, and the captain fined $100. Sir John Bowring, the British Minister, has determined to put a stop to this traffic, and in connection with a Chinese official, has issued a proclamation prohibiting it. These efforts, it is said, will prove futile, as the most stringent prohibition can easily be evaded.

These children, who are always females, are purchased at about $8 each, and afford, therefore, a large profit to the trader. Those of a more tender age are disposed of by their parents for a dollar, each which they do to save them from infanticide. They are sent to the Spanish and Portuguese, as well as to the English possessions; and the agent of a Spanish house at Ningo was lately known to have had an order for two thousand of these little innocents for Cuba. Young women command too high a price in China to be sent away as a commodity.

A considerable trade is also carried on with boys, though it is said to be less exceptionable than that with girls, as they are often adopted by the childless, or in other cases are regarded merely as adherents or willing vassals by their purchaser, whose claim over them when they become adults, is of a moral kind only.

Habits.

LIKE flakes of snow that fall unperceived upon the earth, the seeming unimportant events of life succeed one another. As the snow gathers together, so are our habits formed. No single flake that is added to the pile produces a sensible change; no single action creates, however it may exhibit, a man's character; but as the tempest hurls the avalanche down the mountain, and overwhelms the inhabitant and his habitation, so passion, acting upon the elements of mischief, which pernicious habits have brought together by imperceptible accumulation, may overthrow the edifice of truth and virtue.—[Jeremy Bentham.

An Author Wanted.

A LATE foreign paper says that the anoymous writer of the German tragedy, "The Gladiator of Ravenna," has not been ascertained up to this moment; a circumstance doubly curious, as the drama not only maintains its high popularity, and as the poet's shares in the profits of its various performances amount, it is said, to so large a sum as 10,000 thalers (£1,500.) This sum deposited in the cash boxes of the different court theaters, waits the legitimate owner's disposal; but neither laurels nor gold, it appears, can induce the dramatist to step forth from his cloud. At all events, he must be a richer man than German poets generally are.

WHEN we are alone, we have our thoughts to watch; in the family, our tempers; in company, our tongues.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
12 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

All letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1856.

The Press and the People.

Of all human inventions, not one has conferred such lasting and precious favors upon society as the press. Before its introduction, the intelligence of man was necessarily greatly circumscribed. The few, whom circumstances favored, could gather general information, but the masses, who had to depend on daily labor for existence, could learn little beyond what was found in the narrow circle of every-day associations. The advantages which education confers, as well as the charm which it gives to the life of its possessor, were understood and experienced thousands of years ago as well as now; and intelligent, noble-minded men were just as willing then to impart instruction as in our own day, but the means of getting at the people had yet to be created. What good was ever accomplished through ignorance? None whatever. To intelligence we owe human freedom—freedom of body and mind. The first public libraries instituted in Egypt, in her palmy days, had over the door of entrance the significant inscription, "A cure for diseases of the soul." Superstition, the handmaid of ignorance, found there her fiery ordeal, and to such places human freedom owes its birth—no galling chains of bondage were ever broken where superstition reigned.

What is true in the history of the world is equally true of the Church of the living God. When men were debased and degraded by the worship of idols, the meek-hearted and enlightened Moses stood forth among his enslaved brethren—enslaved in body and mind—and shed forth refulgent rays of intelligence, before which the darkness of centuries fled. The day when ABraham their father walked and talked with Jehovah was no sooner portrayed before their minds, than they were ready to burst the shackles of Egyptian bondage.

While Israel was prostrated by intestine divisions, Jesus appeared and dispelled the gloom of darkness that covered the minds of his brethren. Save yourselves from this untoward generation, was the watchword. The institutions of men, founded in ignorance, were deserted—their enslaving influence lost its power.

In our day, Joseph comes forth with the message of salvation—the order of life, before which the opinions and dogmas of men fall to the ground. Superstition can't awe, tyranny has lost its iron grasp—man, the offspring of Deity, is free. But where would be the heavenly intelligence Moses, Jesus and Joseph have brought to fallen and debased man, and the precious instructions of the prophet Brigham, without the press? Confined to the few.

But while society at large has received innumerable blessings from the free press, it is not less true that mean and soulless men have made it a powerful engine for the dissemination of principles of a pernicious and corrupting character.

The state of society at the present time—the taste of the people generally on this subject—may be judged from the following, which has for some weeks been making the tour of the United States:

THE IMMORAL PRESS OF GREAT BRITAIN.

It appears from the Edinburgh Review, that the total number of immoral publications issued is 29,000,000 annually, being more than all the publications of the different religious societies and the seventy religious magazines. The present circulation in London itself of deeply immoral publications amounts to 4,000,000 weekly, and in one large manufacturing town alone the weekly issue of an impious, blasphemous paper exceeds 23,000; the editor and proprietor of the paper both deny the existence of a God!

What is true of Great Britain, in this particular, is equally true of the United States and every other Christian country. With such facts staring them in the face, we should think that Christians would do well to Christianize themselves and their neighbors, without going abroad for converts. The New York Observer, speaking of "The Immoral press of Great Britain," says:

If it approximates to the truth, it is an awful fact. It cannot be as bad as this in America. Yet why should it not be? How many of our secular papers are under irreligious influence? Some of them, the most willing to publish religious intelligence, are just as ready to pander to vice and stab Christianity whenever they can get a chance. We have fewer avowedly infidel publications, but we have more fountains poisoned with infidelity sending forth daily and deadly streams, over the whole country.

Those Christians who prate eternally about Utah and their anxiety for our salvation, would we think, do much better to weep for themselves and their children, than for us. Utah is young in the history of the world, but if we thought she was destined to fall to the God forsaken position of Christendom, as represented by the Edinburgh Review and The Observer, we would pray that she might be speedily wiped out of existence.

Utah.

We have a very great amount of news from Utah this week; but as it arrived just as we were going to press, we shall be obliged to defer most of it till next week.

Our very latest is up to the 7th of February. There is a general time of health, peace and prosperity. Bread stuffs are reported as rather scarce, but it is supposed that they will be enabled to hold out.

It will be seen by the report of a Convention held at Cove, Beaver county, that the people are in earnest about coming into the Union. We think Judge Drummond's estimate of the population rather high; however, we may be mistaken—the census will, of course, decide. What object the Mormons can have for saying their numbers are less than they really are, as intimated by one or two of the speakers, we cannot opine. Our acts are generally known; we have strangers as well as Mormons in Utah; Uncle Sam, too, has his representatives. If the people are sincere in their desire to come into the Union, they would, of course, not depreciate their numbers. We are glad to see these steps taken. Isolated as we are, surrounded by an Indian population, and subject to continual misrepresentation by interested demagogues, with very limited mail facilities, a more free and independent position is certainly desirable. It is true, that by so doing we cut ourselves off from government resources, and shall have to sustain our own officers; but we esteem perfect freedom so much, that like the lean dog in the fable, we should always prefer leanness of body and freedom to being fat and sleek with a collar and chain, at the expense of freedom.

We have always been at a loss to know why, and upon what principle, a good citizen of the United States becomes virtually disfranchised, à la mode Anglaise, when he has the enterprise and hardihood to penetrate into our western Territories, whilst our blacklegs and loafers, who infest our cities, are considered good citizens. We say, let us be free.

We refer our readers to another column for the report of the Convention.

It is contemplated in Salt Lake City to start at first a weekly and afterwards a daily express between some point on the Missouri River and California. We say, go ahead; it is the very thing we want. This being shut up four or five months in the year without intelligence may do for Uncle Sam, but it is not Mormonism. We say, "Let her rip, and let her roll."

Appointments.

GEORGE D. GRANT and William H. Kimball are appointed to purchase cattle for the coming emigration.

Alexander Robbins is appointed to purchase provisions and general supplies for emigration, and carry them to Florence, the outfitting place for the plains.

Daniel Spencer is appointed general superintendant of emigration in the West, with liberty to call for such aid as he may need, in Iowa City and other places.

James H. Hart, of St. Louis, Mo., is appointed agent to receive orders and moneys for the purchase of cattle, wagons, provisions, &c., for the emigration. Address James H. Hart, Box 333, St. Louis, Mo.

James McGaw, John Van Cott, William Walker, Joseph France, and all the Elders going West, on the way to Utah, are requested to report themselves to Daniel Spencer, at Iowa City, and assist him, if needed.

Andrew Cunningham is appointed to select a company for a settlement in Nebraska.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

We have lately added to the list of our exchanges this excellent paper. The copies that have come to this office are much better than we expected to find them. Not that we doubted the resources of the editor or the talent he could command in the Empire City, but we have been long enough in the publishing department to know that many papers improve with time. We have seen illustrated newspapers in France, Germany, and Italy, but we can conscientously say that Mr. Leslie's paper surpasses them in every thing particular. The Illustrated London Newspaper has attained a great circulation and a high position as a work of art, and it's success has often brought into existence other competitors for public patronage, but we have seen none till we met our New York cotemporary that might entertain a hope of successful rivalrey. We wish it success, and recommend it to our friends as a good family journal, worth reading and what is nearly as good a recommendation, worth preserving.

Rumored Defeat of Colonel Schlessinger by the Costa Ricans.

On the 20th ult. 500 Costa Ricans, under the command of General Mora, had a battle of fourteen minutes duration with 400 of Walker's army, under Col. Schlessinger. The latter were routed with a loss of sixty men. Nineteen prisoners taken by the Costa Ricans are reported to have been immediately shot. General Mora reports about sixteen killed and wounded on his side. The published statements of this first meeting are very contradictory. The armies have however met, smelt powder and got some scratching. The official organ El Nicaraguese of the 22d ult. reports Walker in a state of convalescence, from severe sickness. Providence, says that paper, afflicted him but for a time, that the army might know how essential he was to its safety.

Mormonism.

Mr. CUTLER, a Mormon Elder, and a missionary from the "city of the Mountains," has been holding forth in this town for several days, and instructing the natives in the gospel of the "Latter Day Saints."

Mr. C. is a man of considerable ability as a speaker, is evidently sincere in the opinions that he advocates, and what he lacks as to correctness of premises he makes up in zeal and faith.

Joseph Smith, he says, impiously called Jo, was chosen by God, in a miraculous manner, when but fourteen years old, to promulgate the new gospel—or rather the continuation of the old by translating the Book of Mormon, which was buried in the earth, in the Western part of New York. After a long probation on the part of Jo,—we mean Joseph—the plates, resembling gold, upon which were engraved strange hieroglyphics, that nobody but the inspired Joseph could translate, were delivered into his hands by an angel, and he, by the aid of two transparent stones, found with the plates, and called the Urim and Thummim, translated the strange records, which made the Book of Mormon. This book claims to be a continuation of the Bible, and to give a history of this continent, which was inhabited by the descendants of Joseph, who built large cities and temples, whose ancient grandeur is dimly shadowed forth by the ruins that are still to be seen in various places on the continent.

That the Book of Mormon is an inspired book, is proved, says Mr. O., by the testimony of eight or ten persons who saw the renowned Joseph translating it, as well as by the Jewish Bible, and the individual inspiration of all true Saints.

The faithful are to be gathered together eventually at one place—the great Salt Lake City, probably, and are to rule the earth. Polygamy is an institution well calculated to replenish their ranks and increase the numbers of the Saints. All who oppose the true church are eventually to be destroyed.

The Mormons believe that each Saint is inspired—they can cure all manner of diseases—cast out devils—speak in strange tongues (why don't they speak good English?) and can prophecy. About two years ago the prophets announced an approaching famine, and advised the faithful to store away all their surplus grain; which they neglected to do. Last season the grasshoppers eat up every green thing (except the disciples) in the Salt Lake Valley, which they took as a judgment from Heaven for not listening to the warning of the prophets—and they are now resolved to store up all their surplus grain of all kinds.

But we commenced this article more for the purpose of alluding to the spirit of mobocracy that prevails, even in this enlightened land of religion and laws, and in this nineteenth century, than of explaining the Mormon tenets.

Whether their doctrines are true or false, they have a right to believe them; and as long as their preachers conduct themselves in a becoming manner, as Mr. Ostler certainly does, they have a right, as citizens of this free Republic, to the protection of our laws.

There is no doubt a spirit of fanaticism and intolerance abroad in the land, that would, if it only had the power, torture, crucify or burn at the stake, all who should refuse to embrace what it would denominate the true religion. This spirit frequently manifests itself by pulling down churches, burning convents, or tarring and feathering Mormon, or other preachers. Mr. O. says that he has frequently been dealt with in this manner. In a neighboring town he barely escaped the tar barrel!

Oh, liberty, sound once delightful to every American ear! whither art thou fled? Liberty of speech—freedom of conscience, and liberty of the press, where are your boasted prerogatives!

We have the satisfaction of stating, that Mr. O., notwithstanding the extreme unpopularity of his doctrines, so far from being mobbed by the citizens of Victoria, was allowed to preach in the Courthouse, and was treated with great courtesy.—[Texian Advocate.

For variety's sake we publish now and again such pieces as the above. We are not over sensitive, a few crooked statements and a rub now and again just remind us of our whereabouts. Our Texian cotemporary, does not seem a bad sort of a fellow. We can tolerate his rub about "green disciples," and bad English in Utah, for the deep drawn sigh he has over departed liberty. "Go ahead" Texian, for toleration to all religions and we'll stand by you even though you may poke a little fun at us mountaineers; but oh, don't fall to the level of religious bigots, who, so full of malice, vent their spite on a man's christian name. Joseph is not too long, is quite as elegant as Jo or Joe and besides the use of the latter sobriquet only indicates a low origin and questionable present society.

Charge of Mutiny and Murder on the High Seas.

On Thursday afternoon the packet-ship Underwriter arrived from Liverpool, and nine of her crew were arrested on a charge of mutiny at sea. The names of the parties are Silas B. Phillips, Jos. Smith, James Reily, John Richmond, Joseph Gilmor, Charles Lester, Michael Mahon, William Rich, and Heman Fisher. They were taken to the United States Marshal's office and committed to Eldridge jail for examination. They had been kept in irons for some time, and presented a sorry and most emaciated and begrimed spectacle. One would hardly credit that they were white men, so dirty and filthy was their appearance. Upon being questioned as to the alleged mutiny with which they were charged, they offered in extenuation that the first and third mates of the Underwriter had subjected them to most barbarous and inhuman treatment on their voyage from Liverpool. For the slightest offence, they stated that they were unmercifully flogged; some of the crew, they averred, were whipped over the windlass, with the additional application of the cat-o'-nine-tails. Besides this, the stated water was not given them to drink, while four dogs belonging to the third mate received an unlimited supply. One of the crew, they charged, was so severely beaten that he died from the effects of the injuries he had received. Upon these statements, combined with the bruises and lash cuts which they showed on their bodies, warrants of arrest were issued yesterday against William Welch, the first mate, and Thomas Keel, the third mate. The charge made against the former was brutal chastisement and general cruelty. The latter was charged with the murder of one of the crew, named Johnson. These parties were arrested on board the Underwriter, and committed to Eldridge-street jail for examination. The case and counter charges will be examined into in the early part of next week, before Commissioner Morton.—N. Y. Herald.

We sincerely hope that should these mates be found guilty, and there seems little room for doubting, an example will be made of them as a warning to others. We have no acquaintance either with the seamen, officers, or passengers that have crossed the Atlantic in the Underwriter; we have, however, reasons for writing. This spring, we have met with numerous individuals who have witnessed the utmost cruelty on board packet ships between the ports of Liverpool and New York. In general our emigrants have been spared the pain of witnessing such scenes; still some have reported to us more than we wished to learn. The disciples of Neptune are almost universally regarded as the most humane and kind-hearted of men, and we have witnessed much that favors the position the mass of mankind have accorded to them; but of late we have heard a great deal against officers abusing and maltreating seamen on board the Liverpool and New York packet ships, which seems to indicate that many of the sons of the wave are losing their honest, kind-hearted simplicity, and becoming inoculated with the spirit of the age—tyranny. Officers should be respected and promptly obeyed, but we see no reason for half-murdering men, even if they should not be as active as desirable.

We shall ever take pleasure in recording the attention or kindness which the Saints may experience from captains, officers or crew on board our vessels, and hope that duty may never require us to pursue an opposite course; but should we learn more of the brutal conduct of the officers towards the crew, as has been the case in some ships, we shall publish names and facts.

Peace in Europe.

A TREATY of peace was signed by the Plenipotentiaries at Paris on Sunday the 30th March. The event was announced in Paris and London by salvoes of artillery. Paris was illuminated, and in England the church bells were pealed. Three or four weeks must elapse ere ratifications of the treaty can be exchanged. The details of adjustment are referred to a commission. The great event of peace has swallowed up all minor subjects of news.

The Mormon.

As many of our present subscribers may not have preserved a full file of our paper, we beg to inform them that back numbers can be obtained from our office. We have a number of volumes on hand; persons remitting to us $1 can have the complete volume sent to their addresses.

Persons wishing to change the direction of their papers, in notifying us of their intention, are particularly requested to write distinctly the name of the town, county and State to which they have been forwarded, as well as that to which they wish them sent in future.

Notice to Subscribers.

PERSONS wishing their papers sent to another address will please enclose their former address as well as that given for the future.

DOMESTIC SUMMARY.

A TERRIBLE accident took place on Thursday evening, in Stanton street, in this city, through the use of camphene. Four persons were severely burned. One of them, Mrs. Cohen, it is feared, will not recover.

JOHN A. KENNEDY, Esq., has retired from the Board of Emigration Commissioners, and Wilson G. Hunt, Esq., appointed in his place. It was, we believe, chiefly through the efforts Mr. Kennedy that Castle Garden emigration depot was established. We regret his resignation as he has been a very efficient member of the Board and kindly attentive to the interests of the emigrants.

THE Washington Organ of last week publishes on the authority of a letter from one of the officers of the United States ship Savannah, under date of Feb. 11, at Rio de Janeiro, a very lively account of a difficulty between Sir Hope Johnson, Admiral of the English Squadron, lying in the harbor of Rio Janeiro, and Commodore Salter, of the United States ship Savannah. The English Admiral had been informed that the Steamship America had concealed under her coal, guns and ammunition destined for the service of Russia. The Admiral was determined to search the America, the Commodore was as determined he should not—and at the moment of closing the letter the Commodore was preparing for a set-to with the Admiral, and such was the certainty of an engagement, that a number of the foreign residents at Rio had chartered a steamboat to accompany the two squadrons to sea, in order that they might witness the engagement.

IT is rumored at Washington, that the French and English squadrons contemplate interfering in the Central American war—of course against Walker.

THE Artisan Building, Philadelphia, was totally destroyed by fire on the evening of the 10th inst. The agregate loss is supposed to be $200,000. In the lithographic establishment of Mr. Duval, were the lithographs for Commodore Perry's work on the Japan Expedition. The plates belonged to Government, were all complete and ready to be sent off: they are valued at $6,000. The United States Hotel near the scene of conflagration was slightly damaged by fire. The engines flooded the house with water to the great consternation of the boarders, who had to take refuge in flight. One lady in a house adjoining died of fright.

Mr. Isaac Wells, from Jefferson county, member of the New York Legislature, died of the small pox, in Albany Almshouse, on Tuesday. Mr. Parker, his colleague, has been afflicted with the same disease, but is now recovering.

The Coroner's jury that was in session on the New Jersey ferry accident delivered its verdict late on Monday evening, the substance of which is that the destruction of said ferry boat New Jersey, by which these deaths by violence occurred, was caused by the worn-out, leaky, and defective condition of the boiler employed on board said boat, of which Richard Felters was inspector; that the deceased came to their deaths by the inefficiency exhibited by Richard Felters, in the examination of the boiler of said boat, and by the negligence of John W. Mickle, President; E. A. Stevens, Benjamin Fish, John L. McNight, Gideon V. Stevens, John C. Bullitt, Samuel Thompson, William H. Gatzmer, and John R. Thompson, directors and managers; and A. B. Frasee, general superintendent of the said company, in the employment of an unfit and unsafe boat for the transport of passengers, and their omission to properly man and equip and supply with means of escape from the said ferry boat.

On the 10th inst. a fire broke out in a machine shop at the extreme north-west end of the Shaker village in Enfield, N. H. The wind being very high at the time, blew the flames with great force in the direction of the village, which resulted in the destruction of eleven or twelve buildings.

On account of the rigid search to which Kansas emigrants' baggage has been subjected in the Missouri river since the discovery of fire-arms in the "Carpenters' tool" chest, the Free State emigration to that Territory is about to be relieved from inquisitorial search by the establishment of a line of steamers plying between Alton and some point in Kansas.

An orator, commonly called in this city the Angel Gabriel, who used to preach on the City Hall steps, trumpet in hand, is reported to have been raising a muss in Demerara between the Portugese and blacks. The negroes pulled down, plundered and set fire to a good many Catholic churches and Portuguese ships. The Angel Gabriel was taken prisoner.

Mr. Thomas Francis Meagher, who in 1848 took part in the Irish row of speechifying and and writing, with John Mitchell, Smith O'Brien and other Irish patriots, against the English government, for which Mr. Meagher received a free passage to Australia, has been sometime a resident of the United States, and a public lecturer. He last week started a paper in this city—The Irish News. Mr. M. is a gentleman of talent, and no doubt will, in the News, say many things well and prettily for the amusement and edification of the sons of Erin.

FOREIGN SUMMARY.

THE British government have dispatched the steamships Desperate and Tartarus in search of the missing Pacific. Hope still lingers in the bosom of some, others despairing have commenced praying for the souls of friends on board. We learn from a cotemporary that prayers are now being offered for the repose of the soul of the Catholic Bishop, Dr. O'Reilly.

SIR HYDE PARKER, commander of the British naval forces in the East Indies, died at Devonport, on the 21st ult.

SIR HENRY POTTINGER, of Chinese opium war notoriety, died at Malta, on the 18th of March.

The Berlin papers begin to talk openly of the marriage of Prince Frederick William with the Princess Royal of England.

Accounts have been received at Trieste of the death of Sir Charles Hotham, Governor of Victoria. By the same route we learn that many of the Japanese nobles perished in the earthquake that recently occurred at Jeddo.

By the Cambria we learn that Mr. Fillmore had returned to Rome from Naples. Mr. Cass was to entertain him at a splendid banquet. Mr. F. was to leave for Florence on the following day.

Mr. Buchanan had passed through Paris on his way to the Hague. His intention was to leave for the United States on the 8th of this month.

Mr. Murray, the British Minister to Persia, is still at Tabriz; but it is said that Persia having apologized, he will return to Teheran.

A review is to be held at Paris of one thousand men, on the signing of the declaration of peace. The review, nominally, is a compliment to Count Orloff, the only soldier of the plenipotentiaries.

Among the rumors prevalent is one that the Emperors of Russia and Austria have respectively promised to visit Paris soon after the conclusion of peace. Six thousand French have embarked at Marseilles for the Crimea, probably to supply sick vacancies.

Napoleon has determined to send an expedition to colonize Madagascar, which England does not approve of.

The advices from the Crimea are to the 13th ult. The health of the French army was much improved. Several conflagrations had occurred at Eupatoria. Ten thousand English troops were at Balaklava.

General Marmora has left Constantinople for the Crimea. The Polish General Zamoyski had arrived at Constantinople. The English fleet was expected at Malta. The weather in the Crimea continued stormy.

Omer Pasha has had a lengthened interview with the Turkish Ministry. He seems determined to resign unless he receives the satisfaction he demands.

FOR THE MORMON.

Perseverance.

BY ALEXANDER OTT.

Slowly and anxiously has the man at the helm to steer the bark of life down the stream of Time; often is he obliged to change his course, or stop entirely, in order to avoid destruction; often is he surrounded with enumerable dangers that seem to block up every outlet, but still the navigator's persevering and undaunted spirit enables him to surmount all those obstacles, till he arrives in the harbor safely.

How many of those prototypes of mental excellence, from whose tombs there streams a glory of immortality, have had to pass through the greatest trials and difficulties, but being persevering and undaunted, they struggled on, till they realized the desire of their heart. Homer, Milton, Salinas, Stanly, Scapinelli, Sebastian Bach, although blind, and thus bereaved of one of the most beautiful senses, persevered in their mental labors; with patience they cast the seed of their immortality, and the rich harvest they have reaped is worthy of their excessive toils and labors. Michael Angelo continued to study with such perseverance till the end of his life, that in his old age, Cardinal Farnese found him walking in solitude amidst the magnificent ruins of the Coliseum near Rome, and, expressing his surprise, Michael answered, "I go yet to school that I may continue to learn."

Perseverance is that precious gift, which enables man to go safe through the labyrinth of earthly trials; whether being a disciple of Mars, he is exposed to all the dire and woful calamities of war; whether he is to traverse the terrible fields of battle, where the reeking blood of slain victims cries to Heaven for vengeance, and the iron dice of destruction are doing their busy work, and he has to face and brave grim death in its most horrid forms and shapes; whether being engaged in the useful avocations of peace, he had to suffer from Fortune's whimsical humors; never minding the insulting shouts of the multitude to give up his daring, bold enterprise, he moulds public opinion; never looking to the right or left, or behind him, but always looking straight ahead, that he may not get out of his track, he pushes on, enduring all manner of sufferings and annoyances, till the rugged and uneven path of his career becomes smooth, and he attains an eminent position in the mental arena.

Perseverance is that medium through which Nature's deficiencies are made up. Some persons may be endowed with very inferior talents, but by persevering application they will, at least, to a certain extent, surmount those physical and mental anomalies, and get often on an equal footing with higher gifted individuals.

History speaks of some great men, such as Demosthenes, the Greek orator, who being much annoyed by stammering, used to walk on the sea-shore, put a pebble in his mouth, and tried to speak so that his voice might be heard above the roaring breakers; his untiring perseverance was crowned with perfect success. Perseverance is due to an energy of mind, to a firm determination to carry out a certain plan, and not to falter or shrink back from dangers or obstacles, but to conquer or perish.

Goethe, one of Germany's greatest poets, statesmen and philosophers, says in regard to perseverance, "The longer I live, the more I am certain that the great difference between men, the great and insignificant, is energy—invincible determination—an honest purpose once fixed—and then death or victory. The quality will do anything in the world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunity, will make a two-legged thing a man without it."

From the above we see that perseverance is one of the most important principles of ethics that, considering its bearings, ought to be cultivated to the utmost. Parents, guardians and teachers should take the greatest interest and care in impressing that precious principle upon the youthful mind; and then as soon as man has an honest purpose in view, and every point of the same well considered, he will never abandon, but try to accomplish it, no matter how many Rubicons he might have to pass. The cultivation of perseverance makes the mind firm and settled, so that it will never deviate from the path it has once taken. A man who is persevering in everything, is to be depended upon, and a great help in trying circumstances; he will not leave a friend in misfortune or difficulties, without trying to extricate him from them; he will not turn a traitor to the cause of truth he once espoused, but he will remain faithful, and, like a brave oak, will weather storms and tempests. Perseverance causes man to ride the billowy ocean; to roam in the sandy plains of the torrid zone, or in the northern regions where the Aurora Borealis is the only beacon light hung out over the long winter's night; there he is toiling, laboring and bustling about, in order to accumulate wealth and surround himself and family with the comforts and luxuries of life.

Columbus, Cook, Ross, and others—those great, eminent mariners, would never have made those wonderful discoveries for which they have gained their laurels in the scientific world, if it had not been for their perseverance; their minds were too firm, too settled to be shaken like a reed by the din of violent opposition, or the insulting, sneering remarks of the narrow-contracted multitude, whose puny intellects could not grasp those gigantic ideas concerning new countries, that were so disagreeable to their pre-conceived notions, and damaging to their personal interests. In observing and watching the movements of a persevering mind, we cannot help being astonished at the wonderful and marvellous results of that sublime quality. In the deep mines, where neither the Orient beam of the sun nor the moon's silver ray are permitted to enter; where the air is impregnated with mephitical, suffocating vapors; where the gloomy, faintly flickering lamp is the only medium, through which the dull light throws its fantastic shades on the surrounding objects, the pitman, with the utmost perseverance, is working day after day to maintain himself and those depending upon him.

In the retired study, the man of science is pondering over volumes of dead knowledge, diving into sciences, listening to Nature's secret whisperings, searching for truth, he consecrates his time with persevering zeal; his inquiring mind never satisfied, discovers continually hidden labors and principles; thus he continues gaining fame and reputation, till he leaves this world for fields of higher intelligence. In the wild, barren deserts, where some years ago nothing but the hooting of owls, and the howling of wolves, and other various animals were heard, where the soil, untrodden by the white man's foot, yielded nothing but thorns and thistles, new scenes meet the enraptured gaze; the spell of the dismal wilderness is broken; beautiful fields teeming with the golden fruits of civilization, are, as it were, created by the magic wand of perseverance. The air resounds with the laborers' merry songs; with the strokes of the busy hammer; the rattling of carriages; the steam-engine's heavy pulsation is heard; everywhere is life and bustle, even the featherry tribes seem to be all smiles and blushes; in fact, every department of creation seems to express feelings of joy and happiness for the wonderful change brought about by perseverance.

Neither profane, nor sacred history furnishes an example, where a whole nation in similar circumstances has manifested such perseverance as the Latter-Day Saints. Well may Hannibal's traversing the Alps with a large army, whose march was often impeded by towering rocks, that had to be burst; by roaring rivers that had to be bridged; by frightful abysses, which had to be crossed, be corded as great and wonderful deeds: well may he and other great men, whose names are stained with the blood of innocent victims, be heralded by bribed panegyrics and sycophants; but still those dramas are inferior in interest and perseverance to our exodus from the United States across the plains; in which hundreds, yea, thousands of men, women and children were exposed to the inclemency of the weather; to the sweeping rains; the drifting snow, the howling winds; destitute of clothes, with but little or no food, and every moment liable to an encounter with wild savages; where roads had to be made, rivers to be crossed on rafts; and on their arrival in the great basin of Salt Lake, they had for some time to live upon the coarsest kind of food, roots, etc.

In those remote valleys, where some years ago only the Red Man was hunting, the wild beasts were prowling, the hum of busy life is now heard; fine settlements are springing up in every direction; peace and happiness reign throughout the Territory; in fact, perseverance has imparted to the whole scenery the character of enlightened civilization, by which art and nature are so harmoniously blended; and all those wonderful changes are caused by the untiring perseverance of men, who had no other resources but their own energy of mind in fulfilling the commandments of God, and rolling on the little stone cut out of the mountains. After having accomplished those Herculean feats, the Elders, on the Prophets' bidding, go out without purse and scrip, leaving their homes, their all, to proclaim the Gospel to the benighted nations of the earth; thousands of miles they travel over land and sea, deserts and mountains, to gather the honest in heart from the four corners of the globe.

From the above historical illustrations, we conclude that perseverance is that gigantic power by which obstacles are removed, that would otherwise baffle all human skill; it is the finger-post to personal distinction and comfort, and in the Church of Christ the celestial exaltation. A man without perseverance is fickle-minded, unsettled; like a butterfly, he is flirting from one thing to another; he cannot fix his mind on any purpose, and, therefore, he is disqualified for filling the measure of his creation. Well, then, O reader, persevere in the faithful discharge of your duties towards God and man, till the golden gates of celestial glory will open for you, and your toils and labors here below will be rewarded with an eternal salvation.

Minutes of a Convention Held at Cove, Beaver Co., U. T.

PAROWAN, Feb. 7, 1856.

BRO. JOHN TAYLOR—Dear Sir: I send you the following minutes of a Convention held on the 18th ult., at Cove, Beaver Co., U. T. I have not made them very full, on account of taking up too much room in your valuable paper. JAMES H. MARTINEAU, Clerk of Meeting.

TREMONT HOUSE, COVE, Beaver Co., U. T., January 19, 1856.

To the Editor of The Mormon:

DEAR SIR—In accordance with the vote of the Convention which has just been held—the minutes of which are respectfully submitted to you, I present you with the following brief synopsis of the proceedings of a District Convention, held at this place on yesterday the 18th inst. The Convention was called for the purpose of taking into consideration the propriety of sending Delegates to a General Convention this Spring, to form a Constitution and plan of State Government for this Territory. For several days previous to the meeting just held, the roads leading to this place might have been seen thronged with vehicles of all descriptions, horsemen and pedestrians, all anxious to be at the place of gathering in time, and setting at defiance the inclement weather—which is unusually severe this winter—the snow in the mountain passes, and the unpleasant condition of the roads, showing in a striking manner the energy and decision for which the citizens of this mountainous region have always been conspicuous.

There were delegates present from Beaver, Iron and Washington Counties, and some of the prominent citizens of Utah and Great Salt Lake counties were present, and indeed, some of the delegates from the extreme Southern portion of the Territory, came a distance of about a hundred and fifty miles.

When the appointed hour arrived, the fact became very apparent that the Tremont grounds were insufficient to contain the multitude, and the whole mass adjourned to the cedar grove adjoining. On motion of the Hon. G. A. Smith, Col. W. H. Dame, was called to the chair, and J. H. Martineau, appointed chief Secretary, and Messrs. R. Benson and N. Johnson, assistant Secretaries.

The Hon. G. A. Smith, being called for by universal acclamation, came forward on the stand, and spoke in his usual forcible and happy manner. He said—

I am decidedly in favor of calling a General Convention this Spring, at Great Salt Lake City, for the purpose of taking the preparatory steps for admission into the Union. The time has arrived when Utah should knock at the door of the Federal compact for admission as a Sovereign State, upon an equal footing with the other and older States. It is true that the time is comparitively short since we entered these mountain vallies, but how much has been done in that time. We came from the States stripped of almost all our possessions, yet by our untiring exertions we have made good roads and bridges, established manufactories of all kinds, and filled these fertile vales with cities and villages, and with the peaceful hum of industry and refinement. Where a few short years ago was heard nought but the war whoop, of the savage and uncivilized Indian, as he went forth upon the war path, or pursued the bounding antelope across the plain; the cry of the wolf and grizzly bear; and nothing was seen but desolation in its most dreary form; now is presented the cheerful and peaceful aspect of a great and mighty people, advancing with rapid strides in the march of improvement and refinement, and vallies teeming with the best fruits of the earth, and blooming like the garden of Eden. What is there to urge against our becoming a member of the great and glorious Union—that government which was established at the cost of so much blood, of so much treasure and endurance, and that government, the constitution of which we believe to be the most perfect, ever established by any people or nation under Heaven. Is it the religious belief of its citizens? The Constitution of the Nation to which we belong—of that compact which we wish to join—expressly declares that all its citizens may worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences, and that no religious test shall ever be required of any of its members; consequently that is no objection. Is it the paucity of our numbers? Judge W. W. Drummond, estimates our population in the neighborhood of 100,000 souls, which estimate, coming as it does from a gentleman of his intelligence, and capacity for judging of such matters, and withal so disinterested, is, in my humble opinion worthy of full belief and credence. We are consequently upon an equal footing in that respect, with many other States which have been admitted into the Union, some of which, it is well known, came in with a much smaller population than Utah can now boast. Can it be urged that we are destitute of knowledge sufficient to govern ourselves?

I declare unhesitatingly—and it is the universal decision of intelligent gentlemen travelling through Utah—that there is not to be found anywhere else than in Utah, a people who understand as well the principles of self-government, who make better laws, and who are so united in carrying them into execution. Are we charged with disaffection to the General Government? If this be true, why not seek to form an independent government of our own among these mountain fastnesses—the key of the Union? why do we desire to be admitted into the Union? Why did we desire admission in the year 1849? The fact speaks for itself, and is a sufficient reputation of a slander so unfounded and unjust; but if this be not sufficient evidence of the purity of our intentions, let us refer to history; look at the Mormon Battalion wending its way across the burning sands of the Great American Desert—a march unparalleled in the annals of warfare—and performing an important share in the acquisition of California, with its mines of golden ore, and of the very country which we now inhabit. Look at the wives and children of those patriotic and undaunted soldiers, as they were left in the open prairies in an Indian country, without a house or shelter of any kind, and almost destitute of the means of prolonging their existence during the absence of their fathers, husbands and sons, who had gone to fight the battles of that country which had permitted them to be driven from their home without a cause. Is this disaffection? Is this disloyalty and rebellion? Hear all ye nations of the earth and decide. It is not so. We cling to those rights and prilvileges fought for and won by our fathers, it is true, in common with other citizens of our nation, for we have an equal right to enjoy them; we glory in the power and extent of our country, and we admire and will sustain to the last its Constitution which was formed by the inspiration of God (cries of long live the Constitution) Yes, long live the glorious Constitution of our country, and may its blessings extend until it shall cover our whole continent.

The speaker here gave way, his remarks, of which I have given only the heads, being received by the convention with the most unmistakable marks of approbation, and the most perfect attention.

Hon. Jesse N. Smith, of Parowan City, next followed in a series of interesting remarks, but for want of room I shall be obliged to give but a very brief and condensed report of his address, as also of those who followed him. He said he coincided most heartily in the sentiments advanced by the honorable gentleman who had preceded him, and felt that it was the universal feeling of this vast assemblage (aye! aye! resounded from all parts of the concourse). He was correct in his remarks; it was the decided feeling of every loyal son of Utah. He was in favor of calling a Convention of Delegates from all parts of the Territory, to deliberate upon the best plan of a Constitution and State Government for Utah, and that we take measures at the earliest possible date for our admission into the Union. We have a right to enjoy all the Constitutional privileges and rights enjoyed by the different States of the Confederacy. He was firmly of the opinion that the estimate of Judge W. W. Drummond was nearly correct; it might be a trifle over the mark, it might fall short, but from his own acquaintance with the honorable gentleman, and his means for information, was fully satisfied with his computation of our population, as being correct. It had been frequently urged by our opponents, that we as a people, did not wish our numbers to be known—that we wished to keep it in the dark—that we represented ourselves as being less than we really were; but he was satisfied this was a mistake. It was true that our election returns did not make a very imposing appearance when compared with those of other States and Territories, but was willing to attribute this to the fact that our political arena is always quiet, and undistrubed by those party squabbles and strifes that agitate the various parties in the other States and Territories, and to the consequent absence of that excitement which draws to the polls all the legal voters of the country, and many illegal ones. But he was aware we are a numerous and mighty people, and entitled to assume the position which our numbers and rights as free born American citizens entitles us. He retired amid universal applause, and was succeeded by Judge Lee of Washington County.

He came forward and said he felt some diffidence in addressing an assemblage like this, but as he was one of the delegates from the extreme southern portion of the Territory, was willing to let his opinions on the subject be known, and through him, that of those whom he had the honor of representing upon the present occasion. He stood before them as one of the pioneers of civilization in the south, and was deeply sensible of the disadvantage of our present position as a Territory, situated as we are so far from the center of civilization. There were many cases arising continually, from our intercourse with the savages surrounding us, which required the speedy and effective arm of a State Government. He felt that we, who had come as pioneers into this vast western wilderness, who had "killed the snakes, made the roads, and built the bridges," were entitled to make our own laws and regulations, and choose our own rulers, the same as the people of other States. He considered it a principle of right inherent with us, that those who leave their comfortable homes, and penetrate into the depths of the wilderness, having all the dangers incident to a new and unsettled country, should have the right to make and execute their own laws, and choose their own rulers, especially when removed as far as we are from the seat of government, and with such rare and uncertain means of communication with that government. He was decidedly in favor of the suggestions of the previous speakers, and would give way for others.

Mr. Philip R. Smith then came forward and addressed the meeting at considerable length, in an eloquent and masterly manner. He adverted to many scenes through which we have passed, but of the brightening prospects that now cheer our vision. He also spoke of some of the principles touched upon by those who had preceded him, in an eloquent manner, illustrating them more fully. He also referred to a subject introduced by the honorable delegate from Parowan (Mr. J. N. Smith,) namely, the charge made against us of concealing our real numbers, taking the same view of it as the honorable delegate had done. "But, (said he) let us hold a convention, as has been proposed; let us have an election for the purpose of choosing delegates to that convention, and let us show our strength. The Legislative Assembly have passed an act authorizing such an election. We shall soon return to our various homes, and when we do so, let us be diligent in this matter—let us call upon our neighbors to turn out en masse and vote—let us swell our polls!" Let me ask you, shall we swell our polls when we return to our homes? A prolonged cheer was the answer, and the speaker sat down amid general enthusiasm.

Messrs. T. Lewis of Iron, W. Bateman of Cedar, C. W. Dolton of Harmony, J. Hatch of Santa Clara, Carlos Shirts of Hanarrah, James McGuffee of Parowan, and several citizens of Beaver county, successively addressed the Convention in spirited and eloquent addresses, which were loudly cheered by their audience; but our limits forbid a particular synopsis of each, suffice it to say that they showed that the citizens of the southern portion of Utah are alive to their privileges and rights, and determined to obtain them.

Hon. I. C. Haight, of Cedar, then delivered an excellent address; at the close of which he moved that a committee of five be chosen to draft a preamble and resolutions expressive of the feelings of this Convention. Seconded by Mr. Hatch.

The motion was then put by the chairman, Col. Dame, and carried without a dissenting voice.

Moved by Mr. McGuffee, and seconded by R. Benson, that the Hon. J. N. Smith, Judge Lee, J. H. Martineau, T. Lewis and P. K. Smith, be appointed said committee. The motion, on being put by the chairman, was, like the previous one, carried unanimously.

The committee then retired for a short time, during which the delegates enjoyed a few minutes of relaxation and hilarity. The committee having returned, the assemblage was called to order, when Hon. J. N. Smith, the chairman of the committee, presented the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, feeling, as we do, that we, as the inhabitants of Utah, in common with American freemen of other States, have equal rights with them to the privileges and benefits of a State government, having been the pioneers of civilization in the desert wilds of Utah, and having attained sufficient numbers to warrant our admission into the Union as a State, and, further as a people, having from our earliest settlements evinced a superior capacity for self-government; therefore,

Resolved, That we do earnestly approve the action of the present session of the Legislature of Utah Territory, in passing acts preparatory to calling a convention for the purpose of framing a State Constitution and claiming admission as a State into the Union: and further,

Resolved, That we, as a people, appreciate the inconveniences arising from the appointment of Federal officers by the General Government, who generally have no interest in the country, and whose only recommendation is the fact of their having performed some degrading political service or party trickery in some other country, and whose only anxiety is to fill their own pockets, promote their own ease and comfort, regardless of the results of their own official blunders, or criminal neglect, to the inhabitants of the Territory: and further,

Resolved, That we, as a Convention, with one voice unite with a great people in demanding admission into the Union as a State, a position which it has long been our just right to occupy: and further,

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to Col. Wm. H. Dame for the able, dignified and impartial manner in which he has presided at this Convention.

On motion, the preamble and resolutions were read by the Secretary.

The Chairman then said: "Friends and fellow-citizens, is it your mind to accept these resolutions as the voice of this Convention? If so, you will manifest it by saying 'aye.'" As a response to which, the whole assembly thundered forth "aye," as from the heart and mouth of one man. The vote was unanimous.

On motion, Mr. Lewis, the Hon. G. A. Smith and Hon. I. C. Haight were nominated for delegates to the Convention to be holden next Spring at Great Salt Lake City, to represent Iron and Beaver counties. Seconded by Mr. Carter. The vote was then put by the Chairman, and was unanimous.

On motion of Mr. McGuffee, Judge Lee of Harmony was then nominated for delegate from Washington county. Seconded by Mr. Johnson. The nomination, like the previous one, was sustained by a unanimous vote of the Convention.

Moved by R. Benson, that the minutes of this Convention be published in the Deseret News, THE MORMON, and as many other papers as are willing to give them a place in their columns. Seconded by Judge Lee, and carried unanimously.

On motion of Hon. J. N. Smith, seconded by Mr. McGuffee, and carried by unanimous vote, the Convention adjourned sine die.

There were many distinguished gentlemen present, but several, who were expected to attend, were unable to do so on account of the state of the roads, indisposition, &c., but they sent their regrets at not being able to attend, and their full support of the principles advocated at the Convention.

Before the delegates returned to their homes, a splendid ball was given by the gentlemanly proprietor of the Tremont House; and never did its spacious rooms contain a more brilliant and gay assemblage than took part in the festivities of the occasion.

Fearing I have protracted this report too long already, I now close the minutes of the largest Convention ever held in Beaver county.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES H. MARTINEAU, Secretary.

A NEW TRANSLATION OF THE BIBLE.—The list of petitions to Parliament just published includes one from a respectable congregation of Christians at Newington-green, praying for an improved version of the Bible, on account of the inaccuracies and errors with which the authorised version abounds. The petition was presented by Mr. Heywood, M. P.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 10, 1856.

THE Senate resumed the consideration of the motion to print the memorial of the members of the Free State Legislature of Kansas.

Mr. Mason opposed the proposition, saying that the memorial emanated from men who are in rebellion against the laws of the country.

After a good deal of talk, Mr. Cass asked and obtained leave to withdraw the memorial, to return the same to Col. Lane. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House discussed the resolution of the Committee on Elections declaring Mr. Fouke not duly elected from the Tenth Congressional District of Illinois, and on vote, the resolution was adopted—only five in opposition.

The resolution declaring Samuel S. Marshall sitting member from the Ninth District of Illinois duly elected over Mr. Turney, was then passed. Both Mr. Turney and Mr. Fouke were allowed mileage and per diem to date.

The Senate's amendments to the Deficiency Appropriation bill were considered. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 11.

The Senate passed forty-eight private bills, including one for the relief of the officers and soldiers of the army who sustained losses by the San Francisco and Winfield Scott steamboat disasters.

Adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The bill to compensate ex-Minister John S. Pendleton for extra diplomatic services was passed, together with a number of other private bills.

Adjourned to Monday.

SENATE. April 14.

Kansas affairs—a good deal of barking and growling. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Hall asked leave to offer a resolution directing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into the propriety of an enactment by Congress of a law prohibiting, under appropriate penalties, any person married and having a husband or wife living, from intermarrying and cohabiting with another within any territory of the United States, anything in any law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

The reading of the resolution created a great deal of laughter.

Mr. Orr—I object, for the benefit of my neighbor. [Referring to Mr. Bernhisel.

Renewed laughter followed this sally.

A Voice—Is there a law in that Territory permitting a woman to have more than one husband? (Ha, ha, ha, from all parts of the house.

The House refused to suspend the rules, by a vote of 86 against 56—not two-thirds.

The Deficiency Appropriation bill was then considered. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 15.

Mr. Rusk of Texas, from the Post Office Committee, to which was referred the memorials of Messrs. Vanderbilt and Livingston, reported a bill to encourage new steam navigation lines to provide for the transportation of the mails by sea, and for other purposes.

In consequence of the illness of Mr. Clay, who had the right to the floor on the bill to admit Kansas as a State, the subject was postponed, and the Senate went into executive session. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The bill amendatory of the act of 1849, regulating the payment for horses and other property lost in the military service of the United States, was passed. The bill is intended to facilitate the means of obtaining proof in such cases.

The Deficiency Appropriation bill being under consideration, the House rejected the Senate's amendment appropriating $300,000 for continuing the Washington aqueduct, and without final action on the bill. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 16.

The bill proposing to remove from circulation the smaller Mexican and Spanish coins, and establishing their value in receipt for government dues; also providing for the coinage of a new description of cents, was passed.

Mr. Seward presented a series of resolutions in regard to the right of property in newly discovered islands, which were referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The Bounty Land bill was debated, then laid aside, to enable Mr. Jones of Iowa to reply to the speech of Mr. Harlan on Kansas affairs.

Mr. Jones addressed the Senate. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Tyson reported a joint resolution for the purchase of 15,000 copies, at $5 each, of Kane's narrative of the Arctic Expedition, for distribution among the members of Congress, and autorizing the Secretary of the Navy to have appropriate medals struck off and presented to Dr. Kane, his officers and men, expressive of the high esteem in which Congress holds their respective services. Passed by four majority. Adjourned.

TELEGRAPHIC.

Recruits for Gen. Walker.

NEW ORLEANS, April 10, 1856.

Two hundred recruits left here this morning in the steamship Charles Morgan, for San Juan, to join Gen. Walker's forces. Gen. Hornsby was among the passengers.

Fire at Lancaster, Pa.

LANCASTER, April 10, 1856.

The County Poor House and a number of barns and stables in this place were destroyed by fire this morning. Thirty-six horned cattle and four horses were consumed. The loss is heavy.

From New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, April 12, 1856.

Mr. Garland the defaulting Treasurer of New Orleans has been allowed his liberty, on giving $40,000 bonds for his appearance for trial.

Massacre of Indians in Northern Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS, April 12, 1856.

By the steamer Louisiana we have Galveston dates to the 8th inst. The Texas news unimportant. The Indian depredations in Northern Mexico continued without abatement. Col. Senagua surprised a party of Lipans, killed forty and took one hundred prisoners.

The Tornado.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14, 1856.

Accounts from towns in the vicinity of this city give additional information of the ravages of the tornado. A lady was killed at Westchester by a shutter striking her head while she was endeavoring to close the blinds. An innumerable number of dwellings and barns have been unroofed in every direction. A train of loaded freight cars, standing near the depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in West Philadelphia was blown from the track. Ten loaded cars on the Reading Railroad where driven a hundred yards from the place where they were left, and five of the number were thrown off the track.

The Storm Westward.

CLEVELAND, April 14, 1856.

The storm of Saturday did a great deal of damage along the line of the Cleveland and Pittsburg Railroad. A church and fifteen houses were blown down at Alliance, and one man killed. A large number of trees were blown across the track between Salem and Damascus.

Re-Arrest of a Mail Robber.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14, 1856.

Colonel Hughes, Special Agent of the Post Office Department, arrested this morning George W. Townsend, who broke jail at Newcastle while waiting sentence for stealing a letter from the Wilmington Post Office. The prisoner had a hearing before Commissioner Hazlitt and was remanded to prison to await a requisition from the United States authorities in Deleware. He had three revolvers on his person and every barrel in them charged. When he escaped from prison he liberated seven other prisoners. Townsend is about twenty years of age.

Arrest for Robbing the Mail.

ALBANY, April 14, 1856.

Joseph Roach, a Stage driver, has been arrested in Saline County, Missouri, for robbing the mail. A draft for $1,925 and other moneys were found in his possession which he had abstracted from letters.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 14, 1856.

The Clay celebration at the Slash Cottage was attended by Attorney General Cushing, Messrs. Crittenden, Butler, Mason, Douglas, Bigler, and others of the Senate, Mr. Cushing and a number of the Senators made speeches.

Christ Church and Franci's carriage factory were destroyed by fire at Richmond on Sunday.

Later from Havana and Key West.

CHARLESTON, April 14, 1856.

The steamship Isabel, with Havana dates to the 10th inst, has arrived at this port. Among her passengers is Senator Mallory. She brings no news of importance from Havana.

The ship Frances of Portland, from Boston for Havana, was wrecked on Dog Rocks.

Further Indian outrages are reported near Tampa; Capt. Pratt's party at Cape Roman had been attacked, and Corporal Orook and one private killed and two wounded. More United States troops were urgently required.

Condition of the Erie Canal.

BUFFALO, April 15, 1856.

The Erie canal is reported to be in such condition; between this city and Lockport, as to the preclude the possibility of opening it before the 5th of May.

Destructive Fires in the West.

CINCINNATI, April 14, 1856.

Eighteen houses in Williamstown, Ky., were destroyed by fire on Saturday. The loss is unknown.

The mahogany saw mill of Henry Albro, in Cincinnati, was damaged by fire yesterday, to the extent of 12,000.

Last night the upper story of the office of the Cincinnati Gazette was burned.

Steamboat John Arnott Destroyed by Fire.

GENEVA, N. Y., April 15 1856.

The steamboat John Arnott, plying on the Seneca lake, was burned to the water's edge this morning, while laying at her dock at Watkins. A man on board, named Dennis, was burned to a crisp. He resided at Starkey. Nearly all on board were more or less injured, but few seriously. Captain Tuthill was burned about the head, hands and feet.

Silks, Brandy and Cigars.

WE clip the following article from the Chicago Weekly Tribune which is worthy of attention:

To those who have not examined the statistical returns published annually by the Government, the amount paid every year for luxuries will appear fabulous. But the figures do not lie, no matter who may doubt. We boast of our ability to feed the world, and of the business we are doing in that way now; but few suppose that the silks—piece goods, including ribbons, but not buttons and ornaments chiefly manufactured of silk—brought here for the adornment of Republicans and their wives and daughters, exceed in value, by eight millions of dollars, all the flour that we send abroad. Yet such is the fact. In the year ending June 30th, 1855, we exported $14,783,394 in flour and imported $22,570,911 in silks—leaving the balance that we have above stated to be charged to the difference between the pride of Americans and the appetite of all the world

Our corn-fields, particularly in the West, are the occasion of much national boasting. We measure them singly by miles square, and estimate their aggregate value in hundreds of millions; but the amount of this, our national staple, which we send abroad, is overshadowed by the cost of the cigars with which we poison breath and ruin health. In the period we have named, corn worth $1,374,077 left our ports, and cigars, valued at $3,311,935, were brought in.

The herds of cattle and the resulting barrels of Beef, people never tire talking of. They see in them a large part of the material with which we claim we can fill the maw of all civilized mankind. Our merchants, who are in that line, watch the foreign markets with great solicitude, and gauge their prices by signals from the other side of the water. But of beef, tallow, hides and "horn-cattle," we sold, for other countries, only $2,214,554 in the last commercial year; and during that time, we bought brandy to the amount of $3,241,408.

We deal largely in tobacco—raise it in quantities—chew and smoke it without limit. It constitutes the third in value in the list of commodities which this country has to spare. Yet we export only $11,319,319 in value of this article yearly; and last year we received in return, tea and coffee amounting in round numbers to $24,000,000. Even in narcotics, the balance of trade is largely against us.

Bacon, lard and live hogs are not unimportant items in our commerce; yet we send abroad only enough of these to buy the linen that we wear.

But "Cotton is King." While the artisans of New England are toiling that slaves and slave-owners may be shod, clothed and lodged; while the farmer of the West is toiling that the country East and South may be fed, the cotton is ripening that balances the books—that wipes out the pecuniary effects of the follies and extravagances which all—the slaves excepted—have conspired to commit. Of that we sent out last year, ship-loads enough to swell the aggregate value of the export to $109,356,000—an amount greater than the value of all other exports, specie included.

Housekeeping.

We will give to intellect, to immortality, to religion and to all virtues, the honor that belongs to them. And still it may be boldly affirmed that economy, taste, skill and neatness in the kitchen have a great deal to do in making life happy and prosperous.

Nor is it indispensably necessary that a house should be filled with luxuries. The qualifications for all good housekeeping can be displayed as well on a small scale as on a large one.

A small house can be more easily kept clean than a palace. Economy is most needed in the absence of abundance.

Taste is as well displayed in placing the dishes on a pine table, as in arranging the folds of a damask curtain.

Skillful cooking is as readily discovered in a nicely baked potatoe, or a respectable johnny cake, as in a nut brown sirloin or a brace of canvass backs.

The charm of good housekeeping is in the order, economy and taste displayed in attention to little things, and these little things have a wonderful influence.

A dirty kitchen and bad cooking have driven many a one from home to seek for comfort and happiness somewhere else.

Domestic economy is a science—a theory of life which all sensible women ought to study and practice. None of our excellent girls are fit to be married until they are thoroughly educated in the deep and profound mysteries of the kitchen.

See to it, all ye who are mothers, that your daughters are all accomplished by an experimental knowledge of good housekeeping.—[Farmer and Mechanic.

Common Sense.

A MAN strikes me with a sword and inflicts a wound. Suppose, instead of binding up my wound, I am showing it to everybody, and after it has been bound up I am taking off the bandage continually and examining the depth of the wound, and make it fester till my limb becomes greatly inflamed and my general health is materially affected, is there a person in the world who would not call me a fool? Now such a fool is he who by dwelling upon little injuries, insults or provocations, causes them to agitate or inflame the mind.

How much better were it to put a bandage over the wound, let it stay on, and never look at it again till the wound healed under it, as it would, when the bandage would necessarily drop off of itself, as being no longer wanted? How much pain and misery would not thus be saved?

Thus there is nothing in the natural or material world but what hath its exact counterpart in the moral or spiritual world, however little be perceived. Man is too shortsighted in these matters, notwithstanding they concern him so much—the fault of his wrong education, which is, at best, only a knowledge of words without meaning.

Luck vs Talent.

IT often seems to be luck, rather than talent that gives to people position. Seven years ago Myron H. Clark was a Deputy Sheriff. In 1850, Myron H. Clark was one of the marshals for taking the census of a certain village. In 1853, Myron H. Clark was elected Senator. Myron H. Clark is now Governor of New York. Whether he will go still higher remains to be seen. If he should, it would only show that a man's position in this world depends less upon his deserts than upon surrounding circumstances. Think of Myron H. Clark, and never, say die. The man who will be President in 1870, is now, probably, peddling India rubber rat traps. Again we say, never despair.—[Commercial Advertiser.

Glacial Sea in Yorkshire.

PROFESSOR PHILLIPS states, that at a comparatively modern geological period, every part of Yorkshire below the level of 1500 feet was covered by the waters of a glacial sea. Icebergs appear to have floted over the whole of the Hull district, depositing, where they melted or overturned, the materials brought from the higher hills. Among these were blocks of stone from Cumberland and the West Riding, now found perched on the limestone hills. Some of them must have come over the Pass of Stainmoor, a height of 1440 feet.—[Year-Book of Facts.

Religion among the Chinese.

RELIGION would appear to be at a low ebb among the Chinese. The priest sits down in front of an altar, with a small taper burning, and with a small mallet in one hand, and a string of beads in the other, he begins to hum, or half sing, a number of words. This appears to be all the worship they have, and their belief is that the priest can and must do all the praying. In this latter particular, the Chinese are not alone; there is a large class of religionists in our own country, who look to the ministers to do all the praying.

A Professional Preference.

"How do you like the character of St. Paul?" asked a parson of his landlady one day, during a conversation about the old saints and the apostles. "Ah, he was a good clever old soul, I know, for he once said, you know, that we must eat what is set before us, and ask no questions for conscience sake." I always thought I would like him for a boarder."

A LONG TELEGRAPH LINE.—It is announced that the Joint British, French and Sardinian Submarine Telegraph Company has completed its arrangements for continuing the line from the coast of Africa, by way of Alexandria, Jerusalem, Damascus, &c., to Calcutta, whence it must ere long be extended to Melbourne, the British capital of Australia, altogether a distance of 12,500 miles.

FIRE proof paint may be made by taking common clay—dry, pulverize, and run it through a sieve, and mix with linseed oil. The color will be a delicate drab. By burning the clay slightly, a light red may be obtained; and the greater the heat it is subjected to, the brighter will be the red.

A METHODIST PARSON LOOKING FOR LOST SHEEP.—A preacher of the Methodist Church was travelling in one of the back settlements, and stopped at a cabin where an old dady received him very kindly. After setting provisions before him, she began to question him: "Stranger, where mought you be from?" "Madam, I reside in Shelby County, Ky." "Well, stranger, hope no offence, but what mought you be doin' way up here?" "Madam, I am searching for the lost sheep of the tribe of Israel." "John, John!" shouted the old lady, "come right here this minit! here's a stranger all the way from Shelby County, Ky., a hunting stock, and I'll just bet my life that tangle haired old ram that's bin in our lot all last week is one of his'n."—[California paper.

WHAT IS LAW?—Law is like a fire; and those who meddle with it may chance to "burn their fingers."

Law is like an eel-trap—very easy to get in, but very difficult to get out of.

Law is like a lancet—dangerous in the hand of the ignorant, doubtful even in the hands of an adept.

Law is like a sieve—you may see through it, but you will be considerably reduced before you can get through it.

Law is like an ingus fatuus, or Jack o' Lantern—those who follow the delusive guide too often find themselves inextricably involved in a bog or quagmire.

Law is like prussic acid—a dangerous remedy, and the smallest dose is generally sufficient.

Mormonism in New York.

THE LATTER DAY SAINTS intend holding Meetings in this City every Sunday, at the Broadway House, entrance 116 Grand street, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., 3 P. M., and 7 in the evening.

All who wish to become acquainted with the principles of Salvation, as taught by Apostles and Prophets, ancient and modern, are respectfully invited to attend.

A Card to the Saints.

As Mormonism is a subject in which every Latter-Day Saint is interested, we respectfully solicit the interest of the Saints throughout the world in spreading "THE MORMON." Intelligence is what we want to communicate; the press is a powerful auxiliary for this purpose, and while we publish, you, by helping to circulate the truth, will not only assist us in our heavy pecuniary liabilities, but help to stem the flood of falsehood and roll forth the kingdom of God.

Use your influence; send on your subscriptions, and spread it to the ends of the earth.

Mormon Books

WE have received, and have for sale, the following Books, and at the annexed prices:

Book of Mormon, roan	1 25
Doctrines and Covenants	1 00
Spencer's Letters, cloth bound—O. Spencer	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
Voice of Warning—P. P. Pratt	0 62½
do do calf, do	1 00
do do calf gilt, do	1 25
Government of God—J. Taylor	0 50
Pearl of Great Price—F. D. Richards	0 37½
Livre de Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Das Buch Mormon—J. Taylor	1 75
Zion's Panier—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Etoile du Deseret—J. Taylor—per No.	0 12½
Route to Salt Lake, illustrated—Piercy & Linforth—per No.	0 40

St. Louis Book Agency.

J. S. CANTWELL, southwest corner of Washington avenue and Sixth street, St. Louis, Mo., has for sale, at the usual prices, the following books and pamphlets:

Book of Mormon, German; Voice of Warning, German; Voice of Warning, French; Martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and expulsion from Nauvoo; Route to Salt Lake Illustrated, in 14 monthly parts; Book of Mormon; Book of Doctrine and Covenants; Voice of Warning; Spencer's Letters; Hymn Books; Government of God, by J. Taylor; New Jerusalem, or the Fulfilment of Modern Prophecy; Divine Authority of Joseph Smith; Remarkable Visions; Only Way to be Saved; Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, by O. Pratt, 6 parts; Polygamy, by a Lady in Utah; The Seer, by O. Pratt, Vol. I., to which is added 6 parts of Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and Polygamy, by a Lady of Utah, elegantly bound, in one vol.; Orson Pratt's Works, bound; Times and Seasons, Vols. IV., V., and VI., well bound; Portraits of the First Presidency; Journal of Discourses, well bound; Millennial Star, Vol. XVII.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

Nov. 29, 1855

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb.	$0 40
do clarified "	40
do brown "	40
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	40
Tea, Young Hyson "	2 00
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	3 00
Tea, black, per lb	3 00
Apples, dried, per lb	40
Peaches " "	50
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb	75
Allspice "	50
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	50
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	40
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	50
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	75
Brimstone "	40
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	75
Candy "	1 00
Candles, 6 to the lb	50
Figs, per lb	75
Cloves, per oz	15
Nutmegs "	20
Oysters, per can	2 00
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	2 00
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 50
do pints "	1 00
Lemon Syrup "	1 50
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	20
do 10x12 "	30
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	20
Pepper "	20
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb	$0 30
Glue	75
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	35
Copperas "	30
Extract Logwood, pr lb	75
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	40
Beeswax	75
Indigo, $2 pr lb. or pr oz	20
Gum Camphor, per oz	15
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	15
Turkey Opium "	1 00
Golden Seal "	15
Liquorice, per lb	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal	6 00
Linseed Oil "	8 00
Copal Varnish "	10 00
Whale Oil "	8 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	1 00
do do do	50
Mustang Liniment, p bot	50
Rope, sea grass, per lb	50
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	25
do 2d do	50
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$3 10
do boys', handled	2 50
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	3 00
Shovels	3 25
do steel plated	3 00
Grain Scythes	2 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 40
Two prong Hay Forks	2 00
Three do do	2 50
Four do dung do	3 50
Hoes	1 25
Concave Augers, per ¼	25
Bitts "	25
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 00
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb	1 00
Flat Irons "	25

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	30
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	80
Sand Paper, pr 3 sheets	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb	35
SCREWS.
Size.	Gross
½ inch	1 00
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 50
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	20
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1¼	20
1½	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	20
10 do	20
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Hat, 250	1 00
Powder, per lb	80
Lead "	40
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	8 00
Fine do	10 10
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 05
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 50
do do Low	2 75
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 20
Kacks	50
Sole Leather, per lb	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to	2 50
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz	75
Oil Cassia "	1 00
Oil Peppermint "	1 00
Oil Lemon	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 16¾ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	50
Ticking	40
Blue Drilling	25
Denims	30
Cotton Batten, per roll	20
do Yarn, per 5 lb	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb	35
Eggs, per doz	20
Cheese, per lb	25
Bacon, smoked, per lb	35
Shoulder "	30
Ham "	35
Middle "	40
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 05
Oats "	1 50
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar-cured Beef, pr lb	30
Beef, fresh, per lb	9
Mutton	12½
Tongues, each	60
Tallow, per lb	30
Lard "	30
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $4 to	5 00
Adobies, per 100	30
Stone, per cord	12 00
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	8 00

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
UTAH TERRITORY.
HOOPER & WILLIAMS,

ARE transporting to Utah, this season, one of the largest and best assorted stock of GOODS ever taken to that region.

The purchases being made from the best Houses in New York, Baltimore, and St. Louis, and the long experience they have had in the trade, enables them to offer inducements in prices, style and kind which will insure satisfaction.

Emigrants passing over the plains to California, will find it to their advantage to refit at Great Salt Lake, as produce can always be had for less than transportation from the States.

Persons wishing to remit or intend taking money with them, can avoid risk and save money, by depositing with Messrs. ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM, No. 29 Murray street, New York, or WATERMAN & RYAN, St. Louis; who are authorized to draw on us. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 7 per cent from date of draft till payment.

HOOPER & WILLIAMS.
G. S. L. CITY, 1855. my15

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.

Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

Letter Notice.

WE are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to April 18, 1856.

ASHES—Pot ... per 100 lb.	6 12½ a — —
Pearl	— — a 8 25
CANDIES—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted ... per lb.	— a —
Ordinary	— a —
CANDLES—Sperm ... per lb.	38 a 40
Adamantine	24 a 29
Mould, yellow	— a 14
COFFEE—Java, white	14 a 14½
Mocha	— a 16
Laguayra	11 a 12½
Maracaibo	11 a 12½
St. Domingo (cash)	— a 10½
DRUGS AND DYES—Alcohol. pr. gal.	— 58 a — 63
Alum ... per lb.	— 2½ a — 2½
Arrowroot	— 50 a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— — a — 2½
Asafœtida	— 5 a — 25
Borax, refined	— 21½ a — 28½
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2½ a — —
do crude ... per ton.	30 — a 32 —
Camphor, crude ... per lb.	— 24 a — 24½
do refined	— 35 a — —
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 50 a 1 62½
Chlorate Potash	— 35 a — 37½
Cochineal	— 75 a 1 20
Copper—sheathing ... per lb.	— 23 a — 27
Copperas ... per 100 lb.	1 25 a — —
Cream Tartar ... per lb.	— 28 a — 29
Gum Arabic, picked	— 19 a — 35
Gum Copal	— 40 a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 25 a — 30
Iodine, resublamized	5 — a 5 25
Ipecacuanha	1 90 a 2 —
Madder	— 11 a — 12
Magnesia	— 14 a — 16
Do calcined	— 30 a — 35
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 18 a — 19
Oil Anis	— — a 8 —
Oil Bergamot	2 — a 2 10
Oil Cassia	— — a 3 75
Oil Lemon	2 — a 2 10
Oil Peppermint	— — a 2 75
Opium, Turkey	— — a 4 12½
Otto Rose ... per oz.	3 50 a 6 50
Oxalic Acid ... per lb.	— 32 a — 33
Phosphorus	1 10 a 1 15
Quicksilver	— 43 a — 45
Rhubarb, China	1 20 a 1 25
Saleratus	— — a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10½ a — —
Senna	— 11 a — 15
Shellac	— 11 a — 14
Sugar Lead, white	— 14 a — 15
do brown	— — a — 10
Sulphate Quinine	2 52½ a 2 60
Tartaric Acid	— 44 a — 45
Verdigris	— 41 a — —
Vitriol, blue	— 10½ a — 11
DYE WOODS—Camwood ... per ton.	100 — a 110 —
Fustic	18 — a 30 —
Logwood	21 — a 28 —
FLOUR—State, common ... per bbl.	5 87½ a 6 87½
Michigan and Indiana	6 12½ a 6 25
Genesee, extra	7 — a 9 50
Rye Flour	4 — a 5 75
Corn Meal	3 37½ a 3 75
FRUIT—Raisins ... per box.	3 — a 3 25
Raisins, layers	3 45 a 3 50
Currants ... per lb.	— 18 a — 24
GLASS (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10 ... per 50 feet.	3 25 a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75 a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 — a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50 a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 — a 7 50
GRAIN—Wheat ... per bush.	1 90 a 2 —
Corn, round yellow	— 63 a — 65
Barley	1 18 a 1 28
Oats, Western	— 43 a — 46
Beans	2 25 a 2 30
GUNPOWDER ... per 25 lbs.	3 50 a 6 50
INDIGO ... per lb.	— 90 a 1 30
IRON—Pig, Eng., Scot ... per ton.	35 — a 36 50
Bar, Eng. refined	67 50 a 72 50
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality ... per lb.	— 18 a — 18½
Sheet, Eng.	— 3½ a — 4½
LEAD—Galena ... per 100 lbs.	7 — a 7 12½
Sheet and Pipe	— 8½ a — —
LEATHER ... per lb.	20 a 31
MOLASSES ... per gal.	30 a 47
NAILS—Cut, 4d and 6d ... per lb.	4½ a —
Wrought, 6d and 20d	6 a 7½
OILS—Olive ... per bskt., 12 bottles.	3 50 a 3 62½
Olive, in casks ... per gallon.	1 25 a 1 30
Linseed	— 80 a — —
Whale	— — a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95 a 1 —
PAINTS—Lead, red, Am ... per lb.	— — a — 8½
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— — a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8½ a — —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	1 — a 1 62½
Ochre, in oil	— 4 a — 6
Spanish Brown, dry ... per cwt.	— 60 a — 75
Litharge ... per lb.	— — a — 8½
Vermillion, Chinese	— 90 a 1 05
Venetian Red ... per cwt.	2 — a 2 37½
RICE ... per 100 lbs.	3 75 a 4 50
SALTPETRE ... per lb.	8 a 18
SEEDS—Clover ... per lb.	— — a — 18
Flax, American, rough ... per bush.	2 — a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	1 85 a — —
SOAP—New York ... per lb.	4 a 7
Castile	10½ a 11
SPICES—Ginger, Race ... per lb.	5 a 5½
Mace	85 a 90
Nutmegs	91 a 95
Pepper	— a 11½
Pimento	11½ a —
Cloves (cash)	12½ a 13
SUGAR—New Orleans ... per lb.	6½ a 8½
Havana, white	9 a 9½
do brown	6½ a 9
Stuart's crushed	— a 10½
SUMAC, Sicily ... per ton.	72 50 a 82 50
TEAS—Gunpowder and Imperial ... per lb.	35 a 75
Hyson	30 a 80
Young Hyson	32 a 70
Hyson Skin	20 a 35
Black	22 a 50
TIN—Banca ... per lb.	— a 31½
Straits	29 a 29
Plates ... per box.	9 — a 10 50
TOBACCO	7 a 43½
TURPENTINE ... per 280 lbs.	3 62½ a — —
TAR ... per bbl.	3 — a 3 25
SPIRITS TURPENTINE ... per gallon.	— 41 a — 42

WILLIAM N. WHITE & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,
CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, MATTINGS, &c.,
120 Verandah Row, Fourth Street,
ST. LOUIS, MO. mh29-3m

McMULLAN & MAXWELL'S
STEAM BAKERY MANUFACTORY
No. 186 South Fourth Street.
Sale Office and Depot, N. W. cor. Vine and Commerce Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Every variety of LOAF AND PILOT BREAD, Boston, Butter, Soda, Sugar, Water and Wine Crackers, manufactured and kept constantly on hand.

Particular attention paid to Steamboats, Hotels and Merchants' orders. mh22-3m

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,
in packages, prepared for Shipping.
Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee,
Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8-1y

McBRIDE & BOWEN,
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA.,
EMIGRANTS' STORE,
Corner Broadway and Pearl St., opposite Pacific Hotel.
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware, Family Groceries, Provisions, Queensware, Boots and Shoes, Drugs, &c. &c.

ALL GOODS necessary for EMIGRANTS crossing the Plains, or WESTWARD BOUND, at WHOLESALE prices, put up with care, neatness and despatch, at as LOW or LOWER prices than can be bought in Council Bluff City.

☞ Agricultural Implements, Grass and Garden Seeds. All Goods warranted as represented.
mh12-3m McB. & B.

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

WE believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will b condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commençant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils, "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés?" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses? Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immergé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence, ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,
Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS. Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.
Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.
E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

St. Louis, Mo.

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!
CHARLES ROGERS,
IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,
No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,
Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.
Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.
mh8–1y CHARLES ROGERS.

ARTHUR LEITCH,
APOTHECARY AND CHEMIST,
Corner of Fifth and Market Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
American, English and French Drugs, Perfumeries, Brushes, and all articles appertaining to the Toilet. mh29–3m

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.;
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines, Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city.
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26:tf

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

C. D. ELLIS. J. S. CAVENDER. JAS. SMITH, JR.
ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8–4m

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22–1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.

A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10–6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29–6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29–6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12–1y

J. McGREGOR,
WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
d22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22–6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVIS,
GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

HO! FOR SALT LAKE.
"In Time of Peace Prepare for War."
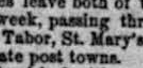
At the GREAT GUN EMPORIUM of
P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON, No. 25 Main street, (Sign of the Gilt Gun,) east side, St. Louis, Mo.,
Will be found the largest and most complete stock of FIRE ARMS in the Western country.
Emigrants and Trains crossing the plains will find it to their advantage to give us a hearing, as from an experience of twenty-six years in this trade we are enabled to offer inducements which no other house can possibly offer. We know the wants of the people, and are able to supply them to almost any extent. We can offer 10 per cent. inducements to cash buyers. Our stock consists of every variety of Double and Single Guns, Minié Rifles, U. S. Yaugers and Muskets, Sharp's and other breech-loading Rifles, Colt's Revolvers and other Pistols of every description and size. Also, Caps, Ammunition, Swords, Hunting Apparatus, and in fact everything necessary to a complete outfit.
Call and examine before purchasing.
Remember the No—25 Main street, east side.
mh15–6m P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON.

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article. Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread.
mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Monroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22



W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29–tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.
Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. P. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
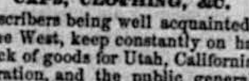
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," Norton, Butler & Hoyt, } New York.
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.



TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes, and Clothing
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Busby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T.
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN
BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
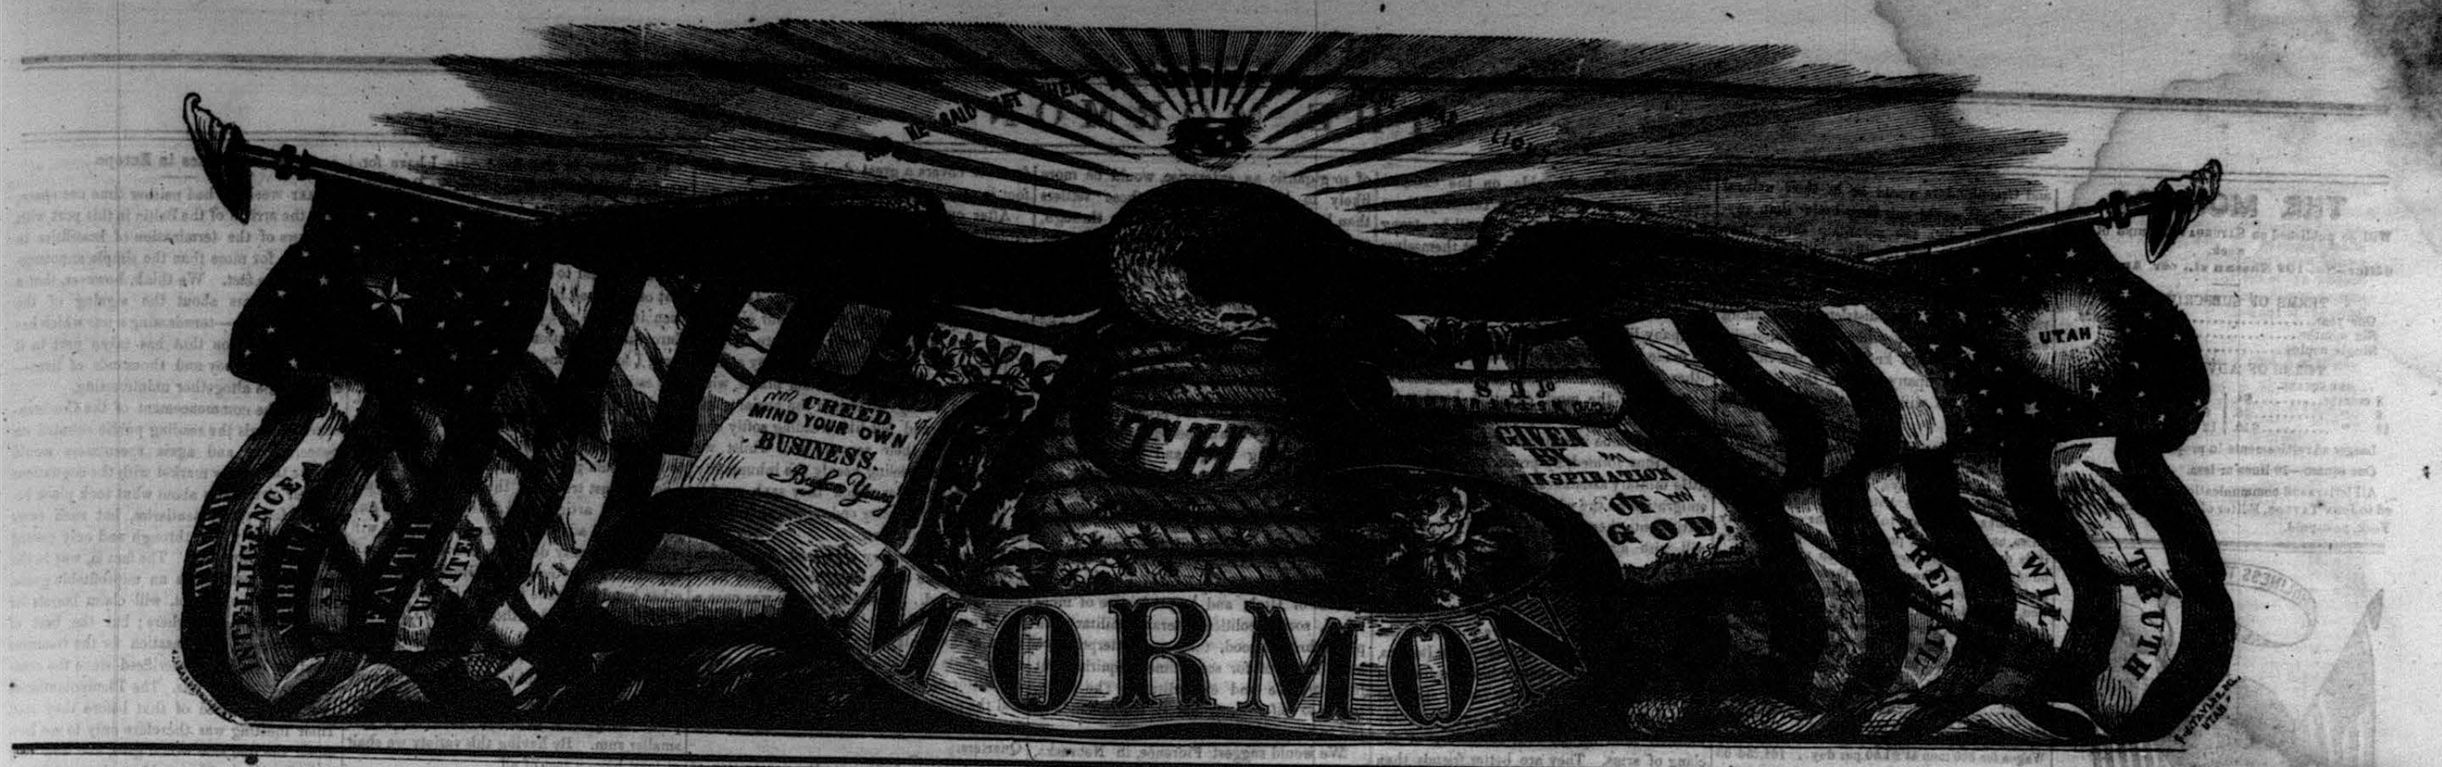
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1



N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.
HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)
WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains, the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!
Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.
N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.
We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.
We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.
We also keep constantly on hand the CELEBRATED SHARP'S PATENT RIFLE, which is the safest and most destructive weapon ever invented, for sale at the Manufacturer's prices, for cash.
Please call and examine for yourselves, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods.
Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 30

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. ja9–

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS. fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.—NO. 10. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 26, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

True Friendship.

BY JEAN L. BRUCE.

Oh! what happiness—what brightness,
In life's changeful scenes appear,
When we meet kind words and actions,
And we feel they are sincere;
When the smiles of friendship greet us,
And we know that they are true,
What greater charm hath this fair world
To offer me or you?

With the beaming sky above us,
And the lovely earth beneath,
With the music of the ocean,
And the flow'r-enamel'd heath;
With these beauteous scenes of Nature,
What more cheering would you ask
Than the glance that speaks affection,
From the heart without a mask?

For pure truth is such a jewel,
Oh! so precious and so rare,
That it seems a spark from heaven,
Seldom lent to mortal care;
When we meet it in earth's friendship,
Let us prize its holy might,
For it comes unto our spirits,
Like an angel wing'd with light.

Early Mental Activity.

"Experience," says Dr. Spurzman, "demonstrated that of any number of children of equal intellectual power, those who receive no particular care in childhood, and who do not learn to read and write until the constitution begins to be consolidated, but who enjoy the benefit of a good physical education, very soon surpass in their studies those who commence earlier, and read numerous books when very young. The mind ought never to be cultivated at the expense of the body; and then proceed simultaneously with it, without cultivating one faculty to the neglect of others; for health is base, and instruction the ornament of education."

Let parents then check, rather than excite in their children this early disposition to mental activity, or rather let them counterbalance it by a due proportion of physical and gymnastic exercises; for it is not so much the intensity as the continuity of the mental action, which is injurious to the constitution. Let them not cause the age of cheerfulness to be spent in the midst of tears and slavery; let them not change the sunny days of childhood into a melancholy gloom, which can, at best, only be a source of misery and bitter recollection in maturer years.

Physical exercises and the cultivation of the perceptive faculties should, with the reading of moral and instructive books, form the principal occupations of children. Their expanding frame requires the invigorating stimulus of fresh air; their awakening organs seek for external objects of sense; their dawning intellect incessantly calls for the action of their observant powers. This is the great law of Nature. It has given to the child that restless activity, that buoyancy of animal spirits, that praying inquisitiveness, which makes him delight in constant motion and the observation of new objects. If these intentions of Providence be not frustrated; if he be allowed to give himself up to the sportive feelings of his age, he will acquire a healthy constitution, and a physical and perceptive developement, which are the best preparations for mental labor.

Of the men who have conferred benefit on society, and have been the admiration of the world, the greater number are those who, from various causes, have in early life been kept from school or serious study. They have, by energetic and well-directed efforts, at a period when the brain was ready for the task, acquired knowledge and displayed abilities which have raised them into the highest eminence in the different walks in life, in literature, the arts and sciences, in the army, the Senate, the church, and even on the throne. The history of the most distinguished among those who have received an early classical education sufficiently proves that it is not to their scholastic instruction, but to self-education after the period of school, that they chiefly owed their superiority.

David, the sublime author of the Psalms, followed in his early occupations the dictates of nature; he had, in his youth, muscular power to tear the mouth of a lion, to resist the grasp of a bear, and to impart to a pebble velocity sufficient to slay a giant. Napoleon, when in the school of Brienne, was noted in the quarterly reports of that institution as enjoying good health; no mention was ever made of his possessing any mental superiority; but, in physical exercises, he was always foremost. Sir Isaac Newton, according to his own statement, was inattentive, and ranked very low in the school, which he had not entered until after the age of twelve. The mother of Sheridan long regarded him as one of the dullest of her children. Adam Clarke was called a "grievous dunce" by his first teacher; and young Liebig a "booby" by his employer. Shakspeare, Moliere, Gibbon, Byron, Humphrey Davy, Porson, and many others were in like manner undistinguished for early application to study, and, for the most part, indulged those wholesome bodily exercises and that freedom of mind, which contributed so much to their further excellence.—[Marcel.

In Debt and Out of Debt.

Of what a hideous progeny of ill is debt the father! What meanness, what invasions on self-respect, what cares, what double-dealing! How, in season, it will carve the frank, open face into wrinkles, how, like a knife, it will stab the honest heart! How it has been known to change a goodly face into a mask of brass; how with the "damned custom" of debt, has the man become the callous trickster! A freedom of debt and what nourishing sweetness may be found in cold water; what toothsomeness in dry crust; what ambrosial nourishment in a hard egg. Be sure of it, he who dines out of debt, though his meal be biscuit and an onion, dines in "the Apollo." And then for raiment—what warmth in a thread bare coat, if the tailors receipt be in your pocket; what Tyrian purple in the faded waistcoat, the vest not owed for. How glossy the well worn hat if it cover not the aching head of a debtor! Next the home sweets, the out-door recreations of the free man. The street door falls not a knell on his heart; the foot on the staircase, though he live on the third pair, sends no spasms through his anatomy; at the rap of his door he can crow forth, "come in," and his pulse still beat healthfully, his heart sink not in his bowels. See him abroad. How he returns look for look with any passenger, how he saunters; how meeting an acquaintance, he stands and gossips!

But then, this man knows not debt—debt, that casts a drug into the richest wine; that makes the food of the gods unwholesome, indigestible; that sprinkles the banquet of a Lucullus with ashes and drops soot into the soup of an Emperor; debt, that like the moth makes the valueless furs and velvets—inclosing the wearer in a festering prison, (the shirt of Nessus was a shirt not paid for); debt, that writes upon frescoed walls the hand writing of an attorney; that puts a voice of terror in the knocker; that makes the heart quake at the haunted fireside; debt, that invisible demon that walks abroad with man, now quickening his steps, now making him look on all sides like a hunted beast, and now bringing to his face the ashy hue of death as the unconscious passenger looks glancingly upon him. Poverty is a bitter draught, yet may—and sometimes with advantage—be gulphed down. Though the drinker make wry faces, there may after all be a wholesome bitterness in the cup. But debt, however courteously it be offered, is the cup of a syren, and the wine, spiced and delicious though it be, is poison. The man out of debt, though with a flaw in his jerkin, a crack in his shoe leather and a hole in his hat, is still the son of liberty, free as the singing lark above him, but the debtor, though clothed in the utmost bravery, what is he but a serf out upon a holiday—a slave—to be reclaimed at any instant by his owner, the creditor! My son, if poor, see the wine running spring, let thy mouth water at least a week's roll, think a threadbare cost the "only wear," and acknowledge a white washed garret the finest housing place for a gentleman. Do this and flee debt. So shall thy heart be at peace and the sheriff be confounded. [Doug. Jerrold.

Hung in Spite of Reprieve.—We see in the papers an account of the execution of the convict, by the Sheriff of Franklin county, in this State, after the receipt by him of a respite from Gov. Winston. He is said to have pronounced the document a forgery. If the order of the Governor was formal, then the hanging was murder; if it was not, the Sheriff is not responsible.—[Montgomery, Ala., Mail.

From Utah.

A Bold Enterprise—The Deseret Express and Road Company—Mormonism Speculative—The Bench Laying Aside the Ermine—Miscellaneous.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

Great Salt Lake City,
Thursday, Jan. 31, 1856.

LEGISLATIVE.

The Legislature adjourned on the 18th. Heber C. Kimball, at the Tabernacle, last Sunday, as a member, thus humorously summed up the doings of that body. "When we arrived at Fillmore, (he says,) we found no new laws were wanted, there being more old laws than the people could obey; we, therefore, went to work and unmade some. But we had to stay out our full time, in order to pocket our $3 a day; so we spent our time staking the earth out into herd grounds. There has been considerable talk about getting our legislatural sessions extended to sixty days; but if we had been compelled to stay that long we should have starved to death for want of something to do."

A BOLD ENTERPRISE.

Before adjourning, the Legislature chartered a company, under the name of the "Deseret Express and Road Company." The scheme of the Company is to establish from ten to twenty-mile stations along the road between here and California, and some point on the Missouri River—wagons and tents to serve as stations at first. At each station there will be placed three men and six horses, or mules, at the commencement. The route between here and the States to be much shorter than the old road; and from here to California by the lately discovered "short route,"-making a distance of about 1,700 miles in all. Over this route it is calculated to begin by carrying a weekly, and, when the business admits, a daily express, making the time between the States and San Francisco in ten days, or seven, when necessity requires. The price for letters, the expected source of profit, is not yet fixed, but will be about $1 each.

MASS MEETING.

On Saturday last a mass meeting of about five thousand persons convened at the Tabernacle, in this city, to take action upon the matter. Governor Young was appointed President; Gen. D. H. Wells, Dr. G. Hurt, H. C. Kimball, Judge J. F. Kinney, J. M. Grant, A. W. Babbit, Judge G. P. Stiles, Surveyor-General D. H. Burr, P. P. Pratt, W. Bell and W. Gerrish, Vice-Presidents; O. Pratt, W. H. Hooper and W. Woodruff, Secretaries; and G. D. Watt, Reporter.

The general ideas, deduceable from the remarks of the speakers, were, that the plan will prove not only of great benefit to Utah, but to the world; that it will be immensely profitable; that the great weight of franked matter will render the carrying of the mail by horses unprofitable, besides ruining the express business; that the Company can successfully compete with steamers in the mail contract, and transport the mail daily, by ox teams, from Independence to San Francisco in twenty days; that in a short time the Company will be able to place coaches on the route and monopolize most of the passenger business between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts; that in six years they will have a Pacific Railroad in operation.

Two resolutions, stating the urgent necessity of such a line, were adopted; after which Gov. Young made a few remarks, wherein he stated that the plan was not a novelty, but that five years ago Col. Estel of Missouri came on here, and wanted him to engage in and countenance such an enterprise; he, however, was not prepared then, as he did not think the time suitable.

The meeting finally adjourned to meet on Saturday next, when a matured plan will be submitted to the approval of the people. The scheme will not differ materially, however, from the one given above.

I look upon the success of the undertaking as a fixed certainty. As one of the speakers at the meeting remarked, "Capital cannot make the plan succeed; it is men that are wanted; every man is worth more than his weight in gold; and Utah is a rich bank of of men." It is certain that in no other community exists so much of the right materials for executing the grand design. There are here, hundreds of brave, hardy spirits, that, through choice, rather than necessity, have spent the last eight years of their lives on the prairies and among the mountains, and know almost every locality between California and the States. They understand the Indian character, and know how to retain the red man's friendship; or, when that fails, to defend themselves against his attacks.

I will here state for the information of the Bulls and Bears of Wall-street, that, as far as I can learn, the Company will be an exclusive affair of the Capitalists of Utah, and that no stock will be issued.

The oxen-mail train is not a joke. The cattle with medium loads will make their short trips at the rate of three-and-a-half miles an hour, which is eighty-four miles a day, of twenty-four hours.

The prime mover and practical spirit of this bold enterprise is a rough mountaineer, whom Col. Steptoe designated as smart as the smartest uneducated man he has ever met—Orrin Porter Rockwell, famous as having been tried, many years ago, on suspicion of shooting Gov. Boggs, of Missouri.

Arrangements are being made by the Company to carry their plan into immediate execution. The first Express will leave here about the beginning of April, if the snow on the mountains will permit an early departure of men and provisions. Shortly after perusing this letter the people of the Atlantic States will be within two weeks' communication with the Pacific coast.

APPROPRIATIONS WANTED.

The Legislature chartered the "Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing Company," reapportioned the Territorial Representation, and so arranged the Judicial Districts as to make it possible for the three United States' Judges to hold their Courts without proceeding to any great distance from this city; and also memorialized Congress for an appropriation of $50,000 for the State-House; for an appropriation of $200,000 for a road from Bridger's Pass in the Rocky Mountains to California; for the refunding of the expense of determining boundary points; for the right of way for a telegraph from the Missouri River to California, and for grant of lands and a daily mail between the same points.

PLEASURES OF THE COURT.

There seems to have been plenty of excitement and fun at Fillmore during the Legislatural session. At the party in the State-House, a lawyer was acting the genteel with considerable affectation to the ladies, while a large placard labeled "Jackass" decorated his back, much to the amusement of many present, to whom he had rendered himself odious by a speech in Court the day before. There being but one case before the Supreme Court, the Judges and lawyers were compelled to resort to the "spirits," for the future existence of litigation, to keep up their reputation at the bar. The three Judges, therefore, managed to get drunk quite often. From sprecing, the officials proceeded to quarreling, and were all mixed up in a sort of quadrangular duel. Secretary Babbit was placed in irons by Judge Drummond on some trifling charge. The next thing was what Mayor Grant terms "a quarrel between Shem, Ham and Japhet." Judge Drummond and his negro slave were placed in irons for several days, on the charge of attemping to murder a Jew named Abrams, whom they detected concocting a new and peculiar game of cards, wherein they considered they were being insulted. Babbit has since sued Drummond for false imprisonment. The other two Judges managed to act admirably their parts as auxiliaries.

THE PLAINS.

Last Christmas, a young man named John King, of Columbia, Boone Co. Miss., with another, had been left in charge of some cattle belonging to T. S. Williams & Co., at the Weber River, forty miles east of this, city, attempted to cross the mountains, with a pony, to this city. Not returning in twelve days, his comrade followed his tracks, and found his body five miles from camp, where he had been frozen to death, while retracing his way ponyless back to camp. The survivor, taking two mules, four oxen and a Winter's supply of provisions, set out for this city by a different route, and arrived four days afterwards, with the loss of the mules and two oxen.

The merchant trains yearly bring to this place, as teamsters, numbers of men bound for California. Many of these manage to get a good outfit by stealing the cattle and goods of the citizens. Four such characters were last Tuesday sentenced to fourteen months' hard labor in the Penitentiary for burglariously entering the store of Blair, Greer & Co., a few days before.

There are three eastern mails now due; two of these might have safely come in if the contractors had chosen to slightly exert themselves. This month's mail for the East returned after striving four days to get through the snow on the mountains, and only making twenty miles headway. There will be no mail for the East next month; our only resort is via California. It is likely, however, that the new Express Company will silence all complaints in future. Kadz-ne-ate.

Correspondence of the Council Bluffs Bugle.

Fort Pierre, N. T., March 9, 1856.

The council, on which the hopes and fears of the Sioux Nation have been concentrated for some time, opened on the 1st, and closed on the 5th, inst. Two bands only were not represented, namely: The Ogillallahs, who are not to blame, but will come when they are told they are wanted, and Big Head's band of the Yanctonis, who were not expected. The Brules arrived the day before the council met, and the Yanctons while it was in session. The first day was devoted to General Harney's address to the Indians, and the conditions which he required should be observed if they wished for peace. He commenced by saying that he was glad his summons had been so promptly obeyed, and that so many delegates attended. They have lately shown a disposition to do right by delivering up to the proper authorities the bad men who have killed the whites. There is only one more now at large, and that is the Indian who killed Gibson—he must be brought in, also they must bring the man who killed the Mormon's cow (the fellow who caused all the subsequent disasters) and deliver him at this post. The horses, mules, and other property which they have stolen from white men, must be given to the commanding officers of the nearest military post in order that they may be returned to their rightful owners. Hereafter the Sioux must not go near the settlements of the whites, nor the principal emigrant roads, (especially the Oregon and California routes.) They must keep peace with the Pawnees, Cheyennes, and Arapahoes, because those Indians live in that section of country so much traveled by the whites, and their continual wars and thieving were injurious to each other as well as to the Mormon emigrants from the States. He would like very much if they made peace with all surrounding tribes, but insisted that they should with the three above named. They must not trade any more for ponies or mules because it encourages thieving among the young men. They must not allow white men to live with them or in their country, unless they have license from the United States. If an Indian kill a white man or injure his property, the chief of the band to which he belongs, must take him to the nearest military post and deliver him to the commanding officer. Heretofore he understands it has been a custom for the Indians to make a present of buffalo robes to the traders when one of their people killed a white man. This will never be allowed; all the robes in the world could not buy one drop of white man's blood—and he will have blood for blood. He will hold the chiefs responsible for their bands, and he will see that the bands obey their chiefs. The chiefs must be obeyed. Traders will not be allowed to trade only in the vicinity of military forts. He will see that the Indians are not charged the exorbitant prices for what they require, as has been the habit of traders, but must receive the goods at fair and reasonable prices. He will protect the Indians from bad white men, as well as white men from bad Indians.

The buffalos are getting fewer every season and soon it will be difficult to get any, therefore advise the Indians to cultivate the soil and raise corn, potatoes, beans, &c. For such as settle in the neighborhood of the forts, he will have the land plowed, and give them all the assistance in his power. Every nation, white, red, and black, has among its people bad men as well as good, the bad must be punished, and in order not to injure the innocent, the chiefs of the Oncpapa, and Blackfeet bands, must drive from their people the bad men who so grossly insulted their Father (the Indian agent,) and through him their Great Father in Washington. These out-casts can go where they please, but he hopes they will go and join Big Head's band, as for this last named band, they must not live on the face of the earth. He will teach them what it is to insult and threaten a lone white man (Col. Vaughan,) and to treat with disrespect the presents which their Great Father sent them. He then concluded by saying, they could think on what he had said, and to-morrow he would listen to anything they had to say—they could speak freely and fear nothing, they were as safe there, and as free to speak as if they were on the top of the Rocky Mountains, with no soldiers near, if any one chose to speak now he could do so and would be listened to. The Oncpapa chief, Bear's Rib, said it is very cold now, they would ponder on what the white chief had said and would speak to-morrow.

The next day being cold the council was held in one of the large empty barrack rooms. The principal chief of each band sat in the front row, behind these were placed in squads the braves. In the center of the front row sat Little Thunder, chief of the Brules, who was the first to speak. He said he was well pleased at the talk of yesterday, and wished that the two men called for were in his band, that he may give them up. His tribe was in grief for its recent loss in killed and prisoners, and he desired nothing better than to be at peace with the whites. His people were anxiously watching his return—they wanted to live and not be destroyed—and should he return with that assurance and with the prisoners taken at the Blue Water, joy and sunshine would enter the hearts that are now so gloomy. Gen. Harney said he was pleased with Little Thunder, he had heard very good accounts of him, and said the Brule chief would not be disappointed.

The next speaker was One Horn, chief of Minicon band, who said: "My Brother (Little Thunder) is in grief for his people who are captives, and would give up the men called for if he had them; I have them and will give them up and make my Brother's heart glad. I will bring those two men and all the animals stolen into the fort, and give them to the chief of the soldiers. I wish for peace and the life—I have spoken." The General said: "One Horn has spoken well. I am well pleased with him." The next was Crow Feather, chief of the Sans Arc, who said he wanted peace and wished for his people to live. Then followed Fare Heart, chief of the Blackfeet, who spoke to the same effect.

Bear's Rib, one of the greatest warriors and orators in the Sioux Nation, and chief of the Oncpapas, said he had been ever friendly to the white man. When a white man spoke he never shut his ears. No Indian ever insulted or injured a white man in his presence without meeting a heavy penalty at his hands. "Go around your fort," said he, "and you will see Indians' bones bleaching on the grass—I killed the men to whom those bones belonged—they wanted to injure the white man or his property." [It is well known here that this chief has killed several of his men for injuring the property of the whites, sometimes even for a small offence.] He merely mentioned this to prove that he respected the whites. He did not like to turn some of his men from his band—he would try and make them better men. It is true they were insolent to the agent, and fired at his calico, but he hoped the chief of the soldiers would not insist on his driving them away from his band. The General said he would think on the subject and let him know the next day.

3d day.—Gen. Harney said he thought and dreamed all night on what the Bear's Rib had spoken, and on the recommendation of Col. Vaughan, and the good and gallant conduct of the Oncpapa chief, he would not require the two bands already mentioned, to be broken up, and would insist only five Blackfeet and five Oncpapas, the worst of each band, to be delivered to him. The chiefs thanked the General and the agent and said they would deliver the number called for.

Two Bears, chief of the Yanctons, and who commands 300 lodges or about 1000 warriors, spoke next. He wished for peace and would do whatever Gen. Harney desired. He said a portion of his people (Big Head's band) had done wrong and he wished to take them some message from the chief of the soldiers, to which the General replied: "Don't mention Big Head's name—he has chosen his own trail, let him keep it, I will take the message to him myself."

The next was Black Fish, chief of another band of the Yanctons, known as "they who wish the life of the Yanctons." He wished the same as the rest—peace.

He was succeeded by Big Mandan, chief of the Two Kettle band, an eloquent and brave man and one who has done such deeds for the whites as the Bear's Rib. The last of the chiefs that spoke was the "Man that struck the Ree," chief of the Lower Yanctons. This band has always been quite friendly, and desired to remain so.

We are to have peace with all of them except Big Head's band, numbering about 60 lodges and probably about 130 warriors. The disaffected from the other bands will probably join him and swell the number a few more.

The General has appointed one chief and nine sub-chiefs to each band, and these are to raise a company of from 60 to 100 men, to keep order in each band and support the principal chiefs of the Nation in their authority.

The delegates have left, apparently well satisfied, and determined to do as they were ordered by Gen. Harney. I hope they will carry out their good intentions.

I am respectfully yours, Amigo.

The Discoverer of Gutta Percha.

The President of the India Board, Mr. Vernon Smith, has placed on his list of military nominations for November next the son of the discoverer of this inspissated sap of an Indian tree, without the help of which we should not be able as we now are to know in five minutes' time what transpires in Crim Tartary, 3000 miles off. The discoverer was Dr. William Montgomerie, of the Indian medical service, and this only in the year 1845, although many of the countries producing the article, have been in European occupation for above 300 years. The mode in which the discovery was made is worth mentioning. Dr. Montgomerie, observing certain Malay knife and kris handles, inquired the nature of the material from which they were made, and from the crude native manufacture inferred at once the extensive uses to which the gutta percha might be put in the arts of Europe. He purchased a quantity of the raw material, sending from Singapore part of it to Bengal and part to Europe, and suggesting some of the uses to which he fancied it might be applied. The quantity sent to England, secured to him at once, as the discoverer, the gold medal of the Society of Arts, his sole reward, until the President of the India Board, on no other ground whatever than his discovery, liberally bestowed his patronage on his son.

Art of Printing.

Mayntz, in Germany, is entitled to the honor of being the birth-place of printing. Strausburg and one or two other cities have lead earnest claims to the preference, but historians now generally concede it to Mentz. Guttenburg invented and first used separate letters or moveable types in 1442. As early as 1423, he had printed with lines cut on wood, but this was a small mechanical advance on what had been done for many years. Xylographic printing, or the taking of impressions from wooden tables on which letters or figures were engraved, had previously been practiced in Germany, and was an eastern invention. Guttenburg at first took impressions from his types by fastening them on a table, coloring them with writing ink, spreading the paper over them and pressing it with a rubber of horn. Faust invented printing ink, and Guttenburg constructed a rude printing press. Iron presses were earliest employed by Lord Stanhope of England.

Post Offices.—The General Post Office in London costs £355,800; in Dublin, £37,900; in Edinburgh, £25,427, and then descending still lower in the scale, Liverpool costs £20,900; Manchester, £16,800; Glasgow, £13,800; Birmingham, £10,200. London employs 1,379 sorters, letter carriers and messengers, at an average pay of £69; Dublin, 178, at an average pay of £67; Edinburgh has 141, at an average pay of £60. The clothing for the London letter carriers cost last year £3,800, and is to cost in the current year £5,000.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
12 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

All letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 26, 1856.

New Express or Mail Company.

We learn from the Deseret News that during the last week of the session of the Legislative Assembly, "an act to incorporate the Deseret Express and Road Company" was passed. As this act has not reached us, we cannot give the details; but we learn from the News of January 30th that:

"According to previous adjournment at Fillmore, a large and enthusiastic assembly convened at the Tabernacle in this city at 1 P. M. of the 26th, for the purpose of taking into consideration the propriety of establishing a daily express and passenger communication between the Western States and California, or, more extendedly, between Europe and China.

"The meeting organized by choosing Governor Young President; Chief Justice J. F. Kinney, Presidents H. C. Kimball and J. M. Grant, Hon. A. W. Babbitt, Associate Justice G. P. Stiles, Surveyor General D. H. Burr, Lieut. Gen. D. H. Wells Dr. G. Hurt, Indian Agent, Messrs. W. Bell and W. Gerrish, Merchants, and Hon. P. P. Pratt, Vice Presidents; Hon. W. Woodruff, O. Pratt, Sen., and W. H. Hooper, Merchant, Secretaries; and G. D. Watt, Reporter.

"His Excellency the Governor stated the object of the meeting, and made a few remarks, after which the Hon. A. W. Babbitt delivered an address, and was followed by Judge Stiles, Dr. Hurt, T. S. Williams, Esq., Col. J. C. Little, Hon. E. Reese, and Messrs. O. P. Rockwell, S. M. Blair, and W. H. Hooper.

"Mr. Thomas Bullock read four resolutions, upon which the Governor offered some suggestions, whereupon a committee was appointed to draft resolutions to be presented at the next meeting.

"Adjourned to meet in the same place on Saturday, Feb. 2, at 1 P. M."

We cannot give the whole of the details, as the adjourned meeting at which the resolutions were to be presented had not transpired at the time when the mail left. We learn, however, from various sources, that spirited meetings have been held in different parts of the Territory, in relation to this matter; and that it is enthusiastically responded to throughout the Territory. From what we can gather the plan seems to be to send out immediately a number of men and cattle to different stations, varying from ten to twenty miles distance, according to circumstances. That at those stations tents are to be erected until houses shall be built, and forts or other defences made. That at first cattle shall be employed (probably because they have a sufficient quantity on hand) which it is anticipated by travelling day and night, will be enabled to perform the journey in from twenty to twenty-four days, that as soon as practicable relays of mules shall take the place of cattle, and that a tri-weekly or daily express shall be established as circumstances shall dictate, with comfortable carriages for the conveyance of both passengers and mail: the journey, it is then anticipated, will be performed in from nine to twelve days. This would certainly make a very great change in the conveyance of the mail from the present operations which takes across the Isthmus by steamers twenty-three days, and by land two months at the shortest; but frequently three months to Salt Lake city.

We could not calculate upon many passengers being conveyed on this route, in the winter; but we might, with such arrangements as could be made in Utah, take the tri-weekly or daily mail of letters, from 250 lbs. to 300 lbs. at any season; no matter how deep the snow. Having the stations already proposed, in the winter season the highest passes, and the most difficult grounds, where it is impracticable for mules, men might be substituted. We have Norwegians, Icelanders, Greenlanders, and Danes in great numbers, some of whom have been accustomed to nine months' winter in the year, and who would be perfectly at home on the tops of the mountains. From four to eight such men, mounted on snow-shoes or skates, would esteem it a frolic to convey over the snow, no matter how deep, from thirty to fifty pounds each, and out-travel any mules, on any ground. Elder Peterson, from Norway, informed us lately, that he had traveled thousands of miles in this manner. The snow-shoes are about four inches wide, and twelve feet long, and he assured us that they could travel with incredible swiftness on them, on any kind of snow, and carry a considerable load. He informed us that sometimes, however, they used sleds. With such appliances in the winter, a mail could be carried with certainty, and could make its time at all seasons, allowing two or three days for severe snow-storms. This to us would seem difficult, but the Norwegians and Greenlanders would be in their natural element; it would suit them better than anything else; like the mountain sheep, they would like no better fun than rollicking, with their snow-shoes, on the lofty peaks of these snowy mountains; whilst the game that generally abounds in these districts would afford excellent recreation when not otherwise engaged. We don't know what the calculations of the Company are, but the following rough estimate will show the feasibility of the plan:—

Tri-weekly mail between Missouri River and San Bernardino, Cal., calculated to perform the journey in twelve days, or at the rate of six miles an hour. The distance through is about 1700 miles. There are to be stations every twenty miles, and on certain portions of the route, where it is deemed necessary, every ten miles, say one hundred in all. There may be three men and three mules, with one set of double harness, at each station, amounting in all to three hundred men, three hundred mules, thirty wagons, and one hundred sets of double harness. The necessary expenditures will be about as follows:

300 mules at $150 each	$45,000 00
30 wagons at $150 each	4,500 00
100 sets of double harness at $20 each.	2,000 00
Grain for mules, 1 peck per day, at 50 cents per peck, for the year	54,750 00
Wages for 300 men at $1.50 per day	164,250 00
	$270,500 00
Contingent expenses	$40,000 00
Total	$310,500 00

Of course this estimate is very rough, and might be materially lessened or increased as circumstances should dictate; furthermore, we have the men, and probably the whole teams, so that it is not really a matter of dollars and cents, but of policy.

There is no public move that we have seen of late with which we are better pleased than we are with this; nor is there one that was more needed, whether we refer to the interests of Utah, California, Oregon, or citizens of the eastern and southern States, who may have business transactions or other relationships with them; it affects alike private and public interests. Those stations, forts and settlements would be conducive of safety and protection to the emigration on its way to Utah, California and Oregon; whilst it would be to the interest of the United States Government, in saving immense outlays in troops, armaments, provisions, &c., as well as for furnishing their forts with provisions at a cheaper rate.

Utah has been shamefully neglected in regard to the conveyance of the mail. We have of late had to wait six months to get an answer to a letter. We have got answers from Gibraltar, Australia, Norway, Sandwich Islands and the East Indies, quicker than from Utah. Mercantile and literary interests have suffered very materially; large firms, having from fifty to two hundred thousand dollars invested, have been entirely cut off from communication, not to say anything about general news, literary correspondence and social intercourse, with the thousand amenities of civilized life.

A person may have heard of the sickness of a friend—parents may mourn over the last news of the sickness of their children, perhaps regard them as dead, or endure at least the uncertainty of suspense, when, in fact, they may for months have been in the enjoyment of good health; and, vice versa, they may have anticipated seeing them in the enjoyment of health, when for months they have been sleeping among the silent dead, and all this in the nineteenth century, and on the American continent too, among the most enlightened, intelligent, and we had nearly said enterprising people of the world, and on a great highway between one portion of the United States and another. Is it to be wondered at, then, that in the midst of this universal lethargy both to national and individual interests, that Utah, after trying in vain to arouse the national spirit in Congress, and with the postal department, should take the initiatory step, and in a bold, fearless and energetic move, creditable alike to their enterprise, independence, philanthropy and patriotism, say to the old grannies who have had the management of these matters: "Gentlemen, clear the track, get out of the way, for, if you can't, we CAN!" We have forborne, till forbearance is no longer a virtue; we have been virtually ostracised from the nation, and suffered, and endured, and plead for redress long enough in vain; our best, most sacred and vital interests have been too long at the mercy of stool pigeons, jobbers, gabblers, demagogues and Miss Nancies; we'll now ourselves enter the arena, gird on the harness, do our own business, and "put her through by daylight."

We have several times suggested the propriety of our people carrying the mail; we could not think that they would be dormant in this matter; this late act shows that they are not.

The plan proposed by our Utah friends is perfectly feasible, and no persons are more competent, nor so well prepared to carry it out, as themselves; inured to trials, accustomed to mountain life, a thorough knowledge of the Indian character, and having also interpreters who are personally acquainted with most of the Indian tribes on the route, they would have less difficulty in passing through their midst, and in conciliating them than any other persons. Add to this their location—half way on the route to be traversed—in the centre of the great American desert, with settlements extending two or three hundred miles on the route, each way, to say nothing of their hardihood and knowledge of mountain life, gives them resources and facilities that no other persons possess. We have now settlements at Bridger and Green River, one hundred and sixty miles on this side of the Valley. Passing through Tooele county, there are other settlements formed at various distances on the new cut-off leading to Carson Valley; at Carson Valley, on the outside border of Utah, and adjoining California, a distance of about four hundred and fifty miles, there is a heavy settlement, a county organized, and a member (Enoch Reese) sent to the Legislature. On this side, on the extreme western portion of Nebraska Territory, there is a settlement organized which will be strong enough to build a fort and protect themselves against Indian aggression, even in the present war. A few more settlements of this kind, in the interior, will be an effectual guard to a company like this, and such settlements can be made by a few appropriations of land and other facilities from Government, and will form one of the most effectual barriers for safety against Indian depredations of any system that can be introduced. A line of settlements thus formed, by proper persons, with a little military assistance, will effectually secure emigration on the whole route, and in fact the settlements themselves, if properly organized, will, with a few presents, judiciously appropriated, produce a softening, harmonizing influence among the Indians, not to be obtained through all the power of martial display, the pomp and prestege of military parade, or the pride and circumstance of war. The Indians, although savage by nature, have feelings of honor and philanthrophy that can be appealed to, and sympathies that can be more sensibly touched than by the roar of cannon or the clang of arms. They are better friends than enemies, and in a pecuniary point of view, if nothing more, it is cheaper to purchase their friendship than to fight them as enemies. Florida has told her tale in this, as well as Texas, Oregon, New Mexico, and California. The Indians have been relentless, bloody, and cruel in many of their acts; but we must remember they are savages, and it is the whites, their enemies, who are their accusers, and who relate their barbarities without telling their own. In nine cases out of ten that has come under our notice, the Indians have received evil for good; they have been more sinned against than sinning; the California emigration have frequently shot them wantonly, and for amusement; this has produced revenge, which the Indians call retribution, but which the whites denominate murder. The murderers of the lamented Captain Gunnison and party were instigated to this act by the wanton and brutal murder of one of their own party. Revenge (a cardinal virtue among Indians, and too much practised by the Christians,) burned in the bosoms of the injured friends of the deceased, and burst with tremendous fury upon the heads of that devoted and much respected gentleman, and his unsuspecting company. But we aver that it was wanton cruelty, unprovoked barbarity, and cold-blooded murder of the Indians that produced this, and his blood, and the blood of his party, rest with fearful weight upon the heads of those who so wantonly provoked it. We have ourselves heard trappers, some of whom we consider monsters in the shape of men, talking familiarly of shooting Indians as they would of wolves or bears; and our blood has ran chill, to hear them speak of Indian skins, making "better razor strops than buckskins." We do not condemn them, as a class, by any means, for there are many highminded, honorable men among them; whilst there are others, as bloody cut-throats as ever disgraced the footstool of God. Not only is this the case, but there are numerous bands of land pirates on the frontiers of California, and other places, who, frequently disguised as Indians, commit horrid barbarities, and robberies in their name, and for which the Indian has to suffer. A friend of ours in Utah, informed us that a company leaving the mines, on the way to Utah, several years ago, were followed by a large band of those characters, for between one and two weeks;—that at last armed cap-a-pie—they planted themselves in their front in a threatening attitude, and demanded their surrender. The captain of the Mormons, however, ordered the men of Utah to advance, who were also well armed, when the robbers disappeared, and they saw them no more. A desperate gang of this kind were broken up near Fort Bridger, and their leader killed, by a company of men sent out from Utah, to arrest them. These men had for some time levied contributions upon the horses, cattle, property, and perhaps the lives of emigrants, as they journeyed on the route to California. We may be mistaken; but we cannot resist the conviction that it was a company of disguised whites, who killed the mail carrier, robbed the mail, and by whom Mr. Kinkade was so severely wounded, as well as robbed, about twelve months ago. Some such arrangement as the one we have mentioned, would, if it did not stop these depredations, be a great guard and protection; for these stations with the mail carriers traversing the route once a day, would, by putting them in possession of the whereabouts of interlopers, and a knowledge of the commission of any overt act be the means, if not of stopping, at least of checking these depredations. And if in our Eastern cities, right under the nose of a vigilant police, we have hundreds of both land and river pirates, who separately or united, commit immense depredations, is it to be wondered at that among the immense numbers who have traversed those dreary and extended plains, that hordes of dissolute unprincipled, and desperate men should be found who are ready to enter into any enterprise, no matter how villianous. We candidly avow, in our journeyings across the plains, we are more fearful of such combinations, than we are of the Indians.

A plan similar to the above would also be a great protection to a line of telegraph, and we would suggest, that the same company either put up the wires or contract for their protection; this company, however, would be the most legitimate to hold it in their own hands, and we would respectfully recommend them to petition Congress for a grant for this purpose.

And furthermore, it will be, as expressed, one of the greatest preparations for a railroad, of anything that could be introduced, by raising grain on the route, greater facilities would be afforded workmen, a knowledge of the whereabouts of coal, wood, and other privileges necessary for the successful carrying out of so gigantic an enterprise, would be more likely to be discovered by those settlers than by an engineer simply passing through, so that view it which way we please, whether as facilitating the mail, and thus advancing the interests of the mercantile community and promoting the literary, political and social intercourse with Utah, California and Oregon; as a quick and much needed mode of transit between the far West and the East; as a military policy, or bulwark, instituting an internal police for the protection of emigrants against white desperados and Indians; as the entering wedge and precursor of a great national railroad, uniting the east and the west; as a feasible and natural protection to a line of telegraph; as an act of philanthropy to the Indians; or as a mark of goaheadative American enterprise. It will be creditable alike to the United States, to the citizens of Utah, and be productive of more moral, social, political, literary, military and philanthropic good, than any enterprise we have heard of for some time, requiring but little trouble and expenditure. The thing, too, is so self-evident, that it recommends itself to all parties.

We would suggest Florence, in Nebraska, as the nearest and most eligible point to strike the Missouri River, and at which place there is a good steam ferry; and as the Elk Horn and Loup Fork River have ferries, there would be no trouble in crossing. From this place to Iowa City is about 250 miles, which, at seven miles per hour, would take just thirty hours; it could then take the railroad and be conveyed to all parts of the Union; and as the Iowa Railroad is still progressing towards the Missouri River, it will not take long before the iron horse is rollicking on the banks of the majestic river, and drinking of its turbid waters. Another consideration would be: we are about forming a settlement, about 100 or 150 miles west of the Missouri River, north of the Platte, which would serve as an outpost and protection to smaller settlements that might be made between there and the river.

We would recommend that the government of the United States stipulate with all the Indians on the route for a certain portion of ground, including the right of way, as well as sufficient space for settlements; then let settlements be made on the route in various locations, giving certain grants to settlers in those places—and that in the meantime a provisional act be passed by Congress, authorizing pre-emption rights and certain privileges to settlers on the route, something similar to that granted to Mr. McGraw (and which he is now so anxious to get rid of,) only a little more definite and extended, with such appropriations as may be needed; allowing them the privilege of charging $1, 50 cents, or 25 cents, as the case may be, for all half-ounce letters coming by this express. There can be no hardship in this; and if by sea we have to pay 25 cents for three thousand miles to England, and then give hundreds of thousands to sustain that company, surely, through a desert, in the midst of savages, and over the Rocky Mountains, with mules or packed by men, over the snow-clad mountains, it would not be asking too much to have the same or double, and we shall soon have a great efficient postal highway connecting the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans.

Outfitting Place for the Emigration.

Florence, Kansas Territory.

THIS beautiful site begins to show signs of vitality and life. The materials for building are fast accumulating, and they have fair indications of a good and healthy growth the coming season. A fine commodious steam ferry-boat has now taken her place at the landing, ready to transport across the turbid stream all who may wish to look into Nebraska.

"A heavy emigration is expected this way for Utah this season, and we learn that arrangements have been made for their crossing at Florence.

A good saw-mill, propelled by water, is now in operation, with an abundance of timber in the neighborhood to make fine hard and soft wood lumber. They have plenty of lime rock there, and a most enchanting and fertile country for agriculture in the rear. Harrs for Florence, say we.

The above we clip from the Bluff City Bugle, edited by J. E. Johnson, Esq., one of the first pioneers in that county; we are glad to find that prospects are so flattering in relation to that place. FLORENCE is the old Winter Quarters of Mormon history, and is well known to most of the Saints as a place of refuge during a winter's sojourn at the time of the exodus of the Church from Nauvoo, Ill., and while en route for the far-off west. At that time, it was selected as the most eligible position for a temporary settlement on the western banks of the great Missouri. Streets were then laid out, crossing each other at right angles, and a city arose almost as rapidly as Alladin's palace. We left there for Europe, in the fall of 1846, and returned in the succeeding spring. When we left, it was a wilderness; when we returned, a densely populated city, with all the appearance at least for temporary comfort; including houses, outhouses, stables, sheds, yards and carrols for cattle. We left our family in wagons and tents; found them, on returning, in a very comfortable house, appended to which were yards, stables, sheds, &c. In passing through the streets, we heard the busy hum of industry everywhere. Blacksmiths', shoemakers', carpenters' and wagonmakers' shops abounded; several large stores were opened; steamers were landing at the wharves, or, more properly, river banks, with passengers and goods; and everywhere the marks of civilization and industry prevailed. It is true, the houses were principally built of logs, but then they were in general comfortable, and showed the indomitable perseverance and untiring energy of their occupants. The use of so much timber, and the footprints of so large a people, gave the Indians (Omahas) a little uneasiness; they had invited us there, but did not comprehend at the time our numbers or force. In a talk with some of their chiefs, wherein we were desirous of conciliating and giving them a reasonable return for advantages received, we well remember the remarks of one of their chiefs; he said: "The Mormons have got a large foot, a very large foot—it covers a great deal of ground; the foot is very large. Ugh!"

After our departure for Salt Lake Valley, probably for the purpose of preventing any other large footed persons from coming there, they burned up the place, leaving it a mass of ruins: and the last time we were there we sought almost in vain to find out our old residence; we discovered nothing where the old city stood but ruined houses, chimney stacks, ovens, wells, &c. Among other places, with reverential feelings we visited the burial place of our dead, and felt like treading softly o'er the place of their repose; and whilst we could not help feeling keenly the inhumanity of the stroke under which they sank, we felt to pray that our latter end might, at least, be as honorable as theirs.

Nebraska Territory organized, a purchase has been made of the Omahas, and they have been removed. Since then, what was once a wilderness, and inhabited by the red man—once a flourishing city, and then a city destroyed—is now the very place about which the editor of the Bugle speaks so flatteringly; and the present Florence is the Phœnix rising from the flames of the destroyed Winter Quarters.

We certainly appreciate the penetration of the gentlemen who have selected this point for a city, than which none other in that district of country offers better facilities. Laying on a beautiful plateau, slightly undulating, sufficiently elevated to be at all times secure against freshets, surrounded by a rich country, with an abundance of timber, good water and good wharfage on the bank of the Missouri, it is destined e'er long to outvie any town in that district of country. It is too on the main highway to the west, and we think must be the route that the Great Pacific Railroad will take—at least if the projectors consider their interests. One remarkable feature is, that opposite Florence the river has a rocky bottom, and therefore is not subject to change its course as in other places; this rock, we believe, is limestone, and can be used both for lime and building purposes.

It is, however, in relation to our own emigration that we wish to speak, as it is going principally by the North river route; we have selected this now, as we did in our great emigration from Nauvoo, and for years after, as being the most eligible point on the Upper Missouri, for ferriage, camp-ground, and a temporary sojourn. We are happy to inform our friends that the gentlemanly proprietors of Florence have met us in friendly terms, and courteously tendered to us a hearty welcome in their midst, freedom of camp-ground, necessary timber, a reduction of ferriage, and all the necessary facilities for a temporary stay. And we wish to state to the emigrants and those engaged in directing the emigration, that our stores for the point of debarkation for the plains, will be shipped to Florence, and it is from there that the companies will be fitted out and start.

Emigration.

As the season for emigration advances, a few words from me may not be inopportune; and as I do not know the exact whereabouts of all parties appointed to take an active part in it, I take this public means of conveying a few words of counsel to all concerned.

I have been anticipating, according to the statements made, in the general epistle of the first Presidency, that some person or persons might be sent from the Valley to superintend the emigration in the West. In the absence of such persons, I have felt it a duty incumbent upon me to make all preliminary arrangements for the furtherance of the interests of the emigration; and for this purpose I made the appointments, already published in THE MORMON, a copy of which I have forwarded to President Young. I feel deeply solicitous for the welfare of the travelling Saints, and more especially am I anxious that everything shall be conducted properly, with due care and safety, and as far as may be practicable, for the comfort of those who may be going by hand-carts. It is a new project, and will require our greatest attention and vigilance. I have, according to instructions received from President Young, had the Northern route surveyed, and entered into preliminary arrangements for camp grounds at Iowa City. I am also now negotiating with parties at Florence, a new city on the western side of the Missouri river, the site of old "Winter Quarters," for ferry, storage, and other privileges on the Mississippi and other rivers; which, when consummated, I will make known.* Being directed to select a place for a settlement at, or, as near, Wood River as practicable, I have appointed Bishop Cunningham, a competent, good, and zealous man of God, to select a company to go there for this purpose. In this he will be assisted by Bro. William Kimball, so far as it does not interfere with other defined duties of the latter. I wish the settlement to be on the western boundary of the recent purchase in Nebraska, and such persons to go as can make land claims according to the provisions of the late act of Congress, which I will publish another week for their information. It will be necessary that they go prepared to fence in a large field, put in grain, make a fort, and be supplied with guns and ammunition sufficient to protect themselves against Indian depredations. As Bro. Cunningham, however, will have the Presidency of this affair, the brethren selected will, of course, be subject to his counsel. I would suggest that a sufficient number of competent men be appointed to make the station perfectly secure against depredations from without. As it regards the time of starting, the selection of the location, and other matters, I will communicate with President Cunningham. I hope, however, to be along, with other brethren, to assist in establishing the location. This settlement will be a great help another year, in assisting the emigration, as it will be about one hundred and twenty miles west of the Missouri river; but it can be of no avail this year.

*Since this article was written, we have completed the arrangement. See preceding article.

In relation to the hand-carts, I have forwarded to Bros. Webb and Spencer President Young's instructions to me respecting this business. I hope they will be carried out as far as practicable, suggesting that great attention be paid to their strength, and that the best of seasoned timber be used. Not having been informed as to the exact numbers of the European emigration who would want hand-carts, I found it impossible to make any correct estimate as to the number that would be required. I have had a hundred made in St. Louis previous to learning the wish of others on this subject. These were made according to a schedule given by a committee of Elders who had just traversed the plains. They are a very neat article, well finished, ironed, and painted, well adapted for the purpose, and will cost about twenty dollars. Some time ago I appointed Elder George D. Grant to have another hundred made in Iowa City in a more primitive style, and without iron. These will cost about ten dollars each. Elder Grant is sanguine that they will answer the purpose. Elder Chauncey Webb is superintending the manufacture of a number more, and anticipates being able to make them for a still smaller sum. By having this variety we shall at least have a test of all.

Elder F. D. Richards, President of the European Churches, has sent out our much esteemed Bro. Daniel Spencer as his travelling agent, to attend to the financial affairs of the P. E. Fund passengers. Knowing his abilities, and being desirous that everything should harmonize in relation to emigration, I have appointed him to superintend the whole of the emigration in the West. I had previously appointed those other brethren referred to; but knowing the necessity of concentration of action, and one head to dictate, I appointed him to give direction. The brethren, therefore, will receive him in that capacity, listen to his suggestions, and carry out his plans.

I would further recommend that a constant intercourse be kept up with Bro. Spencer by the different parties employed in this business, that he may be thoroughly posted in relation to all matters, so that no delay may be occasioned; but that as the passengers arrive at the place of outfit, they may immediately proceed on their journey. He will confer with me from time to time.

There is more loss, unpleasantness; and sickness occasioned by detention than perhaps by any other thing. I wish the passengers, on their arrival at the place of outfitting, to be prepared to start the next day, or, in a day or two, at furthest.

Elder N. H. Felt started to Boston on the 18th inst., for the purpose of assisting the passengers expected on the "Enoch Train," and making all necessary arrangements for the continuation of their journey. They come by New York, as I am enabled to make better arrangements for the West direct by this route than by that of Boston.

As I am informed by President Richards, from time to time, of the sailing of vessels, I shall immediately communicate with Bro. Spencer, so that he may be duly informed in relation to the general movements, and be enabled to make arrangements accordingly.

Praying that God may bless you, brethren, in all your laudable exertions for the welfare of Zion; that you may be blessed with union, energy, faith, and power, to bring to a successful and happy issue your present labors, and return to the bosoms of your families in peace,

I remain your Brother and fellow-laborer in the Gospel, JOHN TAYLOR.

Indian Affairs.

THE Indians in Oregon and Washington Territories continue to harrass and plunder the white population. At Rogue River, Cal., twenty-six whites have been killed and five wounded. Mrs. Geisell, daughter and infant who were captured in the attack on the 22d of Feb. have been redeemed. Mrs. G. and her infant were received in exchange for two squaws, who were prisoners in the hands of the whites. Her daughter was purchased at something of a cost. After the capture of Mrs. Geisell, her hands were tied behind her, and she was compelled to witness the murder of her husband and children, as well as the most savage mutilation of their bodies after death; she was conducted to witness like horrible scenes upon the persons of many of her friends and neighbors.

Miss Olive Oatman a young woman of 16 years of age, was lately bought from a Yama Indian for some beads and blankets.

With her father and the other members of his family she was en route for California in 1851. While encamped about one hundred and twenty-five miles from the mouth of the Gila river they were attacked by the Mohave Indians, and all but one boy and two girls massacred in cold blood. The boy, in the dark, succeeded in escaping, and was picked up on the following day by a company of emigrants, about forty miles from the scene of the murder.

To Col. Nauman, United States Army, the young lady is indebted for her liberty. The Sisters of Mercy, of San Francisco, have notified her friends that they will receive her into their care.

We are happy to learn of the termination of the Indian hostilities on the route of our emigration. We publish on our first page a lengthy extract from The Bluffs City Bugle on this subject.

SINGULAR DEATH OF THE LATE MINISTER OF PERU BY SWALLOWING HIS TEETH.—The Petersburg Intelligencer has received a letter from Lima, Peru, dated January 9th, 1856, giving the following account of the singular death of the late minister of Peru to this country:—"The late Minister Plenipotentiary of Peru to the United States, who returned to this country about six months ago, died lately in Lima in a singular manner. While asleep he swallowed three of his false teeth, with the gold band which confined them, and died shortly after. Efforts were made to extract the teeth, but without success."

The Peace in Europe.

LAST week we had neither time nor space, after the arrival of the Baltic in this port with the news of the termination of hostilities in the East, for more than the simple announcement of the fact. We think, however, that a few particulars about the signing of the Treaty of Peace—terminating a war which has cost every nation that has taken part in it millions of money and thousands of lives—may not be altogether uninteresting.

From the commencement of the Conferences at Paris the reading public counted on peace. Now and again speculators would agitate the money market with the cogitations of their own brains about what took place between the plenipotentiaries, but such ruses were generally seen through and only caused momentary doubting. The fact is, war in the nineteenth century is an unprofitable game. Each party, no doubt, will claim laurels for victories won somewhere; but the best of them are poor compensation for the treasures spent and the lives sacrificed since the commencement of the war. The Plenipotentiaries were all convinced of that before they met. Their meeting was therefore only to see how much the one side would give, and how very little the other side would receive and be for the present content. Though their discussions have been kept from the public, many circumstances have indicated that they did not wish to grieve each other; in fact, the crowned heads of our little world deal very easily with each other—hand and glove to-day—fight to-morrow—and dance together next day—just as policy, not principles, require. Peace is, therefore, present policy—and peace has been proclaimed. The following are some particulars relative to the important act of signing the treaty of peace:

"The draft of the general treaty of peace drawn up by the Comité de Rédaction having in the sitting of Saturday, the 29th of March, obtained the sanction of the Congress, the Plenipotentiaries of the contracting Powers met the next day, to proceed to the formal act of affixing their signatures to the document. M. Feuillet de Conches, chief of the protocol department in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, had caused seven copies of the treaty, written on parchment, to be prepared and placed on the table of the conferences, in such a manner that each copy was put before the Plenipotentiaries of the government by which it is to be ratified. After the text of the seven copies had been carefully compared, the Plenipotentiaries proceeded to affix their signatures to the end of the treaty. Count Walewski, as President of the Congress, signed first, and the other Plenipotentiaries in the alphabetical order of their respective countries. It was at this moment that the Emperor was informed by electric telegraph that the treaty of peace was signed, and His Majesty sent back word to the members of the Congress that he would be ready to receive them after they had concluded their task. But, although the mere act of affixing their signatures occupied the Plenipotentiaries but a very brief portion of time, yet the whole of the formality of signing lasted nearly two hours, as the Plenipotentiaries, in addition to their signature at the bottom of each protocol, had to affix their initials to the different paragraphs, the whole number of such minor signatures being, it is said, 38. The Plenipotentiaries of each contracting Power signed first the copy reserved for their government, and then the other Plenipotentiaries signed in alphabetical order. In this manner, each contracting Power figuring at the head of the signatures of the copy which it is to ratify all difficulties as to etiquette or precedency were set aside. To each signature was immediately attached the private seal of each Plenipotentiary. Immediately after the close of the sitting, all the Plenipotentiaries went together to the Tuileries, where they had the honor of being received by the Emperor. Cabinet couriers were sent off in the evening to London, Vienna, Berlin, St. Petersburgh, Turin and Constantinople, in order to submit the treaty to the ratification of their respective Courts."

At two o'clock 101 guns were fired from the Invalides, and from each of the eighteen forts which surround Paris. At three o'clock the following proclamation, in large type, was posted on the walls of the city:

CONGRESS OF PARIS, March 30, 1856.

Peace was signed to-day at 1 o'clock, at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The Plenipotentiaries of France, Austria, Great Britain, Prussia, Russia, Sardinia, and Turkey, have affixed their signatures to the Treaty which puts an end to the present war, and which, in regulating the Eastern question, fixes the repose of Europe on solid and durable bases.

PIETRI, Prefect of Police.

The treaty was signed with a quill prepared for the occasion. The Plenipotentiaries intended each to preserve the quill with which he signed his name and made his flourishes. But the Empress having expressed a desire to preserve the quill with which the treaty was signed, the Plenipotentiaries acceded to her request, and a pen was accordingly prepared for this purpose. An eagle's quill was selected, which was elegantly mounted in gold.

The inkstand was made expressly to the order of the Conference, and cost eleven thousand francs! It is a monumental affair, decorated in the style of the first Empire.

The treaty will not be made public until the exchange of the ratifications by the different sovereigns represented at the Congress.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times, in a letter dated Tuesday evening, the 1st inst., says:

A grand review of all the corps stationed in the first military division took place to-day in the Champ de Mars. This seemed to be regarded as in some measure the confirmation of the treaty of peace signed on Sunday, and from the magnificent spectacle which displayed itself before the eyes of the Russian Plenipotentiaries they might be convinced that whatever may be the motive for the discontinuance of the war, want of means to carry it on was not the one. The weather was most favorable, indeed, no more beautiful day could be selected, had selection been in the power of man, for such a sight. From an early hour in the morning various bodies of every arm of the service were put in motion, and at intervals of ten minutes or a quarter of an hour, the bursts of martial music announced the passing of the troops to the general rendezvous. Men, women and children were all abroad.

An immense crowd filled the terraces of the Tuileries. The side alleys of the gardens themselves—the grand central avenue being kept clear for the Emperor and his cortege—and the places, and the quays, and the Champs Elysees were filled with human beings. At a quarter to 1, a squadron of the Cent Gardes issued from the gate of the Tuileries, which opens to the Place de la Concorde. The Emperor followed at some distance. His Majesty, who wore his usual uniform of General of Division, had Count Orloff on his right hand, and Prince Napoleon on his left; and they were followed by a numerous and brilliant staff. The cortege proceeded along the Quai de Billy to the Pont de Jena, by which he entered the Champ de Mars. His appearance was the signal for all the bands to strike up, and he was hailed by the acclamations of the multitude. The troops were drawn up in the following order: The left, from the Ecole Militaire to the river, was occupied by seven lines of infantry three of which were formed by the Imperial Guard, and four by divisions of the Army of the East of France. Each line was separated from the other by a space of 20 yards. The four lines of the Army of the East were formed by the divisions of Generals Courtigis, Ladmirault, Groseon, and Forey. The troops of this last division lately arrived from the Crimea, so that every man wore on his breast the medal given by the Queen of England.

THE MORMON.

The infantry, including the special corps of the garrison of Paris, presented an effective force of upward of 60 battalions, under the superior orders of Gen. Regnault de St. Jean d'Angely, commander of the Imperial Guard. On the right, facing the infantry, from the Ecole Militaire down to the extremity of the Champ de Mars, the cavalry extended in five lines, forming together upward of 50 squadrons, under the superior command of Gen. Korte. The small square opposite the Ecole Militaire was occupied by 12 batteries of the Imperial Guard and of the line, under the orders of Gens. Lebœf and Anvity. At 12½ o'clock Marshal Magnan arrived on the ground and assumed the command of the army. At 1 o'clock the beat of drums, the sound of trumpets and the enthusiastic cries of the people announced the approach of the Emperor Napoleon III., on horseback, dressed in the uniform of a general officer, surrounded by representatives of all the powers of Europe. The Emperor, having passed before all the lines, took his station in front of the Ecole Militaire, when the defile commenced, and lasted upward of an hour.

The same evening, the illuminations in private houses were more general than on Sunday. The reason was, that many people understood the illumination following the review as a tribute to the army of the Crimea, a great part of which had appeared upon the ground, and—at least this was the feeling of many—as a homage to the dead, whose bones are whitening on that distant shore. The public buildings and embassies were not generally lighted up on this occasion, but numbers of private individuals, who were out of town on Sunday, took this opportunity of putting lampions in their window. The boulevards were exceedingly brilliant, and to a late hour a dense crowd thronged both sides of them to such an extent as to render it difficult to move. The number of vehicles was also so great that more than once all advance became impossible.

Several of the passages were lit up with great taste, and a sort of triumphal arch in the March St. Honore attracted much attention. A transparency of the Emperor Alexander II, at the Russian print shop on the Boulevard dès Italiens, had crowds around it during the evening. It is a significant fact that the Orleanists and Legitimists, who have never illuminated since 1848, made an ostentatious display of light on Sunday and yesterday. The hotels of M. Guizot, M. de Montalivet and the Duchess de Duras, in the Faubourg St. Honore, and very many great houses in the Faubourg St. Germain were particularly remarked. Did they light up to show their sympathy with Russia? The general belief is that they did.

There are many statements current about general satisfaction in England and France at the conclusion of the war. A portion of the press maintain that the object for which it was begun has been attained; others grumble considerably, even though the terms of the treaty are unknown. Whether it will give the satisfaction to the people the governments say it will, remains to be seen on its publication. The Baltic fleet is recalled, and the homeward movement is beginning in the East. Decorations and promotions for ambassadors, ministers, plenipotentiaries, admirals and generals, promise to come thick and fast, with reviews for the armies and fleets—and will probably make an interesting summer in Europe. Before long, the belligerents will be embracing each other, à la Française—both cheeks—with Dieu vous bénisse.

Revealed History of the Pre-Adamite World.

We have seen and examined the collection of fossil bones and plants collected by Dr. Hayden, and arranged for view in the cabinet of Charles P. Chouteau. No sight so full of interest to science has yet appeared at St. Louis. Wonderful in itself, this thousand of examples of petrified witnesses of an era of the world long passed away, is the most striking novelty which has come to us from the great wilderness of the wonders stretching towards the setting sun. Dr. Hayden, a young man, an amateur in science, and inspired by genuine devotion, whose buoyant zeal neither poverty, nor neglect, nor solitude can depress, has collected those gems of natural science in the vast countries surrounding the Missouri, from Fort Pierre to Fort Benton, and has brought them here to excite our delight and wonder. There are tortoises of immense dimensions, sea shells of infinite variety and beauty, (an ammonite, of a single curl, twenty-five inches in diameter and a foot in thickness,) skulls of hyena, the crocodile, monkeys, and the jaws of pre-Adamite monsters. Petrified forest trees, and varieties of fossil flora, are a few of the specimens that make up this various and wonderful collection.

We have something to say in advance of those unexpected and novel guests. We will hereafter hear and say more of them. Early in this century a Frenchman, since become known as the illustrious savant Cuvier, burrowed from the rock excavations and catacombs of Paris, the science of Comparative Anatomy. Bones of all shapes and sizes, splintered out from the calcareous rocks, compared, arranged and matched into complete skeletons, revealed the history of living things which had peopled and possessed the earth for innumerable ages. The sedimentary rocks contain, at once, the epitaph and condensed history of this order of ages and these successive cycley of living population; they contain also the register of their own growth and gradual disposition, as the concentric rings reveal the ages of our forest trees.

How science has been amplified and human inquiry excited by discoveries so fascinating, manifests itself in the rapidity with which new departments of knowledge appear and expand themselves, as successive circles rise and ruffle the surface of tranquil water from the spot where a plummet has been dropped. Geology, hydrography, geodesy, paleonthrology, and a host of newly named fields of research, have enlarged themselves into the dignity of distinct departments of science, and come to the aid of the old duplicate classification of chemistry and geography.

These specimens brought by Dr. Hayden are a first scanty instalment of others to follow from the same region of our continent, surpassing other continents in these wonders, as it does in the magnitude of its rivers, its mountains, its gold, its gems, its forests, and the sublime scale and order of its configuration. These seachers for curiosities have as yet touched only a little patch in a corner of the Mississippi basin. The future will gradually carry them over the vast Sierra Madre; over the Plateau of the Table lands beyond; amongst the Andes; down upon the maratime front, and to the Pacific Ocean; infinitely populous with hybrid monsters, with fish, with coral and marine shells, and vegetation. The appetite awakened in the world since the revelations of these countries in 1846, and whetted by the wonders developed in a single decade of years, will come to slake upon the festive riches with which it is redundant. We challenge true friends and followers in science, from all lands, to invade and conquer this unharvested field of novel and lucrative search.—[St. Louis Democrat.

While the explorations of modern travellers and the researches of Geologists shake considerably the dry bone faith of sectarianism, every truth whether dug from the bowels of the earth, or dragged forth from the ruins of ages, contributes additional circumstantial evidence in support of the divinity of Mormonism. Many unlooked for principals and scraps of past history have been set forth by modern prophets to the present generation. The bigotted, who find grandmama's cloak preferable to Elijah's mantle, have strutted about "tearing their passion in rags," in holy zeal, against the strange old fashioned doctrines of Abraham, and the sceptic has had his grin over the Mormonite history of our great continent, but truth will out it matters not who growls or grins. We do not vouch for the moderation of the writer's language in the above article. Some men are apt to allow first perceptions and impressions to take such hold of them, as to disqualify them from looking at things dispassionately. We however think that every discovery should be known. Wise men accept truth and rejoice in it.

DOMESTIC SUMMARY.

Dr. Thomas Cody, of Greytown, has now a petition before the Court of Claims at Washington, for indemnification to the amount of $12,000, for the destruction of his property by the bombardment of that place in July, 1854.

The steamer Osprey was burned at her dock at Kingston, Jamaica, March 25th. Vessel a total loss. She was nearly a new boat, and belonged to the New York and Venezuela Steamship Company.

This city was visited on Saturday last by a severe storm—several houses were unroofed, trees uprooted and church spires cast down. We learn from other papers that many places have in like manner been visited and suffered considerably worse. We could fill columns with melancholy accounts of the ravages of this destructive tornado. Quite a large number of vessels have suffered on the coast and on the lakes.

The Hon. James Buchanan, late Minister to the Court of St. James, arrived on Wednesday in the Arago from Havre. This vessel having made a quicker passage than was calculated upon, Mr. Buchanan did not receive all the attention and honor his friends intended. On the arrival of the Arago at the pier the Committee of the Common Council went on board, congratulated him on his safe return to his native country, complimented him on his diplomatic career in England, and invited him to be the city guest. Mr. B. received everything with courtesy, but could only stay till Friday morning. On Thursday he visited (in the morning) the Astor Library, met with his friends between twelve and two, dined with the Mayor at 6 P.M., and was serenaded in the evening at the Everett House. Mr. B. is in good health, looks hale and hearty.

A private dispatch from Rock Island, Illinois, says the first passenger train of cars passed over the bridge across the Mississippi, at that point, on Tuesday morning. This bridge perfects the railroad connection between Chicago and Iowa City.

FOREIGN SUMMARY.

The China Mail of January 10, says, that a fire broke out at Macao on January 4, and another the following night—which, betwixt them, destroyed the greater portion of the Chinese part of the town, the number of houses burned being, at the lowest estimate, over thirteen hundred, and the property destroyed upwards of a $1,000,000. The Hong Kong Register says $2,000,000. The second fire occurred in a place known as the Rue de Botelho, Praia Pequena, in some houses and boats surrounded by a high wall, the gate of which is locked every night. The consequence was, the inmates had no means of egress, and it is reported that one hundred men, women and children were burned or smothered.

Mr. John Bennet, watchmaker of Cheapside, London, is trying to get up a movement in England, favorable to the introduction of watchmaking by female labor, upon the Swiss principle. According to statistics shewn by Mr. Bennet, there were only 186,000 watches stamped of British manufacture last year, while in Neufchâtel district alone there were manufactured 1,500,000, in the same period. Mr. B. hopes, thereby to destroy much of the degradation and misery of tens of thousands of the fair sex in the English capital.

On the night of March 17, a shocking accident occurred in the Crimea, on the slope above Kadikoi, in the burning of some wooden huts occupied by men of the commissariat works corps. Notwithstanding prompt assistance was rendered, sixteen men perished in the flames. They were, doubtless, suffocated by the smoke. Their bodies were charred past all chance of recognition.

The British screw-propeller Tartar returned to Galway port on the 6th inst. to report to the Lords of the Admiralty that she had proceeded as far as 25 deg. west and about 55 deg. north latitude, without learning anything of the Pacific. On the 29th ult, she met the American ship Joseph Badger in great distress, with four feet of water in the hold, bound to London from Calcutta, and supplied her with provisions and an officer and eight men to assist in navigating her, as all hands were quite exhausted pumping. The Desperate has likewise called at Galway and reports nothing favorable.

Utah Legislature.

We have not yet seen any direct or full account of the proceedings of the Legislature of the Territory of Utah during its last session at Fillmore City, the capital of the Territory; but from the correspondence of the Hon. Albert Carrington with Judge Elias Smith, of Great Salt Lake City, we are enabled to make some extracts on different subjects, which may interest our readers:

Fillmore, Dec. 13, 1855.

Judge Elias Smith—Dear Sir: The two branches of the Legislative Assembly met in their respective rooms, in the south wing of the State House in this city, on the 10th inst., at 10 A. M. The Hon. A. W. Babbitt, Secretary, called the roll of the members elect to the Council, all of whom were present, and administered the usual oath to the following named members:

From Great Salt Lake County.—Heber C. Kimball, Daniel H. Wells, Albert Carrington, Orson Pratt, Wilford Woodruff.

From Davis County.—John Stoker.

From Weber County.—Lorin Farr, Lorenzo Snow.

From Utah and Juab Counties.—Leonard E. Harrington, Benjamin F. Johnson.

From San Pete County.—Isaac Morley.

From Millard County.—John A. Ray.

From Iron County.—George A. Smith.

The Council proceeded to organize, unanimously electing Heber C. Kimball President; Thomas W. Ellerbeck, Secretary; Leo Hawkins, Assistant Secretary; Alexander McRae, Sergeant-at-Arms; Samuel L. Sprague, Messenger; Hiram B. Bennett, Foreman; Parley P. Pratt, Chaplain; George Hales, Public Printer. The customary oath was administered to each of the officers.

At 10 A. M., Mr. Bullock, Chief Clerk of the House during the last session, called the roll of the members elect; all were present, except Hon. William A. Hickman, Representative from Green River county.

Secretary Babbitt made a few explanatory remarks touching the lack of sufficient and proper furniture, &c., and administered the oath to the following named members:

From Great Salt Lake County.—Jedediah M. Grant, Wm. W. Phelps, Albert P. Rockwool, Edwin E. Woolley, James W. Cummings, Hosea Stout, Samuel W. Richards, Jesse C. Little, William Snow, Phineas H. Young, Cladius V. Spencer.

From Tooele County.—Ezra T. Benson.

From Utah County.—Jas. C. Snow, Aaron Johnson, Lorenzo H. Hatch.

From Juab County.—Jacob G. Bigler.

From San Pete County.—George Peacock.

From Millard County.—John Eldredge.

From Iron County.—Isaac C. Haight, Jesse N. Smith.

From Davis County.—John D. Parker, Jesse Hobson.

From Weber County.—Jonathan C. Wright, James Brown.

From Carson County.—Enoch Reese.

The House organized by unanimously electing Jedediah M. Grant Speaker; Thomas Bullock, Chief Clerk; Jonathan Grimshaw, Assistant Clerk; Alfred N. Billings, Sergeant-at-Arms; Jacob F. Hutchinson, Messenger; Chandler Holbrook, Foreman; Joel H. Johnson, Chaplain; and each took the oath pertaining to his respective office.

The Council and House were respectively informed of their organization, and readiness to attend to business.

His Excellency Brigham Young, Governor of Utah; Hon. A. W. Babbitt, Secretary; Hon's. J. F. Kinney, G. P. Stiles, and W. W. Drummond, Judges of the Supreme Court; Hon. J. L. Heywood, Marshal; Hon. T. R. King, Probate Judge in Millard county; and the Hon's. Amasa Lyman and Erastus Snow were tendered the freedom of the Council.

After concurring in a motion for a joint session at 2 P. M. of the 11th, and appointing a joint committee to wait upon His Excellency the Governor and inform him that the two Houses were organized and ready to receive any communication he might be pleased to make, the Council and House adjourned until 1 P. M. of Dec. 11th, with a view to give the officers an opportunity to prepare more conveniences for the dispatch of business.

The Hon. Secretary has evinced much zeal in his efforts to suitably furnish the Assembly Rooms, but owing to various circumstances much remains to be done before they are appropriately fitted up, though the Secretary is diligent in causing improvements daily.

Dec. 11, 2 P. M., the two Houses met in joint session in the Representatives' Hall. The committee introduced His Excellency the Governor, who made a few very appropriate remarks, and presented his Annual Message to the Assembly, which was read by Mr. Bullock; received, and 1,000 copies ordered to be printed.

Hon. H. C. Kimball, President of the Assembly, appointed Councilors Geo. A. Smith, D. H. Wells, and A. Carrington, and Representatives W. W. Phelps, E. D. Woolley, H. Stout, S. W. Richards, J. C. Little, and W. Snow a special committee to take in consideration and report upon the mode of procedure requisite in the initiatory steps for admission into the Union as a State.

The members of the Assembly have been quite busy at settling themselves in lodgings, which, in addition to the uncompleted furnishing operations of the Secretary, has tended to retard business a trifle, as yet, but we expect soon to be under full headway in law-making.

Truly yours,
Albert Carrington.

Fillmore, Dec. 16, 1855.

Judge Smith—

Dear Sir: Owing to various circumstances, but chiefly attributable to the Council Halls not being, as yet, furnished with suitable conveniences for the transaction of business, the legislative machinery is not under full and rapid headway. The workmen are busily employed, early and late, and it is expected that they will soon have all things in readiness, of a temporary kind, so far as furniture is concerned, so that duties devolved upon us be more efficietly attended to. For these reasons, the Assembly adjourned from Thursday last untill Monday the 17th; in the meantime, the standing and special committees have occupied the time in preparing matter to present in session, and doubtless on the morrow progress can be reported.

The special committee, to whom was intrusted the framing and presenting such acts as might be deemed necessary for setting in motion our admission into the Union, have prepared "An act providing for holding a convention, with a view to the admission of Utah as a State," both of which will probably be presented in joint session at an early day.

This forenoon, Elder P. P. Pratt, chaplain of the Council, addressed a crowded audience in the large school-house in this city, and in the afternoon, His Excellency Governor Young and H. C. Kimball, president of the Council, gave interesting and useful instructions to the large congregation.

The weather is clear and very pleasant, as is the civil and religious atmosphere.

Truly, yours, Albert Carrington.

Fillmore, Dec. 23, 1855.

Hon. Elias Smith—Dear Sir: The members of the Assembly are dilligently prosecuting the business which calls them here, and are undisturbed by the sights, sounds, amusements, customs and practices common to most large cities, hence their deliberations are calm and mature, and unlike every other Legislative Body we have no acrimonious strife.

The "Acts" for taking a census and holding a convention for the purpose of forming and adopting a constitution, with a view to the admission of Utah into the Union as a State, were passed and approved on the 17th inst. They were ordered to be printed in the Deseret News, and 500 copies have been struck off, by the Public Printer in this city, for the use of the Assembly and for distribution. I forwarded you a copy for the "News" by Mr. Edmund Pugh, but for the sake of certainty shall send you another by the mail, and trust that you will publish them on an early date, since it is highly desirable that the people receive timely notice of the election to be held for choosing Delegates.

The unanimity in voting, the absence of all angry debate, the brevity and small number of speeches for Buncomb, the plain and pertinent remarks to elucidate a point not fully understood by all, and the constant effort of each to prepare and forward the purposes before them are characteristics of Utah's Legislatures and of none more so than this, affording a highly praiseworthy contrast with the acts and doings of like Bodies in other regions.

Again, the self government and highly moral character of the people, and our isolated position preclude the necessity of enacting such numerous and lengthy laws as are found in the annual legislative proceedings of most of our sister States and Territories, tending to confuse and trap the honorable and upright to assist roguery and rascality and to fatten lawyers, courts and law officers.

For these reasons it is not probable that the Assembly will find it necessary to enact any very lengthy laws during this session, notwithstanding learned lawyers and other dignitaries are disposed to find some fault with our criminal law, the laws regulating the mode of procedure in civil and criminal cases, &c.

Our laws answer our present purposes and wants, and when altered should be less rather than more voluminous, be easy of comprehension and applicable as rules of action founded in justice. Those fanciedly learned persons who carp so much at the brevity of our style, are so anxious for the enactment of verbosity and thousands of technical forms, and are ambitious of a kingship, even though crowned at as low an elevation and on as humble a throne as a pine bench, remind one of the mouse at the mouth of the bear's den, and are working zealiously only to meet with the mouse's fate. (Our readers are doubtless familiar with the fable.) Yours truly,

Albert Carrington.

Fillmomre Dec. 30, 1856.

Hon. Elias Smith,—Dear Sir:—Half the allotted 40 days are now past, and still no highly thrilling or peculiarly interesting event has occurred in the proceedings of the Assembly.

During the past week grants for herding purposes have occupied most of the time of the Council and House, though other questions were agitated, and they passed "An act appropriating money for educational purposes, and defining certain duties of the Chancellor and Board of Regents of the University of the State of Deseret," and "An act granting and confirming unto the University of the State of Deseret certain land claims therein mentioned," which claims had been granted by the provisional government, but through accident the grant had been omitted in the different publications of the laws of Utah.

The "Act appropriating money for educational purposes," &c., provides for the purchase of fonts of Deseret Alphabet type, and for publishing school books and other works with said type, the copy to be furnished under the direction of the Chancellor and Board of Regents, who are also authorized and required to direct and pay for the services of the superintendant of common schools.

In joint session, on the 28th, an animated discussion arose upon a proposition to create and define Box Elder and Malad counties within the present boundaries of Weber county, during which the joint session adjourned until 10-1-2 A. M. on the 31st.

Fillmore, Jan. 12, 1856.

Hon. Elias Smith—

Dear Sir: The customary harmony in our Legislative doings has characterized the proceedings of another week, and members have been active and reflective in the preparation and dispatch of business, that matter of real importance may not be neglected or hurriedly passed upon, and all things be in readiness for dissolving this assembly, and starting home on Friday next.

More herd grounds have been granted, and 'An Act to incorporate the San Pete Coal Company" passed in joint session on the 7th inst., and on the 9th 'An Act amending, confirming and legalizing an ordinance incorporating the Perpetual Emigrating Fund Company, and 'An Act incorporating the Davis County Canal Company.'

On the evening of the 8th a dancing party enjoyed themselves in the Representatives' Hall, and on the evening of the 9th a large and enthusiastic meeting assembled, and were addressed by His Excellency the Governor, and several others, upon the subject of establishing a daily express and passenger line between Independence and Sacramento. The meeting adjourned to meet in the Tabernacle in G. S. L. City, on the 26th inst., at 1 p. m. As Elder W. Woodruff reported proceedings, and is writing to the 'News,' I refer you to his communication for further particulars.

Several of the bretheren from Washington, Iron, San Pete, Utah and other countries arrived here at date; they report favorably on the state of affairs in their several localities.

The weather has been mild and pleasant during the past week, and the general health continues good. Yours truly,

Albert Carrington.

Thirty-Fourth Congress.—First Session.

SENATE.

Washington, April 17, 1856.

Mr. Sumner, of Mass., made a motion that the Committee on Commerce be directed to inquire into the character of the commerce known as the Coolie trade, by whech large numbers of the Chinese are transported from their native country in American ships, on alleged contracts for service in distant places. Also, to ascertain if the same is not conducted in violation of an existing treaty with China, and consider if any legislation is expedient with a view to the prohibition of this commerce or to prevent abuses incident thereto on board of American ships, or to extend to the provisions and penalties of the recent act of Congress regulating the transportation of passengers in American vessels.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of the Bounty Land bill, but without disposing of it adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion of Mr. Pringle, of New York, the President was requested to have prepared statements showing the appropriations made during each session of the last three Congresses, particularly distinguishing those made on the recommendation of the President, heads of departments and chiefs of bureaus; likewise were made during the same period, and whether defalcations have occurred, and if so, to what amount.

The Senate's Fortification bill was then tabled by a large majority, on the ground that it improperly originated in that body.

The consideration of the Deficiency bill was resumed and debated till the adjournment.

SENATE. April 18.

On motion of Mr. Seward, of N. Y., a resolution was adopted directing the Committee on Post Offices to inquire into the expediency of establishing uniformity of postage throughout the United States.

On motion of Mr. Sumner, of Mass., a resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on Patents to consider the expediency of amending the patent laws so far as to allow the inhabitants of neighboring British provinces to enjoy the benefits of those laws on an equal footing, in all respects, with the people of the United States.

The bill to authorize the Executive to facilitate the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from the Mississippi river to the Pacific was considered.

Mr. Weller, of Cal., maintained that the government has the constitutional power to construct military and other roads through the Territories of the United States. Congress frequently makes appropriations of lands for such purposes. Three hundred and forty thousand dollars, he said, had been expended to procure reports and surveys, which show that there are three or four practical railroad routes to the Pacific. He had no preference for either. His main desire was to obtain the construction of a road, from which branches would emanate as the necessities of commerce demand. The committee having the subject in charge propose that the Secretary of War, Secretary of the Interior, and Postmaster General shall advertise for bids, with authority, under direction of the President, to select the one most favorable. According to his calculation, the money invested in such a work would yield thirteen per cent per annum. Estimating the number of passengers back and forth at 60,000 yearly, the decrease of time in travel will amount to a saving of more than eleven million dollars per annum. He exhibited the great mineral wealth of California, and the extensiveness of the Pacific coast, arguing the pressing necessity for such a road for purposes of commerce, as well as the protection and maintenance of the Union.

Mr. Seward obtained the floor, and the further consideration of the bill was postponed to the 29th inst.

Sixteen private bills passed. Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Haven, of New York, submitted two letters addressed by the Secretary of the Navy to Mr. Benson, Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, in which he invites members of Congress to visit the war steamer Merrimac, at Annapolis, saying that the President and himself expect to leave Washington for that city this afternoon, and will wait the arrival of to-morrow morning's train before going to the steamer.

Mr. Washburne, of Ill., moved that when the House adjourn it be till Monday. Adopted.

The Committee on Elections reported against the right of Mr. Bird B. Chapman to retain his seat as delegate from Nebraska Territory, and in favor of Mr. Hiram P. Bennett.

The Deficiency Appropriation Bill was considered, without final action. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 21.

The Senate adopted a resolution calling upon the Secretary of War to transmit copies of all the letters not heretofore communicated, which were addressed to him during the present year by Governor Stevens, of Washington Territory, respecting the existing difficulties with the Indians, together with all correspondence relative to the hostilities in Washington and Oregon.

Mr. Toombs, of Ga., from the Judiciary Committee, reported back the bill to amend the Naturalization laws, with the recommendation that it do not pass.

On motion of Mr. Adams, of Miss., the bill was made the special order for May 12.

Mr. Foot, of Vt., called up the Bounty Land Bill, which was briefly discussed, when the consideration of Mr. Douglas' bill for the admission of Kansas was announced as the special order, and

Mr. Clay, of Ala., replied to speeches of Messrs. Seward, Sumner, Wilson and Harlan on the bill for the admission of Kansas. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Upon assembling, the House immediately proceeded to vote upon the action of the Committee of the Whole on the Senate's amendments to the Appropriation bill.

The amendment to appropriate $300,000 for continuing the work on the Washington Aqueduct was rejected by 27 majority.

The amendments were not all disposed of when the House adjourned.

SENATE. April 22.

The House bill amendatory of the Bounty Land Law of 1855 was passed. The object of the bill is to provide for the admission of parole testimony in all cases where no records of evidence exist, and to allow the time occupied in travelling to and from the place of muster to be included in the period of service. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Deficiency Appropriation Bill was considered, and the greater portion of the Senate's amendments thereto rejected. Among the amendments adopted was the one appropriating $30,000 for the purchase of seeds and cuttings to be distributed throughout the country by the agricultural department of the Patent Office.

Messrs. Florence and Tyson presented memorials from citizens of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, praying, in view of the recent calamity on the Delaware, that the provisions of the steamboat law be extended to ferry boats. Referred to the Committee on Commerce. Adjourned.

SENATE. April 23.

The $3,000,000 Armament bill was considered. Some Honorable Senators opposed such a great expenditure, others sustained the appropriation. Further discussion of the bill was postponed, and the subject of the Naval Board taken up.

Mr. Crittenden, of Ky., stated that Capt. Stribling had claimed the honor of capturing a piratical vessel in 1822, which exploit was, in reality performed by Lieut. Watson; and upon a correction of the matter being brought to the notice of Capt. Stribling, the latter acknowledged that he had mistaken the name of the vessel, being engaged in a similar capture during the same Summer. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Thurston moved a reconsideration of the vote by which the Senate's amendment to the Deficiency Bill was adopted; the amendment referred to being to prevent the former law concerning public printing being so construed as to allow the public printer 20 per cent for extra compensation.

Mr. Haven, of N. Y., said that unless this amendment was adhered to, from $20,000 to $100,000 would be annually taken from the treasury for the benefit of the printer.

A good deal of discussion ensued, characterized by biting sarcasm, and relieved by a sparkling of wit.

Mr. Giddings, of Ohio, remarked that now the European war over, he rejoiced to see the republican party taken under the care of gentlemen all round. This was cheering to his heart, and was an advent of the grand political millenium of which there had been so much talk. (Laughter.) He was gratified with the exhibition of friendship displayed by the democrats and others for the republican party.

Mr. Clingman replied that he had no friendship for that party, but in a cause he would rather have the devil for an ally than to have no aid at all. (Laughter.)

Mr. Giddings—Old friends should never be separated. (Renewed merriment.)

At the instance of Humphrey Marshall, Mr. Thutston's motion was reconsidered and tabled by 17 majority. Adjourned.

Mormonism in New York.

The Latter Day Saints intend holding Meetings in this City every Sunday, at the Broadway House, entrance 116 Grand street, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., 3 P. M., and 7 in the evening.

All who wish to become acquainted with the principles of Salvation, as taught by Apostles and Prophets, ancient and modern, are respectfully invited to attend.

Salt Lake City Retail Price Current.

Nov. 29, 1855

GROCERIES.
Sugar, crushed, per lb.	$0 40
do clarified "	40
do brown "	40
Coffee, 3 lb for $1, or p. lb.	40
Tea, Young Hyson "	2 00
Tea, Imperial, Gunpow'r	2 00
Tea, black, per lb.	2 00
Apples, dried, per lb.	40
Peaches " "	50
Soap, per bar	40
do Castile, per lb.	75
Allspice "	50
Pepper "	40
Ginger "	50
Cinnamon "	1 00
Saleratus "	40
Mustard "	1 00
Saltpetre "	50
Snuff "	1 00
Almonds "	75
Brimstone "	40
Sulphur "	40
Borax "	75
Raisins "	75
Candy "	1 00
Candles, 6 to the lb.	50
Figs, per lb.	75
Cloves, per oz.	15
Nutmegs "	20
Oysters, per can	2 00
Brandy Cherries, per bot.	2 00
Olive Oil, quarts "	1 50
do pints "	1 00
Lemon Syrup "	1 50
Pepper Sauce "	50
Glass, 8x10, per light	20
do 10x12 "	20
Chocolate, pr cake, Ray's	20
Mustard, per box	20
Pepper "	20
OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, &c., &c.
Putty, per lb.	$0 30
Glue "	75
Red Lead "	40
Madder "	40
Alum "	35
Copperas "	30
Extract Logwood, pr lb.	75
Lamp Black "	40
Epsom Salts "	40
Beeswax "	75
Indigo, $2 pr lb. or pr oz	20
Gum Camphor, per oz.	15
Gum Arabic "	15
Cream Tartar "	15
S. C. Soda "	15
Turkey Opium "	1 00
Golden Seal "	15
Liquorice, per lb.	1 00
Jujube Paste "	1 00
White Lead, per keg	10 00
Turpentine, per gal.	6 00
Linseed Oil "	8 00
Copal Varnish "	10 00
Whale Oil "	8 00
Tanner's Oil "	6 00
Cooper's Isinglass, pr oz	20
Painkiller, per bottle	1 00
do do do	50
Mustang Liniment, p bot	50
Rope, sea grass, per lb.	50
Tobacco, per plug 10c to	75
Matches, 10c pr box or 4	25
STATIONERY.
Primers, ea. 10c and	15
McGuffy's 1st Reader	25
do 2d do	50
do 3d do	60
do 4th do	1 00
do 5th do	1 25
Writing Paper, per quire	40
Letter do "	40
HARDWARE.
Axes	$3 10
do boys', handled	2 50
Hickory Helves	75
Spades	3 00
Shovels	2 25
do steel plated	3 00
Grain Scythes	2 50
Grass do	2 00
Snaths	2 00
Two prong Hay Forks	2 00
Three do do	2 50
Four do dung do	3 50
Hoes	1 25
Concave Augers, per ¼	25
Bitts "	25
Masons' Trowel	2 00
Plasterers' do	2 00
Steel Wheel Heads	1 00
Common do	75
Brass Kettles, per lb.	1 00
Flat Irons "	35

Mill Saws, per foot	2 00
Horse Cards	35
Curry Combs, No. 8	75
do 12	30
Tea Kettles, Iron	2 00
Shingling Hatchets	1 50
Carpenters' do	1 50
Hammers, large	1 50
do small	80
Sand Paper, pr 3 sheets.	10
Knives and Forks, $2.50	4 50
Nails, per lb.	35
SCREWS. Size.	Gross
½ inch	1 00
1	1
1¼	1 25
1½	1 50
1¾	1 75
2	2 50
2½	3 00
3	4 50
BUTTS (cast)	Per pair.
1½ inch	15
2	20
2½	25
3	30
3½	40
TABLE BUTTS.
1¼	20
1½	25
TACKS.
4 oz. papers	12
6 do	15
8 do	50
10 do	20
12 do	25
14 do	30
16 do	35
20 do	40
GUN CAPS, per box.
G. D. per 100	15
Water Proof, 100	30
Hicks' Hat, 250	1 00
Powder, per lb.	80
Lead "	40
BOOTS AND SHOES.
Coarse Men's, $5 to	8 00
Fine do	10 10
Gents' Calf-skin Shoes	3 50
do Patent	4 05
Ladies' Coarse Boots	2 50
do do Low	2 75
do Fine Boots	2 50
Men's Coarse Shoes	2 75
Boys', from $1 to	2 20
Knobs	50
Sole Leather, per lb.	55
Calf, per skin, from $6 to	8 00
Panama Hats	6 00
Plush Caps	4 00
Pitchers, from $1 50 to	2 50
do and Bowl	5 00
Oil Bergamot, per oz.	75
Oil Cassia "	1 00
Oil Peppermint "	1 00
Oil Lemon "	75
DRY GOODS.
Calico, 18¾ pr yd, or 4 yds	75
Factory Cloth, 16½ pr yd or 6 yds for	1 00
Linseys, per yard	50
Ticking	40
Blue Drilling	25
Denims	30
Cotton Batten, per roll	20
do Yarn, per 5 lb.	2 00
VALLEY PRODUCE.
Flour, per 100	6 00
Butter, per lb.	35
Eggs, per doz.	20
Cheese, per lb.	25
Bacon, smoked. per lb.	35
Shoulder "	30
Ham "	35
Middle "	40
Wheat, per bushel	2 50
Corn "	2 05
Oats "	1 50
Barley "	2 00
Onions "	2 00
Sugar-cured Beef, pr lb.	30
Beef, fresh, per lb.	9
Mutton "	12½
Tongues, each	60
Tallow, per lb.	30
Lard "	30
Hay, per ton, $10 to	15 00
Lumber, per 100 ft, $2 to	5 05
Adobies, per 100	30
Stone, per cord	10 00
Cows, ea., from $30 to	50 00
Oxen, yoke, $75 to	100 00
Pigs, 4 weeks old	3 00
Wood, per cord, $10 to	3 00

J. D. M'AULIFF,
CARRIAGE MANUFACTURER,
Cor. 21st Street and Franklin Avenue,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Keeps constantly on hand, and makes to order, Rockaways, Buggys, and Travelling Wagons, of every description. ap25–1y

UTAH TERRITORY.
LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & CO.,
DEALERS IN
General and Assorted Merchandise,
Great Salt Lake City,
Utah Territory.
Emigrants to Utah and California will at all times find at our establishment an assortment in all the various branches of merchandise. mh24

Letter Notice.

We are constantly receiving letters from Europe, addressed to our care, with the postage unpaid. Now, we are willing to accommodate men, but we can't pay their postage, as one out of ten perhaps is not called for. This is to inform all such persons that no such letters will be taken out of the office, by us, in future.

New York Wholesale Price Current.

Corrected to April 25, 1856.

Ashes—Pot ... per 100 lb.	6 12½ a — —
Pearl	— — a 8 25
Candies—Stuart and Bussing's best, assorted ... per lb.	— a —
Ordinary	— a —
Candles—Sperm ... per lb.	38 a 40
Adamantine	24 a 29
Mould, yellow	— a 14
Coffee—Java, white	14 a 14½
Mocha	— a 16
Laguayra	11 a 12½
Maracaibo	11 a 12½
St. Domingo (cash)	— a 10½
Drugs and Dyes—Alcohol. pr. gal.	— 58 a — 63
Alum ... per lb.	— 2½ a — 2¾
Arrowroot	— 50 a — —
Arsenic, powdered	— — a — 2½
Asafœtida	— 5 a — 25
Borax, refined	— 21½ a — 28½
Brimstone, American, roll	— 2½ a — —
do crude ... per ton	30 — a 32 —
Camphor, crude ... per lb.	— 24 a — 24½
do refined	— 35 a — —
Castor Oil, No. 1	1 50 a 1 62½
Chlorate Potash	— 35 a — 37½
Cochineal	— 75 a 1 20
Copper—sheathing ... per lb.	— 23 a — 27
Copperas ... per 100 lb.	1 25 a — —
Cream Tartar ... per lb.	— 28 a — 29
Gum Arabic, picked	— 19 a — 35
Gum Copal	— 40 a — 50
Gum Myrrh, Turkey	— 25 a — 30
Iodine, resublamized	5 — a 5 25
Ipecacuanha	1 90 a 2 —
Madder	— 11 a — 12
Magnesia	— 14 a — 16
Do calcined	— 30 a — 35
Nutgalls, blue Aleppo	— 18 a — 19
Oil Anis	— — a 8 —
Oil Bergamot	2 — a 2 10
Oil Cassia	— — a 3 75
Oil Lemon	2 — a 2 10
Oil Peppermint	— — a 2 75
Opium, Turkey	— — a 4 12½
Otto Rose ... per oz.	3 50 a 6 50
Oxalic Acid ... per lb.	— 32 a — 33
Phosphorus	1 10 a 1 15
Quicksilver	— 43 a — 45
Rhubarb, China	1 20 a 1 25
Saleratus	— — a — 7
Sal Ammoniac, refined	— 10½ a — —
Senna	— 11 a — 15
Shellac	— 11 a — 14
Sugar Lead, white	— 14 a — 15
do brown	— — a — 10
Sulphate Quinine	2 52½ a 2 60
Tartaric Acid	— 44 a — 45
Verdigris	— 41 a — —
Vitriol, blue	— 10½ a — 11
Dye Woods—Camwood..per ton.	100 — a 110 —
Fustic	18 — a 30 —
Logwood	21 — a 28 —
Flour—State, common...per bbl.	5 87½ a 6 87½
Michigan and Indiana	6 12½ a 6 25
Genesee, extra	7 — a 9 50
Rye Flour	4 — a 5 75
Corn Meal	3 37½ a 3 75
Fruit—Raisins ... per box.	3 — a 3 25
Raisins, layers	3 45 a 3 50
Currants ... per lb.	— 18 a — 24
Glass (American window)—
6x8 to 8x10 ... per 50 feet.	3 25 a 2 50
8x11 to 11x16	3 75 a 2 62½
11x17 to 12x18	4 — a 3 —
20x26 to 24x30	5 50 a 4 25
31x40 to 34x46	8 — a 7 50
Grain—Wheat ... per bush.	1 90 a 2 —
Corn, round yellow	— 63 a — 65
Barley	1 18 a 1 28
Oats, Western	— 43 a — 46
Beans	2 25 a 2 30
Gunpowder ... per 25 lbs.	3 50 a 6 50
Indigo ... per lb.	— 90 a 1 30
Iron—Pig, Eng., Scot ... per ton.	25 — a 36 50
Bar, Eng. refined	67 50 a 72 50
Sheet, Russia, 1st quality..per lb.	— 18 a — 18½
Sheet, Eng.	— 3½ a — 4½
Lead—Galena ... per 100 lbs.	7 — a 7 12½
Sheet and Pipe	— 8½ a — —
Leather ... per lb.	20 a 31
Molasses ... per gal.	30 a 47
Nails—Cut, 4d and 6d ... per lb.	4½ a —
Wrought, 6d and 20d	6 a 7½
Oils—Olive..per bskt., 12 bottles.	3 50 a 3 62½
Olive, in casks ... per gallon.	1 25 a 1 30
Linseed	— 80 a — —
Whale	— — a — 90
Lard, winter	— 95 a 1 —
Paints—Lead, red, Am....per lb.	— — a — 8½
Lead, white, Am., in oil	— — a — 9
Lead do do dry	— 8½ a — —
Ochre, yellow, French, dry	1 — a 1 62½
Ochre, in oil	— 4 a — 6
Spanish Brown, dry ... per cwt.	— 60 a — 75
Litharge ... per lb.	— — a — 8½
Vermillion, Chinese	— 90 a 1 05
Venetian Red ... per cwt.	2 — a 2 37½
Rice ... per 100 lbs.	3 75 a 4 50
Saltpetre ... per lb.	8 a 18
Seeds—Clover ... per lb.	— — a — 18
Flax, American, rough..per bush.	2 — a 2 10
Linseed, Calcutta	1 85 a — —
Soap—New York ... per lb.	4 a 7
Castile	10½ a 11
Spices—Ginger, Race ... per lb.	5 a 5½
Mace	85 a 90
Nutmegs	91 a 95
Pepper	— a 11½
Pimento	11½ a —
Cloves (cash)	12½ a 13
Sugar—New Orleans ... per lb.	6¼ a 8½
Havana, white	9 a 9½
do brown	6½ a 9
Stuart's crushed	— a 10½
Sumac, Sicily ... per ton.	72 50 a 82 50
Teas—Gunpowder and Imperial..per lb.	35 a 75
Hyson	30 a 80
Young Hyson	32 a 70
Hyson Skin	20 a 35
Black	22 a 50
Tin—Banca ... per lb.	— a 31½
Straits	29 a 29
Plates ... per box.	9 — a 10 50
Tobacco	7 a 43½
Turpentine ... per 280 lbs.	3 62½ a — —
Tar ... per bbl.	3 — a 3 25
Spirits Turpentine ... per gallon.	— 41 a — 42

WILLIAM N. WHITE & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,
CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, MATTINGS, &c.,
120 Verandah Row, Fourth Street,
ST. LOUIS, MO. mh29–3m

McMULLAN & MAXWELL'S
STEAM BAKERY MANUFACTORY
No. 186 South Fourth Street.
Sale Office and Depot, N. W. cor. Vine and Commerce Sts,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Every variety of LOAF AND PILOT BREAD, Boston, Butter, Soda, Sugar, Water and Wine Crackers, manufactured and kept constantly on hand.
Particular attention paid to Steamboats, Hotels and Merchants' orders. mh22–3m

LAFLINS, SMITH & BOIES,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
GUNPOWDER, all kinds; SPORTING, RIFLE, AND SALT LAKE POWDER,
in packages, prepared for Shipping.
Office, South Street, corner Olive and Levee, Saint Louis, Missouri. mh8–1y

McBRIDE & BOWEN,
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA.,
EMIGRANTS' STORE,
Corner Broadway and Pearl St., opposite Pacific Hotel.
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware, Family Groceries, Provisions, Queensware, Boots and Shoes, Drugs, &c. &c.
ALL GOODS necessary for EMIGRANTS crossing the Plains, or WESTWARD BOUND, at WHOLESALE prices, put up with care, neatness and despatch, at as LOW or LOWER prices than can be bought in Council Bluff City.
Agricultural Implements, Grass and Garden Seeds. All Goods warranted as represented.
mh22–3m McB. & B.

A Short Account of the Faith and Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

WE believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost, who bears record of them for ever.

We believe that all mankind, through the trangression of our first parents, were brought under the curse and penalty of transgression; but that through the sufferings, death, and atonement of Jesus Christ, all are to be redeemed from any effects of original transgression; that as they were placed under a penalty without any act of their own, so they were delivered from it precisely on the same terms. "For as by the offence of one judgment came upon ALL men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon ALL men unto the justification of life." Rom. v. 18.

We believe that little children are innocent, and not under transgression; that they are incapable of obeying any law, not believing good or evil; and Jesus says, "Of such are the kingdom of heaven; but then, when they arrive at years of maturity, and know good from evil, and are capable of obeying or disobeying a law; if they then transgress, they will be condemned for breaking a known law.

We believe that no man will be condemned for not obeying a law that he does not know; and that consequently millions of the human family who have never had the gospel, are better off than those who have had that privilege, and disobeyed it. That mankind will be judged according to what they have, and not according to that they have not done "according to the deeds done in the body."

We believe that faith in God, and in the sufferings, death and atonement of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in his resurrection and ascension on high, and in the Holy Ghost, which is given to all who obey the gospel, and is one of the first conditions.

That the next is to repent of—to confess, and to turn away from their sins, and make restitution to all whom they have injured, as far as it is in their power.

That the third is to be baptized by immersion in water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, "for remission of sins." And that this ordinance must be performed by one having authority, or otherwise it is of no avail.

The fourth is, to receive the laying on of hands, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And this ordinance must also be administered by the Apostles, or Elders, whom the Lord Jesus has called to lay on hands, nor then is it of any advantage except to those persons who have complied with the afore-named three conditions.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is the same now, as it was in the apostolic days formerly, and that when a church is organized, it is their privilege to have all the gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit.

"'Such, for instance, as the gifts of revelation, prophecy, visions, the ministry of angels, healing the sick by the laying on of hands in the name of Jesus, the working of miracles, and, in short, all the gifts as mentioned in Scripture, or as enjoyed by the ancient saints.' We believe that inspired apostles and prophets, together with all the officers as mentioned in the New Testament, are necessary to be in the Church in these days.

"We believe that there has been a general and awful apostacy from the religion of the New Testament, so that all the known world have been left for centuries without the Church of Christ among them; without a priesthood authorized of God to administer ordinances; that every one of the churches have perverted the gospel; some in one way and some in another. For instance, almost every church has done away 'immersion for remission of sins.' Those few who have practiced it for remission of sins, have done away the ordinance of the 'laying on of hands' upon baptized believers for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Again, the few who have practiced the last ordinance have perverted the first, or have done away the ancient gifts, powers and blessings which flow from the Holy Spirit, or have said to inspired apostles and prophets, we have no need of you in the body in these days. Those few, again, who have believed in and contended for the miraculous gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit, have perverted the ordinances or done them away. Thus, all the churches preach false doctrines and pervert the gospel, and instead of having authority from God to administer its ordinances, they are under the curse of God for perverting it. Paul says, Gal. i. 8, 'Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.'

"We believe that there are a few sincere, honest and humble persons who are striving to do according to the best of their understanding; but, in many respects, they err in doctrine because of false teachers and the precepts of men, and that they will receive the fullness of the gospel with gladness as soon as they hear it."

We believe in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and in living and continued revelation; but we also believe that no new revelation will contradict the old.

"The gospel in the 'Book of Mormon' is the same as that in the New Testament, and is revealed in great plainness, so that no one that reads it can misunderstand its principles. It has been revealed by the angel, to be preached as a witness to all nations, first to the Gentiles, and then to the Jews, then cometh the downfall of Babylon. Thus fulfilling the vision of John, which he beheld on the Isle of Patmos, Rev. xiv. 6, 7, 8, 'And I saw,' says John, 'another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.'

"Many revelations and prophecies have been given to this church since its rise, which have been printed and sent forth to the world. These also contain the gospel in great plainness, and instructions of infinite importance to the Saints. They also unfold the great events that await this generation; the terrible judgments to be poured forth upon the wicked, and the blessings and glories to be given to the righteous. We believe that God will continue to give revelations by visions, by the ministry of angels, and by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, until the saints are guided into all truth."

"We believe that wherever the people enjoy the religion of the New Testament, there they enjoy visions, revelations, the ministry of angels, &c. And that wherever these blessings cease to be enjoyed, there they also cease to enjoy the religion of the New Testament.

"We believe that God has raised up this church, in order to prepare a people for his second coming in the clouds of heaven, in power, and great glory; and that then the saints who are asleep in their graves will be raised, and reign with him on earth a thousand years."

We believe that great judgments await the nations of the earth, on account of their wickedness, and that when the gospel shall have been sufficiently proclaimed, if they reject it, they will be overthrown and destroyed; that plagues, pestilence and famine will be multiplied upon them; that thrones will be cast down, empires overthrown, and nations destroyed; that when the Spirit of God ceases to restrain the people, the world will be full of blood, carnage and desolation; that peace will be taken from the earth, and from among all people, religious and irreligious. "It shall be as with the people, so with the priest," &c. Isa.

We believe that the Lord will gather his people from among all nations, unto a land of peace, "and give them pastors after his own heart, who shall feed them with knowledge and understanding," and they shall be the only people upon the earth that shall not be at war with one another."

"We believe that the ten tribes of Israel, with the dispersed of Judah, shall soon be restored to their own lands, according to the covenants which God made with their ancient fathers, and that when this great work of restitution shall take place, the power of God shall be made manifest in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds far exceeding anything that took place in their exodus from Egypt. Jerusalem will be rebuilt, together with a glorious temple, and the Lord shall visit them also, as well as his saints in Zion. In that day, the name of the Lord shall become great unto the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him, for the wicked shall have perished out of the earth."

We believe in all principles of truth that have been revealed; in all that is now being revealed, and are prepared to receive all that God will reveal.

We believe that the gospel now being preached by the Latter Day Saints is to call the honest in heart out of Babylon, "that they partake not of her sins, nor receive of her plagues."

We believe in morality, chastity, purity, virtue, and honesty; and wish to promote the happiness of our fellow men.

Aux Elders et aux Saints, en Canada, en France, en Suisse, en Italie, et dans les Iles de la Manche.

Bien-aimés frères, je désire, en commencant cette publication, vous adresser quelques paroles. Le Seigneur, dans sa bonté et sa miséricorde, a jugé convenable de restaurer au monde l'Evangile primitif, dans toute la simplicité, la beauté et la pureté qu'il avait autrefois, parmi les chrétiens des premiers temps, aux jours de Jésus et de ses Apôtres.

La lumière de la vérité a éclaté au milieu des ténèbres et de la corruption des hommes, en ce temps où le monde est déchiré par mille opinions contradictoires.

Les sages, les savants, les gens pieux, le philosophe, le législateur, l'ecclésiastique et le chrétien ont été à la recherche de quelque chose, pour améliorer la condition de l'homme; mais, malgré leurs recherches et leurs plans divers, le monde marche sans changement et sans régénération; la contention, le trouble, la perplexité et la misère couvrent la terre. Et tout ce que les hommes ont fait pour régénérer le monde, ne montre que plus clairement leur folie et leur impuissance. Et malgré tous les efforts, le monde religieux, moral et politique, ne fait qu'empirer.

Si nous suivons attentivement l'action de Dieu sur le genre humain, nous trouverons que tous ces maux proviennent de ce que les nations et les peuples se sont éloignés de Dieu; et rien moins qu'un retour à lui ne peut arrêter la terrible tempête, calmer la mer furieuse, tranquilliser les passions capricieuses des hommes, et rendre au monde moral, religieux et politique, cet ordre qui règne dans la création physique de Dieu.

Les œuvres de la création sont en ce jour, aussi parfaites qu'au moment où elles se déroulèrent de ses mains. Toutes les créations continuent à être aussi régulières, aussi magnifiques et aussi harmonieuses, étant gouvernées et dirigées par la sagesse et la puissance de Dieu. Et si l'homme n'eût pas abusé de l'action morale qui lui avait été donnée; s'il ne s'était pas corrompu, et s'il n'était pas devenu plein d'orgueil et présomptueux; s'il ne se fût pas éloigné de Dieu; s'il eût recherché la sagesse, et l'eût obtenue de cet Etre qui maintient les sphères dans leur course et qui règle l'univers s'il eût imité la beauté, l'ordre, l'harmonie et l'innocence de la nature; s'il eût continué à être noble, magnanime, vertueux, pur et bon; répandant sur tous et recevant de tous des bénédictions; s'il eût persévéré dans l'enseignement du Père céleste, ce monde aurait pu rester à toujours un Eden, un Paradis, et l'homme aurait conservé sa place, comme le représentant de Dieu sur la terre.

C'est la religion que vous croyez et que vous enseignez, qui est destinée à restaurer l'homme et la terre; c'est elle qui ramènera les peuples à Dieu, qui les retirera du chaos moral, religieux et politique du monde, et les rassemblera en un peuple qui sera conduit et reconnu de Dieu; qui sera honoré devant les hommes et les nations; et qui aidera à établir et à développer le royaume de Dieu dans ces derniers jours.

Notre religion n'est pas, comme on l'a supposé, une vague fantaisie, basée sur quelque vision obscure ou une fable vaine. Elle est une révélation de Dieu à nous et au monde. Elle s'accorde avec tout vrai principe de raison, de révélation, d'intelligence et de philosophie. Elle est la restauration de l'Evangile primitif dans toute sa pureté, sa plénitude, sa beauté, son intelligence et sa puissance; et elle est parée de son originaire simplicité naturelle.

Un ange de Dieu est apparu à Joseph Smith, ainsi qu'à d'autres qui étaient réunis à lui. Mais des anges apparurent aussi à Abraham, à Moïse, à Gédéon, à Zacharie, à Joseph, à Pierre, à Paul, à Jacques, à Jean, à Corneille, et à d'autres. Pourquoi n'apparaîtraient-ils pas aux hommes de nos jours? Un ange a révélé à Joseph Smith les anciennes annales des Aborigènes de l'Amérique; notre foi ne repose pas sur son témoignage seul; car un ange a confirmé les mêmes choses à d'autres personnes, qui, aussi, en rendent témoignage. Est-ce donc chose si surprenante que le Seigneur révèle l'histoire des millions de millions qui ont habité ce grand continent-là, dont les ruines sont des monuments vivants de leur intelligence et de leur civilisation? Ou devra-t-on nous dire que le Seigneur ne voulait et ne pouvait se révéler qu'à un petit nombre de peuples en Asie, et laisser le reste du monde dans les ténèbres? Si ces annales sont vraies, il y aura d'autres découvertes, qui dévoileront l'action de Dieu sur d'autres peuples, que le monde sera forcé de croire. Comment le monde est-il arrivé à la connaissance de Dieu? Par révélation directe, ou par les Ecritures qui sont données par révélation. Et sans révélation, nous serions dans l'ignorance de Dieu. Qui donc voudrait fermer la bouche de Dieu, et nous dire qu'il ne faut pas et qu'il ne doit pas se communiquer encore aux hommes. Pour être conséquent, nous devons dire qu'il y a probabilité que Dieu le fera encore ou qu'il ne l'a jamais fait: car si nous croyons qu'il a déjà parlé, pourquoi ne pas croire qu'il le peut faire encore de nos jours?

Mais on nous dit qu'il y a eu un grand nombre d'imposteurs dans le monde. Cela est vrai. Mais un imposteur est-il jamais venu avec la plénitude et la simplicité de l'Evangile? Nous répondons, non; car on ne peut pas le montrer. Saint Jean dit: "Celui qui transgresse et ne demeure point dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ ne possède point Dieu. Et quiconque demeure dans la doctrine de Jésus-Christ, possède le Père et le Fils."

Or, où est l'imposture dans cet Evangile ou dans ces annales? L'Evangile que nous enseignons et l'Evangile contenu dans ces annales sont précisément le même, en doctrine, en ordonnances, et en bénédictions, que celui contenu dans la Bible; et ces annales qui sont l'histoire d'un peuple du continent de l'Amérique, confirment les annales asiatiques qui sont la Bible. Dans les temps anciens, est-ce que les Apôtres disaient aux hommes de "croire au Seigneur Jésus-Christ et de se repentir de leurs péchés?" Nous faisons de même. Leur disaient-ils "d'être baptisés au nom de Jésus pour la rémission de leurs péchés!" Nous disons de même. Imposaient-ils leurs "mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit?" Nous le faisons aussi. Crurent-ils aux Prophètes, aux révélations, aux visions, aux "guérisons des malades par l'imposition des mains par la foi en Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent, ils "l'espoir en la résurrection?" Nous l'avons aussi. Attendaient-ils le "second avénement de l'apparition glorieuse de notre Seigneur et Sauveur Jésus-Christ?" Nous aussi. Eurent-ils "des Apôtres, des Prophètes, des Evangélistes, des Pasteurs, des Instructeurs, etc.?" Nous les avons aussi. Eurent-ils "le don des langues, le don d'interprétation, des visions, des gouvernements, le don de secourir, etc.?" Nous aussi. Mirent-ils en pratique la doctrine, les préceptes, et l'exemple de Jésus-Christ? Nous tâchons aussi de le faire, et nous savons que Dieu a restauré de nouveau ces anciennes bénédictions à son Eglise actuelle.

Nous demanderons ce qu'il y a d'inconséquent en tout cela? Lequel est le plus inconséquent, de croire et de pratiquer les Ecritures, ou de dire, nous les croyons et puis de les nier à notre organisation, à nos doctrines, à nos œuvres.

Mais des visions, des prophéties, des révélations n'ont-elles pas une tendance à conduire à l'enthousiasme et au fanatisme? Oui, les visions humaines et les délusions de Satan l'ont. Mais si le Seigneur eût pensé que ses visions et ses révélations fussent préjudiciables aux hommes, pourquoi les aurait-il données dans les anciens temps? Si elles doivent être préjudiciables de nos jours, certainement elles l'eussent été autrefois. L'enthousiasme, la folie et le fanatisme des hommes est une chose; autre chose est Dieu révélant sa volonté aux peuples pour leur organisation, leur stabilité, leur consolation, leur union, leur savoir, leur édification, et pour l'établissement de son royaume.

Les principes que nous croyons et que nous enseignons sont strictement conformes à la raison, à la révélation et à la philosophie.

Qui est-ce qui a fait la terre et l'homme? Si Dieu les a faits, n'a-t-il pas le droit de gouverner, d'instruire, d'ordonner et d'enseigner? Lequel est plus raisonnable, de croire que l'homme, l'image de Dieu, destiné à vivre ici-bas et dans l'éternité, doit demeurer dans un aveuglement absolu à l'égard de son bonheur présent et futur, ou de croire que son Père lui donnera l'enseignement de ces choses! Est-il donc arrivé que ce soit une dégradation de reconnaître Dieu?

Et encore, philosophiquement parlant, qu'est-ce qui peut procurer le plus grand bonheur au genre humain? L'intelligence, la vertu, la pureté, l'union et la fraternité. Et pourquoi le monde est-il, en ce jour malheureux, dans un état abaissé, corrompu et désordonné? c'est à cause de l'absence des principes purs de la vraie philosophie, de l'absence d'une philosophie et d'une intelligence, donnant la connaissance du ciel et de la terre. Car les œuvres de Dieu, sur la terre ou au ciel, temporelles ou spirituelles, sont toutes gouvernées et dirigées d'après les principes exacts d'une philosophie, la philosophie de Dieu manifestée dans les cieux et sur la terre. Et si l'homme est arrivé à de fausses conclusions sur les actions de Dieu, c'est parce qu'il lui manquait une connaissance de Dieu et de ses lois, qu'on ne peut obtenir dans sa plénitude que par la révélation. Mais comme toutes ses lois, qui nous sont connues, sont régulières et parfaites, il en est ainsi de celles qui ne sont point connues des hommes en général.

Les philosophes ont scruté l'homme, la terre, les œuvres de la création pour trouver un vrai système, Ils ont tous eu leur jour. Ils ont introduit beaucoup de bons principes, mais quant à l'amélioration du monde, là, ils ont fait défaut. Leurs systèmes, quelque bons que soient plusieurs d'entre eux, sont bien loin d'embrasser l'objet désiré: "Ils ont été pesés dans la balance, et trouvés trop légers."

Nous croyons en tous vrais principes de philosophie, et nous cherchons en outre à y associer la sagesse de Dieu. Ils recherchent, eux, la sagesse, de la terre et des œuvres de Dieu; nous la cherchons, nous, de ses œuvres, et aussi de Dieu lui-même, leur auteur. Ils recherchent les bénédictions de cette terre; nous, nous les recherchons de ce monde actuel et du monde à venir, comme une récompense dans le temps et dans l'éternité. Si nous possédons de l'intelligence, nous ne sommes pas honteux de reconnaître que c'est Dieu qui la donne. Si le Seigneur a donné des lois, nous n'avons pas de honte à les observer. Si Jésus est allé à Jean et lui a demandé d'être immersé dans l'eau, nous ne sommes pas honteux de suivre ses pas. S'il ordonna la foi, le repentir et le baptême, nous ne sommes pas honteux d'adopter le même plan. S'il ordonna l'imposition des mains pour le don du Saint-Esprit, nous la croyons nécessaire aussi. Et si, par l'obéissance à ces ordonnances, ils obtinrent la faveur divine, et reçurent un Esprit qui "devait les conduire à toute vérité, rappeler à leur souvenir les choses passées, et leur montrer les choses à venir," nous nous réjouissons de ce qu'il nous a découvert la voie qui nous fera obtenir la vraie intelligence. ainsi qu'une connaissance des vrais principes, anciens et modernes, et de notre relation avec Dieu, et nous donnera la manière d'augmenter notre bonheur et le bonheur de toute la terre.

Les hommes sont tombés dans deux extrêmes, par rapport à la religion: les uns se sont imaginés que tout est immatériel, aérien et visionnaire; ils sont devenus ascétiques, tristes et superstitieux, et ils ont imposé des prescriptions contraires à la nature humaine. Les autres, pour briser ces gênes, se sont jetés dans les excès: ils ont violé les lois de la moralité et de la vertu; ils ont négligé ou nié Dieu, et ont cherché dans la dissolution, dans la présomption, et dans la satisfaction de leur convoitise et de leur lasciveté, ce bonheur qui ne peut être obtenu que par la vertu, la modération, la pureté et la crainte de Dieu.

Notre religion est temporelle, spirituelle et éternelle; elle est adaptée au corps et à l'âme, car nous sommes un composé des deux. Et le Dieu qui a créé l'un a donné l'autre. Le but de la rédemption est de sauver le corps et l'âme; elle nous concerne dans le temps, et nous concernera dans l'éternité. Comme hommes, nous devons nous servir de notre jugement, de notre raison et de notre intelligence pour acquérir des possessions, organiser la société, cultiver la terre, semer, planter, récolter et pourvoir à nos familles. Comme chrétiens, nous devons chercher en Dieu la sagesse pour nous diriger en toutes choses, temporelles et spirituelles; et comme êtres éternels, nous devons agir, durant cette vie, en toutes choses, en vue du monde éternel, afin d'être honorés ici-bas, et de nous tenir dans notre propre position avec Dieu, dans le monde éternel, lorsque nos corps et nos esprits seront réunis de nouveau.

Le Seigneur nous a donné des révélations, touchant nos affaires temporelles et spirituelles. Il a commencé à raffermir Sion, à établir son royaume. Il déroulera et avancera ses desseins, et accomplira les paroles des prophètes; et son œuvre ira en croissant jusqu'à ce que les desseins de Dieu soient tous accomplis.

Permettez donc, mes frères, que je vous exhorte à être vertueux, à être purs, à garder les commandements de Dieu. Priez votre Père céleste de vous donner de la sagesse, de la grâce, de la patience, et de l'humilité, afin que vous soyez des modèles de tout ce qui est bon, grand, noble et spirituel "et que votre lumière brille devant les hommes." Evitez toutes contestations politiques; priez pour les nations au milieu desquelles vous vous trouvez, et pour leurs gouverneurs; et imitez notre Seigneur et Sauveur, en manifestant de la bonté, de la miséricorde, de la douceur, et de la bienveillance envers tous. En un mot, s'il y a quelque chose de bon, de louable, d'honorable et d'élevé, tâchez de vous l'approprier, et la vérité de Dieu vous rendra libres. Vous serez rassemblés à Sion dans le temps convenable, et vous vous réjouirez dans la plénitude des bénédictions de l'Evangile de paix. Vous saurez comment vous réjouir dans ce monde, comment vous recevrez la connaissance du royaume céleste de Dieu, et comment vous en obtiendrez l'héritage.

JOHN TAYLOR.

E. R. YOUNG,
Cotton Yarn Manufacturer,

Begs leave to inform the public that he manufactures, and has constantly on hand a large assortment of DOMESTIC YARNS WARPS AND FILLINGS, Chandlers Wick, Double and Twisted Yarns, Hatter's Cotton, and every variety of coarse Yarns, which he will sell at the lowest possible wholesale prices; or he will manufacture to order. The subscriber would state that as he has good machinery, experienced hands, and attends to the general superintendance himself, he is able and will manufacture as good and as cheap as any other establishment.

Merchants from Salt Lake are respectfully requested to examine his goods, a specimen of which and their prices may be found at the Mormon office.

E. R. YOUNG, Westport, Conn.
REFERENCE—J. TAYLOR, Ed. Mormon. ap7

St. Louis, Mo.

SPRING SALES FOR 1856!
CHARLES ROGERS,
IMPORTER OF HARDWARE, CUTLERY, GUN AND HEAVY GOODS,
No. 152 Main St., St. Louis, Mo.,

Has arriving, and to be in Store for the coming season, a large and excellent assortment of all that belongs to the above line of business, to which he respectfully invites the citizens of this and other points migrating to the Great Salt Lake City.

Anxious to establish a trade in this portion of the country, reliable buyers can do themselves no harm in examining his Stock, as he intends either to sell to such upon good terms, and cheap, or compel other houses to do so for them.
mh8-ly CHARLES ROGERS.

ARTHUR LEITCH,
APOTHECARY AND CHEMIST,
Corner of Fifth and Market Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
American, English and French Drugs, Perfumeries, Brushes, and all articles appertaining to the Toilet. mh29-3m

TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.
JOHN MADIGAN,
BOOT MAKER,
No. 7 Fourth Street, opposite the Court House,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17

EMIGRATION TO UTAH, CALIFORNIA AND OREGON!
D. NICHOLSON'S
Tea, Coffee, and Sugar Warehouse,
DIRECT IMPORTER OF BRANDIES, SCOTCH ALE, WHISKEY, AND LONDON PORTER, SARDINES, FRENCH FRUITS, &C.,
N. E. CORNER OF FOURTH AND MARKET STREETS,
St. Louis, Mo. fe17 1y

EDWIN R. VIOLETT. WILLIAM DEAN.
E. R. VIOLETT & CO.,
Manufacturers' Agents and Dealers in
JUNIATA IRON,
BURKE & BARNES' AND W. W. BACON'S
FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES & LOCKS,
18 Levee and 36 Commercial Street,
ST. LOUIS.
ALWAYS ON HAND,
Juniata Iron; Elastic and Seat Springs; Nails, Brads and Spikes; Axle Spring and Plow Steel; Crow Bars, Iron Plow Moulds, Castings, Rivets, Nuts and Washers of all sizes, and Pittsburgh Manufactures generally. fe17 6m

ALEXANDER DOW,
Manufacturer of all kinds of
Copper, Tin, and Sheet Iron Ware,
Dow's Miners' Lamps, warranted air-tight;
No. 9 Wire, Nails, Axles, Ox Chains, &c.
COOKING STOVES KEPT CONSTANTLY ON HAND.
Cooking and Light Travelling Stoves; also, other out-fittings adapted to the use of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, may be found at
No. 133 MARKET ST., BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH, St. Louis, Mo.
Window Glass, 8 x 10 and 10 x 12. fe17 tf

J. T. DOWDALL. R. E. CARR.
DOWDALL, CARR & CO.,
WASHINGTON FOUNDRY,
ENGINE AND MACHINE SHOP,
CORNER OF SECOND & MORGAN STS.,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Manufacturers of Steam Engines and Boilers, Saw and Grist Mill Machinery, Tobacco Screws and Presses, Lard Kettles, Lard Screws and Cylinders, Wool Carding Machines, Young's Patent Smut Machines, Building Castings, &c., &c., &c.
Agents for sale of James Smith & Co.'s Superior Machine Cards. fe17

EDDY, JAMESON & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
American and European Fancy and Domestic Dry Goods,
NOS. 170 AND 172 MAIN STREET,
Between Green Street and Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
JOS. A. EDDY, A. M. BISSELL,
J. A. JAMESON, A. COTTING, JR.,
J. P. EDDY, CHAS. C. HELLMERS.
fe17

CALIFORNIA, SALT LAKE, AND OREGON!
Provisions and Groceries,
At wholesale prices, put up to order with neatness, fidelity, and dispatch: of the very best quality, at less prices than can be purchased in the city,
At 37 Levee.
Californians, and those for Oregon bound, Salt Lake, or Deseret,
All flock to HAM'S, their supplies to get;
Whether by Isthmus, or o'er land route, it's all the same,
His stock's complete—you can get just what you name.
fe17 6mo JAMES HAM, St. Louis, Mo.

OVER THE PLAINS!!!
LOUIS ESPENSCHIED,
WAGON MANUFACTURER,
ON BROADWAY,
Between Labeaume and Webster streets, opposite Empire Mills,
NORTH ST. LOUIS, MO. fe17 1y

JOHN LEACH. JAMES G. GOODRICH.
HO! WESTWARD BOUND!!
Your attention is called to the establishment of
LEACH & GOODRICH,
NO. 128 SECOND STREET,
Between Vine street and Washington avenue,
St. Louis, Mo.,
Wholesale Grocers and Commission Merchants,
Have on hand a large and varied stock of goods adapted to the wants of emigrating parties to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon, viz:
450 hhds. N. O. sugar, fair and choice;
500 bbls. crushed, powdered, loaf & clarified sugar;
500 bgs. Rio coffee; 50 do. Havana; 100 do. Manilla;
150 pockets Government Java; 10 bales Mocha;
150 bbls. prime Plan. molasses;
100 kegs golden syrup;
100 St. Louis & La. S. H. do; 200 ½'s, ¼'s, & kgs do;
100 hf. chests and bxs tea, some extra chops;
100 kegs nails; 200 bags cotton and carpet chain;
150 bxs Va. and Mo. tobacco; 100 bxs smoking do;
100 M Havana cigars; 200 M Cuba sixes;
120 cks M. R. and layer raisins; 1000 whole, ½, ¼ do;
125 frails dates; 1000 drums figs; 20 cks currants;
150 cases citron; 20 do. orange and lemon peel;
160 bgs Greek raisins; 100 drums Smyrna do;
120 cases and boxes Canton ginger; 100 cks prunes;
10 cases prunes in glass and fancy boxes;
5 cases and boxes Worcestershire mace;
100 bags Tarragona almonds; 50 Languedoc do;
100 bbls Sicily do.; 50 bbls and bxs shelled do;
150 bbls walnuts; 50 do. filberts; 50 do. Brazil nuts;
50 bbls Texas and Arkansas pecans;
50 bxs jujube paste and gum drops;
100 bxs ass'd steam refined rock and fancy candy;
100 bxs fresh lobster; 50 do. salmon;
125 cks sardines, whole, hf. and qr. boxes;
175 cases and baskets olive oil; 2 cks chicory;
120 bbls No. 1 salmon; 200 ½'s, ¼'s & kits mackerel;
75 bbls red herring; 200 bxs scaled and No. 1 do;
100 bxs and drums codfish; 100 bxs ass'd pickles;
500 cans Baltimore Cove oysters;
100 bushels dried apples; 200 do. dried peaches;
100 bxs lemon syrup; 100 do. ketchup. fe17 tf

STEPHEN HOYT. G. C. GREENE.
STEPHEN HOYT & CO.,
Wholesale Dealers in
GROCERIES,
Importers of
WINES, FRUITS AND NUTS,
Call the attention of Emigrants to Salt Lake, California, and Oregon to
NO. 47 SECOND STREET,
Between Olive and Pine streets, St. Louis,
Where there always will be found an excellent assortment of goods, adapted to the wants of Emigrants crossing the Plains, viz.:
Green and Black Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Fish, Spices, Tobacco, Dried Fruits, Starch, Saleratus, Powder, Lead, Window Glass, Nails, Rope, Olive Oil, Pickles, Tar, &c., &c., &c. fe17 tf

N. WALL. J. WIDEN.
WALL & WIDEN,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Corner of Pine and Commercial Streets,
ST. LOUIS, MO.
Will pay particular Attention to Receiving and Forwarding Goods.
Refer to Messrs. HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake City.
St. Louis, Aug. 11, 1855. 26:tf

WAGONS FOR SALE!
KELLM & VONSTRO,
WAGON MANUFACTURERS,
NO. 185 WASHINGTON AVENUE, BETWEEN EIGHTH AND NINTH STREETS,
HAVE always on hand Wagons of superior style and quality, and well adapted for the Salt Lake Emigration. Orders strictly executed. d22

MRS. G. VINCENT,
MIDWIFE,
Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, St. Louis, Missouri.
MRS. G. VINCENT wishes to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from between Eighth and Ninth, on Market street, to the above place, and hopes by strict attention to her duties, to merit a further continuance of their patronage. d22

C. D. ELLIS. J. S. CAVENDER. JAS. SMITH, JR.
ELLIS, CAVENDER & CO.,
WHOLESALE DEALERS IN BOOTS & SHOES,
43 Main Street,
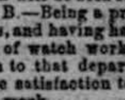
North-east corner of Pine, St. Louis, Mo.
mh8-4m

T. McCAUGHIE & Co.,
MANUFACTURER OF
LASTS, BOOT AND SHOE TREES, JOINT AND INSTEP STRETCHERS.
Lasts made to the feet, and warranted to fit.
N.B. Parties about to cross the Plains will do well to order their Water Proof Boots at
T. McCAUGHIE & Co.'s, 162 Morgan-st.,
d22-1y between 6th and 7th, St. Louis, Mo.



A. DAFT,
DEALER IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
NO. 159 FOURTH STREET,
Between Green and Morgan Streets,
HAS constantly on hand a good supply of general Household Furniture. Old and New Furniture bought, sold, and exchanged. f10-6m

CHARLES HUELSENKAMP,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer and Importer of
GROCERIES, PRODUCE, WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 34 SOUTH MAIN ST.,
Two doors below Walnut, in the store lately occupied by Braun, Krug & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Purchasers will always find a large stock of SUPERIOR FRESH GROCERIES, and every article connected with his line of business at the very lowest cash prices.
Country Produce will be taken in exchange for Groceries or for cash at market prices. d22

T. L. RIVES'
DRUG STORE AND DENTAL DEPOT,
Southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, French, English and German Chemicals, Perfumery, Surgical Instruments, &c.
Physicians' orders solicited and promptly attended to.
SAINT LOUIS DENTAL DEPOT.
Agent for Jones, White & Co.'s Artificial Teeth. Constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Dental Instruments, Tools and Materials, which I will sell at a small advance on Eastern prices. Dentist's orders promptly attended to. Banning's Patent Lace, or Body-Brace, for sale. d29-6m

ALEX. LEITCH & Co.,
APOTHECARIES AND CHEMISTS,
Marble Building, corner 4th and Olive streets,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Importers and Dealers in French, English, and American Chemicals. Fancy Goods, Toilet Articles, Surgical Instruments, &c., &c. d29-6m

SCHEER & HACKMAN'S
WAGON MANUFACTORY,
Corner Sixteenth and Market Streets,
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of WAGONS of every description.
Persons in want of Wagons would do well to call on us before going elsewhere, and secure a first-rate article, at a reasonable price. S. & H.
j12-1y

J. McGREGOR,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER,
94 MARKET STREET,
Between Third and Fourth Sts., South Side,
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
Returns thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. He has a fine stock of Clocks, Watches, and Jewelry on hand, which will be sold low.
N. B.—Being a practical Watchmaker for many years, and having had great experience in the finest kind of watch work, particular attention will be given to that department, and warranted to give entire satisfaction to all who may honor him with their work.
'd22 6m 94 MARKET ST., South side.

CLEGG & WOODWARD,
LOCKSMITHS AND BELL HANGERS,
81 Morgan-st., between 2d and 3d,
SAINT LOUIS, MO.
House Carpenters, Owners and Agents of Property, Steamboat Stewards, &c., will find their orders promptly attended to.
Saws Filed, Guns and Cutlery repaired, and Jobbing generally, neatly executed. Also, dealers in Tools and Hardware. JAMES WOODWARD, d22-6m JAMES CLEGG.

JOHN DAVIS,

GUN AND LOCKSMITH,
Between 9th and 10th, on Franklin Avenue.
Jobbing Work of all kinds neatly executed. d22

HO! FOR SALT LAKE.
"In Time of Peace Prepare for War."
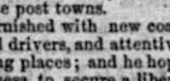
At the GREAT GUN EMPORIUM of
P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON, No. 25 Main street, (Sign of the Gilt Gun,) east side, St. Louis, Mo.,
Will be found the largest and most complete stock of FIRE ARMS in the Western country.
Emigrants and Trains crossing the plains will find it to their advantage to give us a hearing, as from an experience of twenty-six years in this trade we are enabled to offer inducements which no other house can possibly offer. We know the wants of the people, and are able to supply them to almost any extent. We can offer 10 per cent. inducements to cash buyers. Our stock consists of every variety of Double and Single Guns, Minié Rifles, U. S. Yaugers and Muskets, Sharp's and other breech-loading Rifles, Colt's Revolvers and other Pistols of every description and size. Also, Caps, Ammunition, Swords, Hunting Apparatus, and in fact everything necessary to a complete outfit.
Call and examine before purchasing.
Remember the No—25 Main street, east side.
mh15-6m P. J. ALBRIGHT & SON.

CHARLES HOLMES,
CRACKER BAKER FACTORY,
No. 105 Green St., St. Louis, Mo.
Pilot Bread, Boston, Soda, Butter, Water, Wine, and Sugar Crackers, constantly on hand, made of the best material, and warranted a superior article.
Families supplied with all kinds of Loaf Bread.
mh1

WAGON MANUFACTORY,
BROADWAY, between Jefferson and Munroe Sts.,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
THE undersigned keeps constantly on hand, a large assortment of Wagons of every description, made of the best material and workmanship. Orders correctly attended to. JOHN COOK.
d22

ELLISON & APPLETON,
DEALERS IN
NEW AND SECONDHAND FURNITURE,
CORNER FIFTH AND GREEN STS.
Mattresses and Comforts of our own make, wholesale and retail.
Mattresses cleaned and renovated.
Furniture and Stoves Bought, Sold, or Exchanged.
d22



W. H. HUISH,
Broadway and Ashley Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
MANUFACTURER OF
STEAM ENGINES, Seal and Punching Presses, Sash Planing and Sawing Machines, Lathes, Mill Work, &c.
Saw Spindles always on hand. j12

WM. O. GIBSON. J. A. GIBSON.
WM. O. GIBSON & Co.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
FAMILY GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, &c.
No. 138 and 140 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
Goods delivered free of charge to any part of the city.
St. Louis, Mo., June 23, 1855. d29-tf

R. TORR,
NO. 151 WASHINGTON AVENUE,
Between Seventh and Eighth Sts.,
St. Louis, Mo.,
ENGLISH BREAD BAKERY.
Warranted to keep sweet.
Families supplied at their residence. d22

St. Joseph, Mo.

TO THE EMIGRATION
OF "LATTER DAY SAINTS" FOR UTAH AND SALT LAKE.
Your attention is respectfully invited to the large and complete Stock of
BOOTS AND SHOES
kept at my Stand in the City of St. Joseph, Missouri. As this is a point through which a large portion of the California and Utah Emigration passes, my stock has been selected expressly in view of that trade; and being engaged in an exclusive business, I pledge myself to offer such inducements in quality of stock and prices, as will give satisfaction to all. W. GALLAND,
Sign of the Great Iron Boot,
fe17 3m St. Joseph, Mo.

TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS!

Every arrangement for the conveyance of travellers has been made by the undersigned, Stage Proprietor, on the route between St. Joseph and Bluff City.
A line of stages leave both of the above places three times per week, passing through Savannah, Oregon, Linden, Tabor, St. Mary's, Glenwood, and all the intermediate post towns.
The route is furnished with new coaches, experienced and careful drivers, and attentive agents at the several stopping places; and he hopes by strict attention to business to secure a liberal share of public patronage. F. S. Frost.
We have tried the above route and find it good.—ED. fe17 tf

TO THE MORMON EMIGRATION.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
With large Storage Warehouses and a complete stock of Merchandise and Provisions,
suitable for emigrants; also, a large stock of goods in Great Salt Lake Valley.
REFERENCES:
J. Taylor, Editor "The Mormon," } New York.
Norton, Butler & Hoyt, }
fe17

ST. JOSEPH BAKERY AND STEAMBOAT STORE.
ROBERT LADD,
Baker & Dealer in Steamboat Stores, Family Groceries, Fruits, &c.,
ON SECOND ST., NEAR MARKET SQUARE,
ST. JOSEPH, MO. fe17

Weston, Mo.

TUTT & BAKER,
WHOLESALE GROCERS, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Weston, Mo.,
Keep constantly on hand a large stock of
Provisions and Family Groceries.
They also have a large and roomy Warehouse, and pay particular attention to receiving and storing goods, &c.
fe17 TUTT & BAKER.

BELT & COLMAN,
WESTON, MISSOURI,
FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
AND
WHOLELALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots, Shoes and Clothing.
Also, Outfitting Goods of every Description.
REFERENCES:
Norton, Jewett & Bazby, New York City.
Parker & Toland, Philadelphia.
Mudd & Hughes, St Louis.
J. M. Horner & Co., Great Salt Lake City, U. T
fe17 6m

Independence, Mo.

ISAAC HOCKADAY,
DEALER IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps,
And Ready-made Clothing.
Besides a large and general assortment of out-fitting Goods, Provisions, &c., &c., suitable for California, Salt Lake, and New Mexico Outfits.
NORTH SIDE PUBLIC SQUARE,
Independence, Mo. fe17 1y

Bluff City, Iowa.

THE GREAT WESTERN BOOT AND SHOE STORE

SOUTH SIDE, BROADWAY
COUNCIL BLUFF CITY, IOWA,
BY HUNTINGTON & PYPER,
BOOTS AND SHOES, GROCERIES, HATS CAPS, CLOTHING, &C.
The subscribers being well acquainted with the wants of the West, keep constantly on hand an excellent stock of goods for Utah, California and Oregon Emigration, and the public generally, which we will sell at the very lowest prices.
All those wishing anything in our line will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show goods at fe17 6m HUNTINGTON & PYPER'S.

STUTSMAN & DONNELL,
COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS
And Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware,
Queensware, Glassware Boots, Shoe Hats, Caps, Ready-made Clothing,
And all kinds of Outfitting Goods,
Sign of the Elk, Council Bluff City, Iowa.
Lead, Bacon, Onions, Brandy, Raisins, Pickles, Goggles, Crackers, Revolvers, Dried Beef, Hard Bread, Oats and Corn, Gun Powder, Dried Apples, Dried Prunes, Dried Peaches, Pocket Knives, Yeast Powders, Wrought Nails, Pepper Sauce, California Guides, Nitric Acid, Chocolate, Cordage, Vinegar, Catsup, Cheese, Coffee, Paper, Wine, Teas, Shot, &c., &c.
fe17

TO EMIGRANTS.
M. ROGERS,
SIGN OF THE STOVE
Broadway, Council Bluff City, Iowa,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of Stoves, Hollow Ware, &c
ALSO,
TIN, SHEET IRON, COPPER, BRASS AND JAPANNED WARE,
LIGHT TRAVELLING STOVES,
And all requisite Camp Furniture for Emigrants
Job Work in their line done on short notice. fe1

N. T. SPOOR & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, PAINTS, OILS,
Varnishes, Dye Stuffs, Perfumery, Soaps, Patent Medicines of all kinds, &c.,
(at the old Stand of McMahon & Williams,)
Head of Broadway, Council Bluffs City, Iowa.

PARTICULAR NOTICE TO
SALT LAKE, SANTA FE, AND CALIFORNIA TRADERS.

HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.'S
GREAT WESTERN EMPORIUM,
FOR SHOT GUNS, RIFLES, PISTOLS, BOWIE KNIVES, AND SPORTING APPARATUS of every variety, is at
No. 42 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo., (at the Sign of the Deer in Windows.)

WE are now in receipt of our stock of Goods for Spring Trade, which enables us to say, that we have now in store, and for sale, the LARGEST and most COMPLETE assortment of Guns, Pistols, Sporting Apparatus, and Goods selected expressly for the arming of wagon trains, for crossing the plains; the markets of Santa Fe, Salt Lake, and Oregon, &c., that can be found in any HOUSE in the WESTERN COUNTRY!

Among the most staple articles now on hand, can be found upwards of 2,000 DOUBLE AND SINGLE SHOT GUNS; 2,500 MUSKETS AND UNITED STATES RIFLES, both new and second-hand, with flint or percussion locks; COLT'S REVOLVERS, of all sizes, ALWAYS on hand, in quantities to satisfy almost any demand, and at EASTERN PRICES. Also, all the most improved patterns of Revolvers and other Pistols now in use.

N. B.—We, the undersigned, being practical men in all matters appertaining to the arming and equipping of Emigrant and Merchant wagon trains for crossing the plains, renders our experience worthy of consultation, to make it the more easy for the emigrant and trader to supply themselves with the necessary articles, viz: FIRE ARMS, FIXED AMUNITION, PROVISIONS AND GROCERIES, of all kinds; Wagons, Tents, Horses, Mules, Oxen; in short, everything necessary for their comfort.

We also beg leave to call the attention of EASTERN HUNTING PARTIES, that wish to spend a few months on the plains, that we have all the necessary arms and equipments, and at prices as low as they can be furnished in any Eastern city.

We keep constantly on hand, (or make to order,) TARGET, HUNTING, and MINNIE RIFLES, which we guarantee to be superior to any in the country.

We also keep constantly on hand the CELEBRATED SHARP'S PATENT RIFLE, which is the safest and most destructive weapon ever invented, for sale at the Manufacturer's prices, for cash.

Please call and examine for yourseles, as it is no trouble for us to answer questions, or show goods.
Remember the place, No. 42 North Main street.
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19, 1856. [1y] HORACE E. DIMICK & CO.

SAMUEL ROOSEVELT,
IMPORTER OF
HARDWARE & CUTLERY,
And Manufacturer of Looking Glasses,
No. 3 Platt street,
Two doors from Pearl, NEW YORK.
S. T. HOUSE. 20

ROBERTSON, HUDSON & PULLIAM,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF
DRY GOODS,
29 Murray and 33 Warren streets, corner of Church,
NEW YORK.
A large assortment of GOODS adapted to the Trade of Salt Lake, always on hand.
Sight Drafts on HOOPER & WILLIAMS, Salt Lake, for sale.
REFERENCE—JOHN TAYLOR, Editor. je9-

POMEROY, BENTON & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
AMERICAN, ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 144 and 146 Main Street,
SAINT LOUIS. fe17

IT IS BETTER TO REPRESENT OURSELVES, THAN TO BE REPRESENTED BY OTHERS.

VOL. II.---NO. 11. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1856. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Poetry.

Heart and Hand.

Much that we covet, and all that we need,
Of pleasure, of glory, of gold,
Is ours, if our hearts and our hands are agreed,
To be mutually willing and bold;
The one to work out with its sinews of might,
Despite of contempt or disdain,
What the other has prompted, and knows to be right,
In striving our object to gain.

Our hearts and our hands, if they only were true
To themselves, and worked kinly together,
No matter what ill they were called to subdue,
They would win, would they only endeavor;
No matter how many the foes that surround,
They have hopes that should never forsake them;
No matter how strong are chains that have bound,
With a brave hand and heart we may break them.

No hazard in life which we may not surprise,
And plunder of much that can bless;
With our heart and our hand as friendly allies,
We carry the key of success;
And the fortress of Fortune must open its gate,
When before it we rattle the key;
With such an ally, hath Fate.
To shut out from fame you or me.

Though crowded the world, there is room for us yet,
And labor will still fortune bring;
And those who must work, should by no means forget
That Chance is not the world's king,
Put the heart with the hand at the laboring oar,
Wherever the voyage may be;
And Fortune that's smiled on such efforts before,
Fear not, but will smile, too, on thee.

Our hearts and our hands!—oh, strengthen the will
That binds two such levers in one!
We have need of them both united, until
The goal we are seeking are won.
O dreamer, who buildeth air castles so high,
Let thy hands work the plan of thy brain,
And thou'lt not have reason so often to sigh
That thy dreamings have all been in vain.

France and her "Infant."

While hoping for the child that has just entered into this world of troubles and vicissitudes a less checkered and more auspicious fate than has waited upon his predecessors born in the purple, we cannot forget the teachings of history, particularly of the history of France, nor be blind to the chances which interpose themselves between the cradle and the throne of the baby Emperor. Not a little remarkable is it to observe that, from the accession of Louis XIV. to the present time, not a single King or Governor of France, though none of them, with the exception of Louis XVIII., have been childless, has been succeeded at his demise by his son. Louis XIV. survived his son, his grand-son and several of his great-grand-children, and was succeeded at last by one of the younger children of his grandson, the Duke of Burgundy. Louis XV. survived his son, and was succeeded by his grandson, Louis XVI. Louis XVI. left a son behind him, but that son perished in a filthy dungeon to which the cruelty of the terrorists had confined him. The King of Rome, to whom Napoleon fondly hoped to bequeath the boundless empire he had won, died a colonel in the Austrian service. Louis XVIII. was, we have said, childless. The Duke de Berri fell by the hand of an assassin in the lifetime of Charles X; and his son, the Duke de Bordeaux, is in exile from the land which his ancestors regarded as their own estate. The eldest son of Louis Philippe perished by an untimely accident, and his grandson and heir does not sit upon the throne of his grandfather. Thus, then, it appears that for upwards of 200 years, in no one of the dynasties to which France has been subjected has the son succeeded to the throne of the father. We have no claim to offer any opinion with regard to the internal government of France, as now established, and with reference to our own relations with that country have nothing better to wish for than the firm establishment of the dynasty with Louis Napoleon. We have found in the present Emperor a true and loyal ally, a Prince thoroughly alive to the real interests of France and England, and anxious to base his popularity, not upon the miserable expedient of fomenting ancient dislikes and discords, but upon the far more durable and reasonable basis of mutual esteem and good understanding. Whatever contributes to his welfare, confirms his power, and tends to perpetuate his rule, must be regarded as no less interesting to England than France.

But we are compelled to admit that, many chances lie between the infant heir of the Emperor and the Empire itself. Should the present Emperor survive and perpetuate his power till his son arrived at those years which entitle him to take upon himself the duties of the Government, one main difficulty would, undoubtedly, be overcome, but others remain behind, of an equally formidable nature. Were France an hereditary monarchy like England, where the Soversign is exempted by the very terms of the Constitution from responsibility for his acts, and is bound to govern by the advice of his ministers, whatever be the character of the new-born child, we might confidently predict that he would ascend and occupy the throne of his father. Nay, were he a despotic monarch, like the Emperor of Russia, who rules not only by the veneration and fanaticism of his subjects, he might also, probably, succeed, with no heavier liability than that having his career cut short, should he govern in a manner to displease the most prominent and powerful of his subjects. But, in France, government is neither founded on prescription, as with us, nor on superstition, as in Russia. The qualities which secure obedience in France seem now to be purely personal, and little is gained by birth, unless it be united with those qualities which conciliate the respect and compel the obedience of mankind. It is not every Philip that can hope to be succeeded by an Alexander—not every man of good capacity who can expect to be ripe for the most difficult situation in the world in the first years of opening manhood. Amid the shipwreck of so many dynasties, amid the blasting of so many fair prospects of success, it were presumptuous to anticipate for this last child of a reigning family that good fortune which has been denied to so many of his predecessors. Who does not remember the prophetic poem in which Beranger represents the son of the great Napoleon as warning the youthful Duke de Bordeaux of the snares and difficulties that surround the path of the future heir of the French diadem? "Fortune," writes the heir of the empire to the heir of the Restoration, "stretches to you a hand, smiles upon your birth. My first day also was fair. Kings adored me in the cradle, and yet I am in Vienna. I slept upon laurels, and you are wrapt in purple; sceptres were my playthings, my head was bound with a crown, the marshalls swore fidelity to me—an oath which they have, doubtless kept—and yet I am in Vienna." The lessons of history on this subject are so exceedingly striking and appropriate, that it is impossible for an impartial writer to consider such an event as the present without alluding to them. And yet, if we were permitted to dwell in the land of hope rather than in that of reality, how gladly would we believe that in the birth of an infant, at the very moment that gives renewed peace to Europe, we find a pledge for the termination of those incessant convulsions which, from the assembly of the States-General under Louis XVI., have, at longer or shorter intervals, never failed to agitate the Government and people of France.—[London Times.

Origin of the Word "Canada."

The origin of the word "Canada" is thus defined:—The Spaniards visited the country previous to the French, and made particular searches for gold and silver; and finding none, they often said among themselves, "Aqui nada" (there is nothing here). The Indians, who watched closely, learned this sentence and its meaning. After the departure of the Spaniards, the French arrived, and the Indians, who wanted none of their company, supposed they were also Spaniards come on the same errand, and were anxious to inform them that their labor was lost by tarrying in that country, incessantly repeated the Spanish sentence, "Aqui nada." The French who knew as little of Spanish as the Indians, supposed the incessantly recurring sound was the name of the country, and gave it the name of Canada, which it has borne ever since.

Death of Von Biela.

The scientific world will learn with regret the death of the celebrated astronomer Von Biela, which took place at Venice on the 18th of February, in his 74th year. At an early age he entered the service of Austria, and it was in the year 1826, while quartered with his regiment, the 18th Infantry of the Line, at the little town of Josephstadt, that he made the interesting discovery of the comet (called after him) circulating round the sun, between that luminary and the orbit of Saturn. Having retired from the army he spent the last years of his life in the study of his favorite science—astronomy.

St. Louis Stake.

The Half-yearly Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was held in the Church, corner of Washington Ave. and Fourth-street, St. Louis, Mo., on Sunday and Monday, April 6th and 7th.

The President called the meeting to order at 10½ A.M.

The hymn on the first page was sung, and the Conference opened with prayer by the President, James H. Hart.

Elder John Banks (from Cincinnati) moved that Elder James H. Hart preside over this Conference. Seconded and carried.

James S. Cantwell was appointed clerk, and Samuel J. Lees, reporter.

Elder James Hart arose and said: Brethren and sisters—I feel honored in being called upon to preside over this Conference; and although I feel my insufficiency for the task, yet my confidence is unshaken in the Lord, as it always has been when called upon to execute any duty in His kingdom. I therefore acquiesce in the appointment, and stand before you with pleasure and satisfaction, and feel grateful to our Father in Heaven for permitting us to assemble this morning under such favorable circumstances to transact business pertaining to the Kingdom of God. I had hoped that we should have been favored with the presence of one or more of the Twelve on this occasion, but in our disappointment we may enjoy the satisfaction of having the spirit that is in them to attend our Conference—even the Holy Ghost, the Comforter that will lead and guide us into all truth—inasmuch as it may be necessary for us to comprehend the same. I feel happy to meet so many of my brethren and sisters here this morning, for I regard you as men and women who have made a covenant with the Almighty, to serve Him and keep His commandments; and if your countenances are a faithful index to your hearts, I should say that you enjoy the Spirit of God, and that you have come here to worship Him and do His will. It is a constant source of gratitude and thanksgiving to remember the blessings that have attended us during the past six months, for the general good spirit that has brooded over us, for the measure of health that has prevailed among this people, and the success that has attended our administration; all these things call forth our praise and thanksgiving. The number baptized since our last Conference I am not at present able to state, but we shall have the statistical report laid before us during the Conference. Our brethren of the various Quorums met together in a general Priesthood meeting last night, and transacted considerable financial and other business, which will be brought before you for approval during the day. To-day is, I believe, the twenty-sixth anniversary of the organization of the Kingdom of God on the earth in these last days. It is now twenty-six years since the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was organized with six individuals. When we look upon this assembly, and cast our eyes abroad among the nations, and mark the progress of the Kingdom of God, and behold thousands and tens of thousands gathered to Zion—to the ensign lifted up on the tops of the mountains—a people from every clime and tongue, and behold their labors and diligence and progress in the truth and in the building up of cities and temples, we are led to exclaim: what hath God wrought! We are, indeed, astonished to behold the mighty progress of the gospel in so short a period of time, and we are constrained to praise the name of the God of Israel for the manifestation of His power and wisdom among the nations, for by the weak things of the world He has confounded the wisdom of the wise and brought to pass the marvellous and hidden things we now see and hear. And if such be the progress made during the last quarter of a century by a people that were despised, cast out, persecuted and driven from place to place and from city to city, what will be the progress during the next quarter of a century? Where is the mathematician who can fully calculate the future progress of this work? There are but very few, if any, in this assembly who can comprehend or conceive that which will be accomplished in the grand consummation which yet remains in the womb of time—but it is all known unto the Lord. He who knows the end from the beginning has predestined, and will accomplish all things connected with the dispensation of the fulness of time. He it was who directed Joseph twenty-six years ago to organize this the Church of Jesus Christ with six individuals, and said to him that this work should go forth unto all nations, and gather the people from the ends of the earth, and bring about the redemption of Israel. It is gratifying to the Saints of God—to those who love the Lord and keep His commandments—to see the accomplishment of these things. And what has been achieved in the past may afford us encouragement in the future, and cause us to rejoice and to feel strong in the Lord and the power of His Spirit, and embolden us to say, "Let devils rage and foam, let our enemies persecute, drive and plunder, the Lord is on our side and we shall never be confounded; for He is our guide—in Him we put our trust; it is He who hath established the work in which we are engaged, and the hosts of heaven are employed to carry it forward and co-operate with apostles and prophets and other ministers of our God. Then who have we to fear? Shall we fear the puny arm of man, the power of nations or of devils? No! we need fear none of these, for the time is nigh at hand when all these powers that have been arrayed against the Kingdom of God will be laid low and bound and have no influence upon the earth, for the Kingdom of God will come and the will of God be done on earth as it is done in heaven. We are assembled here this morning to adopt and sustain such measures as may facilitate this object, according to the wisdom given unto us. Here are around me men who have been engaged in this work some ten, fifteen and twenty years—men who have an unquestionable interest in this kingdom—men who are full of wisdom and the Holy Ghost. During this Conference we shall expect to hear from them, and be instructed by wisdom from their lips, and have the spirit that dwells in them infused into us, by whose power we shall be prepared to go forth from this Conference as mighty men and faithful, and execute all the duties devolving upon us to the glory of God. We have reason to rejoice in the eternal priesthood that God has restored in these last days through his holy angels; and we rejoice, moreover, in the power that is given unto us by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, to instruct, exhort and bless the people, and set in order all things pertaining to the interests of this Stake of Zion. We have not determined upon any fixed course of operations during this Conference; we shall therefore preach, exhort, counsel and do business just as we may be directed by the spirit of the Lord; and I trust that we shall be guided in all things according to His will, that all we do may meet his approval and secure his blessing. Amen.

Elder Jno. Banks addressed the Saints at considerable length, after which, Presiding Bishop Thomas Harris, gave his report of the financial affairs of the Church. The report being satisfactory was accepted by vote.

Officers present—High Priests, 22; Elders and Seventies, 101; Priests, 32; Teachers, 19; Deacons, 9—Total, 183.

Among the Travelling Elders present, were, John Banks and Franklin B. Wooley, from Ohio; Christian Christianson, President of the Danish Saints; Hyrum H. Blackwell, from Mississippi; Henry Bunce, Travelling Elder in St. Louis Stake; N. C. Neilson, Travelling Elder in Mormon Grove, (Danish,) Leonard Smith, returning Missionary from Africa; Canute Peterson, returning from Denmark, and Haden W. Church, from Tennessee. The general authorities of the Church were unanimously sustained in their callings.

The following resolutions were moved and unanimously carried by vote:

That Brigham Young be sustained Prophet, Seer, Revelator, and President over the Church in all the earth.

Heber C. Kimball and Jedediah M. Grant, as his Councillors.

The Twelve Apostles namely: Orson Hyde, Parley P. Pratt, Orson Pratt, Wilford Woodruff, John Taylor, George A. Smith, Amasa Lyman, Ezra T. Benson, Charles C. Rich, Lorenzo Snow, Erastus Snow, and Franklin D. Richards.

John Smith, as Presiding Patriarch over the whole Church.

George A. Smith, as Historian to the Church.

Jos. Young, as President of all the Seventies.

Edward Hunter, as Presiding Bishop over the Bishoprick in all the earth.

John Taylor, as President of the Church in this part of the United States.

James H. Hart, as President of the St. Louis Stake of Zion, and Elders Charles Edwards and George Gardiner, as his Counsellors.

The High Council was then sustained by vote; viz: James Wood, James S. Cantwell, William Gore, John Hawkins, Wm. Morrison, Wm. Henshaw, Anby Sands, Charles Brindley, Thomas Harris, Samuel J. Lees, John Powel and James Brooks.

The Bishops were sustained in their callings by vote also, viz:

Thomas Harris, Presiding Bishop; Edward Cook, Bishop of the 1st and 2d Wards; W. Lowe, 3d Ward; Samuel J. Lees, 4th Ward; Andrew Sprowle, 5th Ward; Jos. Jones, 6th Ward; John Yates, 7th Ward; Joseph Sheppard, 8th Ward; Neils Lars Christianson, 9th Ward, (Danish.)

The Presidents and Counsellors of Quorums were then sustained by vote, viz:

Robert Windley, President Elders' Quorum, Thomas Caffall and Richard Ashworth, Counsellors.

William Foster, President Priests' Quorum; John Evans and Jas. Clegg, Counsellors.

Joseph Savage, President Teachers' Quorom; Thos. Hempin and Jno. Humphreys, Counsellors.

Robert Watson, President Deacons' Quorum; S. Clegg and Jno. Woolman, Counsellors.

The Clerk of the Stake, Jas. S. Cantwell, was then sustained by vote.

C. Christianson the President of the Danish Saints, was also sustained.

Henry Bunce, Travelling Elder, in this Stake, was also sustained by vote.

The President made a few remarks on the good feeling that was manifested in the meeting.

The Choir sung a hymn, and the meeting was dismissed with prayer, by Elder Leonard Smith.

Afternoon meeting commenced with singing, and opened with prayer by Charles Edwards.

The sacrament was administered by the Bishops. The meeting was afterwards addressed by Elder Haden W. Church.

The Clerk gave his report of the Branches; after which the President addressed the Saints on the subject of emigration. At the conclusion, he moved, that Thomas Harris, James S. Cantwell, Samuel J. Lees, Joseph Jones, George Gardner, John Banks, (President of Cincinnatti Conference,) Joseph Sheppard, (of Alton,) and Hadden W. Church, (Travelling Elder in Tennessee,) be released from their duties, and permitted to go home to Zion, with our blessings on them. Carried.

Moved, That Elder Charles Edwards, be appointed Presiding Bishop of this Stake, in place of Thomas Harris, released. Carried.

Moved, That Elder John Gordon, be appointed Clerk of this Stake, and Church Recorder in the place of James S. Cantwell, released. Carried.

Moved, That Elder James Caffall, be appointed First Counsellor to the President, in place of Charles Edwards, removed to the Bishoprick. Carried.

Moved, That Elder Christian Christianson, be appointed Second Counsellor to the President, in the place of George Gardiner, released. Carried.

Moved, That Elder William Turner, be appointed Bishop of the 4th Ward, in place of S. J. Lees, released. Carried.

Moved, That Robert Humphreys, be appointed Bishop of the 6th Ward, in place of Joseph Jones, released. Carried.

Moved, That Elder Charles Brindley, (of the High Council,) be appointed Bishop of the Alton, (or 8th) Ward, in place of J. Sheppard, released. Carried.

Elder Peterson, and the President, made a few remarks on the subject of unity and obedience; after which the choir sung, "Arise, O Glorious Zion," and were dismissed with prayer, by C. Christianson, till seven o'clock.

Evening—seven o'clock. The meeting opened with singing. Prayer by Samuel J. Lees.

Elder Leonard Smith, addressed the Congregation.

Elder Franklin B. Wooley, was voted to travel and preach in this Stake, and build up the Saints. Carried.

Elder Wooley addressed the Saints.

The Conference adjourned (till Monday the 7th, at 10 A. M.) with prayer, by George Gardiner.

Monday morning, April 7th, 10 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the President a hymn was sung, and Elder John Banks engaged in prayer.

The President introduced the business of the day, by calling for any suggestion the Travelling Elders thought proper to make, as to any attention acquired in their several fields of labor.

Elder Blackwell said he had been sent from San Barnardino, to preach the gospel in some of the Southern States, he had been wrecked in the steamer Golden Age, near Panama, on the 29th of April, 1854, but the Lord preserved him and he arrived in Memphis, May 17th; did not feel to preach there; pursued his way to Mississippi; and preached in Hernando, De Soto county, Oakland, Grenada, Duck Hill, Carrolton Aberdeen, and many other places, had found friends, and had baptized some; and had been assisted by strangers, in a pecuniary way. He had found favor among his own relations; had been fed by those out of the church; but had but little opposition; had baptized several of his own relations.

Elder Haden W. Church, said the Saints were so situated in Tennessee, that there was no necessity to send an Elder at present.

Elder H. H. Blackwell was appointed to labor in the upper part of Missouri, from Lexington to Council Bluffs, as Elders Mc Gaw, Gustin, and Rust were about to return to the Valley this season.

Moved, That the several branches of Danish Saints round Burlington be organized and called the Burlington Conference. Carried.

Moved, by President H. Christianson, that Christian Frederick Nelson preside over that Conference. Carried.

Moved, That Neils Hanson, of Alton, and Neils Anderson, of St. Louis, take a mission to Mitchel county, Iowa, break up new ground among the Danish people in that region. Carried.

Moved, That J. C. Neilson be released from his mission among the Danish Saints in Mormon Grove, Weston, &c., and permitted to go to the Valley this season. Carried.

Moved, That Neils Lars Christianson be appointed to preside over the Danish Saints in Mormon Grove, Weston, &c. in place of Elder Neilson released. Carried.

Moved, That Hans Christopherson be appointed Bishop over the Danish Saints in St. Louis. Carried.

Moved, That Stephanus Moss be sustained as President of the Danish Saints in Alton. Carried.

Moved, That Henry Bunce be appointed President of the Saints in Keokuk, Quincy, and Montrose and surrounding country.

Elder John Knapp represented about twenty or thirty Saints living in or about Otto Creek, Michigan, and was appointed to preside over them.

The subject of assisting some of the brethren to the Valley (who had only part of the means), was amply discussed and the Conference pledged themselves to do all in their power to further the object. The meeting adjourned with prayer, by Leonard Smith, until 7½ P. M.

Evening meeting commenced by singing, and prayer by Bishop Thomas Harris.

The President read a letter he had just received from Nimrod Murphree, a travelling Elder in Marion, Williamson county Illinois, giving a cheering account of his labors, and a report of about twenty members in that place.

Elder G. Gardiner gave report of his mission to Sullivan county and Springfield, Illinois.

Elder Henry Bruce then gave report of his labors.

Moved, That Elder Henry Bruce be recommended to Elder John Taylor, to preside over the Cincinnati Conference in place of Elder John Banks, released. Seconded and carried.

Moved, That we adjourn this Conference until the 6th day of October, 1856. Seconded and carried.

The Hymn—"Come, come, ye Saints"—was sung, and the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Elder C. Edwards.

James H. Hart, President.
James S. Cantwell, Clerk.
S. J. Lees, Reporter.

The following is a list of the Branches and the number of Members connected with this Stake:

No.	Branches.	Members, including Officers.
1.	St. Louis, Mo.	153
2.	Gravois, Mo.	244
3.	Dry Hill, Mo.	62
4.	Alton, Ill.	133
5.	Centreville, Ill.	10
6.	Burlington, Iowa.	10
7.	Quincy, Ill.	25
8.	Cincinnati, O.	177
9.	Pomeroy	43
10.	Canneiton, Iowa.	8
11.	Fairfield, Iowa.	15
12.	Springfield, Ill.	24
13.	Belfountaine, Mo.	37
14.	Keokuk, Iowa.	64
15.	Calhoun Co., Ill.	19
16.	Bluff City, Iowa.	100
17.	Indian Creek, Iowa.	12
18.	Kingston, Ill.	11
19.	Maquoketa, Iowa.	7
	Carried forward	2050

No.	Branches.	Members, including Officers.
	Brought forward	2050
20.	Atchison & Mormon Grove, K. T.	18
21.	Jacksonville, Ill.	7
22.	Platten, Mo.	2
23.	Sullivan, Ill.	3
24.	Pecan Point, Ark.	9
25.	Savannah, Mo.	8
26.	Rockport, Mo.	5
27.	Nishnebotne, Iowa.	10
28.	St. Josephs, Mo.	27
29.	Sipsy, Ala.	49
30.	Cold Water, Tenn.	4
31.	Duck River, Tenn.	13
32.	Cedar Grove, Iowa.	13
33.	Alquina, Iowa.	8
34.	Carisco, Wis.	8
35.	Marion, Ill.	25
36.	Otto Creek, Mich.	10
	Total English, &c.	2278

DANISH.

1.	St Lou's, Mo.	123
2.	Alton, Ill.	78
3.	Mormon Grove	28
4.	Weston	33
5.	Keokuk	31
	Carried forward	288
	Brought forward	288
6.	Burlington	36
7.	Union Township	26
8.	Channel Creek	12
	Total Danish	364

ITALIAN.

1.	St. Louis	26
	Grand total, 45 Branches	2668

Queen Victoria Descended from an Irish Princess.

Dermot, Ling of Leinster, had an only daughter remaining. He offered her in marriage to the Earl of Pembroke, with the whole kingdom of Leinster for her dowry, so as he would help him to his revenge. After a great battle against the Danes, in which the Normans were victorious, the marriage was celebrated at Waterford. No record remains to us of the beauty of the bride, or in what language the Norman knight wooed her to his arms; this we only know, that Eva, Queen of Leinster in her own right, and Countess of Pembroke by marriage, can number amongst her descendants the present Queen of England. The great Earl of Pembroke lived but a few years after his capture of Dublin. The Irish legends say that St. Bridget killed him. However, he and Eva had no male heir, and only one daughter, named Isabel, after the Earl's mother, who was also aunt to the reigning King of Scotland. This young girl was sole heiress of Leinster and of her father's Welsh estates. Richard Cœur de Lion took her to his court at London, and she became his ward. In due time she married William Marshall, called the great Earl, hereditary Earl Marshal of England, and the Earl of Pembroke and Leinster, in right of his wife. * * Isabel and Earl William had five sons and five daughters. The five sons, William, Walter, Gilbert, Anselm, and Richard (we see that Isabel called no sons of hers after the royal traitor Dermot, her grandfather), inherited the title in succession, and all died childless. We have said that there was a doom upon Dermot's male posterity. The inheritance was then divided between the five daughters, each of whom received a province for a dowry. Carlow, Kilkenny, the Queen's County, Wexford, and Kildare were the five portions. Maud, the eldest, married the Earl of Norfolk, who became Earl Marshal of England in right of his wife. Isabel, the second, married the Earl of Gloucester, and her grand-daughter, Isabel also, was mother to the great Robert Bruce, who was therefore great-great-great-grandson of Eva and Strongbow. Eva, the third daughter, married the Lord de Brecs, and from her a daughter of hers, named Eva likewise, descended from Edward IV, King of England, through whose granddaughter Margaret Queen of Scotland, daughter of Henry VII, the present reigning family of England, claim their right to the throne. Through two lines, therefore, our most gracious Majesty can trace back her pedigree to Eva, the Irish princess.—[Dublin University Magazine.

Nicaragua Bonds.—The San Francisco Herald has seen a specimen of the bond engraved and lithographed in that city for the use of the Government of Nicaragua. It was of the denomination of $1,000, and was executed on fine bank note paper. It was embellished with a fine engraving of Virgin Bay, a head of Washington, an American eagle, and pictures emblematic of commerce &c.

THE MORMON

Will be published on SATURDAY MORNING of each week.

Office—No. 102 Nassau st., cor. Ann, N. Y.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$2 in advance.
Six months.....$1 "
Single copies.....5 cents each.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

ONE SQUARE.		TWO SQUARES.
3 months	$4.	3 months	$8.
6 "	$6.	6 "	$12.
12 "	$10.	12 "	$18.

Larger advertisements in proportion.

One square—10 lines or less.

All letters and communications must be addressed to JOHN TAYLOR, Editor of "THE MORMON," New York, post-paid.

THE MORMON.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1856.

Polygamy Troubling Churches and Editors.

ABOUT two months since we published an article from the New York Tribune under the heading "Free Love in the Church;" the writer of that article charged Christians at home with inconsistency for opposing the admission of Utah into the Union as a Sovereign State, on account of the greater portion of the inhabitants of that Territory believing that the ancient Prophets and Patriarchs in Israel lived purely in their married relations, and the consequent adoption by the hardy mountaineers of such a principle in preferance to monogamy, while these same Christians sustained Missionaries in India who were baptizing and receiving into the Churches as brothers in Christ, men who were living in the practice of polygamy. We of course hunted up Mr. Allen's work alluded to by the Tribune, and found that the Missionaries did not admit polygamists into sacred and holy communion with them on the grounds of expediency, but from conviction that polygamy was both "a Jewish and Primitive Christian doctrine and practice." We published in the 1st and 2d Nos. of this volume of our paper two articles on the subject, and consigned Mr. Allen's work to the shelf for the time being. The subject is, however, once more on the tapis, and our monogamic friends are in a dilemma.

The Examiner and New York Baptist Register of April 24th publishes a letter from a pastor on the Tribune's article. He writes:

"Will you allow me to ask your attention to some remarks in The N. Y. Weekly Tribune, of Feb. 23, under the heading, 'Free Love in the Church?' In that article the Baptists, in common with other denominations, are charged with tolerating polygamy in their mission churches in India. This charge has excited no little surprise in this section, and is operating unfavorably in regard to the interests of our missions; and I think will do so to a much greater extent in the future if it remains uncontradicted. As a pastor, I have much difficulty in raising funds on account of it, notwithstanding I have given it as my opinion that the charge was unfounded. As no correction of the statements has appeared, many are disposed to regard them as reliable, and will withhold their support from the Union in the future, if they are passed over in silence.

"In common with many others, who feel a deep interest in the cause of missions, I have been hoping to see some explanation of this matter in The Examiner. But, having been disappointed in this, I think it due to the cause to request, if the charge referred to be incorrect, that a correction be given to the public at an early date, through the columns of The Examiner. I think this will save the Union and the denomination from reproach, and the treasury of the Union from additional embarrassment. J. H."

To this The Examiner attempts to give a reply, but labors carefully to avoid doing so. After acknowledging its inability "to supervise all 'religious' articles of The Tribune," the editor says:

"We did not feel called upon to notice the article referred to by our correspondent, for the reason that no American Baptist missionary was of the Conference named in Dr. Allen's book. We cannot say, however, that all American Baptist missionaries are agreed as to the course to be pursued with polygamists professing to be Christians, and we are not aware that the subject has been acted upon by the Missionary Union or its Executives. But we are very sure that neither the Union nor its Executives would sanction a polygamous Christianity. We believe polygamy, in this nineteenth century, to be incompatible with church membership, and we should be glad to see that ground taken and maintained by all foreign missionary institutions.

"But while we have these convictions, we are not sure that the home administration of the Missionary Union could safely give expression to similar views on the question. It might be regarded as an interference with the 'just liberty' of the missionaries, and we all know that many good men have been made sad to think how missionaries, of sound minds and large experience, are 'trammeled' by rules sent to them from the Missionary Rooms. A little polygamy, here and there, in the mission churches, might, therefore, be more endurable to some missionaries and many contributors, than anything like searching inquiry or positive instructions on the subject. Is not a 'missionary on the field,' it might be asked, and with a good deal of force, too, as well qualified to act 'independently' in deciding upon the qualifications for church membership, as of the means of evangelizing the heathen?"

The Tribune, in noticing the above, says:

"The Examiner, as will be seen in its article elsewhere given, though it purges itself of any complicity in this questionable doctrine and practice of the toleration of Polygamy in the infant churches of India, is by no means able to say so much for the Baptist Missionary Union or its executives, and still less for the Missionaries themselves. It expresses itself, indeed, as 'very sure that neither the Union nor its executives could sanction a polygamous Christianity;' and yet in the very preceding sentences it frankly admits that 'it is not aware that the subject has been acted upon by the Missionary Union or its executives.' And what renders this admission the more significant is, its confession, at the same time, of its inability to say that 'all American Baptist Missionaries are agreed as to the course to be pursued with polygamists professing to be Christians'—an admission, we take it, on the part of The Examiner that a part, and for aught that appears a very large part, of the Missionaries are in favor in repenting in India, as to Polygamy, the same experiment which has been tried in America in the case of Slavery, and with results so disastrous, and that the American Baptist Missionaries are pretty nearly unanimous in favor of this policy, which seems to be indicated by the excuse which The Examiner sets up for the silence of the Union and its executives—which excuse is, that 'it might be regarded as an interference with the 'just liberty' of the missionaries' to attempt by rules sent from the missionary rooms, to trammel them as to this matter, or to prevent them from baptizing as many polygamist converts as they please.

"If it be the fact that missionaries of the American Baptist Union do baptize polygamous converts, then the silence of the Union upon the subject becomes no less significant than the silence of the Tract Society on the subject of Slavery. Both in one case and the other, it seems open to the construction of being a silence that gives consent."

The short article from the Examiner is what we call lame fencing with the subject for the satisfaction of the pastor and like friends. The Tribune deserves credit for manliness at least; he comes out openly against "the questionable doctrine." The latter has not probably the same class of readers as the former. The editor of the Examiner has probably more Bible readers for subscribers. However, for himself he says that he believes "polygamy in this nineteenth century to be incompatible with church membership," but he is "not sure that the home administration of the Missionary Union could safely give expression to similar views on the question." The editor, no doubt, is sincere in his preference for monogamy, but he knows well that his individual opinion goes for little compared with that of the board of administration. The administration has to think of more than New York readers and a few country parsons: there is that terrible band of missionaries all in favor of the divinity of the institution—Polygamy.

Time has rapidly changed the view men take of this doctrine. When it was first announced as a principle of Mormon faith, the press and pulpit did their best to bespatter their reputation; the opposition was muddy. The Mormons, however, jogged along, attended to their own affairs, leaving to time the vindication of their acts. The subject now is demanding and obtaining the attention of all serious, thinking Christians. It is no longer, what do editors or the Revs. John, George or Andrew say, but what did Abraham, Jacob, Moses and such leading gentlemen in Israel, who were the peculiar friends of God and the people, do in this matter? were they, or were they not, Polygamists, and what do the scriptures say about it? Polygamy is or is not a divine institution. If ordained of God thousands of years ago, and never abrogated by Him, it is a true principle to day. If wrong and corrupting in its influence to-day, then were the patriarchs and prophets of Isarel in gross darkness and weltering in corruption; for one thing is certain, they did practice it with the greatest sincerity, and no man believing the scriptures can doubt it. To this many have already come, and many more are coming quicker too than what some may think.

We could not refrain from smiling at the observation of the Examiner: "A LITTLE polygamy, here and there in the mission churches, might, therefore, be more endurable to some missionaries and many contributors, than anything like searching enquiry or positive instructions on the subject." Charity forbids us interpreting that ambiguous sentiment. One simple and pure view of it, however, reminds us of two missionaries who met in a heathen land—the one a Baptist, the other a Presbyterian. The one was instructed to immerse converts, the other was instructed to sprinkle them. After the first shaking of hands, they wisely concluded that different stations were essential; a repetition of the rows at home would never do among the heathen. The latter being more alive to the interpretations of common sense than to those of commentators, would speedily tell the one to convert the other, and when they were agreed they might speak. If "a little polygamy here and there" is to be the policy, there will be rows. Who will define "a little?" Where will it be between Abraham's modest family and Solomon's thousand? Gentlemen, you require Brigham—that's the end of it.

For the accommodation of the Examiner's friend, the pastor, and some of our friends, we make another extract from Mr. Allen's work, "India Ancient and Modern." In the appendix chapter devoted to Polygamy, Mr. Allen gives a lengthy extract from the Calcutta Christian Observer, and says:

"To those who have doubts in respect to the intrinsic moral lawfulness of polygamy as it existed among the ancient Jews, and who wish further to examine this subject, the consideration of the following extracts from a work called 'Theiyphthora,' published anonymously,* many years ago in England, is recommended. The author of this work says:

"'The best and fairest, and indeed the only way, to get at the truth on this, as on every other occasion where religion is concerned, is to lay aside prejudice, from whatever quarter it may be derived, and to let the Bible speak for itself. Then we shall see that polygamy, notwithstanding the seventh commandment, was allowed by God himself, who, however others might take it, must infallibly know his own mind, be perfectly acquainted with his own will, and thoroughly understand his own law. If he did not intend to allow polygamy, but to prevent and condemn it, either by the seventh commandment, or by some other law, how is it possible that he should make laws for its regulation, any more than he should make laws for the regulation of theft or murder? How is it conceivable that he should give the least countenance to it, or so express his approbation as even to work miracles in support of it? For the making a woman fruitful who was naturally barren, must have been the effect of supernatural power. He blessed, and in a distinguished manner owned, the issue, and declared it legitimate to all intents and purposes. If this be not allowance, what is?

"'As to the first, namely, his making laws for the regulation of polygamy, let us consider what is written in Exo. 21: 10. If he (i. e., the husband) take him another wife (not, in so doing, he sins against the seventh commandment, recorded in the preceding chapter, but), her food, her raiment, (i. e., of the first wife), and her duty of marriage, he shall not diminish. Here God positively forbids a neglect, much more the divorcing or putting away the first wife, but charges no sin in taking the second.

